The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union was held in the parish of Trenton on Tuesday, October 10th. At 10.30 a.m. there was a celebration or Holy Communion, the celebrant being the Rev. Canon Swayne, and the preacher, the Rev. W. G. deFoxley, D.D., of Trinity College, Toronto. Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Belleville, gave a talk to the members of the Union at luncheon, entitled, "Just a Few Fundamental Platitudes." At 2 p.m. the History of the Union was read and followed by the election of officers, the result being: President, Rev. Canon Swayne; Secretary, Rev. H. Pringle, Executive Committee, the Very Rev. Dean, the Rural Dean of Prince Edward, the Rev. A. S. Payne, and the Rev. G. Wright. At 3 p.m. Dr. deFoxley then gave a paper entitled "The Christian Doctrine of God." This was followed by a paper, "In Defence of Montanism," by the Rev. G. G. Wright, B.A. At 8 p.m. the session of the meeting afternoon tea was served at the Rectory by Mrs. Swayne.

STOLEN CLOTHING IDENTIFIED AND RECOVERED IN TORONTO

Police Working on Clue Furnished By Trenton Taxi

Acting on a tip given them by James Lewis, Trenton taxi driver, who gave Trenton police the information when he delivered clothing alleged stolen by two men he had driven from Trenton to Toronto, city detectives of the Toronto police force late Thursday afternoon recovered the major portion of the stolen clothing taken from the Morrison Clement plant of this city in a bold early morning theft, on Tuesday.

The clothing was recovered in a Queen Street second hand store and was identified by Mr. Thos. Hutchinson of this city, owner of the local plant, who left for Toronto early yesterday.

No arrests have been made yet, but police of the Toronto force are busily engaged tracking down warm clues.

Nearly one thousand dollars worth of clothing that had been left by customers at the local plant were stolen by the bold robbers some time early Tuesday morning by the two men who are believed to have made their way from Toronto to make their getaway. Entrance to the local plant was made by forcing a heavy window screen in the basement to the plant. The men who are believed to be residents of Toronto then speeded to the direction of Toronto. At Trenton, after their motor car engine had become hot and stalled, they pressed a taxi, driven by James Lewis of Trenton, into service, transferring the clothes to their vehicle. At Toronto they removed the clothing and paid off the driver. Returning to Trenton, Lewis became apprised of the robbery and reported his information police of the Toronto address.

JINX OF FRIDAY THE 13th NOT WORRYING MAJORITY

Today is the day when worried citizens are expected to step high, wide and handsome past those ordinary little things, which on any other day pass unnoticed. It's a day when black cats take on an added significance, when ladders left standing in downtown buildings seem horribly at the nervous and timid, and the threat of spilling salt on the family table cloth is nothing short of a national calamity.

Today is Friday the 13th!

Following the fearful of the time, honored Friday the 13th jinx, however brings to light the fact, that while some may actually fear the day when that scary combination of days and dates rolls around the majority of residents of this city think nothing of it.

Black cats may run across their unfaltering path with the utmost freedom and impudence. Ladders left conveniently standing against the sides of buildings do not affect or disturb under which they unflinchingly pass. And tipping the salt cellar over is something to laugh about.

Webster defines superstition as "an excessive reverence for or fear of, that which is unknown or mysterious; hence that which is the mind of the person or persons, whose beliefs are regarded as false and as leading to foolish or idle questions."

That's what I thought," remarked a leading citizen, who was approached Friday morning for an opinion of the Friday jinx "It's the bunk."

According to the gentleman in question it's just a matter of mind. If a person thinks long enough about a certain thing, he's bound to get that way. Superstition is something that grows on you—like playing the ponies.

"Are you superstitious?" That was the opening shot on another merchant, who was busily arranging his window for the Saturday rush of trade.

One Afraid of Jinx

"Shhh—shh——! Come into the store in the back a minute," he whispered air. "Am I superstitious? What a question to ask on Friday the 13th centi! Boy am I superstitious! And did I have a time this morning getting out of the house. I got out of bed, putting the right shoe on first and then the left. Then I carefully crossed before I tied them. And then I didn't dare start to work didn't I forget something and have to go back for it? But the worst has been to-day. I walked up the street. A big black cat ran right across in front of me. But my day is ruined. Something awful's going to happen."

This was all too depressing. Another well known pedestrian was accosted. How did he feel about this Friday the Thirteenth business?

"Is this Friday? And it's the 13th? Is it the Thirteenth?" A hurried look at his watch and then from an inside pocket.

"Well, I never knew it," he moaned, "It is Friday. Today is the last day on a note I have at the bank. Boy, it's lucky that I got to hurry off to the bank and see if they'll renew it. What if they won't" he yells, as a parting shot over his shoulder to a friend. "Blame it on the Thirteenth" the business man muttered under his breath.

"Naw, I don't believe in this Friday business—nor the 13th either", remarked the next substantial looking citizen, who was stopped.

"I was left a hundred dollars once on a Friday and come to think of it, it was the thirteenth of the month then, too. Thirteen's my lucky number, and Friday's my lucky day. Try some one else."

And so it went up and down the street. Pedestrians were stopped, who were accosted smiled pityingly at the search for knowledge. Others stared in puzzled fashion and then hurried away, taking furtive backward glances before they disappeared around the nearest corner. A few others showed a keen eyebrow in polite fashion. "Friday the 13th! Really, I wasn't aware."

The usual number of shins were barked by those consigned to the low ice rugby teams; a few plates here and there were dropped on the hard floors of local kitchens; one man missed several steps on the big ball stairs early in the morning on his descent from an upstairs office and another resigned from a flat tire over night on his car. Otherwise the Jinx jay fairly dormant.

City police reported no runs, no other directly attributable to the day.

CUT-OFF ENDS ARE OBTAINED

Parts of Guns Believed Used in Holdup Held By the Police

Sawed off ends of the guns believed to have been used by Miles Pettit and Percy Garrett, when they attempted to hold up the Bank of Commerce on Wednesday morning, now repose at the Provincial Police office due to swift work by Provincial Police, after information had been given from this headquarters. The parts were found at a rooming house on Jarvis Street in Toronto.

With the pleading guilty of the two men in Picton Police Court on Thursday, the story of how the men conceived this robbery can be pieced together. It is believed the men had been at this apartment for some time and on Friday of last week made the purchase of two shotguns as a store on Queen street in Toronto. Taking the guns to their apartment, it is believed they sawed off the ends and prepared for the holdup. Having a car at their convenience to the scene, the next thing to do was to provide means for transportation and it is alleged, that the pair stole a car from in front of the Bank of Commerce in Toronto on Tuesday night and drove directly to the scene. According to the police, the pair hung around the outskirts of Wellington for some time and then made a tour of inspection of the Bank premises, later returning to the country road. Shortly before seven o'clock, it is said they drove into Wellington and parked the car on a street, where a number of cars were also parked.

Many conjectures have been made as to how the men secured access to the Bank but this has been definitely cleared up by police investigation since the holdup. The men entered the Bank by the front door window and were in the building when Mr. Norville Kyle, the teller appeared. He was trussed up and made the fight ensued with the result that Kyle received injuries which the men escaped to be captured by Provincial Officers. The bandits will appear for sentence on Monday in Picton.

LATE EDWIN BAKER

STIRLING, (Special)—The funeral of the late Edwin Baker whose death occurred on Tuesday, October 10th, was held from his late residence on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Deceased was born in Ellesboro in Wicklow in Ontario, sixty-nine years ago and resided in Stirling for the past fifth where he conducted an implement business until eighteen years ago when he took up residence in Stirling.

Here in addition to a garage, he had been implement agency and a few years ago took over a similar business in Belleville.

The late Mr. Baker was very widely known and respected by all his acquaintances and in his death Stirling has lost one of its most popular business men. As a mute testimony of the esteem in which the deceased was held local merchants lowered their blinds during the funeral service. Rev. Mr. Wright's funeral cortege passed through the business section. The pall bearers was conducted and Constable Wickett acted as guard of honor, while the funeral procession passed through the streets on the way to the cemetery.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence by Rev. J. A. Koffend, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, assisted by Mr. Morrow of Toronto. The opening hymn, a favorite of Mr. Baker, as was the closing hymn, "Hall to the brightness of Zion's glad morning". Rev. Koffend in his introductory remarks referred to his association with the deceased and opened the service with loving tribute paid to him. Referring to his life and his relations with Mr. Baker prior to and during his illness. In concluding his remarks with the recitation of a poem which he fittingly applied to the deceased.

Mr. Perrin, a close friend of the deceased, then gave the funeral sermon which was followed by the closing hymn, "Lift up your heads, ascending pilgrims". The funeral procession then proceeded to Stirling Cemetery with interment took place with Rev. Koffend and Mr. Perrin officiating at the committal. Six intimate friends of the deceased acted as pallbearers and were Messrs. William Shaw of Ivanhoe, Harper Rollins, Walter Jeffery, Denis Welsh, Herbert Hadley and Hamilton Johnston. Left to mourn his loss are his widow, one son Clifford, one grandson Harold, and a brother, Bert of Chatham.

The floral tribute were beautiful and numerous and were from the following: Staff of Baker's Service Stations of Belleville and Stirling; Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Toronto; Garage Supply Co., of Belleville; Dominion Stirling Hydro Electric Power Commission; St. Charles of Belleville; R. E. Price, Belleville USL Battery, Rotary Club of Belleville; Mr. Bert Baker (brother) and family; of Chatham; Rev. and Mrs. J. A. MERCURY NEARS FREEZING POINT

A stiff breeze from the north held the city and district in a frosty grip last evening and early this morning, drove temperatures down to the lowest point of the present season. Just one degree above actual freezing, and formed ice on quiet pools throughout the district early Friday morning. Temperatures at their lowest point during the early hours hovered between 35 and 33 degrees, reaching that low point just before daybreak. Late garden and flower plants and other foliage were wilted by the frosty touch, but farmers, prepared for it, suffered little loss.

Knights Pay Columbus Honor

Zeal For Religion Motive of Discoverer, Says Monsgr. Nicholson

"To mark the anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, a special program was held by the Belleville Council Knights of Columbus following their regular meeting in their club rooms last night. Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., delivered the address of the evening on the career of Christopher Columbus.

The program was in charge of the lecturer, Mr. Frank Domenico, who presided and introduced the speaker.

Monsignor Nicholson in his eloquent address, paid tribute to the noble qualities and leadership of Columbus. His unselfishness and love of fellow-men were outstanding and thus he was made patron for the Knights of Columbus. His fine spiritual qualities are recognized and have been becoming better known as the continent which he discovered in 1492.

The model island Columbus' exploring was his zeal for extending the Christian religion and bringing the light of faith to those who sat in darkness. He also wished to set on foot a new crusade for the recovery of the Holy Sepulchre, and strike a blow at the power of the Turk.

He believed in himself and against powerful opposition pursued his life designs. In the hour of his deepest distress, on the very steps of the throne, he dictated his terms to the conqueror although he was but a pauper in his possessions.

His career was characteristic of humanity in general in that it alternated from the depths of misery to the heights of power and popularity only afresh to be sent into disfavor and disgrace. His indomitable courage, inflexible constancy and abiding faith remained with him to the end. When the shadows were closing around he wrote: "I have done all that I should; for the rest I commend myself to God who has never failed me in my needs."

"Although the world has changed since the day of Columbus and modern invention has narrowed its boundaries so that its surface is practically an open book we still need the qualities of Columbus to face the problems of home and country as he met the physical mysteries of his day," concluded Monsignor Nicholson.

After the program a series of games was enjoyed by the members and refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

PILE OF SOFT COAL SAVED

Internal Combustion Is Believed to Have Been Cause

Menaced for a time by a smouldering fire, which seethed in the interior of a ten hundred ton pile of soft coal in the yards of the Schuster Coal Company south of the city was saved late yesterday afternoon through the combined efforts of the local fire department and workers at the yard who succeeded in checking the menacing blaze. Internal combustion, caused by the recent warm and damp weather was given as the cause of the fire by officials of the company. Curling wisps of smoke which issued from the huge pile in the yard late yesterday gave first intimation that a fire existed in the centre of the pile. Firemen who were summoned fashioned a steel pipe which was driven to the centre of the coal, and through which a flood of water was turned. Checking the blaze to enable workers to carry some of the material from the high pile to work of cutting the pile down was being continued today.

GUIDE FOR AMATEURS

Can Try Out With Pros Under Certain Conditions

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—For the guidance of many amateur hockey players who have or will be offered tryouts with professional teams, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has issued a list of conditions under which the amateur may do so and, in the event of his non-success, still retain amateur standing.

The conditions are:

"He must first have a written invitation from a professional team.

"Before he tries out or practices with the professional team he must obtain the sanction to do so from the branch of the C.A.H.A. in which he resides. The branch in question will then file this sanction in writing with the registration committee of the C.A.H.A. Upon the sanction being passed by the committee the player may then try out or practice, providing no contract has been signed and no money take outside of legitimate travelling and living expenses.

"Notwithstanding the above provision, a player availing himself those privileges must not under any circumstances take part in a professional game.

"If a player does not conform with these regulations in trying out with a professional team, he is automatically suspended."

POLICE COURT

James Oliver, Hamilton, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, when he appeared in the police police court held before Magistrate Millet this morning and was sentenced to seven days, dating from his arrest. Oliver has been confined to the local jail for the past week on remand and was told to vacate the city at last sentence.

The accused man was arrested one week ago by the local police following information received regarding to a letter was acting rather suspicious near Corby's where his possession was found a large knife. During the period of his detention his record was procured by the authorities and it was found he had been previously convicted on various minor counts at least six times. Oliver bears a nasty scar from the police court following the wearing of a of his sentence.

Mrs. Holst, Earle St., complained to the police regarding the theft of various articles of wearing apparel from the family lothesline. Mrs. Holst informed the police that the clothes had been apparently taken sometime early Friday morning. The value of the wearing apparel so far is set at $4.00. The police are investigating.

Current Sport

When the New York Giants won the world series last week it marked the twelfth winning of baseball's classic by the National League; also the thirteenth Leagues contests having annexed 7 world series. These figures do not include the series played between the Boston Red Sox and the Pittsburg Pirates of 1903, however.

The record winning streak for one league is four straight wins. That was established by the American League when the Athletics won the honors in 1910, 1911 and 1913, with the Boston Braves the honors in 1912. This record was again established in the junior loop, when the Boston Americans romped home in three in 1915, 1916 and 1918, with the Chicago White Sox winning the honors in 1917. The American League again equalled the four-year-straight mark when the New York Yankees won the classic in 1927 and 1928 and the Athletics winning it in 1929 and 1930. The best consecutive record made by the National League was by the Chicago Cubs in 1907 and 1908 with the Pirates making it "three straight" in 1909.

Six individual clubs have won the world series in four straight with the Chicago Cubs in 1907 and the Boston Braves in 1914; the New York Giants in 1923 and Rogers Hirbe, the Yankees, in 1927, 1928 and 1932. Connie Mack's Athletics have won three world series than any other club, five. The Yankees and the Red Sox boast of three each, while the Giants have come down in front in three baseball classics. Detroit and Brooklyn are the only two major league clubs that have never won a world baseball title.

No ball club ever has been able to win the world title three years running. A half dozen clubs have won two straight series—the Chicago Cubs in 1907 and 1908; the Philadelphia Athletics in 1910 and 1911; the Boston Red Sox in 1915 and 1916; the New York Giants in 1921 and 1922, the Yankees in 1927 and 1928; and the Athletics in 1929 and 1930.

Since 1905, one hundred and sixty World Series games have been played. Over five and a quarter million dollars has been paid almost seventeen million dollars for the privilege of watching them. Seventeen million dollars of this impressive total of dollars has gone to the ball players who have been fortunate enough to belong to pennant-winning big-league clubs.

All of which reminds us there's a ball game being played over in Prince Edward County, weekly supplanting. Over on the Prince Edward side of the bay they are shooting loud and long relative to the merits their playing boys and breed in Prince Edward County. Well we must admit that it is a fine county for baseball. It has an entire home brew team and go so far as to claim that Jake Yanner, he's now playing for Jake Yanner, the great outfielder was born in Prince Edward County and learned his baseball there with various members in Picton, Bloomfield, Wellington, Cherry Valley and points south.

The Tabouvrettes are facing a double-header on Sunday afternoon than they realize, despite the fact, that they made such a creditable showing in Southampton on the holiday. All the Peninsulites are counted out by the "Fishermen" in the finals, the sport terrors of Prince Edward County should in no way feel disappointed as the Picton has done remarkably well this season after taking considerable knocking but returned to the ranks of the O.B.A. in 1933 after a short period of absence from that body. Although we feel that Phillips may be an unknown ere Victor Gelsmith a third game would be almost necessary to do a youthful hurler like Phillips it successfully complete. Win or lose the Yanner-led team from Picton are a credit to the community they have so well represented in the O.B.A.A. play-downs.

Manager Yanover tells us that the Tabouvrettes travelled 600 miles from the time they won the right to meet the Hamilton team and landed home from Southampton on Tuesday. According to those figures the Picton team would have travelled around 3,000 miles during the past two weeks. Only one of the gasoline companies benefitted as I hear.

Coach Shiels has had Jack Taylor, ex-Argonaut football player of Toronto out with his R.C.I. gridders in the past two evenings. Jack has been working with the new schedule line of performers and reports that with a change of two the line-up will surprise all and sundry. We understand, that one and possibly two members of last year's roster have signified their intentions of returning to school, of course it is much easier wrestling to be studious than it is believing "all the live long day" at that.

TWO BARNS DESTROYED

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 13—(CP)—Fire today had demolished two large barns, seasons crops, and other property on the farm of Russell Shaver, near Galt-ville. The blaze, discovered by neighbors last midnight had levelled the two buildings early this morning. Loss is expected to be heavy.

Excerpts from the latest reports of agricultural representatives of Ontario show that in the county of Hastings plowing has been well advanced, and many farmers are now cross-plowing and cultivating. An earlier start at fall plowing than for several seasons has enabled farmers of the district to conclude this work at an early date. Reports from Lennox and Addington Counties show that the acreage of fall wheat is greatly increased over previous years, while pasturage even at this late date is excellent.

TOMATO VINE TEN FEET HIGH

Outside the flower store of the S. S. Potter firm, is a ten foot tomato vine grown in the kitchen-garden of Mr. W. E. Oartley, 135 George street. How much fruit had been picked from this single stalk giant, Mr. Oartley's family cannot tell, but when delivered to McAnany street store it had seventy ripe or green tomatoes attached.

WEATHER CONDITION BOON TO PLOUGHING

Improved weather conditions throughout this central district during the past few weeks has resulted in much better crop reports, especially as regards pasturage so badly needed during the tag end of the season.

MOTORING HAZARDS

These are the days when motoring in the cities is becoming even more risky because of the fall leaves. For years past the department of highways has been careful to explain to motorists that they must exercise extreme care on streets especially when driving on leaves either in dry or wet weather.

Children are accustomed to playing in leaves when they throw up into mounds and there is always the danger in approaching one of these piles of leaves on the street or road that a child may be hidden in it from his or her companions or playing underneath.

There is the other great danger in slippery pavements. Leaves retain a certain degree of moisture and there is a danger of skidding on them even in dry weather with a much greater danger in damp or rainy weather.

Excessive speed is out of the question in the season just ahead on city and town streets and even along rural roads and the thoughtful driver will not put himself in the position where he has to put on the brakes to prevent excessive skidding.

A little later in the season the most dangerous period of the year is probably to be experienced, when frost lies in the pavement on the level or on hills. In hilly sections in cities the automobile driver is at a great disadvantage unless the paved hill roads are "sanded" against slipping and skidding on thin films of ice after darkness sets in. Icy highways are among drawbacks of modern driving.

"Y" FOUNDER'S DAY

In a world charged with an atmosphere which fairly bristles with disturbance in thought and action, the Y.M.C.A. is performing an even greater service than ever before in serving an even way, the greater the need and intrigue the greater the service the international "association" endeavours to render.

This week to mark "Founder's Day" there was sent out from the International Committee of the United States and Canada a brochure-of-events in the year that is 84 counties among 10,650 associations. It shows how the Y.M.C.A.'s are directing thought in an age when international relationships are occupying the thoughts of men of every race. No time has been so opportune to the association as this present and no organization has had so remarkable a record among all nations.

The brochure is profusely illustrated with the scenes of many countries, with the photographic evidence of the work in many lands and with intimate stories which reveal the heart of the Y.M.C.A. movement. It reveals how the spirit is born to the ends of the earth is appreciated wherever it goes. In this respect reference need only be made to the service rendered in Greece during the earthquakes, in Porto Rico, in the hurricane, in Uruguay, during forest fires, in India, during floods, in China and Manchuria, with famine, flood and famine, and everywhere during the depression.

If the Y.M.C.A. is progressing in the numbers of its members and the extension of its services, it is also advancing with its buildings, as the brochure shows.

The Y.M.C.A. movement knows no boundaries in its enthusiasm for purity and the development of full and complete humanity as the Founder of the religion it inculcated would will it.

Its love of the individual as well as the society of men, and its stirring of the forces in the world which herald a common brotherhood, stand out clearly. For instance the Madras, India Y.M.C.A. reports that Moslem, Hindu and Christian men and boys have all acted as leaders.

The threefold development of spirit, mind and body gives the association a well-rounded method of approach to the heathen world. It can build India physically, it can lift it from the darkness of heathenism, and educate the consciences of the downtrodden and backward society.

The Y.M.C.A., local and international, inculcates sturdy manly, Christian citizens and manhood. Its wide endeavour in schools and correspondence schools, its work in city and rural parts of India, and other communities are such as to make it an institution the like of which is not to be found in the world. Out of no other religion has come so powerful a movement for the betterment of man as out of Christianity in the church and the Y.M.C.A. The every endeavour of the "association" thrills with the love of the common world brotherhood.

SIDELIGHTS — GRAVE and GAY

THE ASPENS

The small Fir trees are ladies,
With branches pruned and prim;
The tall Fir trees are giants,
So dark, and green and grim;
Like sentinels on guard they stand
And never a word they say,
But they listen to the Aspen
That babbles and chatters all day.
Now wadding deep with chaste bare limbs,
Her lacy skirts are furled
To gather up the sunshine,
And spill on the world.
And there's no dark, deep secret
The forest fain would hide,
But the sibilant swish of the Aspen
Will tell it far and wide.
Now flaunting, beckoning, glimmering arms,
All down the sun-lit glade,
Nor the butterfly in maddest swirl
Can chase her shimmering shade;
Or she bends to the storm her swaying mass,
With groan, and moan, and sigh,
With dripping garments 'round her cast,
Till the mountain clouds sail by.
And then with saucy flirt, and shake,
She hangs them out to dry.

Be the night as still as the silent dew
Thwart her quivering lace the moon peeps through;
'Ere by breath of dawn her leaves are stirred
To a lullaby song for the waking bird.
Oh! voice of the forest! each wind that blows,
Bears thy word to the mountain, to the heart of the rose,
Whispering, crooning, but never still
Till heeding the voice of the winter's call,
With one last shudder thy golden leaves fall!

And the tall Fir trees with arms ayearn,
'Cross the winter's snows, wait the Aspens' return.

God give the tall grim Fir trees
To stand straight in sun and snowy
And He gave the wayward Aspens,
To babble and sway and blow.

MARIE DRESSLER was banquetted in New York early Tuesday evening by her admirers in that city, principally society folk. Marie in prosperity is the same Marie Dressler who in adversity found her self-respect far between, that is friends in need willing to give a little practical help. A banquet to Marie Dressler in adversity would have been much more to the point for there was many a time, no doubt, when she had to dispense with a meal or two, owing to finances—and all because she was too generous with what she had it.

Now that Marie Dressler has made a glorious come-back, showing that age has something more than mere youth can offer in the theatrical line, she can afford all the banquets, public and private, that she cares for, but as mentioned above, just one little fat-party will not atone in the long, lean days of adversity would have meant more than all the Fifth Avenue banquets that can be tendered her today with all the trimmings and the lovely burly burly of train trip from Hollywood to New York City—but the box office probably insisted upon it.

BANK BANDITS THRIVE west of Toronto, where the get-away is good and there is custom to obey the commands of the bandits in instander, but when Toronto bank bandits try to open up a connection in Toronto they find the thing a bit together Mawrus. Wellington being picked upon as an ideal place to bust a bank two Toronto bank breakers planned to the up the manager and teller, who were early birds to work, take the cash and get back to Toronto before the alarm could be given. The plan failed to click for the manager refused to be tied up and so far held his own in the fight with the two bandits that they were glad to run away. The nut and cry was raised in a matter of minutes and they never had a chance—one more instance of the fact that CRIME DOES NOT PAY.

CAPACITY AUDIENCES were entertained at Belleville's picture houses on Thanksgiving Day while nearly a thousand persons attended the races at Belleville Recreation Park—and the saying still holds good "Belleville is a good show town."

Mandy had been troubled with a toothache for some time before she got up sufficient courage to go to a dentist. The moment he touched the tooth she screamed.

"What are you making such a noise for?" he demanded. "Don't you know I'm a painless dentist?"

"Well, sah," retorted Mandy, "mebbe you is painless, but Ah isn't."

FEARS WE ALL HAVE IN VERY LARGE SUPPLY

Unconscious Fears May Undermine Men's Lives

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

It is really astonishing how many people are afraid. Indeed there is not a person, young or old, who does not nurture a fear of some kind within his unconscious structure.

At the outset one must distinguish between conscious fear and unconscious fear.

Conscious fear is the kind we realize and know about. Fear of death is the most universal example of the conscious variety. Fear of poverty, old age, fear of snakes and spiders are further illustrations.

We may harbor unconscious fear, on the other hand, and not realize it at all. This can and will usually does undermine our emotional lives, it even clouds our thinking, and in such a way that our struggle for happiness and happiness is seriously handicapped.

A woman may find that she does not like men. She will say, she deliberately means many different types socially, or even others, a few to court her in the hope that love interest may be aroused.

Unfortunately, however, all this is of no use. Although she argues and desires a home of her own, and children, she just cannot bring herself to say "yes" and step up to the altar.

In this instance an unconscious fear is to blame. The parents of this woman are at fault. Instead of to quarrel bitterly and as a child she usually felt that her mother was right and her father wrong. At any rate, an antagonism toward men developed.

At thirty-five, let us say, this woman recalls in a vague, hazy way that her parents often had differences. She does not remember recall—nor what is more important still, she does not know how deep her dislike of men was or that she gradually grew to fear them.

Nevertheless, the unconscious mind continues to manipulate throughout life. And the way it functions us it is important for us to know.

Thousands of persons who suffer from self-accusations, feelings of unworthiness, guilt, convictions of inferiority, doubts, indecision and the like are doing so because of some unconscious fear or fears of which they are entirely unaware.

Now, this unconscious fear in such cases is that the original fear laid down in childhood has subsequently posed itself in the symbolic symptom. For example, a sense of guilt, perceived or unperceived consciously, may be due to a fear of punishment which was developed when the individual in question was a boy, and in which he stole from grocery store and the heavy arm of the law was laid upon him. Now I stated previously that it is impossible for us to know consciously anything about the underlying unconsciously. This, however, can be circumvented by provided special psychological means are employed.

The science of psychoanalysis is one of them. Hypnosis may do it, but it is unreliable, likewise produce gratifying results. Both methods must be conducted by a trained medical expert.

On the other hand, realizing at last that unconscious fears are perhaps the most menacing our peace of mind, one can often accomplish a great deal by self-analysis. Look back on your childhood days and attempting to resurrect a memory of fear that is now unconscious.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Whenever possible vegetables should be baked as this preserves the valuable mineral salts that exist in water. Specially suitable for baking are Irish potatoes, parsnips and squash. Steaming is better than boiling but not all vegetables can be steamed. Those that can are spinach, green peas, beets, carrots, wax beans and cauliflower. Never cook vegetables long and always serve as soon after cooking as possible.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Shorty Judge was sitting on the front steps talking about two different subjects in general, and Shorty said, I bet a million dollers I can match every single thing you bring before me. Just one of the same, or at least something like it. Shorty is rich, he said. And I bet 3 million I can do it, I answered.

And we started to take turns trying, starting with the letter A, and me matching his hunk with a hunk of string with another hunk and him matching his rubber band, and the next thing I took out was a black feather off of a lady's old hat or some place, saying, Go ahead and match that.

Sure I will, Shorty said. One he took out the other. Here's some red candle.

How is it, I said, and he said, That feather is too like, aint it, and this bunk of a candle is to like, aint it? How match this it, Shorty? he said.

Meening a wooden handle to hook rugs on with, and Shorty felt around in his pockits a while thinking, and then he said, Here's something like it.

to him as the sovereing stitts of the U.S. and the feal of a swaying tobogran under his feet as he stood on the deck of a thorough frozen wilderness of ice and snow. Then I said, That was pretty high, a small flour sack from forgotten Greenland in the northland could not hold the lure of settling down. At eighty-nine he still admits there are plenty of years ahead.

Like Ulysses he must go on. Always there is that beckoning road of adventure. The burning of Canada have grown too cold for comfort these cold days. Besides, there is always the southland waiting. The wild geese are going, Raul Dufy is painting Deauville, Raul freight tromower. Then it's good bye from Paris for June comes around. Maybe before then I'll get to China on book a transp for some southern port. Never do to stay here. Shorty said, Thanks for the coffee. See you later, perhaps. Just as likely not. Tomorrow another one to take his place.

A local gentleman who takes a trip to the recent rather mild downing later that he received, forwards it in this little letter which is an example of the perfect manner in which to collect testimonials. Mr. Judge upon reading it that the small bill for which it was rendered was considerably paid in full. He said no one has ever served a bill quite so and when they got a letter like this one asking for their money. It is Dear Mr.——

Have you heard this one?

Bill Nye took a hike one day in the country and came upon a whittled at a small inn and bought a sandwich. The proprietor charged him one dollar, and B'll in great surprise, inquired "Why so much?" "Why a mount? Well, here's the statement.

Hopefully yours.

Well holey smokes it never has to me. I said, I will have to get a peither did that padlock for all you know.

I was saying anything proving it was a good saner, and just then Shorty came back with the padlock and we got up a game of cops and robbers.

Yesterday afternoon a lad was proceeding down the steps leading to the Y.M.C.A. building when he fell and a basket containing eight dozen eggs, which he was carrying fell with him. Of the 96 eggs only eight were unbroken.

About thirty young people of St. Agnes School will be entertained at that deservedly popular institution shortly. During the stay of the "old girls" in the city a tea will be given in St. Thomas' Parish House.

The long-looked for game of basketball between the gymnasium and tinsmiths took place last night in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and, as was expected, the printers got it all over their opponents winning by the score of 51 to 7. The tinsmiths threw only one basket, leaving five points to finish, while the printers threw four baskets and made only three points over. Nevertheless, a fairly large attendance and the game was a fast and rough one. The printers are now open to take a fall out of any trade in the city and will likely stack up against the clothiers next. The teams last night were: Printers—Hubbard, centre; Tulls and Wilder, forwards; Bawden and Patterson, defence. Tinsmiths—Harte, centre; Gibson and Symons, forwards; Weir and Parks, defence. Percy Pitney acted as referee.

Ramblings

Strange characters bob up on the streets these evenings around the night air has grown too chilly for comfort in the wood fringed hamlets by the rivers north of the city, and the California blankets have been given a thin welcoming from October's evening dew. It is on the cold, windy nights that the real, genial knights of the road, still in their shirt sleeves, pedestrians for a badly needed cup of coffee and a few sisters before they grope their way through a darkened, chill marked down to their next night's lop. By night you see them like bats flitting from one lighted spot to the downtown section, wary eye on the police who might be around beyond.—Like darkened wrinkle they dodge in the front door here with their expert, modulated request for the needed dime. Not the ordinary beggar, who stands haversack over a shoulder, outstretched hand, but the man who come used to years of practice in the art of getting along. Always for them it is the open road.

Patrick O'Grady, too old in 1915 to be given a soldier's uniform, but not too old to fight, left behind his continent half a dozen times, too, but still has enough pounds of crawling freight trains, with his tales of the road, from the seven seas, was one of the visitors to the Main street office and braced his way from the waiter's edge on the west to the door on the east, and was well on the way back to the west again—then paused, looked back at him, and still going strong. Wiry, lean and hungry-looking, he stood in the open air. He has trimmed the tails on old hookers from Gloucester in their native element, been master of a coral boat in the South Seas, and has broken an Australian bronco to the saddle on the Galapagos Island, Australia, China, Japan, and Port Said next to reached him at the hundred other ports he can't recall offhand. FREIGHT RATES ON BRITISH COAL

British And United States Anthracite Coal Rates

In view of many letters to the press upon the above subject a reporter interviewed W. S. Schuster, whose statement follows:

"British Anthracite is now carried by the railways at $1.70 per net ton Montreal to Belleville which is an increase to $2.10 December first next. We are passing through a period of great economic misery. Domestic fuel is vital to our needs.

"I shall try to clarify the situation by telling you that United States Anthracite can be had at no increase during the winter months. The railways reduced the rate this year on U.S. Anthracite, Pennsylvania district to Toronto 40 cents per net ton. We took this reduction into account, because we were more interested in Toronto.

"It has been suggested to me that the rate on U. S. Anthracite was increased from $1.65 to $2.30 per ton Black Rock to Belleville. This $2.30 per ton rate is applicable on local traffic as the same is billed through to Toronto, the long haul minus the Black Rock on a through rate which is $4.30 per net ton, 60 cents per ton higher than Toronto.

"Here is another picture which we resent.

"British Anthracite Montreal to Belleville $1.70 per ton.

"Montreal to Deseronto Napanee and Trenton $1.70 as per Belleville.

"We do not object to the Montreal-Toronto rate, in fact for the sake of our business but when the railways can afford to make Montreal-Coal 115 to 140 miles farther, right through our territory it becomes a question if this tariff is not a contravention of the Railway Act of Canada. Fuel is a vital business purpose, I am having an authority review the law. As a matter of fact I was asked that Belleville, Deseronto Trenton and Napanee be grouped and given the $1.65 rate. Page 11.79 and also that the 40 cents per ton advance effective December first be rescinded.

"We are justified in our efforts to redress and in sympathy with our campaign for "wider markets in Canada for Fuel" Coal Mines and "extended markets in Wales for Canada farm products."

Col. the Hon Thomas L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture is fighting the major battle on behalf of the farmers, our efforts will give him the support of sixty per cent within a brief period.

"We have had splendid support by the pres all over the province.

"The Key Trade policy of the Bennett administration is Intra-Empire Trade and it is the Duty of the Canadian Railways to adjust the grievances referred to. We don't want any more Sanctions."

EXPORTS RISE 30 MILLIONS IN BRITAIN

New Trade Pacts With Scandinavians to Develop Exports

COTTON'S FUTURE

Strong and Vigorous National Sentiment Is Felt

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 13 (C.P. Cable) Britain's trade barometer showed continuous to rise. Exports in September were announced as being £6,000,000 greater than in September, last year. Of the increase £5,000,000 was in manufactured goods.

Imports similarly increased by £3,000,000 over September, 1932, but the greater part of the increase was in raw materials. British production of steel ingots and castings, an important indicator of trade, was 238,700 tons higher in September than in the same month last year.

And the Old Country is planning to develop still further her new network of trade agreements. A prominent feature of the pacts negotiated with Scandinavian countries was the stimulus provided to British export of coal. Now it is proposed to find wider markets for British cottons.

"We are going to make a big effort to place that vastly important industry on a satisfactory basis," declares Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade. "After that we shall turn our attention to steel."

It is hoped that trade pact negotiations will shortly be opened with Uruguay, Poland, Russia and Italy.

Britain has no NRA, but she has strong and vigorous national recovery none the less. Mr. Runciman pointing out in his own constituency of St. Ives, Cornwall, yesterday, that whereas two years ago Britain was almost on the financial rocks, "we have now attained the position of being the strongest financial country in the world with the best credit, and we have been able to place our national finances upon a foundation almost as secure as before the war."

Furniture Factories At Stratford Start Operations

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 13—Smoke poured yesterday morning from the chimneys of six Stratford furniture plants, closed since nearly four weeks ago when 80 employees laid down tools and walked out in protest for higher wages and recognition of the new Chesterfield and Furniture Workers Industrial Union.

The customary whistles sounded at the starting hour, calling the striking workers back to the factories. Only ten men responded.

Wednesday officials of the five factories affected by the strike notified their employees the factories would be opened regardless and they would be allowed to return to work with no discrimination against them. If the request was not heeded, it was said, the plants would remain closed indefinitely.

But the strikers remained adamant. Their failure to return to work was another indication that unless their demands are recognized and their union recognized, they will not return to the plants.

DISTRICT DEPUTY OF REBEKAH PAYS VISIT TO STIRLING

Stirling—District Deputy President Sister Jordan of Belleville, assisted by P. W. Grands Mesdames Chesher, Naylor, Carter, Cole, Rose, Middleton, Clarke, Thompson, Sumnett, Farrell and Cornish, along with a guard of honor visited Stirling Lodge Rebekah No. 320, I.O.O.F. on Tuesday evening, October 10th, and installed the officers for the ensuing year. The list of officers for 1933-1934 is as follows:

I.P.N.G.—Sister Grace Vandervoort.

N.G.—Sister Florence Maines.

V.G.—Sister Edith Ditman.

Recording Secretary—Sister Alberta Farrell.

Financial Secretary—Sister Agnes McGie.

Treasurer—Sister Agnes Hammond.

Warden—Sister Mary Vandervoort

Conductor—Sister Margaret Simpson.

Chaplain—Sister Evelyn Bailey.

R.S.N.G.—Sister Alice Sine.

L.S.N.G.—Sister Jennie Burkitt.

R.S.V.G.—Sister Maude Bailey.

L.S.V.G.—Sister Freida Sine.

I.G.—Sister Gladys Elliott.

O.G.—Sister Nina Carlisle.

Musician—Sister Mildred Elliott.

Subsequent to the installation ceremony, a social evening was spent in cards and dancing, both round dancing and quadrilles, after which lunch was served and the gathering dispersed about 2 a.m.

A special meeting of the Stirling Village Council was held on Tuesday evening for the purpose of considering the applications for the position of village constable and night watchman and the appointment of the same. The reeve and all four councillors were present and had submitted for their consideration nine applications from the following gentlemen: Messrs Ernest Dalnard, Eric Lovell, Sam Eggleton, H. A. Wickett, James Mitchell, John Hamilton, Conley Ahern, W. L. Robinson, Robert Sharpe and William Carson of Toronto.

On the allegation that out of the nine applicants for the position, Mr. Sam Eggleton was the only ratepayer and property owner, after a lengthy discussion the decision was made in his favor at the special wage of $9. per week.

Mrs. J. E. Ketcheson of Belleville, is spending a two weeks' vacation with her sister, Mrs. Alice Bailey.

Mr. James Donnan and Miss Eliza Donnan were Thanksgiving guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. Alfred Reid of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Munro, Jean and Howard returned home on Tuesday after spending the week end and holiday with Perth and friends.

Misses Alma and Ina Shelter of Toronto, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Leury.

Mrs. Pitman spent Wednesday in Belleville.

LINDSAY ON COAL FREIGHT

Supports Stand Taken By Belleville Public Men and Chamber

Believing that reduction of freight rates between Montreal and Toronto will result, to the benefit of municipalities throughout the central area, Lindsay Town Council at its regular meeting this week unanimously concurred in the resolution sent them by business men and the local Chamber of Commerce of this city who have been active for the past season in furthering the movement of deepening the Narrows and Channel, and the local harbor for deep water trade with Europe.

Previously Trenton Chamber of Commerce, the city council of Peterborough and the town council of Campbellford had also endorsed the resolution sent from this city.

In the resolution prepared by this city it is pointed out to the various municipalities that direct savings could be effected if the work of deepening the Narrows and the local harbor could be carried out. It is believed that even in Lindsay a saving of from forty to fifty cents per ton on coal could be effected.

According to Mr. J. O. Hetty of the local Chamber of Commerce the resolution which has been concurred with by the various municipalities of this central area, will be presented to Ottawa and the Department of Public Works for their consideration.

At present the depth of the Narrows is just eleven feet. It is proposed to have this lowered to a fourteen foot depth, at the low water level, in order to accommodate boats on the deep water route between this city and England.

FIFI WON'T LET HER INTENDED GO EAST

If He Gives up Medicine, She Gives Him up, The

Hollywood, Oct. 13—If Maurice Hill, son of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer, gives up the study of medicine and takes a position with an oil company in the Orient, he will find his bride-to-be severing their engagement.

This, at least, is what Fifi D'Orsay, screen actress, had to say about the plans of the young man to whom she says she is engaged.

"Never do I want to live in the Orient," declared the actress. "I want my husband to be a doctor. I will not get married until he has his degree."

Miss D'Orsay said she had been informed Hill has given up the study of medicine in a Chicago hospital and has accepted a position in the foreign department of an oil company, expecting to be assigned to the Orient.

NO ATTEMPT UPON CAROL

Trainmen Break Down and Confess They Broke Windows Scuffling

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 13 — Bucharest was laughing today over the shattered train window that shook the world with reports that an attempt had been made to assassinate King Carol.

It appeared that two trainmen, playfully scuffling in the corridor of a passenger train, broke a window pane with their elbows. In order to avoid censure for the smashed glass, they reported that bullets fired by unidentified persons had shattered the window while the train was on its run.

When it was discovered that King Carold two hours previously had passed by that way on his way home, someone jumped to conclusions and flashed to the world an attempt had been made to assassinate the monarch.

Railroad detectives looking for bullet marks found none and finally the trainment broke down and confessed.

Speaks For Germany

Prince Otto von Bismarck, Germany's charge d' affaires here, was the emissary of his government who visited the foreign office and conveyed to the British Foreign Minister Simon the three-point rejection by Germany of the three-power disarmament proposals. According to high British officials Germany stated that she will refuse absolutely to any trial period of testing armament supervision; that she requested samples of all arms forbidden to her by the Versailles treaty and that she will not sign any disarmament covenant unless complete equality is conceded to her. Stanley Baldwin, later, in commenting on she will become the bride of John-that any nation that prevented the signing of a disarmament agreement "will have no friend in this civilized world."

STARS OF RADIOLAND

VERA VAN

Success does not mean leisure for Vera Van, pretty blonde singer of the airwaves. To her success means more work and she is being kept increasingly busy in the studios.

MA PLAYS MA'S ROLE!

For five years, Mrs. Evelyn Offield, mother of Jack Oakie, has prayed for the chance to appear in the motion pictures. Now, the prayer has been answered—and she's in!

She was selected to play the role of the "reel" mother of her son-in his latest picture, "Too Much Harmony," coming Tomorrow at the Belle Theatre. Featured in the cast are Bing Crosby, Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Harry Green, Lilyan Tashman and Ned Sparks.

She's never had any film or stage experience, yet when Director Edward Sutherland thinks of her ambition, he asked her to play this appropriate role.

Fifty years, Mrs. Offield has been a friend of practically every member of the film colony, known throughout Hollywood for her snappy comebacks, even faster and more "retbing" than those of her wise-cracking son.

HEAR TRAVELOGUE BY REV'D H. REID

...Another delightful and profitable evening was spent at the home of Miss Beatrice Bonter, Read Dundas several of the Institute members Street in Wednesday last, when from East and West Hastings and Prince Edward, were invited and the guest speaker was Rev. Harold Reid.

The long beautiful rooms were charming with decorations of autumn flowers, ferns and the cozy atmosphere and warm welcome of the hostess made everyone feel at home.

Miss Arbuckle delighted all with her humorous selection and Mr. Reid's Travelogue through the British Isles, was intensely interesting. One was spell-bound, as scene after scene flashed on the screen, and the speaker clearly and quietly described each, making his listeners really imagine the scenes were there.

Belleville and near-by counties are indeed fortunate in having one who has traveled so extensively one who has lived for months among the Irish, the Scotch, and English people, and who has brought home to Canadian people, not only scenes of historic interest; scenes portraying the native life and habits of the people, but treasured memories inspired by the poet, the artist, and the statesman.

At the close all joined in community singing and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by several of the younger ladies, a hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Reid and Miss Jones—and all retired singing, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

"Sound Money" Implication Affects the New York Trading, Causing Dullness—"Gilt Edge' Bonds Are Firm—Walker's Falls Back Full Point and Nickel Weakens to $ 19.75—Noranda Back at $35.00 in Dull Trading.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)— Friday the 13th was not much of a help for business on the Toronto Stock Exchange up till noon today. The list was dull with prices easing back and volume distinctly low. The bullish trend in Standard Steel which started the price up 12 yesterday was reversed and it drifted back to 11 today but reduced the loss to about a point by noon.

Walkers Common fell back a full point, Industrial Alcohol was steady at 18 3-4 and Distillers Seagram was unchanged at 28. Oil shares were unchanged and in the International group recessions predominated. Nickel weakened to 19.75, Smelters to 1.32, C.P.R. held unchanged at 13 3-4, Pfrd. A lost 1-4 to 49 and Brazilian was unchanged at 6.

With one or two exceptions prices drifted quietly lower throughout the morning and part of the afternoon session, the trend following the movement in New York, staged half a point lower. Canadian Pacific ruled about steady. On the curb, McIntyre Porcupine sagged nearly two points while Hiram Walker moved a shade. Fractions. Dominion Government 4½s improved 3/4 % of a point while the 5s and 5½ 1/2 to 3/4 lower. The Canadian dollar was off 3/8 of a cent at 97.31¾ cents.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP) — Leading gold shares moved downward in the day's session of the Standard Mining Exchange and other groups were barely steady. Volume was also lower with exception of stocks such as Noranda and Sherritt in which considerable selling has been apparent of late.

McIntyre slumped to 941, off 91.50 despite announcement of a 5 per cent. current dividend and an extra of 5 per cent. It had recovered to 941.35 by noon. Dome lost 66 cents, Hollinger 10 cents, and Teck Hughes 10 cents.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

One of the strangest stories of a triangular love affair is told in the Warner Bros. picture "Mary Stevens, M.D." The triangle involves Kay Francis the star, Lyle Talbot and Thelma Todd.

A boy and a girl, playmates from childhood, study medical surgery together, pass their apprenticeship as interns in the same hospital and set up practice in adjoining offices, their friendship ripening into love. The ambition of the girl, however sees an opportunity in a marriage with the district attorney, a powerful politician. So the childhood sweetheart steps aside although she continues to realize that the man she loves with a mothering instinct.

It is not until the man gets entangled in domestic scandal and financial entanglements that cause his indictment that she comes to him and gives him her love.

Kay Francis is said to give a strong performance as the woman doctor whose love for the man is enduring even when he turns from her love to another, while Thelma Todd gives a fine portrayal of the selfish spoiled woman to whom love is but a toy. Lyle Talbot, as the doctor's lover, has the finest role of his career opposite Miss Francis and said to live up to the promise he has shown in all previous pictures.

"Mary Stevens, M.D." is a powerfully emotional picture with a woman doctor, an unwed mother, who saved other children during an epidemic aboard ship, but could not save her own. The story is based on the well-known novel by Faith Baldwin Rolfe and adapted to the screen by Rian James.

Others in the cast include Glenda Farrell, Una O'Connor, Charles Wilson, Harold Huber and Robert Carnahan. The picture was directed by Lloyd Bacon.

Tonight And Saturday

Have you been "Lady for a Day"? Be strongly advised and see May Robson in the most wonderful portrayal of an apple woman whose kind hearted friends make her a "Lady for a Day" to get her out of a predicament.

May Robson cannot be praised enough for her portrayal of "Apple Annie" and Ned Sparks makes you laugh loud and long with Warren William as the good hearted benefactor.

Don't miss "Lady For a Day" tonight or Saturday.

It's swell!

MUSICAL OFFERS PEP AND FUN—LONG ITEM LIST

There seems to be no limit to Hollywood's ability to turn on musical films. Fortunately, each new offering is better than the last, and the latest, "42nd Street Harmony", which comes to the Belle Saturday, is no exception.

Starring Ring Crosby, this latest musical from Paramount is the greatest picture of its kind to date.

Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow have provided a tuneful score, among those which the audience will be humming after the show are "Thanks", "The Day You Came Along", "Boo Boo Boo", and "I Guess It Had To Be That Way".

Crosby, as proved himself an actor as well as a singer in previous screen successes is even better in the latest film. Opposite him is Judith Allen, a newcomer to the screen, who has the role played excellently.

There is comedy in profusion, furnished by a long line of favorites including Jack Oakie, Guy Kibbee, Ned Sparks, Harry Green and Sammy Cohen.

Oakie and Gallagher who were teamed in "Close Harmony", the predecessor of the present film, are back again as a vaudeville song and dance team, while Green enacts the same role he did in the previous picture, that of the producer.

The plot of the picture is a musical comedy troupe during the time between the final curtain of one season, and the opening show of the next. The complete story of the show is presented on the screen, including its trials and tribulations, and the numbers, known as "Black Moonlight", and "Buckin' the Wind", both of which are sung by Ruby Price, their creator, as one of Hollywood's best song directors.

In addition to Miss Allen, the other feminine leads are Aloysius Horton, portrayed by Lilyan Tashman, Kitty Kelly, Georgia Caine, and Dorothy Lee. Ginger Rogers, wife of Lew Ayres, and mother of Jack Oakie, who makes her screen debut as her son's mother. She does it admirably.

Edward Sutherland handled the directorial assignment with his usual ability, excelling as he does in comedy.

Excellent Sheets.

An excellent program of featurettes have been assembled for presentation on the same program including Eugene Pallette and Walter Catlett in a funny Mack Sennett Star comedy, "Meet the Champ", Twenty minutes of distinctly different entertainment are offered in "Transatlantic Mystery" to be presented on the same program with a delightful spotlight reel, "Jabs and Jokes". At the Saturday matinee performance a new chapter of the popular adventure story, "Clancy of the Mounted" will be exhibited.

"Inflation Futile for Canada," Says Bennett Speaking at Edmonton

Only Rich Countries May Experiment in Policy

CENTRAL BANK

One Beyond Government Control Needed in Canada

Edmonton, Oct. 13 (CP)—Traveling 2,000 miles and delivering 12 speeches in four days, Premier R. B. Bennett today wearily turned to his home city of Calgary for a brief rest before returning to Ottawa.

In an address to a mass meeting here last night, the Prime Minister declared the adoption of a resolution by the World Economic Conference favoring Central Banks in undeveloped countries had in view a Central Bank for Canada.

The resolution was unanimously agreed upon by countries represented at the conference, the Prime Minister declared. It had in view a Central Bank beyond government control, which would control credit and restrict speculation, and otherwise deal with international transactions.

"That resolution, which Canada supported, meant of course, that this country should have a Central Bank" Mr. Bennett declared. The night meeting was the third of the day, which heard Mr. Bennett speak. He defended the government's efforts in raising tariff barriers when it took office, maintaining they were necessary to protect home industries and provide work for Canadians. Fairminded political opponents, he said had commended him for the government's stand was right.

Conference No Failure

Bishop Considered the World Economic Conference too have been far from a failure, Mr. Bennett declared. It was true that the most important problem, currency stabilization had not been achieved but much had been done for the good of the world. Canada would derive a great share of the benefits, he declared.

The agreement reached at the London Wheat Conference was typ'cal, the Prime Minister adding that low prices had been caused by unbridled production in advance of demand. Canada was the greatest contributor to the surplus, he said, through its fast development as a wheat producing and exporting country. "Yet Canada stands to gain the greatest benefit of the agreement," he said, showing that the Dominion's quota in the estimated world requirements amounted to a higher percentage than she ever obtained previously.

"I will not tell you that prosperity is just around the corner," said the Prime Minister, "but I will say, and it is the opinion of many learned observers than myself, that there are definite signs in the great countries of the world, including Canada, are travelling more surely and to recovery." Much would yet be endured which would try the wisdom and courage of the people, he said, but he had confidence that Canada would be overcome and great and glorious future."

ST. ALBAN'S GUILD

The Ladies' Guild of St. Alban's Church entertained the members of Carnilton Guild at the home of Miss Luella Gill on Wednesday afternoon, October 11th.

About twenty were in attendance. The president being absent, the members were welcomed by the vice-president, Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, who in the absence of the president and vice-president of Carnilton Guild, then followed after which a dainty luncheon cloth was presented by Mrs. Sharp on behalf of the hearing for England 2000.

A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Pile for her hospitality after which a delicious lunch was served.

BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE BANISHED COLD, BACK AT WORK NEXT DAY

No wonder Mrs. Withershaw, Port Arthur, Ont., says BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE is the best cough medicine she ever used. She writes: "Just think, my husband caught a very severe cold. I gave him two doses of Buckley's and in the morning he was so greatly improved that he was up and about his work as usual."

It is this quick, sure relief that makes BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE the largest selling cough and cold remedy in Canada. If you have a cough, cold, 'flu or bronchitis, take Buckley's.

It acts like a flash—A single sip proves it.

30 PLOWMEN DISQUALIFIED

Fail to Finish Their Plowing Within the Required Time

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 13.—Verbal warfare broke out at the International-plowing meet being held near here, when 30 plowmen from a class of 56 entries were disqualified for failing to finish their plowing within a set time.

Some of the disqualified men were regarded as super-plowmen and were virtually certain prize winners. They had been warned at the start of the evening that noon-time and when it was evident to the directors in charge they could not finish on time they were given another hour. The hour passed and still the plowing was not completed and the disqualifications followed.

Later, the board of directors met and confirmed the actions of the judges.

Several other events were not completed, and the results will not be available until tomorrow.

More than 25,000 people attended the meeting today, and automobiles were parked for two miles on all sides of the plowing area. Many spectators were unable to get close enough to see the plowing.

In all, there were 141 entries in seven classes, with 96 in a single class, both new records for the meet.

The results follow:

Special class, two-furrow, walking or riding plows—not less than three horses, excepting in opening and finishing, when two horses may be used—1, G. Lembke, Chesley; 2, Wm. A. Bank, Tormond Trophy; 3 Erskine Brown, Owen Sound, R.R. 3; 4 R. Armstrong, Welland; 5, J. R. Gewald, Chesley.

IVANHOE W. I.

The Ivanhoe Women's Institute met on Tuesday at the spacious home of Mrs. Morley Beatty, with a very good attendance. The president, Mrs. J. C. Sills occupied the chair after the opening carol. The Lord's prayer was repeated by all and "My Old Kentucky Home" was then sung very heartily. Roll call was responded to by several answering very readily to by quotations of Canadian poets. Several matters of interest were dealt with and delegates were appointed to attend the convention to be held in Belleville. Two splendid papers were given very ably by Mrs. S. Brennan and Mrs. J. Wallace on Educational and Life Work of a Canadian poet.—After singing "Nellie Grey's demonstration, lunch was taken up and judged by Mrs. S. Donnan and Mrs. Henry Wallace. Mrs. Harry Thompson received first prize and Mrs. J. Hassel second. After the meeting was dismissed sandwiches, cake and tea were served by the hostess with a social half hour was spent over the teacups.

WE INVITE

Every Rheumatic Suff erer in This Vicinity to Try This Brand New Medicine, Now

STOPS RHEUMATIC AGONY IN 24 HOURS OR NO COST

WILL NOT UPSET YOUR STOMACH WILL NOT AFFECT YOUR HEART

Here is an invitation that no rheumatic sufferer can afford to ignore. We will tell you why. We are going to give you a new, different formula for rheumatism. A formula that will, within twenty-four hours, stop pain and misery, limber up stiff, swollen joints, reduce swellings and knock the aches out of your muscles. WITHOUT UPSETTING YOUR STOMACH, SPOILING YOUR APPETITE OR AFFECTING YOUR HEART.

How can we do this? Let us tell you! By a new scientific method we now give you in handy, tablet form, the one treatment, recognized by doctors the world over, as the best of all rheumatism remedies.

If you suffer from rheumatism, you probably have tried everything you ever heard of. And have found most rheumatism medicines hard to take, upset the stomach, ruin the digestion, cause heart fluttering and as you have to stop taking them before they can do any good.

Not so with TER-SOL, the new scientific formula! TER-SOL CAN NOT upset the stomach; CAN NOT ruin the appetite; WILL NOT affect your heart. It is so compounded you get all the benefits of this treatment WITHOUT ONE BIT OF STOMACH OR HEART DISTRESS.

TER-SOL works so quickly and so surely, that within 10 minutes after it enters your system, it begins to unfold its virtues and within 24 hours the torturing agony of rheumatism starts to leave your aching muscles and stiff swollen joints. You can almost feel stiff joints limber up—pain and suffering vanish like dew before the sun. And remember, it POSITIVELY WILL NOT UPSET YOUR STOMACH OR AFFECT YOUR HEART.

Sounds too good to be true, doesn't it? Perhaps you doubt it. DON'T. Because if TER-SOL won't do all we claim for it, if within 24 hours you do not find the most blessed relief you ever had, go to the druggist and get your money back. Any druggist can supply TER-SOL with this understanding.

Now, at a time another day from crippling, torturing rheumatic agony, when it is as easy to get relief.

Ex-Kaiser Deplores Hitler's Severity Against Jews As He Ponders Chance of Monarchy's Restoration

(Cosing Press Canadian and Ontario Intelligencer exclusive interview solely as giving the views of the former German Kaiser).

By RUTH MORRIS

Central Press Canadian Writer

Summit, N.J., Oct. 13— Former Kaiser Wilhelm's startling statements made by Hitler in Germany, disapproves of the extreme measures the chancellor has directed against the Jews.

The deposed monarch's attitude was expressed to his friend and consultant, T. St. John Gaffney, former U.S. consul-general to Germany, who Munich, who has just returned from his fifth visit to the exile at Doorn, Holland.

"In my judgment," said Gaffney, interviewed at his home in Summit, "Kaiser Wilhelm would have handled the Jewish question in a manner, although he is fully convinced that 'harm' has been done to Germany by the influx of Slavonic Jews, largely Communistic, during the war decade.

During Gaffney's European visit, which this trip abroad, he also saw Hitler at Wachenfeld Haus, the chancellor's summer home at Berchesgaden in the Bavarian mountains. Both the former Kaiser and Hitler undoubtedly sought to learn from him the attitude of the American public to developments in the Reich.

Kept Guessing

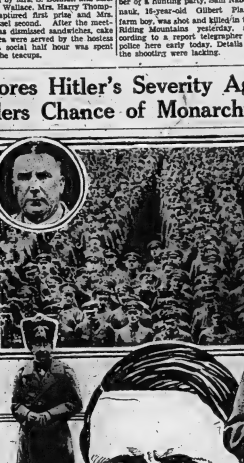
But more important in the deposed monarch's thinking on the rish problem in Germany is the question of the restoration of the monarchy under the German throne. By a word from the mighty Hohenzollern, Hitler could be and his dynasty can regain his throne, he has been assembly on his impiotity is Hitler's least word accepted by the people.

Should Hitler come out in favor of the emperor's return, 80 per cent. of the people would approve. And on the other hand, if he came out against the Kaiser's return, the people would also stand behind him. Hitler is master of the situation."

According to Gaffney.

The situation has the vigorous world-wide conversational guessing. Hitler declared in his installation speech that the time for the discussion of a restoration hadn't yet arrived. And so far he has given no indication that the time for the discussion is even approaching.

The chief matter on which the Kaiser wanted to converse with Gaffney concerned the stories he heard were afoot that Prince Louis Ferdinand, Hitler's grandson, would be elevated to the throne when the restoration of the throne. The prince is in the direct line of succession, his elder brother having renounced his right to the throne by marrying a woman not of royal birth.



The deposed monarch doubted the stories as preposterous. "The Hohenzollern dynasty is founded on primogeniture" he told Gaffney. "Prince Louis Ferdinand cannot succeed to the throne while I and his father live."

The deposed emperor has ordered the prince to come home before Christmas. He will manage the Hohenzollern estates in Germany.

Says Conditions Improved

Hitler questioned Gaffney on the political trends in the United States in regard to his government.

Gaffney said that Franklin Roosevelt and Hitler are the two outstanding world figures, Roosevelt, the former Kaiser, and Hitler is shown in his left. The Kaiser's latest picture appears at right, and as he appeared when he was emperor

Adolph Hitler, backed by his storm troops, holds in his hands the destiny of the German Prince (shown in uniform at left, above) and of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

T. St. John Gaffney, confidante of the Kaiser and Hitler—is shown in his office at Summit, N.J.

Prince Louis Ferdinand Hohenzollern, grandson of the former Kaiser, and reported wanted as Germany's emperor in event of restoration of the monarchy.

Men From The Ranks

A faint echo of the demonstrations reaches the exiled ruler in the little Holland town. The deposed monarch "my divine right" marvels at the rapid rise of a man of the proletariat, a man who is practically a nonentity over his people such as the monarch in his heyday never enjoyed. He turns his view away over all Europe and sees that this phenomenon is apparent in almost every country. Mussolini, a blacksmith's son, dominates Italy. Ramsay MacDonald, a man of humble origin controls England. Stalin, rising in Russia, is the idol of the French ministers of the last decade have risen from the ranks.

Two Stolen Cars Recovered Six from Ottawa Arrested After Long Chase in Woods

Trenton Car Taken But Party Soon Rounded Up

ALL WERE REMANDED

Smart Work By Local and Provincial Police Checks Theft

Trenton, Oct. 13—(Special)—Smart work on the part of the local police landed six in jail and two cars recovered, the third one for the day.

Thursday afternoon the police were called when Mrs. Edna White saw someone taking her father's car, a Buick sedan owned by Joseph La-Belle.

Sgt. White and Traffic Officer Huffman of the local force, accompanied by Sgt. Kelly of the Provincial force drove away and in five minutes later saw a car come off the Wooler Road on the Telephone Road. Following the car, they turned up a narrow side road that lead south to No. 2 Highway. But the car came closer the driver of the stolen vehicle turned into the ditch and all the occupants took to the woods.

The officers gave chase on foot and after firing some warning shots that halted them, five men and three boys were arrested. Later another girl was found on No. 2 Highway but another youth was at large.

A diver, sedan P. 780 was found abandoned on the Telephone Road. This car was stolen from Bedford at Ottawa on the previous night.

Those arrested are Alfred Gordon Craig, 16, 63 Holt St.; Doris Dinelle 16, of 840 Gladstone Ave and Pearl Wen, 18 of 138 Preston St. Dan Craig 18 and Oscar Hoard, 30 of 505 Rochester St. and Peter Smith, 16 of 840 Gladstone Ave., all of Ottawa.

The country around the capture was searched for the missing member or the party without success.

Later Larry Fiscar, local taxi man phoning the police that a youth was trying to start Alex Shrea's car outside his taxi office. Driving away when Mr. Shrea appeared on the scene, he robbed fled to the tracks near the C.N.R. station on foot. A search for the youth was made. He answered to the description of the missing member of the Ottawa party.

The zestette were remanded in early morning court after appearing before Magistrate Jarrett, till their records are searched.

The Buick sedan found in the early morning was the first recovery of the clothing stolen from the Modern Cleaners in Belleville.

Two Charged After Accident

A milk van driven by Fred Hanrden of Colborne and a roadster driven by Del Topping, with Reland Weir as passenger, collided at the intersection of Dundas and Ontario Sts. on Wednesday evening, resulting in considerable damage to the cars and slight injuries to Weir, right ear and scalp injuries to Weir.

It appears that Hamsden was driving east on Dundas St. and was about to turn left on Ontario St. when the Topping car crashed west on Dundas St.

Topping's car struck a pole after the collision causing considerable damage. The injured man was taken to hospital by Fire Patrol.

After police investigation both drivers appeared before Magistrate Jarrett charged with reckless driving and were remanded till Monday next.

First Social Evening of A.Y.P.A.

First night of the Anglican Young People's Association of St. George's Church entertaining the members of the Campbellford A.Y.P.A. to a social evening in compliment to the from Campbellford and a few guests from the other young people's associations in the town. Brighton had also been extended an invitation but were unable to be present.

The usual business preceded the social hour with the president, Mr. W. D. Whyte in the chair. Following business a mock trial was staged between "Tiny" Jack Taylor and "Fibber" Arlo Basketball, hats, masks, pillows and other articles of offensive and defensive warfare were brought into play and the issue was ever in doubt. Rev. R. Arthur Smith, rector made a fine referee.

During the evening several amusing and competitive games were played following which Mr. Gary was presented with Mr. Hackett of the R. C. A. F. playing for the entertainment assisted by two Campbellford youths on the sax, and trumpet respectively. Refreshments were served and the dance came to a conclusion about 11.30. This was the first big entertainment of the season.

Mrs. (Dr.) W. B. Crowe accompanied by her son Harold and daughter Margaretha visited in Toronto this week.

William Eaton of Toronto is in town for a few days.

No change in the condition of Mr. Robt. Galea who is confined to the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Eaton and son Howard have returned after a few days in Toronto.

Angus Wemyss of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Wemyss and former high school teacher here in Trenton is playing with Parkdale Jrs. this season.

LONELY ISLAND FOR DESPERATE CRIMINALS

Segregated From Mainland and Its Ideal For Purpose

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—Alcatraz Island, named today by Attorney General Homer Cummings in Washington as the future prison home of the more desperate type of federal prisoners in the United States is a block of solid rock rising from San Francisco bay.

It is a mile and a quarter from the Marina section of the San Francisco shore. It is a rocky island, rugged looking except in spring when flowers blossom, and the gardens there turn it into a mass of color.

The island, originally Spanish fortification for San Francisco, has been a military prison since 1858. Geronimo, the Indian chief, was held there and by soldiers of Spain who first established the garrison there. It also used it as a prison. Here in the solid rock are old dungeons, dark and dark, which have since been replaced by the modern prison buildings. The underground cells are either abandoned or used for storage purposes.

So remote is the possibility of escape that only two guards are kept on duty at any one time, although in case of emergency, 180 persons could be under arms in three minutes.

11 FACTIONS REPRESENTED

219 Candidates Nominated For 47 Seats in B.C.

Vancouver, Oct. 13 (CP)—British Columbia's general election campaign, which ends with voting on November 2 swung into full stride today.

In the 47 constituencies throughout the province, 219 candidates were nominated by 11 different factions of political thought when formal nominations were taken yesterday.

The nominations were: Tolmie (Gov't) Unionists, 13; Ligerals, 47; Conservatives, 1 running without official party support); Independent Non-Partisans, 28; Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, 46; Independent C. C. F., 8; Independents, 33; United Front, 19; Labor, 3; Independent-Labor, 7; Social, 4.

Fifty-five candidates are seeking election in the four Vancouver constituencies having nine seats in the legislature. Twenty-nine have been nominated for the four Victoria seats and in several constituencies candidates have to be three-cornered and four-cornered fights.

Premier S. F. Tolmie, head of the Conservative administration in the last legislature, is seeking re-election in a four-cornered fight in Saanich. C. S. Pollock, Liberal leader, is a three-cornered fight in Prince Rupert. Hon. J. W. Jones, finance; Hon. R. H. Pooley, attorney-general; Hon. W. M. Dennies, labor; William Savage, public works, and Joshua Hinchcliffe, education, are the cabinet members seeking re-election.

Although Premier Tolmie had only thirteen official supporters in the last legislature, he makes the effort to form a cabinet after the election, it is expected. Premier Tolmie announced he would consult all party leaders before he chose government aims with a view to forming a "truly representative" and co-operative party in not naming any candidates in the present election. The Liberal party had candidates for every seat if the legislature. The C.C.F. nominated in all but one seat. Pernie, where Thomas Uphill, independent-Labor, was considered sympathetic to C.C.F. policies.

Labor leaders were seeking direct representation by having 24 candidates in the field, 19 of them running under the banner of the United Front party, three as straight Labor candidates and two as Independent-Labor.

W.C.T.U. MEMBERS CANNOT SMOKE

BLAME EMPLOYEES

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)

LUNENBURG, N.S., Oct. 12. — (CP)—One cannot smoke and remain a loyal member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union

The question evoked a spirited discussion at the annual convention of the Nova Scotia Branch in session here. Some said yes, others would not agree.

Ruled the president Mrs.—H. P. Newcombe: "the W.C.T.U. program mentions anti-narcotics and gives a decisive answer to the question. Loyal members of the W.C.T.U. do not smoke".

Three employees of the Erie railroad were blamed today for the wreck at Binghampton, N.Y., on Sept. 5 in which 14 were killed and 32 injured.

Primary responsibility was laid on engineer Ring whose train ran into the rear end of another train in the report by the Safety Bureau of the Interstate Commerce Commission here.

Ottawa, Oct. 13—W. F. Stephen, former secretary-treasurer of the National Dairy Council of Canada, seriously ill at his home here, was reported to be in a critical condition.

150 MEN WORK UNDER PLAN

River Reclaiming Operation Most Picturesque of Operations

The rhythmic thud of picks and the scrape of shovels in various sections of the city today showed that on the piling day or the relief work programme which is expected to occupy those on relief throughout the coming winter, work has been well advanced.

Nearly one hundred and fifty men were at work on three projects on Thursday morning, happy and contented, and glad again to be earning enough to keep themselves and families without the necessity of being officially doled out their bare necessities by the city.

On the bed of the upper Moira River where the major gang is employed, fifty men are making good progress at the work of reclaiming the river, cutting down the tree overgrown islands and removing the loose shale and rock in the centre which has been long an eye sore to residents of that district.

Where the loose material is being taken from the bed of the river, scores of men with wheelbarrows in long lines are wheeling the material far over to the east bank of the river along Camelion Road sidewalk where the low spots are being filled in. With the completion of this fill and the installation of the large conduit, the old marshy spot which drains the flowing creek through Memorial Park will be but a memory, A mosquito plague at that point is also expected to be eliminated.

On South Front street where forty men were employed on Thursday morning on the new storm sewer which is being laid from St. Paul street to the railway tracks, considerable progress has been made. With another day's work or so, the trench now dug will be almost ready for the laying.

Foster Avenue gang, also employed in the work of laying the new storm sewer on that street, and numbering about thirty, were busy as the South Front street workers.

When sufficient work has been performed by the latter gang they are employed to pay their deft of relief to the rear end of another trench, situated among the rest of the unemployed who are busily engaged in the trenches of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

RESIGNATION REFUSED BY THE PARTY

Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan Still Head

COMMITTEE IS NAMED

Contentious Questioning to Cause Split Will Be Discussed

Saskatoon, Oct. 13 — (CP)—Resigning his position as leader in Saskatchewan of the Conservative party, Premier J. T. M. Anderson a few minutes later was unanimously re-elected leader at the convention of the Saskatchewan Liberal-Conservative Association late Thursday. J. A. M. Patrick, K.C., of Yorkton, was elected president of the association.

Premier Anderson's action was precipitated by reason of criticism of the Government, voiced by a group of "True Blue" Conservatives who objected to the nature and make-up of the present provincial administration.

Earlier in the day open revolt against the co-operative Government of Premier Anderson was staged by the "True Blues" under the leadership of Dr. D. S. Johnstone, of Regina. Charges were made by Dr. Johnstone that Federal relief monies had been used to "plug" the last Conservative convention at Moose Jaw. At the next election, he said, the Conservative party should divorce itself entirely from the Government.

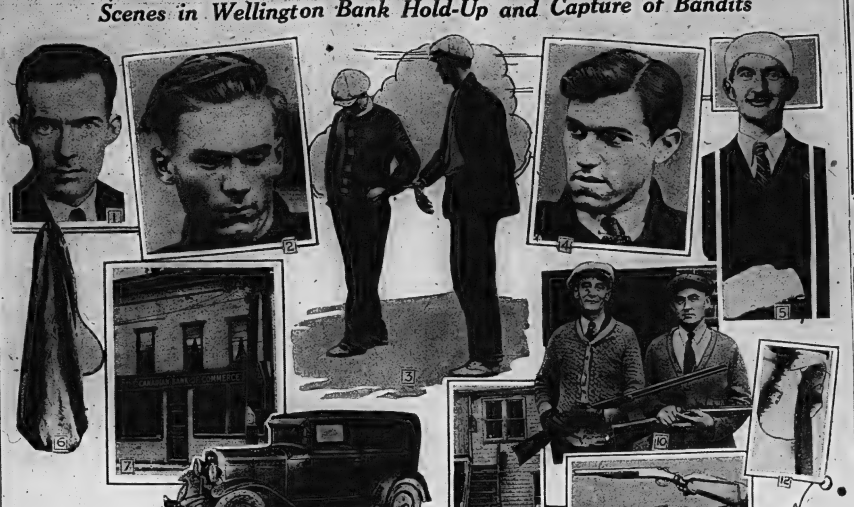
Other delegates came to the defence of the Anderson administration and, finally, a committee of arbitration was established. Its report restored harmony in the convention and the election of officers was proceeded with.

Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, for a time diverted attention from the party's internal disputes with a slashing attack on Liberal party leaders and the Liberal press in Western Canada. He also vigorously defended the steps taken by the Bennett Government for the assistance of western agriculture.

Charges that federal relief moneys had been used "to plug" the last Conservative convention at Moose Jaw were made by Dr. E. Johnstone of Regina who led the "True Blue" Conservatives into revolt against the government. At the next election he said, the Conservative party should divorce itself entirely from the government.

In the end arbitration was resorted to in an effort to settle the dispute after other delegates had come out equally forceful in defence of Premier Anderson, and his government.

A committee of 31 was named to thresh out the contentious matters. Premier Anderson named 10 members of the committee and Dr. Johnstone, 10, while both agreed on the chairman, A. E. Ramsay.



Dr. Johnstone's charge in connection with relief moneys was probably protested by Henry Black of Regina, chairman of the relief commission, who claimed it was a reflection on that body.

Liberal leaders in Western Canada had done their best to discourage farmers from entering into hog production. Hon. Mr. Weir charged, by one speech against the amount of money lost to farmers through the attitude taken in the face of the wishes of part of both the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture. Induce farmers to take advantage of a favorable market for bacon in the United Kingdom.

Along with the Liberal leaders the newspapers were trying to swing votes by prejudice, Hon. W. R. Medicraft, provincial minister of Agriculture, had attacked the Imperial Conference trade agreements, simply because they were Conservative in connection.

Free entry has been arranged for 280,000,000 pounds of Canadian bacon into the United Kingdom each year, said Mr. Weir. As a result of this the Saskatchewan farmer was getting more for his hogs on the hoof than the broker in Chicago.

Scenes in Wellington Bank Hold-Up and Capture of Bandits

SUSPECTS ARRESTED AFTER FIGHT IN WELLINGTON BANK

Following a plucky fight put up by manager N. W. Kyle of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Wellington, Ont., who put two gunmen to flight after they had trussed up his teller and beaten him (the manager) over the head with gun butts, two robbery suspects were rounded up near Wellington in a clump of small bushes, following a seven-hour search. (1) R. M. Watson, bank teller, (2) (7) Frank Garrett, 25 and (4) John Pettit, 24, the two suspects, seen again in (3) as they were conducted into Picton jail. (5) Norville W. Kyle, bank manager. (6) Bag carried by the alleged gunmen supposedly to carry away loot in. (7) Canadian Bank of Commerce at Wellington. (8) Car allegedly abandoned by the suspects. (9) floor of the bank, showing the door by which the gunmen entered. (10) Roscoe Burlington and W. Ainsworth, who first sighted the suspects. (11) Sayed-off guns left by the gunmen in the bank, and (12) the bank manager's bandaged hand holding part of one gun, broken off when one of the thieves hit him with the butt.

The accused men have pleaded guilty and will be sentenced on Monday.

ITALY'S BLUEBEARD EXECUTED BY ORDER

Death of Three Women Attributed to Servitali

Sgonia, Italy, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A volley of bullets in the dusk at dawn today ended 47-year-old Cesare Servitali's career" as Italy's modern "Bluebeard".

Servitali was tied to a chair and shot in the spine by a squad of carabinier in accordance with Italian execution regulations. A huge crowd witnessed his death.

He was convicted and sentenced in the Court of Assizes on 11 counts July 7, all connected with the mysterious disappearance and subsequently confirmed deaths of three young women, who had given their affections and life savings.

Swarthy, heavy and personally lacking all the accepted attributes of a Casanova or Don Juan Tenorio, he made a sickly effort at jauntiness as the white-faced young carabinier led him to his chair, blind-folded him and then levelled their muskets at his back.

AL. SMITH SLATED FOR GENEVA POST

Geneva, Oct. 13—(UP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, appeared to be the favorite candidate for the post of League of Nations high commissioner to aid German-Jewish refugees now flooding Europe.

His name entered the deliberations of the League council today. A decision late to-night or tomorrow on the selection was expected. An effort was being made, it was understood, to ascertain whether Smith, now in New York, would accept the commissionership.

The names of former President Herbert Hoover, former Governor-General Theodore Roosevelt, and Nicholas Roosevelt, diplomat and journalist, were among those considered. It was evident that the League preferred selection of an American for the post. If not, it was believed probably that Lord Cecil of Great Britain would be offered the commissionership.

When the Earth Quakes

Graphic Picture by W. S. MacDiarmid of a Seismic Disturbance

Tuesday, seconds! Pull out your watch and count twenty seconds. As far as time goes it isn't much.

In other words it is only a few seconds of time.

To the readers of this great family journal, and there are many of them, I will try to tell them of earthquakes. That is what I mean we are sailing.

Your California correspondent was sitting at dinner—I mean supper. Please notice the time, 5.55. We had no thoughts of an earthquake. Suddenly the lights in the dining room went out—and suddenly they came on bright again.

There is no use in trying to describe to the readers of the great family journal how our home shook and rolled, how the windows made so many peculiar noises and the glass did not break.

It just happened in 20 seconds.

In 20 seconds you can do something. Friend wife, who is by nature very active, said "My God, Walter, let's get out of here." And your correspondent said: "It will be over and if the roof falls good we are safe."

Daughter Kathleen said "Don't get excited mother, we are all right."

In 20 seconds there is no place to run.

Some days after our Bruce, who is married with his dear wife, Beulah, drove over to our home and said, like the Prince of Wales: "The car is outside, let's go down to Long Beach."

Long Beach is just 30 miles from Los Angeles, any way the crow flies.

Long Beach is where the quake hit hard and the newspapers of California will not say how hard for fear that the tourists from the east will not come and swim in the Pacific Ocean, or play golf on the many courses which are laid out here in the far southwest as a bait for the suckers of the east.

Part of the Pacific fleet were lying at San Pedro and Long Beach when the quake came. The admiral of the flagship, California, at once set the officers to take care of Long Beach.

There are no words that can describe the city of Long Beach a few days after the quake. Just imagine a few streets open for traffic. Cars driving slowly along. On the side streets the roads full of brick and stone of the buildings that once were. Tentative signs lying twisted and torn.

American sailors with rifles, belts full of cartridges with orders to kill. There was no looting. And as we moved slowly along I thought of those young boys with their rifles, they would rather be in Los Angeles on shore leave. They were not to blame for the quake.

Slowly passing out of the traffic jam homeward bound son Bruce, said "where in Hell do you think you are going?"

And his mother in the back seat said, "Bruce, after all these sights we have seen today this is no time to swear."

Bruce:—"Why mother, Hell is not swearing. It's just a Greek word that means you with someone who tries to take the paint off your car or beat your genders was somethery else."

The whole truth of the matter is your correspondent doesn't like earthquakes, and if anyone says he prefers quakes to tornadoes or floods, you can put them down for a liar and they will be not in him.

Yours cordially,
W. S. MacDIARMID.

A Cold in the Head

This is a misnomer. It should be called "Heat in the head," as inflammation of the mucous lining of the nose and throat. A person who has a cold in the head should take warning of the fact that this is an expression of nature, that the body is not functioning normally. A well person does not "take cold easily." The old proverb, "a stitch in time saves nine" should be applied. It is natural to be healthy. If you are not there is a reason.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.

The October meeting of the United Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Ashley on Thursday, October 5th.

With the president in the chair the meeting opened with "Praise God from Whom all blessings flow" and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. A reading "Jesus the Babe" was given by Mrs. Ashley. The Scripture lesson found in Luke, was read by Mrs. Foster Wilson. The roll was then called and minutes read by the secretary, Miss Georgia Putnam. Considerable discussion took place in making plans for the Thanksgiving fowl supper and other business items were dispensed with. Hymn, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" was sung and Mrs. J. J. Wilson and Mrs. P. McInroy led in prayer.

The Watch Tower was responded to by Mrs. Putnam, China; Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Korea; Mrs. M. Donnan, India; Mrs. M. Reid, Christian Stewardship. A leaflet "The Minister's Wife, Perculia" was given by Mrs. O. Foote. A helpful talk on the "Plant Gratitude" was given by Mrs. J. J. Wilson, comparing the garden of our hearts with the garden of flowers. Readings were given by Georgia Putnam, Annie Cooke, Vera Wilson, Mrs. J. S. Wilson and Mrs. McInroy under the heading of "Living Issues in China," which was given by Mrs. Putnam. These were given as an introduction to the new study book which will be taken up at the beginning of the new year.

The treasure's report was received and Thanksgiving envelopes and the Mission Band envelopes distributed. The meeting was closed by singing "God be With You 'Til We Meet Again" and the League Benediction.

The ushers were Mrs. and candy and a pleasant half hour was enjoyed by all.

Woman Who Had Rheumatism for 10 Years

NOW WALKS 4 MILES WITH EASE

"Since coming here from England 10 years ago," writes a married woman, "I have suffered terribly from rheumatism. I have been in hospital and spent money to no end. I have used medicines and lotions and I was weary. I heard of Kruschen Salts so often, that I thought one day I'd try them. By this time my knees had become locked, as if in pain. It was just agonizing, for I felt that the day was not for off when I wouldn't be able to get about at all. And it made me so downhearted. Well, I bought a bottle of Kruschen, and took a teaspoonful every morning. When the bottle was finished I felt better in the same as everything else was no better." But my husband said "Persevere!" so I did. Give it a chance to act on your blood." Well, I got another, and before I had finished my knees unlocked—honestly they did. I could hardly believe it myself when I could stoop down and get up again without help. I was so excited about it. I kept on, took another bottle, and believe me I am not like the same woman." I walked four miles the other day and felt fine, whereas before I could hardly walk across the floor.

"My husband has been out of work all winter, but I'll say my Kruschen Salts before I'd buy a thing to eat. It means so much to be well and able to walk. I feel I should tell you all this, if it will benefit others." —(Mrs.) R. A.

What more need be said to convince other sufferers? At any rate, they should give Kruschen a trial.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

ISLAND GIRL

by FRANK R. ADAMS

A storm of protests drove at this plan. The gentlemen of the party did not relish the idea of being marooned for several days more.

Irene pointed out that there was no other course open to them, and finally with a little gesture of weariness lumbered back to the dock to fix her sake, to make things a little easier for her.

The protests at being left behind were finally silenced but not another score the members of the shot poker game raised an objection. Mr. Hyacinth had no right to go immediately without giving them a chance to recover some of their losses to him in the game before breakfast. Krebs appearing with another round of brandy clinched the matter. "Dummy" consented to sit in for a few hands, went out to give his orders to Pete Pascake who was enjoying his share of the wedding breakfast in the tree-top. "Dummy" beg Irene go with him evidently taking no chance on any collusion between her and the other members of the party, if they returned and the poker game began.

CHAPTER 30

Irene in accordance with the invisible wishes of her presumable husband, sat behind his chair and went stood on the opposite side of the dining table, too restless to sit down, oppressed by a feeling that time had been granted to him in which to do something but not knowing what it was that he ought to do. The real Dr. Snyder stood at Vern's side advising certain moments.

At the end of an hour the relative fortunes of the players had changed considerably. "Dummy" had lost the advantage he had originally gained and was, in fact, several hundred dollars in the game. The fact that a good deal of Mr. Ferguson's ready money had changed hands and tended to increase the size of the bets and increase the rapidity with which chips changed hands.

It was Irene who reminded "Dummy" that he had a wife. "Dummy" Vern looked at her in amazement. That was the first intimation that he had of the respite which had been made up for him by a faithful lass. She's mine for life."

"Oh, no, dear," urged Mr. MacLean irritably at the interruption, growl from all hands conveyed the idea that nobody wished to hear Mr. Ferguson boast any more.

"Very well. It's my own fault then. Make your bets."

"Dummy" had the high card, a king of diamonds and he made a blue chip into the centre of the table. Everybody called.

"Dummy" drew a ten of diamonds for his second card.

"Dummy" caught the queen of diamonds and Mr. Ferguson mulcted a deuce he already had in his hand the only one to bet against "Dummy" and Mr. Ferguson called on flush.

The host dealt "Dummy" the jack of diamonds. For moments the excitement escaped the lips of the other players. Four cards of one suit in sequence are seldom held in stud poker.

Ferguson dealt himself another deuce.

In the face of the possible diamond straight he bet a stack of blues and "Dummy" raised in answer to the concealed card and raised.

Ferguson mumbled once more, "I haven't that much left" and then ought to be worth it even with the prospect of the flush in it." He bet the amount. "Consider yourself called."

Instead of turning over the concealed card he dealt across the board. "Dummy" wheeled around to his wife. "You told him," he rapped out.

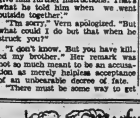
"Why, I did not." Irene denied flushing blushing at the imputation and half rising to her feet.

"Dummy" stared across the cheek with the flat of his hand which threw her back into her chair.

It was the only move he made, because he could even turn back to the table he had been floored by a blow so crushing that his chair went to pieces under him as it went over backward.

CHAPTER 31

"Dummy" lay where he was. The sheriff, said Judge Hale pleasantly, regarding the unconscious form of Slade Dorn come around this situation," argued the judge. "We seem to have the upper hand."



"It only seems so. As a matter of fact every minute that passes brings us nearer to a situation which in a thousand times worse than if he had taken me away as soon as we were married. At that times we at least had not come to open hostilities. Now, when he regains consciousness nothing that he can think of will be too cruel. You gentlemen do not know what 'Dummy' is capable of——yet."

"Just to make sure that he doesn't regain consciousness inconveniently soon let's tap him on the head with this," suggested Dr. Snyder picking up a solid brass poker from among the fire tools.

"You a minister say that?" Irene questioned shocked.

"Yes. This seems to be a case where one should apply the rule about turning the other cheek. As our friend isn't able to act on it himself I propose that we do the needful for him."

"Perhaps it will be just as well," suggested Vern practically, "if we tie his hands and feet together with these." He had commandeered the tasselled cords which held back the frayed curtains.

The other men offered to help but Vern claimed a trifle of superior skill from having been in the navy and he bound the unconscious man into a very neat bale of humanity.

"There," Vern exclaimed with proper pride at his own handiwork. "Hoodini himself couldn't get out of that in less than thirty seconds.

"But," Irene pointed out, "he is just as dangerous unconscious and tied as he would be if he were free. I told you that his instructions to Pete Pascake were that if he did not come out before the end of the hour he was to take such measures with regard to Drury as would guarantee "Dummy's" safety."

Dr. Snyder and the other old men looked at each other blankly in their weird things such a clause could not exist, a plot so vile and so cruel must be the figments of a nightmare and not an incident out of real life.

A thoughtful silence of a few moments was the only reply to his questions. Then Vern began to unbind the knots he had just made around "Dummy's" wrists.

"You are going to let him go?" Irene asked.

"No, Mrs. Squales," Vern replied with the heightened good humor of one who is fighting on the edge of a precipice. "But I have an idea."

He took off "Dummy's" coat and put it on in place of his own. "Get me your husband's hat and in the moonlight, if there is any, I think I can fool this bird up in the tree top."

An instant it trembled like a leaf, then with a wild snort, broke its tether and raced madly away across the plain. Blake and the Princess of Nimmr were alone in the Wood of the Leopards! And yet not alone.

Blake drew his gun and peered into the gloomy woods, but he saw nothing. Nor could his civilised sense of smell catch the scent that had come so clearly to the nostrils of the terrified horse. Then he laughed, thinking to calm his own nerves, and drew the trembling girl closer to him. Steadily those eyes watched his every move—but they were not the eyes of Sheeta, the leopard!

Lord Tarzan and Sir Bertram watched the Knights of the Sepulchre, after Blake had borne the Princess out of their ranks. Now Balmun's knights were engaged with the knights of Nimmr who had arrived upon the scene. As they approached the Ape-Man saw a knight go down before an adversary's lance and then the victor espied Tarzan. "Have at ye, Sir Ape of the Sepulcher, crashing his lance. This was a new experience for the Ape-Man.

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia Overcomes Troubles Caused by Acid

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a dull, distressing feeling after eating is almost certain to be caused by too much hydrochloric acid in the digestive juices, causing so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous. You don't have to be told that excess acid in the juices of the stomach causes gastritis, accompanied by more serious troubles, if the condition is allowed to occur, creating the distressing gas which presses against the heart and interferes with the normal functions of the vital organs, thus causing many serious disorders.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a condition, for relief can be had with ordinary digestive aids which are harmless and pleasant to take. Bisurated Magnesia from any druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a glass of water after eating. This will start to work in a few minutes, and will remain in the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent gas. Don't suffer from gas and indigestion. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form—not in tablets) is inexpensive, tasteless, harmless, and a few remedy for acid indigestion. Be sure to get Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form—not in tablets) which

LOAN SWEEPS OVER THE TOP IN FIVE DAYS

Books to Close at Noon Today With Over-subscription

COMPLETE SUCCESS

Funds For Loans Supplied By Canadian Investors Only

Ottawa, Oct. 14—The 1933 refunding loan swept over the top with its $235,000,000 total definitely assured. It was expected there would be a large oversubscription.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in a statement issued Friday night, explained that the books of the loan are being kept open until Saturday noon in order to give every holder of maturing Victory bonds a final opportunity to convert into the new issue.

Commenting on the result of the loan, Mr. Rhodes said:

"The complete success of the re-funding loan within a period of five days and with funds supplied entirely by Canadian investors is a most convincing demonstration of Canada's financial strength, and supplies further evidence of the country's complete recovery."

Mr. Rhodes will speak over a national radio hook-up Saturday night at 10.35 Eastern Standard Time, when he will deal more specifically with the results of the week's campaign.

Among the large subscriptions received yesterday were one for $2,000,000 from McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Limited, and another for $100,000 from Continental Life Insurance Company.

The conditions under which the books of the loan will close, and by which final applicants will be accepted are defined in the following official statement by the Minister of Finance:

"The books of the Dominion of Canada 1933 Refunding Loan will close tomorrow, Saturday, October 14, at 12 o'clock noon.

"Applications for conversion, accompanied by the maturing Victory Bonds, will be accepted, provided such applications are filed with an Assistant Receiver-General or with any branch of a chartered bank of Canada before 12 o'clock on Saturday; but where delivery of the Victory Bonds has been unavoidably delayed, applications for conversion must be accompanied by an undertaking to deliver such bonds in such time as will enable the bank or dealer to lodge them with an Assistant Receiver-General not later than 5 o'clock on Monday, October 16. Failure to deliver the bonds at that time, however, will cause the application null and void.

"Cash subscriptions will be considered for allotment only if application is lodged with an Assistant Receiver-General by 12 o'clock noon on Saturday."

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Detroit, Oct. 14—(CP)—"I read recently," said Judge Thomas M. Cotter to James McCann, who was before him on a charge of intoxication, "that the way to tell an intruder is to have him close his eyes and try to find his nose. "Let's see you try it."

"My nose has been in the same place for 28 years," replied McCann, and I'm not going to find it."

But he didn't and he went to jail for 90 days.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 14—(CP)—The blue eagle has vanquished the lion and unicorn in a fallen.

A large chicken hawk, claws open and eyes aglare, swooped out of the air at a huge MGA emblem painted on the plate glass window of a Helena coal company. D. J. Kane and Ralph Shrashberg, talking in the office, were startled by the thug and looked up in time to see the hawk pick itself up from the dust, shake its head and wobble away.

Chicago, Oct. 14—(CP)—Judge" said Mrs. Bernice Skinnem, "I've left him 12 times and been reconciled to him 11 times," referring to her husband.

"This is Friday the 13th" said Judge Joseph Sabath," why don't you defy superstition and be reconciled to him the 12th time?"

Mrs. Skinnem agreed.

HOLLAND'S WILHELMINA WORLD'S ONLY RULING QUEEN

Holland, which has been ruled by a woman for the past 43 years, might more appropriately be designated as a queendom, rather than a kingdom. Queen Wilhelmina, right, now with her father Prince Henry, and 53 years of age, is the world's lone ruling queen. The future ruler of the Netherlands also is a woman. She is Princess Juliana, shown at left in the group picture at top, with her father Prince Henry, and Queen Wilhelmina. The royal palace, at Amsterdam, where the family resides, is pictured at bottom. The map shows the possessions, in black of the Netherlands throughout the world.

TRENT CANAL NOT CLOSED PERMANENTLY, SAYS OTTAWA

Trent, Rideau, Chambly Closed Earlier This Year

RUMORS ARE DENIED

Ottawa, Oct. 14 (CP)—Three of Canada's smaller canals were partially closed down on October 1st, instead of remaining open until the freeze-up as in former years. These were the Trent Canal in Central Ontario, the Rideau Canal connecting Kingston and Ottawa and the Chambly on the Richelieu. If the traffic presents itself during October or November, the owners of the boats locking through will have to pay the overtime the government is caused by bringing back lockmen and other employees.

The action has been taken by the Department of Railways and Canals in the interest of economy. The records showed that very few boats passed through these canals in recent years after October 1. The department has also economized by superannuating men over 65 years and carrying on the work without replacing them.

The question is under consideration whether in the case of canals closing on October 1, the lockmen should be considered seasonal employees and only paid for the actual time they are employed.

In the past many of them have been on annual salaries. No decision, however, has been reached on such a step according to officials of the department.

The department has no intention of closing up the Trent Canal permanently, according to officials here. There had been rumors that the canal might either be closed entirely or turned over to the provincial government as a pleasure waterway for tourists. Officials were emphatic that neither step had ever been considered.

"I'm glad the department has taken this stand," stated Harbormaster Robt. Goody of this city. "Closing the canal permanently would be a hardship to all class of boatmen both owners and would result in a considerable decline of tourists through this district."

While some of the larger yachts this year were unable to navigate the canal owing to the low water, smaller boats in large numbers kept the canal traffic up. The majority of them were tourists from south of the border."

This year, it was stated, following the drop of water levels in the lake, the average depth of water at the tag end of the season was only ten feet, four feet lower than average. With a strong west wind blowing the depth of ten feet could not be maintained.

PREMIER BENNETT IN HOME TOWN OF CALGARY

Will Spend Quiet Week-End Before Going to Ottawa

Calgary, Oct. 14 (CP) — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was back in his home city today.

He plans a quiet week-end but he will meet the public in two informal occasions today. He will be the guest of honor at a reception under the auspices of the Calgary Women's Conservative Club as soon as he returns from attending the rugby game between Alouetta and University of Alberta. He has been invited to start the game by kicking off.

With these two exceptions, Mr. Bennett will spend the time quietly until Monday noon, when he will address the Board of Trade at a luncheon.

Arrives at Sydney After Breaking Record

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 14 (AP)—An enthusiastic throng of thousands gave Wing Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith a tumultuous welcome when he arrived here late today completing the notable flight in which he established a new record from England to Australia.

Sir Charles clipped more than 40 hours off the old record when he landed at Wyndham, Australia, on Tuesday after having flown from England in the elapsed time of 7 days, 4 hours and 44 minutes.

Tired of Automobiles Wrecked in His Back Yard, Wants Bulwark

Seattle, Oct. 14.—(CP)— L. B. Walker is tired of having automobile race through his back yard and wreck their machines, and would like the city to erect a bulwark.

Recently view off when the fourth car, parked on an incline on a nearby thoroughfare street, was bumped by another vehicle, and rolled down through the Walker's yard, is wreck when it went over a 300-foot cliff nearby. The yard is cluttered up, said Walker, by wrecking trucks.

G. W. CASTLE DIES, BUSINESS EXPERT

Calgary, Oct. 14 (CP) — George Walter Castle, 63, for 23 years manager of the credit, mail order and advertising here of Henry Birks and sons, Jewellers, died yesterday following a heart attack. He was born in Perth, Ont.

Burial will take place at Westport, Ont., where a sister, Miss Elizabeth Castle, resides. Mrs. H. Wartman, of Kingston, Ontario, is a daughter.

KROHLER TO CLOSE SHOP

Unfinished Products to Be Shipped to Montreal and Winnipeg

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP) — With one plant closed indefinitely and five others shut at least temporarily, Stratford's furniture strikers today turned to thoughts of how best to fight oncoming winter. The strikers, who walked out more than a month ago seeking higher wages and union recognition, have once again run into a deadlock.

The Kroehler Manufacturing Company, largest of its type in the city, announced yesterday it would lock up shop and ship unfinished products to branches in Montreal and Winnipeg. Nothing has yet been heard from the five other plants affected by the strike.

All six factories had offered to reopen last Thursday, but when ten strike-breakers left the picketing ranks and went into the plants, showers of tomatoes and apples were thrown by the strikers. This was followed by the Kroehler Company's definite announcement that the plant would be closed immediately.

An impasse still exists between the Swift-Canadian Company and its eighty employees, who also went on strike some weeks ago. The plants was closed following some disorder, and its doors are still locked.

REMANDED AFTER PLEA OF GUILTY

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP)—Pleading guilty to a charge of possessing counterfeit money, Frank Koerner, 18, was remanded for sentence when he appeared before Deputy-Magistrate James McKay in police court here today.

His sister, Alice Koerner, was acquitted of three charges arising from the same facts. The charges were uttering bogus money, having possession and negotiating bogus money, knowing it to be counterfeit.

WORST NEWS IN 20 YEARS STATE FORTUNE TELLER

Hitler's Daring in Calling For New Reichstag Elections

SIMON'S VIEW

Germany Follows Japan to Depart From League

Berlin, Oct. 14 (AP)—By one of the boldest strokes of official action since his assumption of power, Chancellor Adolf Hitler today served notice on the League of Nations that Germany will withdraw two years hence, and on the disarmament conference that the Reich no longer finds it possible to continue its attendance.

To demonstrate to the world that all Germany stands behind the Chancellor's foreign policy, President Paul Von Hindenburg ordered the dissolution of the Reichstag and all the state parliaments and set new Reichstag elections for November 12.

"Gravest News In Years"

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP) — A French spokesman today characterized the announcement of Germany's intention to withdraw from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations as "the gravest news in twenty years."

The news was flashed to the cables while it was in session discussing the armaments situation.

A foreign office spokesman commented that Germany

"France has done what she could to achieve disarmament. Her efforts are shared by Great Britain and the United States and now it is perfectly clear where Germany stands."

Rising Difficulties.

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 14 (AP) — Sir John Simon, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the steering committee of the World Disarmament Conference today "the time had passed for glossing over difficulties by vague and optimistic phrases."

A system of agreed disarmament promptly entered into and equally promptly carried out, I believe, be of the greatest value to the world," he said, "but it equally clear that nothing is gained by interminable discussions which do not face the essential matters on which differences may still exist."

Sir John discussion indicated that some powers wished that the period of the conventions should extend from five to perhaps eight years.

Other Powers Aiming.

This period, Simon later added, should be filled with a continuous program.

A scheme is emerging, he said, for a consultative pact to bring about exchanges of views on the proposed 5-year non-aggression pact to begin with the transformation of conditions arising among the lines of the British Empire Conference.

Fears of a German break from the Geneva conference forced spokesmen leaders today as they struggled to keep up pre-set programs for the while watching reports from Berlin.

The fate of Foreign Minister Von Reich contended ill denied authority to arm on a "defensive basis", indicated it would withdraw from arming up to the treaty limits.

Germany's demand for "equal arm," the German spokesman acting for Von Neurath, Reich Minister, said. "We merely want some weapons whose number of which is to be negotiated."

Germany was the second great world power within less than a year to announce its intention to withdraw from the League of Nations. Japan, with the approval of Emperor Hirohito, in March wired its resignation to Geneva.

U. S. STRIKERS MAY LOSE RELIEF AID

New York, Oct. 14 (CP)—Strikers in the United States were confronted today with the possibility of losing federal relief aid if their strikes were found to be unjustified.

Announcement between Federal Relief Administration and the labor department, with such action was reported to have been reached with several labor leaders and conciliators looking into all major strikes in this field.

STOLE OWN COW

Charlotte, Mich., Oct. 14—(CP)—Frank Bailey and his son, George, are going on trial next week on a charge of stealing their own cow. The cow broke into a pasture field and the neighbor held the animal for trespassing, asking $5 damages. The charge is that the Bailey's repossessed the cow, by force.

AUSTRALIAN FLIER MAKES NEW RECORD

Sir Charles Kingsford Smith, Australia's premier flying ace, landed here today Oct. 13) breaking the England-Australia flight record by completing the journey in seven days, four hours and 45 minutes. The new record broke the former mark set by C. W. A. Scott of Great Britain by one day, 16 hours and two minutes. Kingsford-Smith is shown standing in front of his plane, "Miss Southern Cross" shortly before he took-off on his record-breaking flight, from the Heston airdrome in England.

Chased for 3 Miles by Moose

Emerging from the darkness of the woods as Stewart Black and Albert Whitmore with Glenn Letts and Albert Trolly were making their way up right back from Hamblyn's Camp at Bessemer, a large moose pursued the quartette through the woods and along the road until they came to the hunting camp at Clear Lake where the first two were compelled to take to the roof of the lodge and the others to take there perch in a tree while the infuriated beast paved and stamped the ground and sniffed beneath them.

Long minutes past as the animal showed no signs of leaving the men and it looking as if it might be a whole night visit and the added risk of failing asleep in their dangerous positions the latter decided to make a dash for it and the animal wandered off.

After a time the men descended but they were cautious. However they took no chances and set off again to the; homes when the moose took up the trail and followed for three miles after they left the camp. They reached home in safety.

EXPORTS ARE ON INCREASE

Fifteen Millions Reported Increase By the Government

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—(CP)—An increase of over $15,500,000 in exports together with a rise in imports of approximately $7,700,000 featured Canadian trade during September, said the monthly report issued today by the Department of National Revenue. Total trade for the month announced in value as $96,084,222, compared with $78,690,944 for September, 1932.

For the first six months of the current fiscal year the external trade of Canada was up by $10,-000,000 over the corresponding period a year ago. Exports increased no more than $31,000,000, but there was a drop in imports amounting to approximately $20,000,000.

Total trade totalled a value of $465,196,491, made up of $265,-408,823 in exports and $199,787,667 in imports. This compared with a total valued for the corresponding six months of last year of $453,716,-044, comprised of $234,075,269 in exports and $221,640,775 in imports.

LIBERALS MAY ACCEPT SALE BEER, WINE

Will Endorse Same Principle As Henry on Beer and Wine

NOT ELECTION ISSUE

The Contest Must Be On Straight Party Policies

Toronto, Oct. 14 (CP)—Possibility the plan Provincial Election campaign will be a straight fight on government policies—with the beer and wine by-the-glass issue held out by both Conservative and Liberal forces, was seen today by political observers as the result of statements yesterday by Premier George S. Henry of Ontario and Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P. Ontario Liberal leader.

The beer and wine issue was thrown into the arena again when Hon. H. C. Schofield, Minister without portfolio, in reply to a question declared: "I can tell you on behalf of the government that when the Conservative party goes to the country in the forthcoming election the government will give the people a beer and wine policy that will satisfy all."

Premier Henry commented briefly: "I do not see how we can go further without having something of a definite character, but we will have a definite statement and policy before an election." No policy had yet been drawn up, he said.

"He is going to have the people and defend his own record of administration and sozandering of public money," Mr. Hepburn from his house near St. Thomas. "We are ready to go to Mr. Henry get away from that. It is quite obvious to all that a prohibition is a lost cause. The voting in the United States on the repeal of the 18th amendment is indicative of this. I feel that prohibition must now be approached through a system of public education with no attempt to legislate on the people."

Mr. Hepburn made no announcement regarding the Liberal party's stand on beer and wine, but declared a standing policy would be laid down after consultation with provincial and progressive candidates and members in the legislature.

Harry C. Nixon, Progressive leader in the legislature declared the "government won't be permitted to hide behind a beer keg at the next election."

The government, he maintained, must accept Sir Schofield's statement. The resignation since he had declared it was speaking for the government. And Premier Henry in an indefensible position unless he does. Premier Henry after declared there would be no change in the Liquor Control Act.

OSHAWA TEACHERS VISIT THE O. S. D.

Following the completion of their formal opening of the convention on Friday, members of the Oshawa Teachers' Institute in session at Oshawa travelled by bus and car from that city to the Ontario School for the Deaf at this city. The visitors were shown through the buildings and classes of the local institution by Mr. H. B. Fetterly, superintendent of the school.

148 MEN NOW ON RELIEF WORK

A total of one hundred and forty-eight men were employed today on relief work throughout the city. The larger gang of fifty men were steadily at work on the bed of the Moira River near the old electric power house, while the remainder of the large number of men were divided into the three storm sewer projects now being carried on on Dundas Front St., Foster Ave., and West Metcalfe Street, Bridge Street to the city limits, Pine Grove on South Front Street and Foster Avenue-had been well advanced today.

Boycott News Fails To Reach Germans

Berlin, Oct. 14 (AP)—News of the decision of the American Federation of Labor Convention to boycott German goods failed to reach the breakfast table here today.

The report that the boycott specifically was directed against Germany was withheld from some of the press by the semi-official Wolff News Agency awaiting instructions from responsible authorities.

BLIGHTING FROSTS GRIP DISTRICT

Blighting frosts, ushered in with the lowest temperatures for this district since last April 27, again held this district in its grip early this morning. Lowest temperature recorded early Saturday morning was set at just 37 above, the same temperature recorded on April 27 this year. Ice rimmed the edges of the Canary pond and formed on the quiet pools and puddles in the city. Thrown the city house plants and other flowers received their final coup de grace. Pump house officials who registered the temperatures early in the morning stated it was "cold enough to snow." As if to make up for the killing frosts, the district over the week end will be favored with soft winds and balmy temperatures. It will be fair and mild warm in the weatherman promise.

THREE BANDITS KILLED

Mexico, D.F. Oct. 14 (AP)—Three bandits were killed by Federal troops last night in the region of Mascota, according to despatches reaching here from Guadalajara.

Only twelve short months ago one of the most famous of Soviet Russia's movie stars, Miss Ellen Sylvin (above) is now employed as a domestic servant for the Baroness Ufford in London. She is shown about to don her duties. Sylvin's rise and career as a dancer in the Heisingfors, opera and for five years, later, was leading lady for Pakkl Ekan, director of the Finnish Film company. She then disappeared from the public eye and was found recently in her menial job. Love was the cause of her "downfall", says Miss Sylvin.

COOKING CLASS ADDED FEATURE

Women's Institute Have Charge At Convention

Arrangements for the 6th. Annual Convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, to be held for the second consecutive year in Napanee, on December 5th. and 6th next, have gone forward apace the present week. The hearty co-operation and interest shown by the Napanee Town Council and the citizens of the town in general last year has given confidence to the Association in Napanee are lending a willing and helping hand to make the convention this year more attractive in delegates and visitors than that of a year ago.

Cooking Class Added

Following correspondence, Mr. J. L. Irwin of this city, district dairy grader was in conference Saturday last with a delegation of four members of the Napanee Women's Institute. Arrangements were made for the holding of cooking classes each or the two days of the convention, and the preparation of cheese dishes is to feature the classes. Miss Laura E. Pepper of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, will conduct these lectures and work and all women of the Central Ontario district are invited to attend. The Women's Institute of Napanee have willingly volunteered to look after the details of this two days demonstration.

Cheese Scoring Competition

Another innovation of this year's convention which Mr. Irwin, and the executive of the Association have arranged for is a Cheese Scoring Competition, open only to members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association. From the Dairy Instructors' groups of the district, ten teams of three members each will be chosen to compete. Mr. Joseph Burgess, of Ottawa, Chief Dairy Produce Grader, of the Dominion Department of Agriculture will supervise this new event of the convention.

Banquet Arrangements

The speakers for the banquet, the evening of the last day of the convention, have not as yet been arranged for but as heretofore, men of national prominence will be present.

The Gananoque Citizens' Band will play during the dinner and during the program following. This band is composed of men who took part in its class at the band competitions of the Canadian National Exhibition, August last, and played recently at the Agricultural Park here, and several places throughout the district. All who have heard it, know what excellent music it can furnish and the executive of the Association feel fortunate in securing its services.

Winners of the 4th. Herd Competition, conducted by the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association will be presented with their awards while awards, the afternoon or the second day of convention. Earlier in the summer it was feared that lack of interest on the part of the cheese factory patrons of Central Ontario in this event would cause its withdrawal. Later, however, entries sufficient to make it a real contest came in and the matter was gone on with.

With a few more arrangements of interest to be concluded, it looks at present as though the 5th. Annual Convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association was assured of success.

COAL PROBE REVELATIONS

Witness Says Senator L. C. Webster Loaned Money

Quebec, Oct. 14.—It was revealed by one of the vice-presidents of the Canada Import Company that it was Senator Lorne C. Webster who had advanced the money to C. M. Barnett with which to purchase the controlling interest in the Weaver Coal Company, and that the securities of that company were held in escrow by a trust company as security for that loan which was still current.

For several years, only two firms were bringing Welsh coal into Quebec City and district, one of the Webster-owned Canadian Import and the other the Madden Company in which the Webster group is interested, it was brought out on Friday afternoon's session of the royal commission when counsel for a charge of operating an unlawful combine in restraint of trade. The only Welsh coal imported across the river was Paquet, who was an exclusive customer of the Webster companies. The evidence was given by W. G. Stobie, vice-president of Canadian Import Company with offices in Quebec City.

A form was produced earlier in the afternoon on which purchasers of brokerage and other fees on Welsh coal undertook nio to sell it below a specified price.

Sensational testimony featured the coal inquiry. Mr. Stobie was still on the stand. He was questioned by Mr. St. Laurent.

Mr. St. Laurent: "Do you know Mr. Charles M. Barnett, the party of the second part to the agreement with Weaver Company?"

"I do."

"Do you know whom he represented in the acquisition of the controlling interests of the Weaver Company?"

"I do."

"Who is it?"

"He represented himself in the first instance."

"Well, I am concerned with the last instance."

"Well, if you could put your question another way it would perhaps be better."

"Who put up the money?"

"The money came from Mr. Webster as a loan to Mr. Barnett."

"And the loan is still current?"

"Yes."

"And who has possession of the certificates for the securities that Mr. Barnett purchased?"

"They are being held in escrow by a trust company as security for the loan."

"The certificate is endorsed in blank?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Barnett represented himself but Mr. Webster supplied the money as a loan to Mr. Barnett and the securities of the Weaver Company endorsed in blank are pledged as security for the repayment of the loan?"

"That is right."

GOLF

Presentation of prizes, during a buffet luncheon and followed by a dance concluded the year's activities at the Bay of Quinte, Country Club last evening, when large numbers of members, their wives and invited guests were entertained by the club. The directors were congratulated for their endeavour to provide a season of sport, and the winners on attaining the highest proficiency in their groups. Mr. R. E. Ellsworth, chairman, speaking for the president of the club, Dr. George H. Sloke, who was unavoidably absent, stated that the year had been a difficult one but the competitions had all been carried through to a successful conclusion. He congratulated the winners of the various trophies for their fine spirit in competition and the club for the success it had always prevailed at the club. He also added a word of praise for the club pro William Little.

Mrs. Fred Wilson president of the ladies' section and Miss Mary Roberts, team captain, were congratulated for their work during the season and appreciation was shown when two bouquets of roses were presented to these ladies by Mr. R. E. Ellsworth. Mrs. Fred Wilson was given the honor of presenting the trophies and prizes to the winners, while Roy Stafford made the presentation to Mr. Ellsworth of the Tip Top Tailor trophy. Don Carman winner of the club championship was presented with the trophy and replica of same. OBITUARY

LATE JOHN RODGERS

Stirling (Special)—The funeral of the late John Rodgers, whose death occurred early Wednesday morning, was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Bell, Emma St., on Friday at 2 p.m. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. E. W. Leonard, pastor of St. Paul's United Church and opened with the singing of Hymn 665, "The Sands of Time are Sinking."

Rev Rowland led in prayer after which the 90th. Psalm was read. Miss Betty Conley sang a beautiful solo, entitled, "There Will be No Night There." The pastor delivered an uplifting sermon based on the 13th. verse of the 90th. Psalm, "Teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

The services were brought to a close with Hymn 462, "Oh, God Our Help in Ages Past."

The funeral procession then wended its way to the Stirling cemetery where interment took place with Rev. Mr. Rowland officiating at the committal. Six relatives of the deceased acted as pall-bearers. They were Messrs. Hiram Rodgers, Lewis Rodgers, John McGee, Archie McGie, Thomas McGee and Thomas McGee. Left to mourn his loss are one brother, Hiram Rodgers, of Stirling, one sister Warden of Hastings County, one daughter, Mrs. Henry Bell, Stirling, and two sons, Robert of Foresters; John A., of Long Beach, California, and four grandchildren, Miss Rilla Rodgers, of Belleville; Mrs. Robert Cochrane, of Belleville; Mr. Cephas Martin, of Belleville, and Mrs. Henry Ball of Stirling.

THE LATE BYRON COULTER

(Contributed)

The death occurred on October 8th of Wm. Byron Coulter at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Coulter in Toronto of whom the deceased had gone to spend the week. He was a son of the late Robert and Sarah Jane Coulter and was born at Lake Eleanor, Ont., where he has resided all on Wednesday and his illness was of short duration.

While not of robust nature his untimely death came as a shock to his many sorrowing friends.

His remains were conveyed by motor hearse from Toronto for interment in the Belleville cemetery on Saturday where a large concourse of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to one so well known and highly respected.

A very impressive service was conducted by Rev. F. Bessey of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Toronto, of whom deceased was a member.

The bearers were all cousins of deceased, Gordon Alexander, Joseph, Fred and Frank Coulter, Wm. and Alex Coulter.

The many beautiful floral tributes in evidence spoke highly of deceased, popularity. He leaves to mourn his loss one sister Mrs. Clare Allen, Toronto, and two brothers Wellington of Moscow and Wellsley of Enterprise.

MRS. ALEXANDER, SMITH

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Smith was held Thursday afternoon from the Martin and Son Funeral Home, Church Street, to St. Thomas Church. The service was conducted by the Rev. A. L. Greer, assisted by the Rev. B. P. Ryan; both clergymen officiating at the graveside in the Belleville cemetery.

Acting as bearers were Messrs Harry Smith, Sr., Charles, George, Thomas and Alexander Smith and Samuel Danford.

MRS. ROBERT CRAWFORD

Mrs. Nellie May Crawford, beloved wife of Robert Crawford of Tichborne, died Saturday morning suddenly Friday, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Dafoe, Bridge St., Paul Street. The deceased was the daughter of the late Robert and Angelina McGinnis, and was born near Tichborne, 81 years ago and had lived in that vicinity all her life. Mrs. Crawford was a member of the United Church and had many friends in the vicinity of Tichborne.

Surviving are the husband, three sons, Arnold, Leslie and Melville and three daughters, Mrs. Wm. Dafoe of this city, Mrs. James Donly of Demorestville, and Agnes at home.

The remains were taken to the Martin and Son Funeral Home on Church Street, and Saturday morning by the noon C.P.R. train, Saturday to Tichborne, for funeral service and interment there, Sunday.

MUNICIPALITIES ARE ADVISED

Ottawa, Oct. 14 (CP)—Prosecuting its policy for economy into the closing sitting of its three-day convention, the Chamber of Commerce decided to appoint a small committee "specially charged with the duty of activity preparatory the work of promoting administrative economies in public finance, in the form of money to be set aside for this purpose.

The stern necessity for a continuance of the policy of utmost economy to bring about a reduction in taxation was urged upon members of the Chamber and those responsible, for the administration of public affairs throughout the country to a resolution adopted at the same time, the Chamber recorded its appreciation of the endeavors of the different governments in Canada to balance their budgets. Boards of Trade were urged to petition the governments for expenditures of public funds.

Private initiative and enterprise should be utilized in the restoration of business, the Chamber considered. In the opinion of the delegates the time was opportune for active development of Canadian trade and promotion of Canadian enterprise.

An N.R.A. enactment such as the United States had under way was not advisable in Canada.

KING GEORGE CLASS OF GRADUATES IS BANQUETTED BY CLUB

Mr. J. O. Herity Delivers Address of Evening

An event unique in the education history of Belleville, was the banquet tendered the graduating class of King George School by the Home and School Club. An interesting program was given the feature of which was an address by Mr. J. O. Herity.

The guests were members of the class and their parents. The tables were tastefully decorated with maroon, sinilax and dahlias. An excellent menu was served after which the following toasts were proposed: To the King, proposed by Mr. Vernon Orr, responded to by all singing the National Anthem; to the Graduating Class, proposed by Mrs. Russel Smith, responded to by Jean Ramsay; to the Principal, Mr. L. A. Kells, proposed by Mrs. W. Harrison. Mr. Kells gave a very interesting address on safety, welcoming the parents to the school and asking for their co-operation.

A solo by Mr. Stan Wilbur, accompanied by E. S. Anglin, and by Miss Lorna Ridley accompanied by Miss Dorothy Boyle, were greatly enjoyed.

The guest of honour Mr. Herity, was then introduced and delivered an engrossing address on Poetry, particularly that of James Whitcomb Riley. Poetry wielded a great influence in people's lives and although it was not read as much as it has been it still continues to influence humanity. The poetry of childhood, nursery rhymes, nonsense verse, cultivate the imagination, teaching the children the beauty, melody and music of language. The speaker discussed the poetry of the Bible, the beautiful hymns which influence people towards religion, patriotic verse which galvanizes a nation into action. Each nation has a national anthem; each war a different song.

The most universal song is the Christmas Carol, then there are poetical dramas, epics, and elegaics, said Mr. Herity in tracing man's interest in poetry from the cradle to the grave.

He gave a sketch of the life of Riley and the inspiration it was to visit his birthplace. Mr. Herity was deeply impressed when he was there last summer to lay a wreath with the singing of the "National Anthem".

Lefty Goldsmith Defeated by Battling Picton Squad in Second Game of Finals

Score 2-0 Which Represents Superiority of Picton Team

PHILLIPS HERO

"Ramie" Hudgins Bats Home Both Runs Counted

No one can say Friday the 13th is a jinx to the Picton ball club.

In fact it was just the reverse for the team enjoyed the benefit against Southampton "Fishermen" and today are even-stephen in games one and a third game will be necessary to decide the intermediate "B" championship of the Province.

A game battling crew, with their backs to the wall, hammered down the defiant delivery of Lefty Goldsmith, the ace hurler in intermediate company and won by a 2-0 score on Friday before one of the largest crowds to ever witness a ball game in the Prince Edward County seat and they left the ball yard singing the praises of Harold Phillips, their mite - left handed hurler and no one, who witnessed the game will deny him his laurels for he outpitched and outsmarted the famous Goldsmith.

Faltered in Third

When Goldsmith faltered in the third frame after a man was down by walking Phillips, "Ramie" Hudgins, fleet outfielder for the Picton crew, took hold of a base one and planted it into centre field for a double and Rorke scampered across the platter, which proved to be the million dollar tally but to make it sure Ramie took his life defense again in the eighth, when Rorke was again walked and the player promptly stole second. Advancing to third on a passed ball, "Ramie" Hudgins again became the batting hero, when his hard grounder to second scored Rorke, the outfielder being safe, when the baseman elected to try the play at the plate but his throw was late and wild. This in one paragraph tells the story of how the runs were scored but there was more to the ball game than that.

Goldsmith , strutted, walked around, held conferences with his team mates, received many claps on the back but in the pinch he could not throw the pellet past the hitters. Word seeped through to the east, that this lad had everything to make a pitcher and after seeing him work nine frames, we will agree with all the nice things that have been said about him but the scratches from his worth we believe there are two pitchers at least in this neck of the woods who are as good. We refer to Phillips who bested him on Friday and Tommy Pointer of Napanee. These two boys have as much stuff on the ball as Goldsmith but they have not his control nor probably as much speed" but they have control, would not hold true of Phillips in Friday's game because he has good control than Goldsmith and his curve ball had the visitors baffled on more than occasion.

Real Hurling Duel

The fans turned out to see a pitching duel and they were not disappointed. Goldsmith whiffed twelve to seven sent back to the dugout by Phillips. The Southampton on hurler allowed but three hits, two of them quite scratchy, while Phillips allowed but five hits, only two of them tainted and he did not walk a man. Goldsmith walked but three free trips registered against him. Two of these men were forced into runs and that was the break of the game. Phillips had a better command but the support given him did the Southampton ace and Picton's work in the field was more clean cut than the losers' although the Picton club were credited with two miscues for each of the losing club. None of these figured in the run getting for the Picton crew as the Southampton team reached third base during each inning but the only real chance they had to score was gummed up by a weird base running play. Their strongest rally came in the fifth frame and when it looked as if the momentum, the chance was ruined by weird baseball. Kugler, the first man up in the frame, opened with a clean single left centre and Miller in attempting to bunt was hit by a pitched ball. Phillips was in a tough spot, when Brown laid down a perfect sacrifice moving the players up a base. Schilling lifted a short pop fly to Rorke and Kugler thinking there was one out or else he had a hunch, he started for home and he was easily doubled at third to retire the side and cut off any chance the team had even come close. Another outburst came in the eighth, when Schilling singled after Brown had grounded out. He stole second and went to third, when Durnford overthrew second trying to make a play. The stage was set for the tieing run but the best Wain could do was a weak roller to the hurler for the final out.

All Deserve Credit

The bulk of the burden rested on the shoulders of Phillips but everyman on the team deserves mention. Durnford caught a heady game and he handled Phillips like a veteran. He had the batters figured up, the majority of the time and his pep kept the team on its toes.

Left on bases, Picton 5, Southampton 5. Hits by pitched ball, by Phillips (Miller). Stolen bases, Rorke 3, Hudgins, Thompson, Schilling. Sacrifice hits, Brown. Double plays, Rorke to Thompson, Umpires, Colling, Belleville, Grover, Napanee, bases. Time of game, 1 hour and 50 minutes. Attendance 2300.

Thompson and Rorke played smart baseball on third and short, while Hodgins and McQuaid covered acres of ground in the outer garden, Leavens not having a play. Ron Church, coaching at third, gave every play count, while Jake Yanderwater, manager, Picton, brings out but to whom a great deal of the success of the team is due, never missed a play all the afternoon and handled the team well. One might say the breaks decided the game but a good team always plays for the breaks and gets them and on the play the better team won.

Where the third game will be played was not decided late on Friday night. Oshawa was tentatively agreed on and the time next Wednesday but the venue of the game is not authentic and may be switched to Port Credit. Oshawa is not the policy to mention the umpires, but the game was well handled by Colling and Grover, of eastern Ontario is behind the Picton squad in the latter's coping laurels for the title to this section of the province. The box score tells the story.

JIMMY BALL VOTED LEADING SPORTSMAN

Unanimous Decision of Board Controlling Award

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.—(CP)—Jimmy Ball, veteran quarter miler, who has carried the Maple Leaf in Olympic competition today had been nominated for the Moore Cup, crown memorial trophy, an award granted annually by the Dominion's "outstanding athlete of the year."

At the annual meeting of the Manitoba branch of the Canadian Athletic Union of Canada last night, Jimmy was named unanimously nominee. Alex Wilson, Montreal, is the present holder of the trophy.

Will Close Oshawa Rink Save Operating at Loss

Hockey Club Rendered Homeless By Decision of the Directors

Oshawa, Oct. 14—Oshawa hockey teams may be without a home rink this winter, according to a statement issued yesterday by G. D. Conant, general for the Oshawa Arena, Ltd.

At the present time it is very doubtful if the Oshawa arena will operate for the winter and will probably close down when the New York American hockey team finish their training period here. The statement issued yesterday reads in part:

"Having entered into a contract with the New York American professional hockey club some time ago for the use of the arena and for ice during their training period this fall, the arena will be operated until the contract is fulfilled. Owing to the uncertainty of the hockey situation in Oshawa, however, the arena management is doubtful whether it will be possible to operate the arena for the balance of the winter."

The decision of arena directors is believed to be a direct result of the O.H.A. refusing transfers to four players in Oshawa. If the arena is closed to O.H.A. hockey it will necessitate the home games being played in the New City or Bowmanville, the nearest point where there are enclosed hockey rinks.

Conant, in commenting on the statement, said: "It looks now as though there will be no hockey in Oshawa this winter, but that won't be definitely decided until we hold a meeting in the near future."

Continuing, Mr. Wilson added: "The O.H.A. spoiled our hockey chances and I suppose we really can't blame the arena officials if they don't see their way clear to operate at a loss."

KING CLANCY IS MARRIED

Defenceman of the Leafs Teams Up With Toronto Girl

Toronto, Oct. 14 (CP)—Canadian hockey enthusiasts awakened today with a smile and another cheer for Frank "King" Clancy, stellar defenceman of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League. For the "King" has forsaken single blessedness.

Like a bolt from the blue came a "tip" last night to check up on a rague report. Clancy had been married a week ago to Miss Rachael Marion Watt of this city. The report was soon verified. The wedding had taken place at St. Joseph's Church here, and the young couple had promptly left town.

Clancy, a tremendous favorite with hockey fans, is also known for his generosity. And, far-seeing, the "King" apparently realized just what sweet-players and enthusiasts would do when he was married, so he was forsaking single harness.

Clancy was called into action, but the bride refused. Present was Tom Clancy, brother of the "King," and himself one-time fistic-battling partner. Mrs. Pyke, Clancy's sister, is the only other relative.

Brave as ever, Clancy then took his bride to Hamilton for the Ottawa-Hamilton rugby game, which was the next sporting manner, and then went on to New York, returning to Ottawa later.

The bride's name is Mary and Mrs. Clancy are waiting for them to return to Toronto.

Universe Expansion Like Bursting Shell

Birmingham, Eng., Oct. 14.—A new theory of expansion of the universe is advanced by Sir James Jeans, research associate in Mount Wilson observatory and former mathematical professor in Princeton University.

The universe is like a shell, he said, "are like the fragments of a bombshell for the moment. They are receding from one another."

Sir James said the speed was proportional to the distance between the fragments. He added that eleven and down, even people, were continually expanding, but only as much as a far less ratio than the stars and nebulae.

IMMIGRATION OPPOSED

With so many Canadians out of employment, the Toronto district council of the Native Sons of Canada is firmly opposed to adoption of any policy governing resumption of immigration into the Dominion on any considerable scale.

This statement by Father Bernard O'Donnell, close friend of Clancy, was called into question, but cited the knot. Present was Tom Clancy, brother of the "King," and himself one-time fistic-battling partner.

Mrs. Pyke, Clancy's sister, is the only other relative.

Brave as ever, Clancy then took his bride to Hamilton for the Ottawa-Hamilton rugby game, which was the next sporting manner, and then went on to New York, returning to Ottawa later.

The bride's name is Mary and Mrs. Clancy are waiting for them to return to Toronto.

Proper Way to Retrieve Fumble

Every Player Must K now Play, Says Coach

While this article is written by an American coach it is equally applicable to Canadian football since it deals with the fundamentals of the game. Thise are the same in both the Canadian and U. S. game.

By HERB McCRACKEN
Head Football Coach of Lafayette

Falling on the ball is one of the fundamental fundamentals.

Everybody on the squad is expected to know how to fall on the ball, because loose balls happen unexpectedly and every one of the 22 players on the field at one time or another is called upon to fall on the ball and make it the possession of his team, and woe be tide the player who hesitates to fall on a loose (usually loose because it has been fumbled) that it be is within jumping distance of it.

These pictures show the perfect form for falling on a loose ball when an opponent is coming from the opposite direction, eager to wrap himself around the same prolate spheroid lying there on the grass.

The player who is falling on the ball is the quarterback. He hits body to the right to block out the oncoming opponent. Notice how the player who is falling on the ball trated opponent.

"cuddles up" thus protecting himself against contact, or perhaps intentional rough work on the part of the frus-

self especially his head against

Notice also the clutch of the hands on the ball. The ball won't get away.

Current Sport

Recently we spoke of a proposed open baseball meeting that would be held locally relating to the future possibilities of baseball in Belleville. Although the project is but yet in its infancy we feel that John Pan should have an opportunity to weigh this in connection with plan that may be tabled in the near future.

Although the Nationals on the field were far in arrears this past season the members of the club's executive were not the live-wire bunch and were always looking forward, not backward.

Following the termination of the O.B.L. schedule two of the members of the local executive were in direct communication with the officers of the newly formed Ulster Stadium League. First of all we wish to make it clear, that the local executive were approached on the subject and in no way assumed the initiative.

The proposition is merely this—the Ulster Stadium League proposes to take into its fold Oshawa, Peterboro and Belleville with Whitby remaining an eight seamed senior league, if it chooses. Further they have introduced the new night baseball system to the senior artificial light. They are quite willing to allow the locals to play their home games on Wednesday afternoons with week-day stands being played at night. Tuesday and possibly the odd Saturday afternoon game.

It is quite obvious, that Peterboro and Oshawa will take full advantage of this "new deal" as the entire proposition now lies with the local club. Bluntly speaking it is merely means—Belleville will either have to line-up with the Ulster Stadium League or play intermediate O.B.A.A. baseball for Belleville. There is no use beating it around the well known bush—it is either one or the other, as the situation now stands.

The Ulster Stadium loop is no fly-by-night organization as the league has been functioning under their stability to all concerned. It was after fully considering the above arrangement along with others too numerous to mention, that the officers of the Belleville Nationals decided to call an open meeting of the local citizens to fully discuss the question. The meeting is to be called some time next week and we sincerely hope that the largest turnout of baseball fans ever grace a baseball gathering will be on hand to voice their opinions.

Following a ten day holiday hunting and fishing near Plevna, Fred Lindsay, manager of the Oshawa Pirates and his party, passed through the city homeward bound yesterday. Lindsay reports that Freddie as he was passing through the city and first appeared to be a wizard was "how did the world series game go?"

Nationally Fred was interested as his club, the Pirates finished second in the National League and naturally was interested in the fate of the series melon. He did not seem at all surprised at the information that this year's series did not attract as large attendance as the years past. Freddie was quite pleased with the local baseball situation and thought a number of fine fish and did a little successful hunting, as well.

Maybe Hector "Lefty" Goldsmith was considered the premier pitcher in intermediate O.B.A.A. ranks but, he surely was forced to defer his cap to Doyle "Warpy" Phillips yesterday at Picton. Despite the fact that Goldsmith struck out twelve Belleville batters and did Prince Edward County hurler, Mr. Phillips had his down in the pinches and showed the world he was a real pitcher.

We have seen southpaws in our day but, Mr. Goldsmith is far from being in the holdout, that we imagined him to be. After observing Hector's form for an innings or so we were of the opinion that "Warpy" Phillips can hurl a good ball game as Mr. Goldsmith ever completed.

Before seeing Goldsmith we were of the opinion, that he was in a class by himself, but, after seeing his deliveries under fire we have every reason to say that his efforts cannot even come close to those of "Fisher" Delaney, Fred Goyer, or the peerless Jack Williams.

..."Warpy" Phillips, the ace harler

CONNIE MACK SETS AT REST RUMORS OF HIS RETIREMENT

After Fifty Years in Base ball, 71-year-old Leader Still as Enthusiastic tic as Ever

By BILL WEART
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

At the end of his fiftieth year in organized baseball, Connie Mack, the tall, lean leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, is not possessed of the slightest thought of retirement.

"I have less inclination of retiring now than I had ten years ago," he declared today, and added, with a twinkle of his shrewd, Irish eyes, "I had none then."

"Sure, I'm ready to retire, when I fall off the bench, and they carry me out of the park, and not until then," he asserted with complete positiveness.

It was in May, 1884, that Connie entered the great American game of baseball with which his name is now synonymous. It was a crude beginning, as a catcher for the Meriden team in the Connecticut League.

And to-day, 50 years later, with Connie looking forward to his 71st birthday next December 23, it can be safely said he hasn't lost one iota of enthusiasm for the game. For Mack can still get steamed up about a game of baseball to an extent that completely belies his years. Through full years and less, the glamor has never been tarnished for him.

"Just as long as I retain the respect and confidence of my players, I'll know I'm perfectly capable of carrying on," laughed Connie, waving aside the perennial retirement rumors.

The 1933 season is over over the dam for Connie.

New Westminster Scores 12 to 0 Win Over Hamilton

New Westminster, B.C. Oct. 14 —(CP)—Calgary Tigers, Eastern Canada titleholders, and New Westminster salmoneaters, British Columbia champions, today were all square in their battle of the Dominion lacrosse championship.

Flashing greater speed in a determined bid for the title, the Royal City squad downed the latest Ambassadors city aggregation 12-10 here last night in the fourth game of the five game series. The victory left each team with two wins to their credit and the fifth and deciding match will be played in Vancouver Monday night.

With Tigers victors in the first two games by 15-5 and 12-11 scores, the Salmoneaters rallied to win the third game last Wednesday 8-7 and last night they again came through with a last minute splurge to overtake the Tigers and end on the long side of the score. Full advantage of the long week-end rest is being taken by both teams before the start of the final bouts.

NO BELIEF GIVEN

Cornwall, Oct. 14— (CP)—Work has opened up to such an extent in Cornwall during the past few weeks that the city officials saw fit to discontinue unemployment relief, it was announced by Mayor Aaron Horowitz. Absolutely no relief either in work or food or fuel will be extended after to-day. City council hopes to save the bulk of its appropriation toward its anticipated $45,000 relief bill.

Response of the Canadians who in a few days have taken up the entire $225,000,000 of the loan offered this week is one which is proof that Canada has not only the inherent wealth, but has also the people who have faith in their country. It is also proof that Canadians believe the bonds are a good purchase if lower interest rates are to prevail in the future as is thought quite probable.

Canada's credit has been good. Previous loans have been taken up but this year's loan has been grabbed up with much greater alacrity than was anticipated.

THE CHURCH AND THE RADIO

Radio church services remain very popular with thousands, not only in the large cities which, strangely enough, are the places which fill their churches, especially the large Ontario centres, but also in the smaller cities and over the lne wide countryside. Even by congregations which are well supplied with ministers who appeal to their congregations there is sometimes felt need of a spice of change but unfortunately it means travel to another city for that unless one possesses a radio set and church services are broadcast.

It is an interesting sidelight on religion that many persons who do not attend church regularly are devoted followers of the air. Then, of course, there are the thousands who cannot attend for illness and pressure of duties in looking after the family welfare attend the radio service and are blest.

Under the heading "The Radio in Church," the Sanibel Review of Woodstock, suggests a number of possibilities in the way of radio broadcast extension. It says:

"The rector of St. Stephen's Church, Toronto, who has a 'mike' on his pulpit during part of the year, mentioned some time ago receiving a letter from a Hindoo. The boy was telling him that Indians of the neighborhood gathered of a Sunday evening to hear the Toronto service broadcast, and even joined in parts of the hymns. There was a religious service conducted by a clergyman hundreds of miles distant. One is impressed by the thought that good receiving sets in the rural churches of scattered settlements in the west and north would provide a partial solution for a pressing problem in areas where one clergyman has a number of preaching-places, miles apart.

"One is well aware that church service is primarily for divine worship, and that preaching is only one of many duties that a people expect of a pastor, on the frontier or elsewhere. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the difficulty of getting about to two, three or four charges to deliver a sermon is represented as a serious problem. In many parts of the West there is said to be a shortage of ministers. Laymen cannot be obtained but because funds are not available to maintain them. Why should isolated congregations not assemble to hear, as if now quite feasibly, one of the sermons broadcast every Sunday, morning and evening, from all large centres? In the absence of a minister a warden or lay reader or other qualified layman could conduct service, upon occasions when otherwise none would be held, and the mere fact that the sermon was transmitted many miles by ether waves, instead of a few yards from the speaker's vocal chords, should not detract seriously from its value. In fact, it would seem an admirable thing for any congregation, assembled in church, to listen to a sermon or address by its Bishop or Moderator, when such is broadcast, rather than wait for one of his necessarily rare visits.

"In short if to be desirable and useful thing to broadcast from church, why not make the practice still more useful by hooking up those congregations which have only a minority share, if any, in a resident pastor? Of course, if the scheduled station failed to come in well, it might be necessary to substitute an Anglican for a Presbyterian, or vice versa, in emergency, but the chance would have to be risked."

The garners with thy mistress' lavish gifts
Rich stores of golden grain and mellow fruit
Of vine and tree. And to our gaze displayed
The world thou dost enfold in festal robes
Of gorgeous hues, in testimony mute,
Unto the goddess' blessing upon those
Who faithful service unto her have paid
The long year through. Lo, now the wood

The more enduring kind which lasts all way."

COLUMBUS DAY was celebrated in the United States Thursday— the 441st. anniversary of the successful outcome of Christopher Columbus' voyage into the unknown. Columbus wasn't looking for America, particularly, in fact had no idea that America, or any other large body of land was between him and his goal, the Indies. However having found America Columbus did his best to give his find due publicity, and make the most out of it for the royal Spanish sponsor. Columbus almost turned back on his mission, without discovering anything for the crews became mutinous as day succeeded day and no sign of land appeared on the horizon. Columbus had to promise that if land was not sighted in a certain time the expedition would be given up. Fortunately land was raised in the time stipulated, or Columbus, Ohio, would probably have been named something else, and the Spanish influence would never have gilded Broadway.

Twenty-six employees with from twenty to fifty years service behind them formed the reception committee for the old customers who were in their seventies and eighties. One of the old customers employed a baby to bring him to the store sixty-eight years ago. Most of the veteran customers had been dealing at the store for more than half a century.

HOW FORMULA OF MILK MUST BE PREPARED

Nothing As Good As Mother's Milk Science Proves

By Louis F. Bisch, M.D., F.A.P., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

When ever possible a mother should nurse her own baby. Nothing is as good as mother's milk and it is a well-known fact that breast-fed infants do not succumb to ordinary childhood diseases as readily as do those artificially fed.

If the mother's milk supply is inadequate, however, and cow's milk must be resorted to, feeding the baby may be a simple matter, and it may not be. Upon the mother it is the wisest and safest thing to have a physician prescribe the feedings.

In giving such directions a doctor is likely to use the expression "gravity cream." In fact, gravity cream is the basis for modifying cow's milk so that it may be made suitable for the digestion of the young a human being as a newborn child.

By gravity cream is meant the cream which rises to the surface of the bottle when fresh cow's milk after it has been standing undisturbed for from six to eight hours.

The doctor will also talk of 10 per cent and 7 per cent milk.

To prepare a 10 per cent milk one takes a twelve-hour-old quart bottle of milk and with a one-ounce dipper removes ten ounces of the top milk. To these ten ounces of gravity cream are added water. Durtose the first day, however, the child should never be given more milk in any form. If it seems thirsty, giving two tablespoonfuls of water instead of milk solution is allowable.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

The woman who wants to regulate her own diet and the diet of her family will find familiarity with the self not only with the kinds of food on the market, plus their value for combination, but also with their caloric content. This means the amount of energy foods give off when oxidized (burned) in the body. For the personal reducing diet, scientific tables, to be found in popular dietary books, should be consulted.

Map in Battered Watch Reveals Chart of Buried Treasure in South Seas

Toronto Man Has Watch Six Years Before Learning Its Secret—Chart Tells Location of $250,000 in Gold Bullion—May Set Out in 40-ft Sloop

Romance and adventure have suddenly thrust themselves on Mr. C. M. Rice of Toronto. Opening an old watch, Mr. Rice was amazed to discover a chart of buried treasure in the South Seas. Above is shown

By Central Press Canadian

TORONTO — Spanish bullion, gold coins and jewels of weight and value of $250,000, is luring M. C. Rice of Toronto to adventure in the South Seas.

In a manner that puts fiction writers of pirate treasure to shame, Mr. Rice has discovered a map and the way within bids of a treasure to be found somewhere in the South Seas.

By jobby, Mr. Rice is a watchmaker, Six years ago a lady brought him a watch to fix. In return, she gave him an old battered watch that Mr. Rice had long admired and which had been handed down to her by her husband's father. The watch was a fine piece, and Mr. Rice was proud of it.

Recently he decided to give it a cleaning. It was while attempting to pry open the back with a knife that the knife slipped and the secret of the map and will was out.

Inside the watch case was a chart. On one side was a map and on the other a last will and testament, signed "J. L. Trinidad, 1868."

The chart and will were written in microscopic lettering on a piece of paper no larger than a silver dollar.

The will reads as follows:

"Paul, my son, I am not long for this world, I fear. I cannot bring you this chart, as I planned, so the only course left is to hide it some place and hope you find it. I am the only one surviving with this secret. The lay off 100 fathoms, then bear west southwest, and 100 fathoms more. The chest is buried eight feet. Good luck, lad, and leave the sea. It's no life for you. Signed: J. L. Trinidad, 1868."

Now Mr. Rice, who is a radio expert, is beginning of search for the mysterious island in a 40-foot sloop. He says he won't just where the island is, by the way.

His wife and two young sons are all set to go. Supporting them, Mr. Rice himself, who served in the merchant marine during the war, can hardly contain himself.

MAIN STREET

Ramblings.....

There comes a day when you don't want to do anything. You find yourself in front of a typewriter. You've exhausted all expressions of feeling. You read the papers, talked to people, answered the phone, finished your routine chores, stared blackly at the ceiling. Haven't written a thing. You don't want to write anything. Couldn't do it if you would. You're static. Just a lump. A mass overcome by the sense of clerkery of progress. A blank. But that clock keeps licking. Other people are rushing around. They're busy. Still ideas refuse to come. Nothing to write about. Nothing in there. You're supposed to fill it. A column in the newspaper room is waiting for your stuff. He'll wait just so long, and then he'll come through the door with thunder on his face and lightning in his eyes. He'll tell you that you're the only man who is wearily waiting for something on which to work. You must have something in a few moments. So you groan and turn out a few words to get you over the starter, and engage the gears and begin to work. You're not good. You turn out your stuff—and what does the linotype man care how good it is or what it is like. And then you wonder, too, if anyone else cares how it is. But somehow you have to done. You pound it out and you finish it. Today's paper wraps up tomorrow's garbage. Yesterday's paper is stale this morning. But you have made the deadline.

Statisticians are not the least of the columnist's helps. For example consider this: There are 7,512 Chinese laundries in the United States as compared with 1,624 in Canada. There are 1,250 fur farms in Canada and only 1,273 in the United States, which is thirteen times more populous. There are 23,345 banks in the United States, and a vastly lesser number even in Canada. Fifty per cent of the Canadian banks got far to make up the difference. The statisticians have much more particular about their appearance than the Canadians. If the number of barber shops in the U.S. is any criterion. There are 82,000 barber shops out of the international line, while in Canada the total is 4,121. Still taps, the statisticians say, are substantial dictates, we find that there are 2,022 millionaires in the United States, a total number of 19,135 millionaires altogether in the country. There are 423 of the latter gentlemen in Canada. Stepping up a little higher in the money scale, the statisticians we find that there are 2,217 multi-millionaires in the land of Uncle Sam, and 387 with fortunes in excess of ten million dollars. Of the total of 2,604 made about in the list 2,497 are of German descent, only 18 are of Canadian origin. Names valued at more than $50,000. The number of millionaires. There are more smokers in proportion in Canada than in America. There being 22 wholesale tobacconists operating under the Act. Last lunch more populous than Canada. There are 853 daily newspapers in the United States, all operating in cities of 30,000 and over. Curious fact unearthed by the busy wielders of the pencils and adding machines in the United States. Packbuilders in the U.S. and only 3,229 owners of yachts. Of gasoline wardors, whose shiners and other allied rades no mention is made.

ARM IS BROKEN IN RUSH TO GET SEAT

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 13.—(CP)—Another casualty resulting indirectly from the theoretical "share the work" scheme of Workers' strike front yesterday, came to light today.

Betty Logan, eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Logan, was attracted by the music during going on the auto-hurling going on in the vicinity of the Strand Candy Company. She scampered across the road in front of a moving car and fell down an embankment, and broke her arm.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 14, 1913.

One of the most successful and enjoyable events ever held in the Tabernacle Church was that which took place last evening in the auditorium when about two hundred friends and admirers gathered to do honor to the Rev. Amos Campbell at 47 Victoria Avenue, who were married just fifty years ago and are celebrating their golden wedding. After a most boniorous repast the pastor of the church, the Rev. W. O. Clarke, introduced the programme of the evening. An address was read to Mr. and Mrs. Campbell by Mr. H. A. Gardner, the Recording Steward of the church, at the conclusion of which Mr. A. E. Walmsley on behalf of many friends presented Mr. and Mrs. Campbell with a well filled purse of gold. Mr. Campbell was pastor of the Tabernacle church at different times some years ago.

Mr. Charles Loyd, one of the city mail carriers is on the sick list, but it is expected that he will be on his route again shortly.

30 YEARS AGO

There is some talk of a football team being formed in the city to try to take the cup from Albert College. A good idea—we should have some outdoor sport these lovely days.

Service will be held in St. Thomas' Church at 10.30 a.m. on Thanksgiving Day. The Rev. C. J. H. Hutton of this city and the Rev. C. D. Dixon of Montreal will officiate. The offering will be for the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. L. B. Cooper, Grand Chief Patriarch of Ontario, will pay an official visit to Picton Encampment this evening. A number of the members of Quinte Encampment will accompany him.

At a special meeting the city council the question of the purchase of the gas plant by the city was considered and action deferred for a few days. The company offers to sell at ten cents on the dollar.

Mr. James Jenkins left today to visit the World's Fair at Chicago.

Mr. Chancery Ashley, the clerk in the division Court office here is away on a holiday which he is spending in Chicago and the World's Fair at Chicago.

Mr. T. C. Lazier is visiting the World's Fair at Chicago.

Mr. C. Gibson left today to see the World's Fair at Chicago.

Mr. John Nightingale, who has been visiting friends in this district for several months past, left yesterday for his home in Vancouver, B.C.

CENTENNIAL EXCURSIONS

Magistrate Mikel States Arrangements Are Completed

Magistrate Mikel reports that arrangements have been made with one of the largest and most reliable steamship lines, a line which carries both radio and orchestra music, and will accommodate over thirteen hundred people to run an excursion to the Belleville Centennial next June 16th, 17th and 18th.

The boat after coming to Belleville will run afternoon excursions on the Bay and also moonlight excursions after the close of the Pageant each night.

The fare for the round trip from Toronto to Belleville will be $2.50. Excursionists may return by railway for a small additional charge

Seven different pageant-producing companies have offered to put on a pageant showing historical scenes in the development of Belleville and the district and national dances by which several hundred young people will participate.

The celebration will also commemorate the 150th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists, also the Diamond Jubilee (60th anniversary) of the Belleville Academy.

Most of the organizations in the city have passed resolutions approving of the Celebration and appointing committees to act.

PRIZES AWARDED AT THE BELLE THEATRE

Beautiful walnut furniture pieces were won by lucky guests at the Belle Theatre last evening.

These were won as follows: Jean Mooreton, Murray Street, end table; W. Carter, Pinnacle St., tilt table; Mrs. Burgoyne, Dundas St., bedroom rocker; Mrs. Miller, Ridley St., wash paper basket; Wrene Fleischer Ave., floor lamp and shade; Mr. A. Bryant, Foster Ave., sewing cabinet; Mrs. C. M. Leslie, combination table and rack; K. Brown, Patterson St., coffee table; Mrs. Kemp, St. Paul Street, individual chair.

GERMAN CHILDREN LEARN WAR TRICKS

Here is a picture that amply verifies the pronouncement from Ernest Thaelmann, Germany, Hitler's right-hand man, that Germany was expecting an attack from the air "momentarily". It shows a group of children ill-trained in the proper use of gas masks. They are seen entering a cellar. All cellars and hiding places are in Berlin must now be listed with the government. This is all probably a part of Germany's propaganda campaign being carried on now at the Disarmament Conference in Geneva to increase the size of her army and air force. She claims she has no protection from air attack.

A Mediterranean Pilgrimage
or
Sights and Scenes About the Great Middle Sea
By F. T. GRAFTON
Letter No: 5 — THE FRENCH RIVIERA

WHO has sought health or gaiety abroad and has not visited or at least heard of the Riviera? That intriguing south eastern corner of France on the northern shore of the Mediterranean with its miles and miles of coast bedecked and hill crowned palatial homes.

Who has not heard of the Lower Cornice drive—that winding avenue of floral smothered beauty? Here it skirts the blue, blue waters of the Greatest Inland Sea, or there it nestles under the towering Alps. Or here and yonder where those majestic rocks dip their feet deep into the foamy waves and bluntly seem to say, "Ye shall not pass this way"? To such a challenge man has upgraded answer and drilled his way through the very rock itself. Now the rushing motor sweeps through the rock hewn tunnel or holds tight unto the chiseled rocky side, as if to avoid the precipice at whose base the waters splash, or beside it by rippling serenity upon its pebbly beach below.

Who has not heard of the Grand Cornishe Drive up and over the Rome conquered Alps where for fifteen miles per hour you may speed and in imagination mingle with the ancient gods who also looked down that thoroughfare of beauty and historic man in his workshop and humble home and in his palaces and palay palaces clustered on arched headland or sandy cove by Neptune. Once having thrilled with the experience of a journey over the super marvel at the verdict, "the most beautiful drive in Europe".

Who has not heard of Cannes, of Nice, of Ville Franche, and Mentone —all scattered along this charming coast of charming France? Most of all who has not heard of the world extolled all the strange tales of Monaco and Monte Carlo?

The story of a "visit in Spain" was the import of our letter number 3 two weeks ago. Today Malaga in Spain on Monday evening, July 10 (1933), may possibly be heading northeastward passing, towards sunset the Balearic Islands and the Corsica on our right. This little group of islands, now Spanish, have had a checquered career from early Phoenician and Grecian days till today they (the islands) are wonderful mediaeval flavored tourist mecca.

LANDING AT ST. JEAN

We were supposed to enter the beautiful and historic harbour of Ville Franche early Tuesday morning. The vessel was to put us by tender tough by rail, electric or motor along the Lower Cornishe route with the whole fascinating Riviera. However, because of some seasonal conditions, the sea was more likely—because of excess coats of docking privilege to a large Italian liner by French authorities, we were switched to the Lilliputian Bay of Saint Jean (pronounced St. John), a quaint fishing village, tiled-roofed, red-roofed, with cottages brought from Nice landed us at the quay. Here at the very shore of hill of the little town, wandered aimlessly, but not hopelessly out to the highway, two kilometres away. Many refreshing cool drinks hardly call them blessings, were heaped upon the Indian Line, and the fulfilment of the S. S. Empress whose passengers we were, for leaving us thus in mid-air. Some of the passengers repeated their now firmly formed refrain, "I'll never travel line for me" and "A British ship for a future trip" and "Never again" but officers and crew, unto French soil, both were foreign. The former neglected to tell us why we were there not. At almost midday, after exposure to the blistering heat of reaction of an English speaking French guide, we found a taxi and landed us out unto the Lower Cornishe Drive.

THE LOWER CORNISHE DRIVE

From here we might go westward along its flower decked, palace lined reaching looking down over pretty tiny rimmed Ville Franche and its numerous other villas and so along to Nice, the unofficial capital and emporium of southern France. Farther west again holds her own glittering candle and a couple of hours still further towards the sunset, Marseilles tucks up her ancient frills above the far spent waters of the River Rhone.

If, however, from St. Jean we turn eastward (we pay for eight cents) alongside paradise like bowers and villas till high bluffed Monaco and the beauteous Monte Carlo burst in view with Monaco port between them; and still on eastward this paradise limited till we stop at or just beyond Mentone. We have to stop, you see, for there are barred portals with buried entrance guards and just beyond is Italy and then the Italian Riviera, then competitor with France for the princely laurels of American dollars and English sterling. Suppose we record experiences and impressions of the French life during the following days in time permits, leaving Italy for another date.

NICE

Nice (pronounced Neese), a city of almost 100,000 is the pleasure resort, par excellence, not only of the Riviera but of the Mediterranean. It has an attractive location, astride the River Paillon, and with a surrounding amphitheatre of hills, charmingly diversified with villas, vineyards, flower gardens and palace chateaus. These last are reserved for invalids and pleasure seekers. In winter and springtime distinguished visitors come. There is then a colony of British and American residents. Clubs, theatre parties, receptions and horse racing are all carried on under distinguished auspices. In the middle of the valley in which Nice is situated there is a picturesque precipitous rock with the ruins of a mediaeval castle on its summit, destroyed in the centuries ago by General Berwick in the army of Louis XIV.

Nice has some handsome squares adorned with palms where daily concerts are held. The English promenade along the beautiful seashore is lined with handsome villas. Beckett in Nice spares no pains to court and entertain famous men and ladies, princes and princesses. It was in a handsome seaside villa a couple of miles away towards Ville Franche that Queen Victoria came in her later, years to spend a few golden hours before she left for England's fogs and rains of winter time.

The city also honors her own great men. There is a statue in honour of Marshal Massena, also, to Garibaldi, her native born patriot of the nineteenth century. Both were born here. The latter's house with its fresco is a handsome place with reading and concert rooms and an attractive winter garden. The flower market, open in the mornings, is one panorama of gorgeous multicoloured flora and no less rich in perfumery, especially of flowers that boasts one of the finest observatories in Europe.

But Nice is also financially minded. Gambling is carried on at her fete (she plans to market in the vale). Her shops and galleries have also thought and study given unto the and the pocketbook our ladies decided should have open before her the assortment and values did not compare favorably with those of Paris a couple of years before. Besides there were other lands to conquer.

Then two facts became evident that would throw a shock. There was an urgent desire to plan for a trip over the mountains to Italy and Cornishe Drive. It simply could not be considered. The other was a desire to satisfy a strong inner demand for essential refreshments, and reinforcements.

Just then we met some of our Roma party at a side square where the chief corner building was the C.P.R. Yes, the Canadian Pacific Railroad and Steamship offices. Pretty soon the Canadian flag would not unmixed with pride at Canada's place in the Mediterranean sun.

READY FOR THE GRAND CORNISHE

Our steamship friends informed us that a travel auto bus agency was in an annex beside the office and notice of the C.P.R. building and they were selling Grand Cornishe trips for 60 francs at 18 francs.

Investigation showed the 18 franc busses had been all taken by the Cooks Tours and our ship, for passengers whose trip with Cooks cost about $5.00. But we could get 20 francs here on the other busses going out in half an hour. We got four tickets—the last four available in this sight-seeing bus. For about twenty minutes we were busy with letter accommodation than those in Cooks party could at less cost. However that was no surprise. We had already got used to that, and always took side trips "on our own" any way. That being settled, and half an hour to go, how about lunch? Right next door to the C.P.R. and travel offices was a large, well patronized, open, out door, under awning, refreshment stand. Its little round tables and cute rattan chairs flowed almost over the whole sidewalk. But this was France and France's way. Hot teas and coffees and sandwiches were ordered—and such—sandwiches—not like ours. Large, long flaffy home loaves rolls filled with most delectable add ups. Delightful fresh cooked meats. Weren't they good. My wife—and a good cook she is—said, never were any found their equal. They tasted like more but there was really neither room nor room for more. The delighters of the party were also joyously filled. The travel thirst man had told us he would not let us miss our trip. He spoke good English. He kept his word. He called us "Our seats were 14, 15, 16 and 17, the last in the great open top bus and just under the curtain shelter at the rear we took our places. Before us the Alps, the Grand Cornishe Drive over them, over the road that Caesar's legions built. Then on to Mentone and on the Italian frontier with a couple of hours there for food and drink and sight seeing, then by way of Monte Carlo and Monaco. What a day! It was to well over till the late resumes one week hence.

So get the chores "done up" and the family ready and the rocking rocker handy to draw up beside the fireplace for the evenings are getting chilly now, and last July is kinda hitchin on a ways", as Seth Parker might say.

O. S. D. PUPILS IN DEMONSTRATION WORK AT ROSLIN

ROSLIN—The United Church held their anniversary services on Sunday. Large congregations were present at both services. Rev. J. D. Joblin of Bawdon was the special minister for the day. At the evening service the choir of the Thomasburg church assisted.

On Monday evening an anniversary supper was held at which a large number were present. A delicious supper was served by the ladies of the congregation. After the supper an interesting program was given. Some features were a number of selections by pupils from the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville, under the direction of Miss and Rev. D. C. CAT HAS 19 LIVES

Caledonia, Ont., Oct. 13—(CP)—According to one man's estimate a Caledonia cat has 19 lives today instead of only nine. Pete, a large police dog, noticed the little Tiger Kitten on the middle of a street where traffic was heavy. So he picked it up gently by the pun, and pointed his safely on the sidewalk and strode away.

Travel Letters Appreciated

Mr. F. T. Grafton, of the Belleville Collegiate and Technical School staff, under whose name a series of letters on his summer's travels in the Mediterranean and the Orient has been appearing and will continue to appear in the Ontario Intelligencer on Saturdays, has received from the Italian Line Limited, the owners of the Roma on which he travelled, an appreciative communication in reference to the articles which have already appeared. The letter reads in part:

"The copies of newspaper, containing your very excellent articles on the "Roma" cruise, were received and read both by Mr. Gill and myself with extreme interest.

"We forwarded them to our main Canadian office and are today in receipt of a letter from Mr. T. Lecour, president of Italian Lines, Limited, saying that we secure two additional copies of each, and to be certain of securing other copies as they come out. Our New York office wishes two copies of each, too.

"The articles are splendid, very vivid and realistic and we appreciate your courtesy in sending us copies."

BRITISH ARTIST ORDERED TO OMIT CHRIST FROM MURAL

In the second artistic ruction involving murals for New York's Rockefeller Centre, below, Frank Brangwyn, left, noted British artist, has been requested to omit the figure of Jesus Christ from his representation of the sermon on the mount, top. The order to Brangwyn follows loudly the fiasco in the Diego Rivera, right, Mexican artist, was dismissed because his placing the figure of Lenin in one of his murals. It was said that it would have been too difficult to represent Christ adequately, and it would offend the Russians to place Christ's figure in a business building.

Aluminum for Silver Mirrors

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associating Press Staff Writer

Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 13—(AP)—Scientific mirrors are going off the silver standard.

Aluminum is taking the place of the precious metal. The world's newest and largest eye—the 200-inch telescope that will expand man's vision into distant universes four to six times that of the present limit of the 100-inch telescope—will have an aluminum coating for its glass eye.

Prof. John D. Strong, research fellow in astrophysics at the California Institute of Technology here where the new telescope's vast eye will be finished, is working on the process.

It not only permits the instrument to see more, but is more durable, and less costly, he says.

33 ARRESTED IN BELFAST

Republicans Captured By Police in Armored Cars

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Ulster authorities, determined to curb gun activities of the Irish Republican Army in Ulster made a quick search of many homes in Belfast early this morning and arrested 33 men.

Many of the prisoners were taken from beds.

With these arrests, the total number of Republican Army suspects now in the custody of the authorities, was raised to 50.

A large force of armed police and detectives in armoured cars and trucks carried out the roundup in complete secrecy.

Weddings

SMITH—DONALD
CAMPBELL—PAYNE

Bloomfield.—An interesting double wedding was held at the home of Mr. R. DeCou, of Bloomfield, when his daughter, Mrs. Alberta Donald, was united in marriage to Dr. John G. Smith of Wellington, and Miss Lillian E. Payne, daughter of Mrs. Payne and the late Mr. J. A. Payne of Hillcrest, Woodlands, became the bride of Mr. William K. Campbell of Bloomfield. The double ceremony was performed by Rev. J. T. E. Shepherd, pastor of the Bloomfield-United Church. Immediately following the weddings, the two couples left on a motor trip to Ottawa, Montreal and eastern points.

JONES—BARR

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Barr, at Chapman, on Saturday evening, October 7th, when their daughter, Ida Hazel, was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Jones son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones. Rev. H. S. Herrington of Thomasburg performed the ceremony.

The bride looking pretty in a dark brown crepe dress with shoes to match, Mrs. Harold Foster, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and was also dressed in brown. Mr. Harold Foster supported the groom.

Miss Lucille Herrington of Thomasburg, played the Wedding March, while during the signing of the register Mrs. Herrington sang, "I Love You Truly."

A wedding supper was then served after which the happy couple left for a short honeymoon to eastern points.

KAY FRANCIS, Hollywood's most smartly attired star is shown in cinemaland's new fall creations. Her current Warner Bros. success, "Mary Stevens, M.D.," will begin an engagement at the Ontario Theatre soon.

Second from right: Kay Francis in a white satin evening gown trimmed with red. Shoulder straps are braided. Severely worn are bracelets, rubies set in platinum.

Below: Beige broadcloth and astrikan combine to form this smart little dress fastened with large broadcloth buckles

At left: Kay Francis wears a graceful negligee of beige crepe, worn in a matching halfgown and is trimmed with cuffs of sable. Next to it: A Grecian evening gown of ivory brocaded velvet and corded girdle.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

At least one black velvet hat should be in every well-organized millinery closet. A smart model is a square-crowned model with a tiny brim. At the side is a graceful sweep of glycerined black peacock feathers that reaches, almost to the shoulder.

Leather lasts and so is kidskin for coat trimming. A smart sports coat is of deep beige woolen with a brown crossbar plaid design. It has wide lapels and a belt at the high waistline in the new spongy Mandrucca leather. There is a leather hat, too—a beret made in three sections.

Leisure is a luxury and becomes even more luxurious with a lovely negligee. A delightful hostess gown is done in Chinese red and edged with white satin. The silhouette is princess, the sleeves are long and wide, and the skirt has a short but full train.

A good line for coats is the wrap-grouped type. It is so popular just now. A new suit has a long coat built on wrap-around lines and held at the side by a large silver ornament. The material is black satin with small white dots. The collar and the sleeves are full from elbow to wrist.

We are in tiers, at the tiered skirt becomes more and more frequent in evening clothes. A new frock of black sheer crepe has a skirt made entirely of tiers of black moiré, except for a panel in front. Monkey fur also marks the very deep decolletage and forms the shoulder straps. A pair of brilliants adorns the base of the bodice ornament.

CANNIFTON UNITED CHURCH

The October meeting and dinner of the Women's Association, Canniffton, was held in the Sunday School rooms on Wednesday, October 11th. A very nice dinner had been arranged for and supervised by Mrs. Bert Gilbert and Mrs. W. Clapp, and a splendid crowd sat down at 12 o'clock and did full justice to the good things provided for on the tables. After dinner and a little social chat, the President, Mrs. W. Cole called the ladies together and a short programme was given.

Opening with the Lord's prayer in unison, then the hymn "There is Work to do for Jesus" was sung. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C. Mills, followed by prayer by Mrs. Black, then the Secretary, Mrs. Mills, read the minutes of last meeting. Mrs. R. Gilbert then gave a very encouraging report of the financial standing of the association; a few items of business was then discussed. Mrs. Harold Bird gave a very helpful devotional reading, after which Mrs. Wessels and Mrs. Farnham sang a duet which all enjoyed. Mrs. Merrick gave a reading entitled "Your Nerves and Mine," and Mrs. C. Mills gave a good reading "How We Beat the Depression." The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Merrick.

Beauty . . . . By Helen Jameson

SWEET VOICE IS BEAUTY'S FORTUNE

Is it that the beskirted suit is so steamed up over complications, confures, dry goods and other elements of physical publicitude they overlook and undervalue the charm and enchantments of a gentle voice? Maybe so. A lovely voice is a rare quality of beauty.

Let us consider the women who put a strain on human ears and the auditory systems built for them. There are the cacklers, punctuating goose talk with giggles. There are the disorders, twanging on the same low deep-throated note for how long talking to tell. There are the loud speakers who beat on your eardrums without mercy. Whole families there are that shriek and yell at each other though otherwise they may have pleasing manners.

Upbraid a woman for shrilling her voice and she'll hand you the old alibi she'll insist that her voice has strong carrying qualities. Nothing of the sort. She pitches her voice too high unless it is with too much force. By careful regard for restraint and modulation she can control it. Easy enough to restrict the volume of sound and to cultivate tones that are free of brittleness.

A throaty voice is caused by laziness of throat muscles, which is largely a habit and which can be overcome. Vocal lessons will improve it. A deep, masculine voice is an inheritance; it can be softened and modified.

Some of our radio orators of the feminine cult bring to our attention the threesomeness of sudden emphasis. To talk continually in that manner, dropping one vowel after another, is a strain on the vocal chords, and will in time damage the delicacy and sweetness of tone. The practice brings vocal cords together with spasmodic force and weakens them.

One of the worst offenders is the mother who shrieks at her children. Little does she realize the effect that has on the nervous systems of her spring-off. Under the lash of screeching a voice delicate nerved fairly trembles. There is too that business of being a bad example. The child, always an imitator, develops the same kind of a voice, joins the shrillers and shouters.

Whiners are my pet peeve. They are not of this age, when courageous women are sneering at what kind of metal they are made.

Mumblers are the ones I appreciate especially when talking over the telephone. Rapid talkers are almost as bad. Listeners must be keyed up to catch their drift.

The beautiful voice carries lights and shares of expression. It is never a monotone, nor does it run up and down the scale. It has regard and respect for perfect articulation. It gives joy to the human ear and it is a beauty quality of the first water.

ECZEMA

Because it relieves the itching almost as soon as applied and gradually heals the skin Dr. Chase's Ointment is a most satisfactory treatment for eczema and other irritations of the skin. This is proven by fifty years of success.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

Dr. Austin Walters Returns to Belleville

Dr. Austin Walters is back in the city and is being welcomed by old-time friends. It is expected he will shortly start the practice of medicine and surgery here.

A well-known and popular Belleville native, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Walters, 254 Dundas street, Dr. Walters is a graduate of Queen Mary Veterans' and Belleville Collegiate Institute. In 1930, he graduated with degrees of M.D.-C.M. He spent two years in Montreal General Hospital and in work consisting mainly of paediatrics and general surgery and anaesthesia. The past year he has spent in postgraduate work in Rochester, Minnesota, medicine and paediatrics, where he held appointment on the teaching faculty of the Medical School.

Dr. Walters while a student at Belleville and Kingston played a prominent part in the life of these educational institutions.

The Beauty Box

(BY HELEN FOLLETT)

Some smarty gals have a gift for cosmetic technique. The skilful touch of rouge, delicate closing of the eyelids, the carefully laid on powder film put the beauty of the Dresden doll, where she shame. Other lassies make a mess of the whole business. Their efforts and fast don't consult the magnifying mirror and any old beauty prop that happens to be at hand.

Better a face that has been treated to soap and water and powdered than the one that is loaded with make-up a cosmetician of that doesn't belong to this particular period. Check coloring is thought about shelved, lip rouge has taken on a natural tone, eye shadows are subdued, powders are still completely crazy, but what of it? The public decrees such things as fashion and couldn't find a stopping place. It's a joke.

Some hair falls all the time, so a few threads in the hair brush are no cause for worry. A hair will live for two years, maybe for six, then will fluff off to give way to a new one.

One reason why brushing is helpful to the growth of hair is that it cast out old-timers that have served their term of usefulness and are ready for retirement.

Do you know that a bit of vanishing cream rubbed into the hands will make them look beautifully white and velvety? Try it some time.

Liquid powder can be used on hands and arms both when the evening gown is worn. A hair will live for two years, maybe for six, then will fluff off to give way to a new one.

Foundation cosmetics to be used before powdering come in liquid form and they are getting more popular every day.

Nobody knows to a certainty what causes superfluous hair to appear upon a woman's face, but the best guess is that it is produced by endocrines gland that is not running true to form.

There are various means of removing these growths. The electric needle is one of them. Inserted in the pore beside the hair, it burns and destroys the papilla, but it must be handled by an expert.

Correct Manners

(By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)
(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TELEPHONE ETIQUETTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct way to answer the telephone? Should it be "Yes" or "Yes, Blank" residence", or "Hello"?

Reader

"Hello" is the accepted form of answering the telephone, and therefore it is, in the majority of cases, best to use this standard form of answer. To me, "Yes" as an answer to a telephone call is ridiculous, and I never yet have heard anyone use it with a gracious expression. There is always a question mark after the word ("Yes"), and that question mark has a way of getting into the tone of the one answering; it gets to be a forbidden word, at once creating a barrier to the one calling. This may be purely a personal reaction, however.

On the other hand in spite of the fact that "Hello" isn't supposed to be an especially charming word one can get into it a world of friendliness in the way one says it.

"This is Mrs. Worthy's residence" is quite all right for a boiler to say when he answers the telephone, but it's a bit too formal for ordinary circumstances. "Brooks and Company" is a good short-cut for the telephone operator of a business office.

THE "PARTY CALL"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know if it is not good form, to call on a hostess soon after one has been her luncheon guest, and entertained during the afternoon?

Ned.

This call on your hostess after a party like that often, it is a recklessly form, and a very gracious way to show that you appreciate the "party call" isn't given the charming and formal attention it used to have but it is still a delightful thing, to do.

THOUGHTFULNESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I take this opportunity to express to you my sincere appreciation of the informative value of your column, feeling, as I do, that I derive much benefit therefrom and to tell you that I follow it faithfully each day.

When I had a young lady to go out with me, is it proper for me to send another corsage, when the young lady has never met, to go along without first consulting her as to her wishes in the matter?

Ned.

Welcome to the column, dear, sir, and thank you, most heartily for your good and generous word of appreciation.

The gracious thing to do, and the thing that the young lady would faultlessly expect you to do, is to ask her first, telephone her, if your plan to invite another couple will agreeable to her. Of course it will be, but it is mannerly of you to ask her just the same. And she will very much admire this thoughtfulness on your part, for it's all love this kind of courtly attention, as you know, women and men alike.

THANKS FOR NOTES OF SYMPATHY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you let me know the correct thing to do in case of death in the family? My self and family recently and we sent acknowledgment cards to all who sent flowers, notes of sympathy and spiritual bouquets. Now my mother wants to know if it is correct to also send cards to those who attended the funeral but did not send flowers and those who sent sympathy cards?

R.

Notes of thanks would also be sent to those relatives and, friend: who sent cards of sympathy. But it is not necessary to send expressions of thanks to those who attend the funeral, but did not send flowers, and those who sent sympathy cards?

JINX OF 13th

Winnipeg, Oct. 14 (CP)— Seven sparrows pecked at a pebble of oat grains which fell from the feed bag of a tired milkman's horse here early today. At each peck through the shell, one flew away while the seventh lay in the cart's bottom. Frightened by the noise of wings, the horse sprang forward and a wheel passed over the cat's body.

"Some folks don't take any stock in Friday the 13th stuff," muttered the milkman as he watched the performance.

LIBRARY CORNER

"Early Life in Upper Canada", by Edwin C. Guillet might well be named "Social Life in Early Ontario". He has delved deeply into the early documents of the province collected a vast store of information on pioneer industries, pioneer sports, pioneer travel and transportation, food and cooking. Perhaps the most fascinating of his many interesting headings is that dealing with the pioneer sports, a topic that has been almost ignored in books on early Canadian life. Our ancestors, because of the rigours of the time were made to appear overworked and overstrict whereas their love of games and sports have flooded us with present interest in horse-racing, sailing, fishing, lacrosse, cricket, football, curling. W. Stewart Wallace in reviewing the volume in the Canadian Historical Review calls Mr. Guillet's chapter on curling, "a masterpiece on historical research". The material of the volume has been gleaned mostly from the Public Archives at Ottawa and Toronto and many quotations from the original documents have been included to give zest to the text. A feature of the volume is the illustrations which number over three hundred, a great many of which have never before been reproduced. The book will be a valuable addition to the library collection of Canadiana.

A companion volume to Diamond Jennes' book, "The Indians of Canada", which was added recently to the library shelves, is "The Indian Tribes of Canada", written by his wife, Eileen Jennes. This concise little book touches on all types of Indian tribes in Canada, those of the Eastern Woodlands the Plains, the Plateau, the Pacific Coast, of the Mackenzie and Yukon districts and those of the north, the Eskimos. The concluding chapter deals with the effect of the Indians on our civilization. There are many photographs and maps included to enliven the book.

A far cry from the days of the pioneers and Indians is the third volume in the list of new books this week. "Mystery Men of Wall Street" by Earl Sparling describes the features of the financial centre of America who deal in such inconceivable sums of money as billions. The book consists of a series of sketches of twelve financial geniuses—or rather of eleven and the seven Fisher brothers of Detroit. Other subjects are William C. Durant, Jesse L. Livermore, Arthur W. Cutten, a native of Guelph, Ont., Frank E. Ellis, Benjamin Block, Michael J. Meehan, Joseph E. Higgins, the Fisher brothers, Louis W. Zimmerman, John J. Raskob, George Breen, and Harry Content. The author classifies his book in the story of "the greatest bull market in history" which they dominated and "the worst collapse in stock values of all time" which they survived.

EXTORTION RACKET COMES TO CANADA

Extortion case, similar to current plots in the United States have made their way into Canada. At left is shown Frank Albert Gilbert, convicted extortionist, who demanded $5,000 under threats of death from Enoch Lowesohn of Edmonton, Alberta, and carried on negotiations for the payment through the Edmonton newspapers, giving Child Welfare activities. Below, Sutherland the first clue which led to the capture and conviction. Price at left in block letter type, Gilbert sent a threat letter to Lowesoh, reading: "We want $5,000 or else and your property won't be worth a nickel. If you come across with the cash in newspapers — farm for sale, 152 acres, 100 tree. This is no joke. Do not notify police. We mean business. Prepare for 300-mile trip next week." Lowesoh inserted the ad. (RIGHT) as instructed. Gilbert's reply, arranging for the pick-up. As seen your ad. Take train to Red Deer, midnight tonight. Have money'all small bills, well wrapped. As soon as you can get to rear platform at Red Deer look back for two lights close together on tracks and throw money. Again, this is no joke." Gilbert was caught before the money was paid. Below from Washington, D.C., disclosed that he is a public enemy in St. Louis, Mo., in which city he left his car when away in a gun fight with police. Gilbert is well in the Edmonton garage owner, while Sutherland is second in command of the Edmonton police department. Red Deer is a city half way between Edmonton and Calgary, 100 miles from each place.

OPEN REVOLT AT BANKOK

Heavy Fighting Reported Between Gov't and Rebel Troops

Bankok, Siam, Oct. 14 (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported in progress today between government and rebel troops on the outskirts of Bankok.

Government artillery late yesterday opened fire into the rebels used through the night and was still in progress this morning.

The rebels, who began their movement by seizing a Royal Aeronautical Club aerodrome reported retreating after sustaining heavy casualties.

Two aeroplanes circling the city were shot down by the rebels, one of them crashed in front of the Royal Palace. The city itself was relatively quiet as the government expressed confidence it would be able to subdue the rebellion.

MACHADO NOW IN THE U. S.

Montreal, Oct. 14 (CP)—Gerardo Machado, deposed Cuban President, is in the United States, according to information coming today from the hotel where he had been living the past six weeks and from which he disappeared mysteriously yesterday.

Hotel officials said today Machado had crossed the border in a motor car at Rouse's Point, N.Y., yesterday and were met by members of his family secretly at some point to which they would motor from Montreal. Added to the report was the statement the former Cuban President had left a letter from a high U.S. official to Canadian Customs officials and immigration officers at the border with a minimum of trouble.

Librarian Says Education Suffers at Hands of 'Time-Servers'

SCHOOL LIBRARIES

"Far from being a frill," school libraries are among the most hopeful signs in educational method today" was the laconic and decisive answer given to the question, "Is the School Library a Frill?" when Arthur Sifield, Regional Director for Canada on the American Library Association's School Libraries Committee addressed members of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec at the sixty-ninth annual convention, held this week in the High School of Montreal.

That the alarming increase in juvenile delinquency was directly attributable to a loss of parental and clerical authority and to the baneful influence of non-moral movies and vicious periodicals was another of the convictions he expressed.

Assuring his colleagues that he was not an alarmist, "No one can accuse me of being pessimistic," he says", he asserted, "One need no longer be a seer to perceive that many things are amiss. A man with a cork eye could see that something is wrong."

Parental Authority Waning.

"Every year," the speaker went on, "school children are becoming increasingly difficult to manage. I have met in the last decade rafts of pupils over whom fathers and mothers acknowledge their inability to exercise the slightest control. They are discourteous to their parents and insolent to their teachers. They are not amenable to the most sympathetic guidance. Not a few of them regard the teacher, it appears, as their hired servant, on whose head they may pour, with impunity, calumny and ridicule. Instances have come under my observation in which parents, unwittingly it may be, abet their offspring in their contempt for the authority in the classroom. While teachers are hired and paid, in part, by the community in which they teach, it is time that they made clear to the public that they have received their commission to teach at the hands of the Ministry of Education to whom they are responsible for the proper discharge of their duties."

Church's Testimony Nullified.

"Not only is the home rapidly unloading its responsibilities upon the school," the Oshawa High School librarian declared, "but the twentieth century spirit is a feather-weight as far as influencing the conduct of youth is concerned. With its acceptance of the tenets of Modernism on the part of many, it is am not referring' and its consequent repudiation of Scriptural authority in matters of doctrine and discipline as once potent division of Christianity has cut itself off from the only infallibility it ever cared to recognize. Having nothing adequate to replace its original character, it has nullified its testimony and is, for the most part, a spent force. It has been obliged to substitute for a code of belief and practice the merits of which none dare gainsay, the conclusions of a much-visualized and very inexact science of psychology. It is hardly necessary therefore to speculate to the philosophers and return to those verities, the faith, emphasizing such old-fashioned virtues as reverence, obedience, humility, chastity, diligence, obedience and the Fear of the Lord.

Lure Exercised by Movies.

Investigations which the speaker had made among the fifty-four high school pupils of his own town bore out his contention that the greater number of boys and girls in urban communities read little but trash, and that their reading being trivial and, not infrequently, pernicious magazines, the remainder being shared over printed matter and movies is not high enough. Book stands and picture-shows need a thorough housecleaning, he said, if the countless impressionable minds to which pictorial representations of a sensational without standards, is a national calamity".

The Play of Ideas.

Mr. Sifield quoted Sir John Adams on the "extraordinary power of riding the mind of bad and false ideas." "When we associate bad or false ideas, it is possible to diminish their sensitivity." The answer to the evil is depressing: No. All that we can do is to prevent their association with that lend in the direction of evil. That is the school library's chief task — to fill up largely that shall diffuse ideas that qualify as a position of advantage in resisting temptation. A school without a library must, in an age when property, denominated an educational institution."

Need of Educational Reform.

"Our whole educational system is an effort at the mechanization of the regoted to be. Education is suffering from standardization and centralization. There is little room for individuality and initiative. Principals in every grade of school should be encouraged to develop their own courses of study, adapted to the needs of their students. Uniform text-books are stultifying the students and made-to-order curricula rob the instructor of that liberary which is the prerogative of anyone qualified to teach. As long as muddle-brained time-servers are given carte blanche and permitted to go about parroting their predecessors, educational reform will be delayed and the intelligence of both the librarian's concluding words.

'BUT DON'T YOU SEE?'

J. T. 'DOCKENDORFF'

Disclosure that records sought by the U.S. Senate committee, investigating ocean mail cosnkects, have disappeared has been made at a hearing conducted by the committee, which is in session again, in Washington. The revelation was made during the testimony of J. R. Dockendorff, president of the Black Diamond Line . Dockendorff is shown as he appeared before the committee.

IS FOUND ON CHURCH STEPS

Sudbury Youth, Clasping Crucifix, May Have Sleeping Sickness

Sudbury, Oct. 14 (CP) — Found lying unconscious on the steps of the Roman Catholic Church at Pickerel, a small crucifix grasped tightly in his right hand, an unidentified French-Canadian youth about 22 years old is being treated for sleeping sickness in St. Joseph's Hospital, Sudbury, Seeking to confirm, the diagnosis of sleeping sickness, samples of the youth's spinal fluid have been sent to Toronto for analysis.

He was found by Rev. Father Proulx, his clothing was soiled and he wore no shoes. Hunters reported that they had seen him running along the government road, in his bare feet, and with a cross on his shoulder. There was nothing in his clothing to identify him, and no one in Pickerel recalled ever seeing him before. He is about five feet eight inches tall, weighs 150 pounds and has brown hair.

STAGE SHOWS BEGIN NEXT WEEK AT THE CAPITOL

Stage shows are coming back to Belleville!

Remember the old days when the glamour of the stage thrilled you through and through—when, the unfurling of music from the orchestra pit, the performer, suspended in space, brought forth a credulous cheer from the audience—when the magician produced rabbits out of the air and you all wondered how his tricks were done. Do you remember when . . .

Them was the days! Line-ups for seats, et al.

Those days are coming back and they are coming in a big way, it's said accordin to Manager Chris. Holmes of the Capitol Theatre. Two performances thus commencing Thursday next, October 19th. the Capitol Theatre Super Entertainment Season commences. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week a stage presentation will be included in the regular performance. The stage presentation will be entirely changing each week, and to avoid any disappointment, it must be understood, that the performers appear not in a movie company. The pigs are entirely different each week. There will be a smart orchestra installed in the Capitol theatre which will be featured in the presentation.

Outstanding pictures will comprise the screen entertainment. For example, next Thursday the screen version of "42nd St." the thrilling British drama of transatlantic flights of the future and liberty will be shown at the Capitol theatre of 4 stars!

There will be no increase in prices.

New Policy

The Capitol Theatre Super Entertainment Season will be inaugurated by the new policy of complete change of programs each Monday and Thursday.

Monday and Tuesday will be Dirty nerware Gift for ladies as bithey.

Next Monday, Kay Francis, in her latest success, "Mary Stevens, M.D." commence a three-day engagement at the Capitol Theatre.

BOMB CAUSE OF DISASTER?

Mark On Plane Wreck Indicative Time Bomb Used

Chicago, Oct. 14—(AP)—Stains which investigators believe might have been caused by a time bomb have been found on the wreckage of an air transport that crashed Tuesday night, killing seven persons near Chepterton, Ind.

Investors for the Department of Commerce at the scene today of the wreckage to a Chicago laboratory for examination. The fragments, including small pieces of the metal fuselage and the side of a bottle, bore stains which investigators believed were caused by gun powder or nitroglycerine.

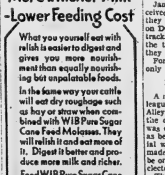
A Federal official said holes torn in the fuselage and wreckage in the baggage compartment of the huge air liner also indicated a terrific explosion had sent the plane crashing to earth as it sped from Cleveland to Chicago with a cargo of passengers and air mail.

RIDE HORSES THRU CROWDS

N. R. A. Headquarters In New York Scene of Disorders

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Mounted police rode their horses through crowds of rioters today at N.R.A. headquarters as the fascist Fennsylvanis in midtown New York. Police said radicals numbering 3500 were responsible for the disorders.

More than 50 arrests were made. Groups of demonstrators bearing banners and placards were pushed back to sidewalks and police attempted to clear the streets of the neighborhood. More than 2,000 strikers are in the vicinity of the hotel.



N.R.A. officials charges the demonstration was inspired by a Communistic faction which refused to be taken into right wing unions following N.R.A. mediation in a threatened strike of 25,000 workers of neighborhood shops.

Under the terms of the mediation right wing unions were to be recognized and the unions in the industry were to be abolished. Banners carried by the demonstrators were printed in Russian setting their own labor organization.

BRICK'S BLOW NOT SERIOUS

Mr. R. M. Smith Able to Be Out Shortly After Accident

Discharged from the local hospital shortly after the accident he admitted late yesterday afternoon, Mr. R. M. Smith, 178 Victoria Avenue, who was struck by a falling brick from the chimney of his home at that address, was able to return to his home, bandaged but not seriously injured. An X-ray taken at the hospital immediately upon his admission to the ambulance, disclosed no serious injury.

SUCCUMBS TO HEART ATTACK WHILE EATING NOON DAY MEAL

Albert Arthur Tummon, Victim, Well Known in Trenton

Trenton, Oct. 14 (Special)—A well known figure about the streets of this town, and one of its esteemed citizens, Albert Arthur Tummon, was seized with a heart attack while eating his noon day meal, yesterday, in the Star Cafe, and expired immediately. Mrs. Tummon was away visiting and Mr. Tummon went to the cafe for lunch, he passed away in one-half minute after the fatal seizure and before summoned medical assistance could arrive.

The deceased was the son of the late Thomas Tummon and Mary Ann (Stout) Tummon. He was born at Trenton, 69 years ago and for some time resided in Kemptville; he came to Trenton fourteen years ago to establish his home here. For that period of time he was an employee of the Hydro service (now the Trenton Public Utilities Commission) the past nine years. Tummon was a member of Grace United Church and had many friends in the community. He is sympathy of a wide circle of friends goes to the bereaved widow and members of the family.

Mr. Tummon served overseas with the 156th. Battalion of Eastern Ontario and was a member of Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Surviving immediately are the widow, previous to marriage Miss Gertrude Pearl, and two sons, Parl of this town, and Ivan in Washington, D.C.; the mother residing with her daughter at Partridge; and a brother, Mrs. William Sinn of Wallbridge.

Funeral arrangements have not, as yet, been completed.

Boys Qualify Injured

James Kerr and Phillip O'Neil received slight injuries yesterday when they were thrown to the pavement on Dundas Street near the C. N. R. tracks when the frame of the bicycle on the two boys were riding struck as they came down the hill.

Fortunately the boys receiving only minor cuts and bruises.

E. H. Behan Heads Bowlers

A meeting of the five pin bowling league was held in Tripps Bowling Alley for the election of officers for the coming season of 1933-34. It was decided to retain the two leagues as before, the Major and Commercial with eight teams in each being made today. Team captains will be on the executive with the officers elected.

The monnisy tournament that caused much keen competition last season will again be operating with twenty-four bowlers at the start of the month bowling for the twenty prizes. The officers elected were:

President, E. H. Behan; vice-president, Percy Beslet; treasurer, Alf. Winder; secretary, Ben. McGregor.

Prospects look bright for a successful season this year which may about the middle of next week.

Increase in Readers at Library

Increased interest in reading has been shown by the public of Trenton during the past year and the facilities of the Trenton Public Library have been taxed to the utmost.

At the present time there are 2800 people on the roll, approximately, which is an increase of about 100 over last year. Mrs. Donald T. Fraser, librarian—reported this week that there has been a steady increase in reading in the past eighteen months. Between fifteen and twenty new readers have been added to the lists each month. There is an average volume of 6,000 books and there is still room for more to fill the demands.

Since the depression, when a large number of people have been unable to buy their own magazines and newspapers, the library has been a mecca for readers. Nearly every night the reading room downstairs is filled with people reading the different periodicals, newspapers and magazines.

CROWD CHEERS THE VERDICT

Attractive Lunenburg Freed on Murder Charge

Bridgewater, N.S. Oct. 14—(CP)—Mrs. Lillian Mackinnon went free amid the cheers of a crowded courtroom at Lunenburg Court, jury acquitted the attractive Lunenburg widow of murdering her war veteran husband.

Scenes unparalleled in Bridgewater's history were witnessed as the 36-year-old woman's four-day trial culminated in a verdict absolving her of Harry D. Mackinnon's death in May. As the jury reported their decision, a shout arose and a half, applause rang through the rooms, and expressions burst into cheers.

Out of the courtroom poured a spectator who ran outside, mounted a bicycle and pedalled furiously down the main street shouting "Mrs. Macintosh is free". Eagerly waiting groups took up the cry, and dispersed to spread the news. Not in years has there been such excitement in Bridgewater.

Through the excitement the woman accused of clubbing her husband to death May 30 remained as calm, outwardly, as the most disinterested onlooker at the trial. On the stand Friday morning as she held the jury spellbound with the story of Macintosh's threatened suicide, and the fatal struggle which ended in her shooting her husband.

Mr. Justice R. H. Graham addressed the jury, she betrayed no emotion—or almost none.

Only for a moment did her iron composure break. Mr. Graham's sarcasm in the black-garbed woman's eyes as he referred to the jurymen from the jur, box after his impassioned plea for the accused. Throughout he had reviewed Mrs. Macintosh's story of "another woman" of a "shattered home," and of the final quarrel between the couple in the early morning of May 30.

The youthful war bride had testified yesterday her husband grappled with her for the gun, and in the floor after a struggle, and ran upstairs with the weapon after she had drunk poison. "I say she has, upstairs in the correct story," the lawyer declared.

He told of the people awaiting the jury's decision; the boy, 14-year-old Charles, the Crown's star witness; the widow's aged and sick father in England "sick with anxiety". And he told the jurymen they would be "haunted" by an unfavorable verdict against the woman who had "waged a battle for her home together."

Crown Prosecutor J. G. A. Robertson declared on the other hand, the prosecution had established its case. The evidence, he said, showed Mrs. Macintosh had argued with her husband, had taken poison, and then descended to the pantry where the knife will kept." He contended she had returned with the knife, and struck at her husband, perhaps on an impulse". He concluded with the admonition, "It is your duty to find her guilty of murder."

Cough and Cold Remedies By The Hundred, But Only One—

BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE

And Here's the Proof — These Testimonials Are Typical of Thousands.

BRONCHITIS OF 10 YEARS STANDING BANISHED:

"For years I suffered from a terrible cough and chest cold. I have had many sleepless nights, and after I used many different cough remedies, I got no relief, until I used BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. After a few doses my cough was gone."

ISLAND GIRL

by FRANK R. ADAMS

By Russ Westover

...ation telegraphing," Irene objected.

"I can even do that if necessary. Or if you think I can't send fast enough I can do it for you and say that I hurt my wrist or something. Pete ought to be getting tired by this time that he would be very observing."

There seemed to be no other alternative to the desperate expedient which Vern suggested. There now when the end of the hour approached and it was time for "Dummy" to make another appearance out in the yard Vern, taking Irene with him, assumed the standing gait of the mute and with shoulders drooped forward after the fashion of the man he imitated left his room.

In the hall which was unlighted he started to speak, "Dear there must—

But she stopped him with a pressure on his arm and the necessity able, "No."

Vern understood and for a dangerous second at the door she stopped into his waiting arms. Even under certain conditions, can only be done in that way.

The stimulus was wonderful. Vern opened the door prepared to do battle with all the beasts of the jungle that might lurk outside. Therefore Vernon Mabee, in common with nearly every other young man of his generation had thought that a kiss was just a kiss and nothing more. He had never dreamed that contact with a woman's lips had drum beats and the ring of speed in it—like many of the ocean and the sweep of wings in wind.

Together they crossed the patch of resting moonlight which lay between the house and the lookout pines.

A bullet might have halted them without occasioning any particular surprise to either but they exhausted of the fear of the unknown.

A hammer hung there on a cord. It was what "Dummy" Squales used in signalling his confederate.

Vern picked it up and tapped out the signal for "Attention"!

There was no answer.

CHAPTER 32

Vern waited without repeating the signal. Irene's finger on his hand began tapping out a message, "Try again." Vern shook his head impatiently.

After an interval of about two minutes he drew her quickly away from the base of the tree and out into the underbrush which would take them away from the house and with his lips close to hers he thought it safe to whisper, "He may be asleep or drunk perhaps if they sent him any sort of that liquor which he served to the rest of us."

"I don't think he would dare", Irene returned with equal caution. "Mr. Dummy" would kill him and he knows it."

"But the fact remains he didn't answer."

"Quite possibly he recognized the fact that it was not "Dummy" sending. Perhaps there is some secret signal that we don't know about."

"Perhaps. But on the other hand this may be the one chance in all the world which Providence has given us to get out of this most difficult situation. I am going to the lookout to see just what has happened."

She clutched his arm in a panic fear.

"No, no!, she whispered. "I couldn't bear that. I would rather that we have one take and all the chance. All he would have to do would be to fire point blank at you through the hole in the floor as you came up."

Perhaps. But it might just as well be my life as yours, and you don't have to do it unless you want to. Now if you ever left the island as "Dummy" would—

"I knew that you knew," she confessed sharply.

"Well, then that's that. Besides I don't think that I will visit Mr. Squeaks, as the term is, on the floor. I have another idea that might work. You and your—

"Don't try it except that it would be better than nothing. Perhaps I think I'll just go ahead and do it it will be better for you to go back to the house and see that the provision will be aroused by the absence of both of us. I'll call you if something else. You had better get there if you can before the unconscious. If necessary let the reverend Doctor Snyder do his duty with his wife.

Irene was loath to leave but he insisted and that controversy was not dangerous and she finally consented.

The plan with which Vern had come was one which Vern claimed that he had thought out himself. It was bare-brained scheme which had evidently leaped into his mind as a possible method of turning the tables on the unscrupulous tyranny of the island.

First he ascertained the absolute quarter of the moon and then by noting the direction of the sound of the ocean, which was distinctly audible to the leeward side of the pine trees any noise he might make would be least apt to be heard in the treetop lookout.

He had also found the guy wire which extended to the top of the tree and to a stake.

Just as he suspected that particular stay because it had no strain on it was moderately slack although vibrated occasionally as the top of the pine whipped back against the wind. It was a braided strand of three-eighth inch cable fairly flexible which was fastened to the stake of one of the trees and was set imbedded in the trunk with the slack taken up by a turnbuckle. As quietly as possible Vern un- screwed the turnbuckle which then released the cable entirely so that he could hold it in his hands. He would have given a hundred dollars (of about two feet more of cable but as it was he fastened the turnbuckle back on the loose end and ran the stray of his belt through the eyebolt of the turnbuckle thus lengthening it approximately thirty six inches. Also the belt was something that he could hold in his teeth which he did while he reconstructed attached the problem of climbing the trunk of the tall pine. There was only one thing which made this possible and that was the fact that the lookout had been gyred by stays so that very trees by so many years that the tree had grown old in the service and several successive ring bolts had been imbedded in the trunk and had grown upward with the tree itself.

And Vern had been a sailor.

With the belt strap in his teeth he managed to pull himself up by the ringbolts to where he would just barely get a knee grip on the hole of the tree so that he could swarm up sleeple jack fashion until he reached the first horizontal branches.

There he gopped for a few minutes rest and inadvertedly to take up the slack in the cable which, as he ascended, grew greater. He let the turnbuckle go now and hist the cable in a running noose of the belt.

All set, he started upward again by the easier route of the branches. The chief difficulty now was in keeping the cable clear of the rigging and foliage. With any other tree but a pine it would have been practically impossible. As it was he once or twice had to crawl out on a branch to disengaged a snarl.

CHAPTER 33

As he rose the movement of the tree in the wind became more appreciable.

Still higher it became a violent tossing and the noise of the gale through the branches rose to a shrill screech. No wonder Pete Pancake in his lookout had not been able to hear anything.

The tree containing the lookout was a little taller than the others. Quite naturally the largest one had been selected. But the lookout itself was not at the extreme top of the trunk. It had been built high enough, down so that it had quite a sturdy support from the tree itself. Therefore Vern was able to climb high enough on the now slender trunk of his own tree so that he was actually above the platform of the lookout.

Then became apparent the reason why he seemingly foolish behavior in carrying the cable with him to the top of the tree. Because now working in the wind and being careful not to take up enough of the slack so that the cable would jerk the platform of the lookout when the tree swayed, Vern twisted a slight of the cable around the tree between branches where it would be firmly supported from slipping downward.

Then he disengaged his belt and made a loop of it over the standing strand extending from the trunk of the tree where he was downward to the point just above the lookout where it was fastened.

He was approximately seventy-five to eighty feet from the ground. If Vern had known any good prayers there would have been a good place to have gone over them.

But all he could do was murmur fervently "good luck" as he grasped the loop of the belt in his hands and swung off. He hoped that it was good leather in the belt and that there were two strands of the cable between him and the lookout.

He started to slide very slowly at first but gradually gained speed on the cable and the fact that it was momentarily smooth accelerated the pace. By the time he was within sight of the cable around the tree between branches where it would be firmly supported from slipping downward.

Why whether or not Pancake had been asleep or drunk he was now fully attempted to send him a code message via the tree trunk made no difference. The situation was now so controvertible fact is that he was unconscious when Vern got to the top when Vern stopped by for his informal chat.

Vern dropped to the deck of the lookout into the arms of the enemy. As has been mentioned Pete Pancake was not a very large, man except in spirit. Pete Pancake was a giant in every way especially physically.

He laughed a little at Vern's pluck now small a Greek horse had made his way inside the walls of his defenses. The Trojans also laughed under similar circumstances it is recorded. First on one side of the fence and then on the other. History has such strange habits of repeating the same stuff over and over again.

First Vern kicked him in the stomach which is considered a foul punch in a prize ring but is not barred in hand to hand fighting because there are no witnesses. With an involuntary exclamation of astonishment Pete dropped his smaller opponent and put his hands on the painful place. This gave Vern an excellent opportunity to put his right fist and then his left, difficult as it was under Pancake's chin which he could easily reach since the big man was bent over.

That ought to have done the trick but Vern did not dare to come close enough to strike with his fists. Pancake had longer arms and it was too dangerous for yet within reach, of that muscular grip.

So Vern ducked and sidestepped trying to trip the heavier man as he lurched past him. It did not work. Pancake anticipated the manoeuvre and swirled too soon. Vern did manage to tackle him, but ball fashion as he came around and threw him to the floor for a brief second. But there was no hope of holding him there without the assistance of at least two other men and Vern used the moment's respite to grab one of the stools.

As the big man started to get up Vern struck at his head with it. The other, with catlike swiftness, guarded with his left forearm. The blow carried through just enough to land a crack on him.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan knew nothing about the methods of fighting among knights, and cared less. But from childhood he had wielded a spear and he waited astride his charger with his lance in rest crouched to receive the knight now bearing down upon him. As the foe's lance tip was five paces from the Ape-Man Tarzan rose in his stirrups and carried his lance hand above and behind his head as he had so often launched his hunting spear.

It was not Viscount Greystoke who faced the Knight of the Sepulcher. Neither was it the King of the Great Apes. It was Tarzan as Chief of the Waziri and no other arm in the world could cast a hunting spear as could his. Straight as an arrow sped the great lance as Tarzan's powerful right arm projected through the splintering shield and down into the heart of Tarzan's foe as at the same instant the ape-man reined back his charger aside.

The fortunes of the battle had now carried Tarzan beyond Sepulcher, Palma gone, he fought with his sword. Luck, and his great strength and his enormous agility carried him through two more furious encounters. Now the last opposing knight lay in the crimson of the fight, shouted his challenge. Never had Tarzan seen such fierce, cold men as these sultans for battle. They gloried in conflict in a way that filled the Ape-Man's heart with admiration.

The sword of Tarzan and his foe clashed as they wheeled, turned and struck again and again. At last the knight made a bit into the skull of the ape-man's charger, but Tarzan's sword smote truer and his adversary fell dead at his feet. Now was Tarzan alone upon the battlefield, save for the bodies of his late antagonists. South lay the City of Nimmr. There he knew that Blake would die, and it was Blake whom the ape-man wanted to find.

Thrift does not mean the parsimony of not spending money, but rather in spending the household money where it will do the most good and go the furthest. With prices rising in almost every commodity in constant use it is the part of Thrift to make purchases now and have needed work done about the home, rather than wait until prices climb still higher.

NUMBER TWELVE CAMPBELL STREET — It is doubtful if you can tell the kind of business which is carried on at the store bearing this street designation although you may be a patron of the proprietor — you know the place well, but the number means nothing to you. The number, however, may have served its purpose in the first place in guiding you to the store when you first went to it just the same as it has in aiding hundreds of other persons who are now regular customers of Mr. T. G. Wells who occupies the store and carries on a large business in harness, harness parts, harness repairing and leather goods. Throughout the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward there are many people who purchase their harness requirements from Mr. Wells and have their harness repair work done by him. In leather goods Mr. Wells carries in stock a nice line of purses, novelty cases, trunks, suit cases and travelling bags. At this store may be had also first class tarpaulin covers of any size required for trucks. By selling reliable goods and doing satisfactory work at reasonable prices Mr. Wells has attracted the large patronage which he now has. If you require anything in this line visit his store.

THEY'RE KICKING ABOUT SALARIES

Paul Muni and Mary Astor in informal pose—Mary is signing a petition or something—at the recent meeting at Los Angeles at which the Thespians of the talking screen formed a guild to protect their interests under the proposed NRA code for the movies. The actors and actresses quite naturally are opposed to salary reductions and as artists they will combat any attempt to standardize their wages. After all, these actresses and actors get only a paltry few thousands a week—ranging anywhere from Jackie Cooper's $1,200 per week to Maurice Chevalier's astonishing like $175,000 per picture! And Chevalier makes two or three pictures a year. Harold Lloyd is not satisfied unless his pictures profit $1,000,000 for one a year. Imagine cutting salaries like these!

SOME PEOPLE NEVER LOSE ANYTHING — That is in the way of personal possessions such as umbrellas, pen knives, fountain pens, rubbers, keys, etc. — they never have occasion to use the "lost" column in the newspaper and they consider as being careless the people who do lose things. If they are careless or not the fact remains that every day articles are lost and of the articles lost, keys are very numerous. It is a great inconvenience to lose the key to the house, the car, the garage, a drawer, a trunk, or a safety deposit box if one does not possess a duplicate key and many people guard against such a contingency by having duplicate keys made at Cooke's Repair Service which is situated at 142 Front Street, nearly opposite to the Capitol Theatre. Mr. Cooke has every facility for turning out keys accurately and promptly at small cost. At this repair shop locks are repaired and made as good as new and guns are cleaned and put in good working order. Rubber tires for baby carriages are carried in stock and at this season of the year Mr. Cooke does a nice business in this line. Cooke's Repair Service is well-known for the excellent quality of the work turned out at reasonable charges. Their telephone number is 1138F.

TRUCK DRIVER HURT IN CROSSING CRASH

Campbellford, Oct. 14—Ernest Ferguson, aged 19, of this town, had a narrow escape from death early this noon Friday when the new bread truck which he was driving on the old highway five miles east of Percyborough was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train at a level crossing. The force of the impact turned the heavy vehicle completely over, and the truck was a complete wreck, except for its windows, none of which were broken. Ferguson sustained a badly gashed head, minor face injuries, wrenched knees and possible internal injuries. He was rendered first aid by Dr. Clark of Percyborough, who later had him removed to Campbellford. Ferguson is expected to recover.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

A few years ago Paramount produced an outstanding musical picture titled "Close Harmony." Since that time the screen has witnessed many more musicals, but none has excelled "Too Much Harmony," a sort of sequel to that first film which is a feature screen delight now at the Belle.

We are assured that the spectator will not be able to get enough of the film, rather than "too much." A remarkable cast, headed by Bing Crosby; sensational chorus routines, staged by Le Roy Prina; "hit" songs, written by Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow, and Edward Sutherland's talented direction have combined to form a truly exceptional picture.

Like most of Hollywood's musical comedies it is a stage picture, but the action largely takes place between the closing curtain of one season, and the opening performance of the next. This does not, however, stop Crosby from singing his best, or the chorus from dancing.

Crosby, primarily a singer, has proved himself an actor in his recent films. In "Too Much Harmony" he has definitely added to his laurels. If Bing should lose his singing voice (and may that calamity never happen) he could easily continue in pictures as a leading man type.

Humor in profusion is provided by Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Harry Green, Ned Sparks, Sammy Cohen, Lilyan Tashman, Kitty Kelly and Grace Bradley. Given clever lines and situations, these versatile cranks of Broadway are hilarious in daily, Utele respective roles.

Le Roy Prina, a newcomer to Hollywood, definitely establishes himself in the front rank of dance directors with this picture. Two of his routines, "Black Moonlight," and "Buckin' the Wind" are about the most spectacular ever offered on the screen.

Judith Allen has the leading female role opposite Crosby. Miss Allen has played but one previous role before being assigned the part in "Too Much Harmony," but proved that faith in her had not been misplaced by her thoroughly effective performance.

Credit is due also to Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow, who wrote the songs for the picture. Certain to be "hits" are "Thanks," "Boo-Boo-Boo," "The Day You Came Along," and "I Guess it Had to be That Way," which Crosby offers in the typical Crosby fashion.

Eugene Pallette and Walter Catlett are co-featured in "Meet the Champ," a funny Mack Sennett comedy, a distinctly different Van Dyne Detective story is offered in "Transatlantic Mystery," to be presented on the same program with a thrilling sportlight reel appropriately titled "Jabs and Jolts."

"I Cover the Waterfront"

Max Miller's "I Cover the Waterfront," which enjoyed a widespread sale as a best seller and now comes to the screen in a romantic and gripping picture version with Claudette Colbert, Ben Lyon and Ernest Torrence playing the leading roles. The picture opens at the Belle Tuesday, for two days, matinee and

AT THE CAPITOL

Are doctors people?

Do they?

Do they laugh, love, like the rest of the world? Or does the burden of the world's pain and sorrow, dumped on their uncomplaining shoulders, so disillusion them that they are unable to get the same pleasure out of life as the non-professional men and women?

Some of these questions are answered to some satisfaction in a picture which, as a tribute to the hard working men and women of the medical profession, and as a dramatization of their lives, has not, according to many observers been surpassed on the talking screen—"Mary Doctors," which Warner Bros. production, which comes to the Capitol Theatre, Monday.

"Mary Doctors" is much more than the names of all the feminine stars in Hollywood, it would be difficult to find one better fitted for the role of "Mary Stevens, M.D." than is Kay Francis. She perfectly typifies the professional woman of America.

It is said in the role she gives a portrayal which for sincerity, ability and dramatic power, would be difficult to match.

Her work is matched by that of Lyle Talbot, whose splendid work in the past has won for him this choice role. He appears as a young doctor who takes the easy road to success in his profession—via marriage and the "soft" jobs to be found in political work, only to learn afterwards that the hard, straight road is the wisest and the happiest.

Intense work, clinic work, the drama of the operating room all are mingled in this exciting and romantic tale of the doctor both during and after his office hours.

A strong supporting cast includes Thelma Todd, Glenda Farrell, Geo. Cooper and others. The screen play, by Rian James, is based on the novel by Virginia Kellogg. The director is Mervyn LeRoy.

Monday and Tuesday are Dinnerware Days at the Capitol. The program will be replete with comedy numbers and Canadian Young News.

Lady for a Day!

Never has such a picture received such widespread comment and praise in Belleville as "Lady for a Day" which plays at the Capitol tonight at 7.15 and 9.15.

May Robson and Ned Sparks seem to be the popular pair in the large cast of players in this most beautiful modern fairy story. As "Apple Annie," May Robson is certainly supreme and Ned Sparks as "Happy (?) McGuire, is absolutely alone in his type of comedian.

Do see it tonight!

EXPERT SAYS URGE UPWARD

Toronto, Oct. 14. — The fundamental trend of business is to be congratulated on achieving without any artificial means of recovery in Dominion vice-president of Roger Babson's statistical organization at Babson Park, Massachusetts.

"Accomplishment you and envy your position," the Babson expert told a luncheon meeting of the Toronto business men at the Royal York Hotel yesterday. "Here in Canada you are in the enviable position of having recovery in sight as well as a position to avoid it. On the other hand, if we do evolve something of lasting value, you will be in a position to capitalize on it."

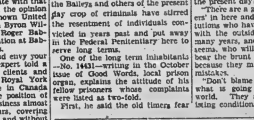
The most important thing to be remembered, according to Mr. Wilson, is that the fundamental trend of business was upward and that fundamentally Canada was going to lift business in Canada.

Declaring there was nothing unusual in periods of depression and that such were bound to follow periods of prosperity, Mr. Wilson said he was anxious to disabuse his listeners' minds of the psychology that refused to be convinced that there was any "new deal." The present business cycle was certainly not going to be removed from the economic order and it stood to reason that a period of over-expansion would follow the present so-called depression, according to Mr. Wilson. The United States at the past 140 years had experienced 13 periods of depression, he added.

From April until August Canada, the speaker said, had gone through a period of rather unprecedented recovery and was at present hesitating just to catch her breath.

OLD TIMERS BEAR BRUNT

Atlanta, Oct. 14 (AP)—The Kellys, the Ballezs and others of the present day crop of criminals have stirred the resentment of individuals convicted in years gone by, and are kept in the Federal Penitentiary here to serve long terms.



"One of the long term inhabitants —No. 14431—writing in the October issue of Good Words, local prison organ, explains the attitude of his fellow prisoners who have recently been listed as two-fold.

First, he said the old timers fear that the wave of resentment aroused by the kidnappers and criminals in general will eliminate the chance they have of obtaining executive clemency in the near future.

Secondly, he points out that since many "long timers" have been behind the bars for years they have had no connection with the outside world, and asks "why should they continue to remain imprisoned after the classified with the racketeers of the present day?"

"There are a good many 'long timers' in here and other similar institutions who have had nothing to do with the outside or its affairs for many years, and it is these men, it seems, who will have to suffer and bear the brunt of public sentiment, because they many years ago made mistakes.

"Don't blame the 'old timers' for what is going on in the outside world. They are innocent of existing conditions."

Ben Lyon, the late Ernest Torrence, and Claudette Colbert are the principals of "I Cover the Waterfront," Max Miller's famous story which opens at the Belle, Tuesday.

GERMAN WITHDRAWAL CALLED INVALID

Arms Conference Refuses to Accept Validity of Reason for Withdrawal from Nations' League, Arms Parley

Conference Adjourns to October the 26th For Consultations.

HENDERSON SPEAKS

"Won't Let World Plunge Into Barbarism in Another War"

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Geneva, Oct. 16 (CP Cable)—In a tense 30-minute session the World Disarmament Conference this afternoon declined to accept Germany's reason for withdrawal from the conference and announced with dismay that the League as valid.

Germany took the drastic step on the claim the great powers were unwilling to reduce their armaments while refusing Germany the right to defensive weapons.

The reply of the World Conference is contained in a telegram signed by Arthur Henderson, chairman, and despatched forthwith to Berlin. And the committee adjourned until Oct. 26 to permit the delegates to consult their governments.

New Disarmament Efforts

Earlier, addressing representatives of world-wide peace organizations, Mr. Henderson in a stirring speech issued a call to new efforts for disarmament, declaring that the government must not be treated as a scrap of paper. He will not let the world plunge into barbarism through another world war," he declared, "cost what it may."

While Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, German Foreign Minister was declaring in Berlin the question was whether the dignity of nations into victor and vanquished should be eternalized, Mr. Henderson wired him the conference had reached the stage of deliberation on a definite programme for the progressive reduction of armaments.

Without Germany

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—Completion of a disarmament convention despite the German withdrawal from the conference and the League of Nations, along the lines already drawn, was viewed today by diplomats as the best way out of a "serious situation."

The four-power European Peace Pact, French officials said, was scuttled when the Reich, which with the other three powers had agreed to do its utmost to make the conference a success, abruptly walked out.

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP) — The United States was described today as standing as heading toward a hide line role for the next three or four days in the situation created by Germany at the Disarmament Conference, but with a desire to lend assistance to any possible continuation of a general disarmament programme.

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—A reassuring note on the situation created by Germany's announced withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference was sounded by the most Rev. Cosmo Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Soviet Sees Danger

Moscow, Oct. 16 — The Soviet press sees danger to world peace in Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference. At the same time, however, it declares the action demonstrates the continued vitality of the league to carry out its functions.

Tokyo, Oct. 16 (AP)—Likelihood of the German crisis recalling Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky from the Orient to ominous developments among its western neighbors—thus diminishing Russo-Japanese tension—was Tokyo's principal concern as the government studied despatches today from its ambassadors in Europe.

London, Oct. 16 (AP) — Calm prevailed in Downing Street today as Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald began conference with the Cabinet leaders on the European crisis while awaiting the day's developments at Geneva.

Berlin, Oct. 16 (AP)—Konstantin Von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, summarized "the cardinal question" of current politics today by asking, "shall the division of Nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized?"

The cardinal question around which the entire politics of the present day turns, and concerning which the unequivocal answer must be given is:

"Shall the division of nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized or is it, at last, the principle to receive recognition that all states are members with equal rights of Community of Nations?"

The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international peaceful operation.

"All statesmen for years have theoretically proclaimed this as a self evident truth, but they could not bring themselves to the drawing the necessary and practical consequences.

"Last Saturday it became clear at Geneva that the German people are denied equality in one of the questions of supreme affecting its very existence, namely, national security.

"The flower of one generation was slain in the last world war. It is the duty of us who survived to give the world peace in our time. We must not hesitate to incur risks or make whatever sacrifices may be necessary to ensure final triumph and the reign of law over the fatal national anarchy that breeds war."

Mr. Henderson said we are faced with a situation that makes it necessary to go down to fundamentals. We must think things out afresh. We must search our own hearts and consciences. We must take counsel and tell the world where we stand. The withdrawal of Germany makes it necessary to ask ourselves what it is we are trying to do in Geneva.

"So long as each nation is the judge of its own rights to free arms and the arms as it and fit, war is inevitable. However just the cause of any of the nations, no government can be trusted to resort to force. The cause of peace it flouts the collective peace system to which the world is now pledged," he said. "The modern international anarchists are identical with those who believe that war is inevitable. Militarists are merely believers in the inevitability of war, who have the courage of their convictions.

"The world collective peace system is the only alternative. We live in a living, growing thing. Its strength and vitality are measured by the determination of the government and public opinion to uphold it against every challenge. It is a great adventure to which we are committed, and I believe that with there is no turning back."

10 Million Men Died to Create League of Nations—Henderson

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Geneva, Oct. 16 (CP Cable)—In swift and emphatic phrase Arthur Henderson, British chairman of the World Disarmament Conference, today demanded a new effort for disarmament. His words rang the more impressively in face of the threat to European stability inherent in Germany's announced withdrawal from the League.

"My message to you", he told a great peace delegation, "is that disarmament must go on and that the League covenant must not be treated as a scrap of paper. In the 19,000,000 dead and 30,000,000 wounded to bring the League into being.

"We will not break faith with the dead who fell that there should be no more war. We will not suffer the hope that peace will be killed. We will not let the world plunge into barbarism through another world war."

The delegates, headed by Lord Robert Cecil, representing worldwide peace organizations interrupted his outspoken words with a burst of applause.

"Do you who represent public opinion I would say," Mr. Henderson continued, "support the League as the mast of the League. Make the League more powerful and more universal than the will to war. Restore fear of recognizing peace must spur us to further efforts. Every delay or defeat must call forth renewed energies, stubborn and relentless energy.

"Shall the division of nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized or is it, at last, the principle to receive recognition that all states are members with equal rights of Community of Nations?

"The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international peaceful operation.

"All statesmen for years have theoretically proclaimed this as a self evident truth, but they could not bring themselves to the drawing the necessary and practical consequences.

"Last Saturday it became clear at Geneva that the German people are denied equality in one of the questions of supreme affecting its very existence, namely, national security.

SEVEN MEN KIDNAP NATURALIZED KOREAN

Japanese Consul Denies he is Owner of Car Used

Canton, China, Oct. 16 (AP)—Seven men, including three Japanese, today kidnapped Yu Yun-Ching, naturalized Korean, Puo-Yul-Jih, in Chinese territory, police said.

The motorcar in which he was spirited away was later found in Pun Pou. Police announced the machine was registered as belonging to the Japanese Consul but the Consul denied it.

The kidnappers escaped after the crash and took their prisoner to Shameen, a Canton settlement where he was lodging in the French jail. The Canton mayor lodged a strong protest and demanded the release of the prisoner.

Old Camel-Face Is Old British Columbia Eel

(By Cleveland Williams, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Seattle, Oct. 16 (AP)—Old Hiaschuckulk, British Columbia's camel-faced sea serpent, is a giant conger eel, ocean scientists chairman school of drought now pondering the case of the monster.

Dagny scientists of the British Columbia Museum and the University of Washington nodded sagely and said in effect: "It may be a Conger eel, as they come to large sizes, and there are monsters in the ocean that science has not catalogued—but you called it your self."

They wouldn't be quoted directly but Professor Charles Davis stepped forward as perhaps the fifteenth veracious citizen to claim he saw the 80-foot monster, but he was more modest than the others—he said it was only 40 feet long. He told of seeing it off Vancouver Island, several others have recently—a camel-faced fellow, colored green and with a head resembling a bank clerk on the rocks.

"It raised its head and body above the water in three distinct bends, showing it was quite 40 feet long," he said. "I am positive it was a large eel." Further, he said, he saw it twice while sailing.

Davis and other fishermen have backing for their eel theory, because Conger eels as long as seven feet have often been caught in these waters.

CANCER MAY BE CAUSED BY WEE ORGANISM

Pipe, Cigarette and Nicotine Are Not to Blame

CANCER HOUSES

Chemical or Animal Substance to Help Resistance

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—The cure for cancer, in the opinion of Dr. H. Beckwith, Whitehouse, an eminent British surgeon and gynecologist, will likely be preventative.

"We shall probably find some chemical or animal substance to strengthen our natural resistance to cancer and, in that way, prevent it," he said in addressing a gathering of Toronto physicians at the Academy of Medicine here.

Later in an interview Dr. Whitehouse said cancer could not be attributed to nicotine or the irritation from the stem of a pipe or cigarette. Cancer, he said, is in a way hereditary.

"It is very possible the disease is caused by an organism," he said. "It may be an ultramicron long about to be seen yet by the microscope. One thing in this connection is interesting. We have established beyond very much doubt that there are cancer houses. We have found in every cancer case for years and we find cancer cases do develop again and again in certain houses."

RAIN OF TINY BROWN BEES

Suggestions As to Explanation of Occurrence in B.C. Town

ROCK CREEK, B.C., Oct. 16 —(CP)—Residents of this town are still scratching their heads to think up an explanation for the downpour of tiny brown bees which fell here.

One theory is that clouds, piling up against some elevated mountain, gathered an usual collection of the insects and carried them along until released in rain. Or they may have been swirled on high by a "twister" or tornado in the United States. The International Border is just south of here.

It is recalled Vancouver recently reported a sudden appearance of thousands of flying ants which invaded the Stock Exchange building while the market was being rushed, and were seen in other parts of the city in unusual numbers.

Conditions must have been favorable for such propagations in arious districts this year, but for the explanation of their being picked up by clouds or winds.

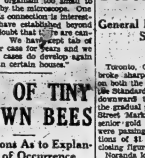
7 Year Terms in Wellington Bank Hold-up

BEFORE POLICE ENDED FASCIST MARCH ON WASHINGTON

Members of the "Khaki Shirts of America" saluting Art J. Smith, national commander in Philadelphia, just before police raided their headquarters and scattering them to frustrate an armed march on Washington. The Khaki Shirts vowed to "make Roosevelt dictator". A score were arrested after authorities learned of an alleged plot to steal weapons from an armory. "General" Art Smith has meantime disappeared, and some members are becoming convinced that the organization was merely a shirt-selling racket. Significant is that Smith sold the shirts.

Sharp Break Extends Across Toronto Exchange at Noon



General Record of Losses Over Boards Is Shown — Senior Gold Shares Drop and "Wet" Stocks Take Plunge

Toronto, Oct. 16—(CP)— Stocks broke sharply around noon today on the Toronto Industrial and Mining Standard Mining Exchanges, the downward trend following closely the gradual price slump in the Wall Street market. At early afternoon senior gold and base metal issues were passing on tile, tape at reductions of $1 to $2 from Saturday's closing figures.

Hurst fell $2 to $32. Dome lost 1.40 to 32.40, McIntyre $1.50 to $3.50 while losses of cents to 50c appeared for Teck, Wright Hargreaves, Nickel, Pioneer and Bralorne. The secondary gold shares lost 5 to 20 cents, the silver group 10 cents and Eldorado was shaken down to 2.50 for a loss of 50 cents. It was the most severe shake-down the market has had since July 31.

On the Toronto Exchange distillery issues were off 1 to 3 points, Walker-Gooderham taking the high plunge, and Brazilian, Ford A, C.P.R. and Nickel were off 1-2 to a point and the oils were down a half point or more. Smelters dropped 3 1-2 to 1.24.

Grandmother's Trend Turns to Jewelry

New York, Oct. 16—(AP)—Debutantes this season are bringing their grandmother's jewelry from old, carved cases, now that fashion is returning to the days of Queen Victoria.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is said to have started it all when she wore a gold chatelaine, an heirloom, at the presidential inauguration ceremonies last spring.

Big date Victorian Cameo brooches are now fastening the high-standing collar or accenting the sailor bosom.

Brooches are expected to be the most important jewelry element. They will be with plumes for afternoon hats; will replace somewhat the Alice-in-Wonderland custom of holding back the hair with brown bows or pleats on dresses, and will be worn well amid the bucks and the clip.

WELLINGTON BANK BANDITS GIVEN 7 YEARS

Miles Pettet and Percy Gerrit Committed to Penitentiary

BOTH ARE SILENT

Two Years For Carrying Weapons, Five Years For Armed Holdup

Apparently unconcerned about their position and displaying little emotion, Percy Gerrit, one of the two Gerrits, who attempted to holdup the Bank of Commerce branch at Wellington on Wednesday last appeared today for sentence in Picton Police Court and were given seven years each in Portsmouth Penitentiary at Kingston on charges of attempted robbery and demanding money by menace.

The men were given five years each for armed holdup and two years each for felonious assault, the sentences to run concurrently. Neither of the accused was represented by counsel. Crown Attorney Mr. Morrille Kyle, manager of the bank, who was trapped by the bandits, pressed them off after a spirited battle in which he with his head swathed in bandages, while Mr. W. M. Watson, teller, who was trussed up and placed in the safe was also an interested spectator but neither was asked to testify. The accused offered no statement, when asked if they had anything to say before sentence was pronounced.

Magistrate A. E. Calnan, in pronouncing judgment told the accused, that he could under the law, have given them life but that he would take into account their youth and the fact that the police were not shot when they entered the bank. He hoped that the men would spend the penitentiary without bitterness and that they would emerge after their sentence with a broader outlook on life and convinced, that crime of crimes would not pay. Before sentence was given Mr. Wallaceley reviewed the case for the Crown and stated he believed the case to be one for severe action. Mr. Calnan later complimented the police and residents of the county for the quick action and county co-operation in affecting the capture of the accused men.

Court room was filled with interested spectators. The men have thirty days in which to file an appeal against the sentence but this action is not expected and it is thought by many that the men will be taken in the immediate future to Kingston to start their sentence.

Gerrit told Magistrate Calnan that he lived near Edmonton as a boy but that he had been away from there for some time. His home residence was in the west at Calgary within the last year. He has no relatives in Eastern Ontario.

BIRTHDAY FOR FLOWER SHOP

Three years ago today Miss Dorothy F. Quick established her Flower Shop on Bridge Street. To mark the time she has from month to month built up a business, that today has a most enviable position. Starting in an unconventional way, her clientele has yearly increased and she has become a leader in the business life of this community, where she has been known actively for so many years, has been augmented by the services of Mr. Sidney H. Abbot, her floral designer and Business Advisor.

Miss Quick's advancement has been a most sincere gratification to her friends and to the Belleville and district, and their well-wishes are that her future mercantile efforts may prosper.

87th Milestone in History of John St. Church Celebrated

Rev. Dr. Martin of Hamilton, Speaker of the Day

John Street United Church, Sunday, celebrated the 87th. Anniversary of the founding of its congregation. Throughout all the Church of Scotland occurred in 1843 and it was not till several years afterwards that the effect of this dissolution in the Old Country was effectively felt in the New World. In 1846, however, certain members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and other adherents of the Presbyterian faith throughout this county felt it their duty to form a congregation and the Free Kirk was established. The first meeting was held in a room over a store at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets, where the Post Office building now stands. The members of this congregation were not only rebel, but the names of families as far back as 1800 were on the membership rolls. The late William Gregg, later professor in Knox College, Toronto, was the first minister to this devoted body of worshippers. He had at this time the Government documents and his administrations were located in a wide range of territory.

In 1851, John Street Church was built. This substantial building was of frame construction, which was later torn down and a stone church built. The latter building was then sold and replaced by the present building group, which has been added to and updated to by the fine church hall at its rear.

The Rev. William Gregg was succeeded by the Rev. William McLaren in 1870. He was a pioneer in church for ten years and following his resignation from the pastorate went also as his predecessor had done to a chair in Knox College. Many distinguished men filled the pulpit of John St. Church since 1907 and spoke from the pulpit the mentioning of their names. Well they served the cause of their Master, and to the older residents of the city, their names and the work they did for the cause of Christ and His kingdom on earth is known and cherished.

With the union of certain Protestant bodies in Canada in 1925, John St. Church became one of the United Churches and lost its identity as one of the old Free Presbyterian organizations in the part of the Province.

Returning from service in the Great War, the Rev. Robert Hall has since administered to the spiritual needs of his parishioners, and has endeared himself to the people. He noted the social aims of his congregation. The present church built old in years is still most active in the government of the Christian life of this community. And not alone in Belleville, but in foreign lands; Miss Hall and her self as medical missionary in India and her maintenance and work is also assisted by the contributions of the John Street church congregation.

Vitally active John Street Church enters its 88th. year, as a factor in the upbuilding and extension of the religious and social life of Belleville.

Resignation of Germany if Given Not Effective for Two Years by Treaty

All Powers Pushing For Adjournment of One Week

BITTERLY ASSAILED

Smaller States May Intervene in Decisive Manner

.... (By Joseph E. Shadkey)

Geneva, Oct. 16 (AP)—Belief that the situation is not hopeless and that a rupture in the League of Nations may yet be averted was expressed by some representatives of League countries here for the Disarmament Conference today.

This expression was heard, they said, on an interpretation of statements in Berlin of willingness to negotiate a direct Franco-German understanding.

Besides, it was remarked that if and when Germany officially notifies the League of her resignation, this can not be effective for two years by terms of the League Covenant itself.

Also, the council could decide, if Germany resigned any act done prior to effect international peace, that her resignation was not effective and that Germany remains bound by the League covenant therefore.

The Treaty of Versailles exists, the Locarno Pact exists, and the Kellogg Pact exists also—last statesmen want Germany to be a voluntary and willing partner in these peace pacts.

Meantime, with the great powers pushing for a one-week adjournment in which to give the governments time to plan ways of meeting the emergency caused by Germany's withdrawal from the Disarmament Conference, representatives of the smaller powers held numerous conversations today.

The smaller intermediary states, having an overwhelming majority, could render null and void decisions reached by Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy.

It was regarded as certain, as the representatives gathered for the meeting at which the recess was a time topic that some of the smaller states might intervene in a decisive manner.

Italy for Adjournment

Of all the great powers represented at the parley torn and confused by the Reich retirement, only Italy was ready to propose adjournment. The others—Great Britain, France, the United States—all called for a still more determined effort after today's session to reconcile differences and draft a permanent program for peace.

The brief recess was agreed to by the four big powers to allow time, they said, for an informal exchange of views.

Yet it was admitted on all sides that unless intergovernmental conversations looking forth new proposals it will be impracticable to work out any sort of an agreement or treaty without Germany's participation.

Whatever may be accomplished in the recess, the delegates planned to advise Germany that their new contentions of insincerity were unfounded.

Throughout the week-end conversations, wherever the trend turned, there ran an undertone of apprehension at the possibility or complications likely to result in regard to the Locarno accords. Both Great Britain and Italy, it was pointed out, would under the Locarno Pact be called upon to join in the defence should any war movement threaten the peace of the Rhine.

Each signatory is bound to help a victim of unprovoked aggression should there be flagrant violation of the pact or of Articles 42 and 43 of the Versailles Treaty.

Speakers bitterly assailed Germany in a stormy meeting organized by the International Consultative Group for Disarmament after the long meeting of the great powers.

Lord Cecil of England told the crowd that if the conference failed it would perhaps "irretrievably wreck world peace."

Hedging Appointee

Early today the nomination of a high commissioner of the former German city of Danzig, proclaimed the "Free City" of Danzig after the war, was causing such a tempest that a secret session of the League Council suddenly was convoked for this afternoon.

Poland refused Saturday to accept Britain's candidate, Shawn Lester, Ireland's permanent delegate to the League at Geneva and until recently an active member of the council committee handling the matter.

Leticia and Chaco disputes.

It was learned the discussion was to be held Sir Joseph Avenol, British Foreign Secretary, sent a note to President Amador that he (Sir John) would resign as official reporter on the Danzig questions unless Lester were elected.

It was reported that Poland was backing Lester.

The commissioner is responsible to the league and acts as an arbiter between Danzig's German population and Poland, which has access to the sea through Danzig.

ADVOCATES A UNION-GOVT FOR CANADA

C.C.F. Policies Could Not be Put in Effect at Present

Winnipeg, Oct. 16 (CP)—Union government for Canada so that a unified, co-ordinated effort might be made to surmount the difficulties confronting the Dominion had been urged today by Rev. J. Richmond Craig, of Grace United Church.

From the pulpit in Grace Church last night, Mr. Craig made his plea for the formation of a National Government. He reiterated his support for a commission form of government for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Three provincial governments and legislatures were an unnecessary luxury, he asserted.

The Winnipeg pastor expressed the opinion the policies of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation could not be put into effect for many years. He suggested J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the new party, would render more useful service to the country in the meantime by co-operating with Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and Hon. W. D. Euler, K.C., Kenzie King in a union government.

HUNDREDS OF CARS LURED TO HIGHWAY

Balmy Weather Greets Residents Over The Weekend

Balmy weather and strong sunshine lured hundreds of cars to the highways and roads throughout the district on Sunday. Congestion of traffic was particularly noticed on No. 2 Highway during the afternoon. The thermometer reported almost holiday sales of gas, compared with that of peak tourist traffic. Cemeteries, parks, picnic grounds and even beaches all had their quota of visitors. Despite the date, several of the younger set at the Outlet on Sunday spent the afternoon swimming in the ice cold water and running themselves on the warm sand. Two boat owners took the occasion to enjoy probably a last outing for the season on the water.

BACKFIRE CAUSES BLAZE IN TRUCK

Quick Response by Brigade Saves Serious Loss

A heavy truck of the Quinte Transport of Glen Miller which developed engine trouble on the border of the city, and had been housed in the Belleville Battery Service garage on Monaanay St., created considerable parking diversion at 1.35 p.m. Saturday. The trouble was traced to the bodies when the engine back-fired and its fuselage set afire. The burning grease caused a dense volume of smoke to fill the garage and be emitted out on the market square. A quick response by the fire department and the use of chemicals soon extinguished the blaze. Fortunately the occurrence had not taken place two hours earlier when the vicinity was crowded with pedestrians and motor traffic. The damage done was slight.

CHILD SAVED FROM DEATH BY RESIDENT

Norman Clapper Jumps Into River Fully Clothed

CHILD STUBS TOE

Betty Calbury, Five, Falls Through Bridge Into River

The promptness of Mr. Norman Clapper of this city, in jumping fully clothed from the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge at the mouth of the Moira River into the fifteen foot deep channel on the east side of the river just before six o'clock Sunday afternoon, saved the life of little five year old Betty Calbury, 181½ Front Street, when she stumbled and fell through the bridge into the deep water just a few moments before.

The scene of the near-drowning is the same treacherous spot in the Moira that had claimed at least two lives before.

Betty, in company with several other little companions near her own age including Bruce Hoy and Woodrow Bandiord, had been taking a short cut across the bridge to the other side of the river. As her companions lagged behind, Betty tripped a head and child-like, attempted to "jump" the others by walking and balancing on the ends of the tall runs along the bridge next to the low railing. Her companions' cries to stay in the centre of the bridge went unheeded.

As they neared the west of the bridge, Betty turned around on the tie to taunt the others and as she turned she stumbled on a projecting spike head, slipped, and then fell between the two and from work into the water fifteen feet below.

Her companions on the bridge now had reached the spot stood rooted to the bridge, horror stricken, as she disappeared with a faint cry. Woodrow Bandford, 8, the first to recover his head at the splash below, raced in the direction of his home near the other end of the bridge at 38 South Front Street, and meeting Mr. Clapper just outside, informed him of the accident. Without hesitation Mr. Clapper then dashed to the spot and without removing shoes or clothing, jumped from the bridge and struck out lead iron work due to the river below. When he reached the child, Betty who had been hanging on to the west side of the deep channel, rapidly weakening in the cold water, had just strength enough left to grab her rescuer's shoulder. Woodrow Bandford, who had raced for a boat at the end of the bridge after informing Mr. Clapper of the accident then managed to reach the scene with the rowboat in time to help both from the cold water.

"It was nothing," succinctly commented Mr. Clapper when questioned regarding his share of the rescue of the little girl. Others have done the same. I just happened to be the one who was closest," he added.

"It was a courageous act," stated Mr. Jack Calbury, father of Betty, who was in the house in his duties as Mr. Calbury that the accident had not had a tragic ending.

GIRL TOPPLES FROM FRONT SEAT OF CAR

Six Accidental Deaths Reported Over the Week-End

TWO ASPHYXIATED

Father and Daughter Die Together in the Garage

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—A double asphyxiation and two shooting accidents were responsible for four of the six accidental deaths reported in Ontario over the week-end. Electrocution caused another death and the sixth was that of a girl, who fell from a moving automobile.

Dead are Roland D. Jarvis prominent London dentist, and his 20-year-old daughter, Beatrice, were found dead in their car in their garage late last night by Miss Bertha Jarvis, sister of the doctor. The couple had gone for a ride and when they failed to return Miss Jarvis began a search, which ended with the discovery of the bodies. It was believed the doctor and his daughter were talking and the fumes overcame them before they were aware of any danger.

Thomas McKinstry, 41, Arnprior, Ont., was shot through the forehead yesterday while hunting near Parkenham, the gun being discharged when his companion Allan White, 18, was crossing a fallen log with a heavy pail of water, attempted to switch his burdens from one hand to another.

The second shooting accident occurred near Bowanville where 15-year-old Arthur R. Lewis was shot through the head in the presence of his father, Arthur Rochett, brother-in-law of Lewis, was shooting at the latter's hat as he tossed it in the air and the boy was said to have stepped in front of the gun as the trigger was pulled.

Clyde Ashburn, 31-year-old married man of Port Burwell, suffered fatal burns when he touched a live high voltage wire while climbing a tree near his home yesterday. He fell to the ground, a distance of 15 feet. Resuscitation efforts by Hydro experts proved unavailing.

Miss Bernice Pickering, 20, of Brantford, died in hospital last night two hours after falling out of the front seat of a car in which she was riding with Bert Warren, also of Brantford. The door opened in the automobile manner and the girl toppled out, striking her head on the pavement.

Prohibited From Using Deadly Tanks, Germany Prepares to Combat Them

Reich's Inventive Genius Leads Militarists to View Tank Obsolete

By CHARLES L. FLICK

Central Press Canadian Writer

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The tank is an obsolete weapon!

Germany has completed the development in a number of deadly new weapons which, in the opinion of the reich's military experts, make the tank of the standard type useless in modern warfare.

The deadly new type of anti-tank gun, invented by German engineers, together with bombing planes, flame throwers, new type hand-grenades, poison gas and high voltage electric rays have, in the opinion of German military authorities, made the hitherto much-feared tank an obsolete weapon in a future war.

Tanks Are Barred.

Germany is prohibited by the Versailles treaty from building virtually every weapon which, in 1918 when the world war was drawn up, was considered by the Allied military authorities to be of use in aggressive warfare. Among the things forbidden to Germany are tanks. Germany does not possess a single one.

But even if the reich were permitted to construct tanks, it probably would not build any.

In entering the Versailles treaty, one very important factor was overlooked. It was forgotten that, if a nation with the inventive genius that the reich possesses is robbed of one weapon it will probably will buckle down and invent a new one to take the place of the one it is now impossible. This is what Germany during the past fourteen years has done.

Germany, since the war has strained every nerve to solve her one great military problem: How can the enemy's superiority of armament be overcome?

Many Tanks Built.

The tank, up to now, has generally been considered one of the deadliest weapons ever invented. Its effectiveness has been lauded repeatedly by the greatest army experts. Millions are being spent each year in the construction of vast tank fleets.

Yet General Kurt von Schleicher, while still minister of defence, once declared, "If I had all the money available I would build a single tank, because I consider this weapon to be obsolete." He did not reveal the reason why the tank could not be antiquated, but the enigmatical statement has remained three years, clearly showed that he was losing no time worrying over the tanks of his neighbors.

Now an article appearing in the German military periodical, Wehr und Waffen, appears to lift the veil of mystery surrounding the general Schleicher's words. In this article it is frankly stated that the striking power of the modern tank has been completely offset by other instruments of warfare."

A New Gun.

One of these "instruments", the article states, is the new German anti-tank gun.

The "tak"—as the new gun is commonly called—is not only expected to bet far superior to the tank of today," the periodical declares. "Its superiority is already established by the fact that it fires from a fixed point whereas the tank moves. The gun's accuracy of firing therefore is greater. Also, an area of 2,000 feet the 'tak' is able to register direct hits with every shot. Moreover, the tank is far more vulnerable and larger than the small anti-tank gun."

It is learned that this new German gun is automatic, fires with tremendous velocity, has a range of two centimetres and is extremely small and easy to handle and transport.

"Another, effective weapon," the article goes on to say, "is the hand grenade. Hurled in bunches of five they are disastrous, practically."

"The flame thrower, too, can disable a tank as soon as the latter moves within its range, which is from 90 to 150 feet. The tank gasoline literally bursts into flames, the moment a flash strikes it.

"Poison gas naturally makes it very hard for the tank crew difficult. While the tank has the advantage of being able to pass through a cloud of gas with considerable speed, the least opening may prove disastrous. Therefore poison gas is most effective only after a direct hit has been registered.

"Airplanes equipped with machine guns and heavy bombs are also an effective counter weapon to hold off the heavy encircling tank fleets. The incendiary bomb is especially deadly."

But perhaps the most interesting gas yet invented is one described by the periodical. It is the anti-tank gas which Professor Karl Hoffmann, famous scientist of the Kaiser Wilhelm Technology in Berlin, discovered recently.

According to Professor Hoffmann, it is able to fix any combustion motor, the moment the least particle of it is sucked in by the carburetor. The effect is purely chemical one. Once the slightest quantity of the gas has entered the cylinders of the motor, further explosions within them are impossible. The whole motor must be taken apart and the cylinders carefully removed before it can be used again.

Effect of Gas.

Professor Hoffmann described the chemical process that takes place when the mysterious gas enters the cylinders of the motor to me as follows: "The gas is not an explosive. It interrupts the chain of explosive combustion that keeps a hot every motor in which the gas has penetrated."

The famous scientist envisages a wave of such gas, which would bring a whole fleet of charging tanks to an abrupt stop.

Other methods of applying the new gas, it is reported, are being investigated. It is said to believe the gas can in some way be employed effectively against airplanes whose motors, it is pointed out, would be especially susceptible to it.

World Reaction to Bolt by Germany

(By the Canadian Press)

World reaction to Germany's bolt from the League of Nations and the Arms Conference.

London—Newspapers urged Great Britain to remain cool, insisting that peace was not necessarily threatened.

Urging denunciation of the Locarno Peace Pact, Lord Beaverbrook reminded that it bound France under certain conditions to demand British support in military movements against Germany.

Paris—"The situation is grave," said a foreign office spokesman, "but France is keeping cool." Official silence was expected to be maintained for several days. Significantly Ministers of Pensions Edouard Daladier and Albert Sarraut despite the need for economy, "The budget for national defence will not be touched."

Rome—Some delegates at Geneva expressed the opinion Italy might have known beforehand of Germany's plans to withdraw, but official sources at Rome affirmed their complete and sincere surprise. "Although unexpected," said the official news agency, Stefani, "the decisions taken by the German government were learned with greatest calm."

Washington—Secretary of State Cordell Hull placed the blame for impending world progress toward disarmament squarely up to the Reich. Senator William E. Borah said "we are facing the possibility of another war."

Moscow—Although "not all neighbors of the Soviety country are carrying on a policy of peace," said Vyacheslaf Molotoff, president of the Council of Commissars, "Russia is not considering negotiations for 'real disarmament'."

Tokyo—The Japanese army and navy ask in Germany's stand a "clincher" for contentions for a 1934 military budget for the next two years.

Budapest—Rumors spread after Hungarian cabinet meeting that the country was leaving the League of Nations, but there was no verification. The official statement merely was that the body "took decisions."

HINDENBURG MAY RESIGN

Providing Hitler Given Endorsement at Nov. 12 Election

(By Louis P. Lochner)

Berlin, Oct. 16 (AP)—When the German nation marches to the polls November 12 perhaps to give Chancellor Adolf Hitler unanimous endorsement, it may ultimately put an end to the German presidency.

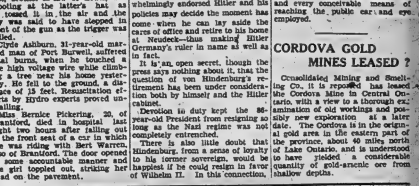
Many indications point to the fact that President von Hindenburg, after the nation has overwhelmingly endorsed Hitler and his policies may decide the moment has come when he can lay aside the cares of office and retire to his home at Neudeck—thus making Hitler Germany's ruler in name as well as in fact.

It is an open secret, though the press says nothing about it, that the question of von Hindenburg's retirement has been under consideration both by himself and the Hitler cabinet.

Devotion to duty kept the 86-year-old President from resigning as long as the Nazi regime was not completely entrenched.

There is also little doubt that Hindenburg, from a sense of loyalty to his former sovereign, would be the girl toppled out, striking her happiest if he could resign in favor of Wilhelm II. In this connection, the recent visit of Crown Prince Frederick William to Neudeck was much commented upon in political circles.

Monarchy Not Wanted



Among Nazi storm troopers, however, who are the backbone of the Hitler movement, there is little enthusiasm for a monarchy.

In the forthcoming Reichstag election campaign, called for when the German government withdrew from both the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference, the presidency question naturally will not even be mentioned.

The election will be focused solely on foreign policy. Thronged off by rallies, parades and blasting posters, the publicity campaign was in full swing within a few hours after Germany's stand on the league and disarmament became known. Thousands of meetings were advertised and every nonetable means of reaching the public ear and eye employed.

CORDOVA GOLD MINES LEASED ?

THE GERMAN BOLT

No doubt since Saturday many Germans have been seeing in vision the thing about which some of them have been dreaming since 1918, when they signed on the dotted line to end the war. That war does not end war and that the defeated cannot but rankle with the wounds and cuts into the thin skin of national pride is realized now, though in the Great War days there was such talk of "war to end war." Undoubtedly the Junker Class, the military party feels its pulse beat a little more steadily ... ing sweeter music since Hitler made his declaration on Saturday.

Whatever is in the back of the German's head or in that of the party or class behind him, the world has had a weekend to think it out, and there is no menace to peace. Fortunately Britain, as usual, preserves an atmosphere of calmness, but France is not so settled.

The German people have always been looked upon as patient and obedient to authority, (of course, German authority.) Just how long they will endure the Hitler form of government which must be marked by dynamite efforts and electric shocks from the stolid Germans, no one knows. Hitler has been compared with Mussolini, but the comparison is false, for whatever Mussolini is, he is, at least, a man of remarkable parts, and gifted with constructive gifts. Either by reason of his own greatness or by reason of circumstances he can avoid irritating the rest of the world in the way which seems peculiar to Hitler.

The Austrian paperhanger is playing for big stakes, to impress first of all Germany and probably the rest of the great powers. One editor commenting upon his rise says that it is more remarkable than that of Napoleon, the Corsican, in France, but denies that Hitler has the mental equipment to deal with the intricate industrial, commercial and financial problems of the world in the twentieth century, for he rode to power on the hatred of the Allies, and not on any constructive idea.

Germany's decision to withdraw from the League has the statesmen of the world now busied trying to iron out differences, a problem which if it is to be settled, would be a giant step forward. While this is being done, Germany is assured by the rest of the world that her charges of insincerity against the Great Powers are not founded in fact.

TALK OF BEER AND WINE

It is stated that if the Premier of the province goes to the country with a beer and wine policy, the Liberal party will also have a beer and wine policy for the consideration of the electors. Should this be the case the contest will be more than ordinarily interesting since the Liquor Control Act legislation was introduced about seven years ago.

Of course the question about which the electors are thinking just now is this—what, if any, will be the policy of the present government? The Premier has hinted that something of the kind will be submitter at the next general election.

If he is to be true and vigilant, there is no doubt that less interest will focus on the other matters of government, for the liquor question has the faculty of absorbing interest almost entirely.

LATE ARTHUR HAWKES

The late Arthur Hawkes, who visited Belleville during the reciprocity campaign in 1911, is still remembered by a number of persons in Belleville, who attended the meeting when he spoke on behalf of the "British-born." He was trained in the best school of English Liberal journalism, the Manchester Guardian, and possessed remarkable gifts, which, however, did not reach their full growth even in his land of opportunity. Liberals could not understand a Liberal of his stamp opposing reciprocity. He did not play a prominent part again until he tried to found a new party.

The editor of the London Advertiser says that there should have been a place in journalism for such a powerful writer, but that he never found it whether through illuck, circumstances, or the aggressively personal note in his writings. "He was a man of warm affections and a stimulating conversationalist. No one could know him without learning from him."

WITHIN THE DREAM

In truth, I know I cannot mold
Life's ways to my desire;
Else could you know the hopes I hold,
My vision's flower and fire!

Could you but glimpse the loveliness
Which is my goal and guide,
Like shine and sheen of April's dress,
Like sunset on the tide;

You, too, would then forget the care,
The burden of the day
Could you in this rich dower share
Of glory's hidden way!

The world, perhaps, must laugh at me,
The dreamer passing by,
With spirit drenched in ecstasy
And rapt, unseeing eye.

But though I know I cannot mold
Earth's ways to my desire,
I dwell within the dreams I hold,
My vision's flower and fire!

OF THE MAKING OF BOOKS there is no end, said a philosopher, and the same holds good of newspapers and magazines, every little while some new publication begins to appeal to some phase of public interest—some live, repute, but the world goes on with new ideas and new publications being born without end. Therefore, when a publication announces the newest infant in black and white to invade this office with a "Hail, Fellow, Well Met" — meet (CANADIAN RADIO, dated Belleville, Ontario, October, 1933, published in the interest of folks interested in what makes radio go 'round, radio amateurs, operators, experimenters, servicemen, technicians, engineers. Canadian Radio is said to be the first of the kind printed in Canada and fills a need, according to its promoters, because radio conditions are vitally different in Canada than in the United States, where they have publications representing every phase of human endeavour. Canadian Radio No. 1 introduces itself very modestly, asking the interested co-operation of all radio experimenters, engineers and technicians, is neatly printed and made up, published monthly by the Canadian Radio Publishing Company, with publication office at Deseronto and editorial office at Belleville—John A. Dewar, editor, and Maurice L. Detlor, publisher. In an appeal for subscriptions the publishers state: "If at the end of a year you are not satisfied, write in your complaint on the back of a one-cent stamp and your money will be refunded." A sporting offer, surely.

THAT GERMANY IS STILL A MENACE to the peace of the world is evidenced by the voiced opinions of observers recently returned from abroad. Among them R. B. Bennett, addressing the students of the University of Alberta, said that in Germany "militarism is still the most military power that might theaten the peace of the world, was in the making, and where, he had been told, students who disagreed with the policies of the powers-that-be were kept within barbed wire enclosures.

FORTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS and three hundred human lives annually is the fire loss of the Dominion of Canada, according to insurance statistics, which is the principal reason why Fire Prevention Week is observed. It is estimated that 80 per cent. of the fires occur through ignorance and neglect and are therefore preventable—hence it is highly desirable that a week be set aside to concentrate thought on the prevention of fires. Be careful of lighted matches, cigarettes and cigars—take no chances with fire which is deadly and devastating once its gets the upper hand—and all fires originate in a spark; easily controllable in its incipiency.

RELYING ON ADVERTISING

In his campaign to stimulate business in the United States by a "Now is the time to buy" campaign, Hugh S. Johnson, director of the National Recovery Act, is calling direct attention to the part which advertising must play in such a campaign. In a message to United States manufacturers, urging them to bend every effort towards increasing distribution of their products, he says: "American industry must look to the public to find the goods it needs. The American public looks to advertising for news of good merchandise and good value.

In order to increase sales at the present moment, we believe that two courses of action are absolutely essential. They are: First, give the public attractive, up-to-date merchandise, fairly priced, and second, aggressively promote your products to the public.

"Advertising, both by national firms and by distributors and retailers, is the chief instrument the administration has chosen to push the buying campaign."

SKIN BEAUTY POSSIBLE TO EVERY WOMAN

Skin Must Be Always Thought of As Organ of the Body

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Personality

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

It may seem a strong statement to say that every woman can have a beautiful skin. This, however, is true.

I believe you will readily agree that this is possible when you consider the skin from the physiological point of view and in relation to the other organs of the body and stop considering it merely as a covering for the body without an internal function.

Remember always that the skin is an organ equal in importance to the lungs, kidneys, heart, liver and to any of the rest of them. The state of these organs influences the state of the skin. Conversely, the condition of the skin has its effects on the health of the body.

After all, the skin is an organ of elimination as well as a protective covering. Its structure is a complicated one and it contains millions of sweat glands, nerve endings and hair follicles. Particularly must the sweat glands be kept open if the body is going to be able to do its work unless heat and moisture. And the best way of aiding this process, which is a kind of breathing, is to keep the skin clean.

Many complexions leave much to be desired for the simple reason that they never get beyond soap and water.

Such people are not necessarily unclean or careless. But they actually believe that soap and water is all that is needed when they do use them they are mighty careful to wash it off either on the face.

Although the face may not be visibly moist or greasy there is, nevertheless, a certain amount of elimination via its pores. This combined with dust, face powders, cosmetics and other of the like, readily makes a kind of paste on the skin that clogs, hampers the normal functioning of the skin. The inevitable results are blackheads, pimples, discolorations and other blemishes.

Olive oil face a good wash with lukewarm, soft water, a bland soap, and a face cloth not too rough, is therefore essential. Further, always keep the skin that way —that is, clean—during the night. Another thing that often happens is none too much before powder and other adjuncts to beauty are used.

Daily bathing of the entire skin surface is also necessary. A hot tub with plenty of soap once a day when conditions are such that skin is thick and oily when twice a week will suffice. Use a good cold shower on the other days if advisable.

In any rate, never forget that when the body skin as such is kept clean and the pores are not encased, it directly influences the health of the skin on the face.

Other requisites for a lovely skin are plenty of exercise and fresh air. al elimination. Here fresh fruits and greens are necessary and plenty of water between meals.

Daily exercise in the open air, from eight to nine hours of sound sleep, open windows in the bedroom, no smoking or intoxicating drinking are all highly important as well. And last, but not least, a good vegetable complexion soap. Be sure you free your mind from worry or other conflicts.

Cosmetics are useful. They should never be employed, however, to cover up skin defects. First get a healthy skin; only use cosmetics to heighten its attractiveness if, indeed, that will then be necessary.

For a beautiful skin patience is required as well as scrupulous care. A few weeks of right living, however, make a tremendous difference.

TRAFFIC TIED UP DUE TO LOW WATER

Local Boat Owners State Same Condition: Dam

Kingston, Oct. 16—St. Lawrence River water levels which have dropped rapidly practically paralyzing river traffic, continued to hover near all-time low mark today. Many boats, large and small were tied up or anchored at either end of the canal at Cardinal awaiting for more water to rise. Only boats able to navigate the St. Lawrence to Montreal are lighter laden grain and bulk freighters.

General freight have also been affected by the unprecedented drop in lake levels. Old time weathermen declare that the level of the present harbor is lower than for seven years. Decidedly difficulty is experienced by many in getting their boats in and out of boat houses on the waterfront.

If you are tired, run-down, below-par, try a "blood tested" remedy

IF YOU are pale, thin-blooded, weak, anaemic, you are invited to read about this offer.

On November 9th, 1932, a certain woman was given a blood test by a hospital specialist. The test showed a low haemoglobin content of the blood. Her blood was one count of red blood corpuscles.

Improvement In One Month

The patient was given Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, two pills three times a day. These pills introduce the formula of this preparation and contain a safe and efficient one for the purpose. On December 19th, one month after the first blood test, a similar blood test showed a low haemoglobin content of the blood. There was one count of red blood corpuscles.

Remarkable Results

"Blood tests" made recently on a number of these "blood tested" anaemic patients, whose names and records are also on file, prove that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are very effective builders of rich blood. In many cases the results have been remarkable. There is nothing so surprise in the proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their fame is full of letters of appreciation in different parts of the world reporting remarkable results from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Any record you may have personally on the market for 40 years and has attained its sale in 46 countries most-in an effective one.

A Different Person In 30 Days

If you are pale, tire easily, lack your old-time pep and energy, don't let things go on and soon become seriously anaemic, weakened, run-down and unfit for work. Start right now to build up your haemoglobin content with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—the "blood tested" proven preparation for run-down conditions. You'll feel a different person in 30 days —and if by that time you are not fully back to normal, you will be eager to continue the treatment until you are.

The sure test of the effectiveness of any preparation is the treatment of anaemia run-down conditions is in its power to build up the haemoglobin content of the blood. Dr. Williams' haemoglobin a red blood corpuscle is worthless. The sale reason why a red blood corpuscle's existence is to serve as a rich, pure haemoglobin content.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by druggists or may be had direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Weddings

YARDY—POMEROY

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Moodie Cottage on Saturday at five o'clock when a goodly number of personal friends gathered in the spacious drawing room to witness the impressive ceremony, when Mr. Wilfred Yardy, son of Mr. Edward Yardy of Trenton and Miss Miriam May Belle Pomeroy, daughter of Mr. Harry Pomeroy, made the solemn promise to each other, "Till death us do part".

The bride who was given away by her brother carried a beautiful bouquet. Miss Viola Hesach was the charming bridesmaid and Mr. James Gilbert Brooks of Trenton, was best man. The ceremony was performed by Reverend Albert J. Geen. Mr. and Mrs. Yardy will reside in Trenton.

Beauty .... By Helen Jameson

Every Woman Has Undiscovered Beauty Qualities

"It pays to march out and buy beauty advice," says a woman. "I lived to be forty years old, didn't know I had a pretty mouth until a facial operator touched it lightly with lipstick and outlined it delicately. Then and there I soply consented to thirty-five birthdays and got away with it.

"The idea came to me that maybe I had other undiscovered gold mines. I skimped and saved until I could patronize a dressmaker who had made a reputation for herself. What do you think? She went into fits about my handsome back. She made me a frock that showed it up. Dont' think I haven't remembered. Nobody could bribe me to wear one of those pillow-case coats the girls were strutting round in last summer. No siree! I've got to have lines now!"

Some women are unaware of beauty material others make the mistake of calling attention to bad features. We are thinking now of the femme with rather unlikeness-ing eyes who piles shadows and mascara and accentuates them. Let her concentrate on hair or chin or lovely complexion and the eyes will pass all right. She may touch them up a bit help a little. But overpaying is hard beauty policy.

Fluffy hair that is bouffant and wiry is often regarded as a curse upon one. Yet, what magic can be wrought when a skilful hair special-ist nips through it with his clever scissors brings order out of chaos, smooths it into elegance with a wide-lined finger wave. That materia fon' loveliness is there. All wasted until it is put under re-tention.

Teeth that are not up to beauty par are made noticeable by the too lavish use of lipstick. Better lip tips go natural and settle down to emphasizing a mere attractive feature. It's a gift to know where and when to stop playing the beautifying game. Takes brains and the seeing eye.

Most unfortunate are women who suffer from color blindness. A world of riches is there for the taking, yet instead of selecting rich tints that will glorify them they cling ever to the dismal greys and browns which endanger them. An appreciation of color, an understanding of artificial lights are valuable assets in this matter of building up a charming ensemble.

Hints of nondescript hues, like those vapid mouse and drab shades, is not hopeless. If locks are of lustrous surface, good quality and texture with suitability they are at ease, and can be put through rinsing processes that glorify them.

May we add that many a pretty throat is undiscovered because of poor posture that make collar bones prominent? Really, every plain woman should go through an intensive self-analyzi, now and then. Ugly ducklings do go swanish. Lots of times.

Mission Society Thanksgiving

Place of Women in Missionary Work Is Pointed Out

The annual Women's Missionary Society Thanksgiving Service was observed in Centenary United Church on Sunday morning, with the Minister, Rev. I. B. Naylor, conducting the service. In addition to members of the W.M.S., the Mission Circle, C.G.I.T., and Mission Band were well represented. Taking as his text "With the Women," Acts 1-14, Mr. Naylor showed how women played a large part in inspiring Jesus during the days of his fleah. "We can never forget," he continued "that women were the last at the Cross and first at the grave." On the Day of Pentecost women received the highest gift of God on the same basis as men. The Charter of Women's Rights was written. The W.M.S. is a recognition of the same Christian principle, that to women, and of her rightful place in the life of the Church, and now after half a century of work, the W.M.S. has grown into a membership of a few hundreds to many thousands. From an income of a few dollars a year, to over a million. From a staff of a few missionary teachers a great host of teachers, evangelists, doctors, with schools, churches and hospitals in four great continents.

Special music was rendered by the choir, with Mrs. M. P. Duff at the organ.

Advice to the Lovelorn

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I wonder if you've ever had a letter from happier girls than I? I'm going to marry the very best boy as the old ballad has it, in six weeks. I was terribly in love, and so unhappy because I thought he didn't care about me; then I discovered he did—so do you wonder that life seems beautiful to me?

I want this happiness to continue. I pray every night that it may. I want to do the right thing always and yet I don't want to be one of those silly women who is always quoting "my husband" and making him absurd. I want to be a real companion.

My parents are both dead and I've never had a real home. So can imagine how I'm looking forward to one of my very own.

—Barbara.

"Congratulations, my dear girl, on your happiness. As a world of you, it is something more about your fiance? What tastes you have in common? What are the backbone of any relationship—tastes and interests in common means companionship. That's why people marry—because they're lonely, and feel the need of companionship.

So if your "True Love" likes the out-of-doors and you're a reading, or listening to the radio, and he not, or vice versa, that's one of these things, please affect an intelligent interest. Solomon say about "food and raimen", when he bade us "consider the lilies of the field"? Surely a wife is entitled to more than food and clothing, and she is a hopelessly woman and doesn't "go dot to heaven" as will make of her home a real refuge for her man from the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune".

I seem to be giving you plenty of quotations and I'll give you one key to the wisdom of the ages.

And a husband has every reason to expect real tenderness from his wife; a genuine kiss when he leaves in the morning and returns at evening. And please don't do this as if you were painting more on your made-up mouth (if your mouth is made up) than you were of that real pledge of devotion.

The other day I saw a friend of mine kiss her husband as if she were a poll parrot pecking at a cracker. I couldn't bear looking at her then! That last lipstick I bought was not kiss-proof," she said.

And I didn't wonder at certain thing about that husband.

So please do not be miserly in your appreciation of your husband. Occasionally tell him something nice about himself. If he has a little honest pride in his muscles, figure, hair, manly brow or hands, tell him about them. If you don't some other woman will! They're walking, these ladies we call vamps for any little oversight on your part, and the chance to prove how much more appreciative they are.

And to be square about money. It's terribly hard to earn these days. If you feel entitled to go to the movies, please go, but don't charge it up to steak and potatoes.

And remember if you find the daily routine of keeping house a bit tiresome, that his job of holding on in the "battle of trade" is even harder. For man's life outside is a clash-thrust competition, and his home is a place to "knit up the ravelled sleeve of care".

There I go, quoting again!

Baptists Hold Rally Banquet

A very pleasant time was spent at the Annual Rally Banquet, held in the Sunday School rooms of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Friday evening.

At 6.30 over two hundred sat down to the tables laden with good things to eat.

A splendid programme was enjoyed with Mr. P. C. MacLaurin acting as chairman.

Prayer—Mr. Looker.
Sing-song led by Mr. Bray.
Recitation—Miss Jean Cook.
Song—Primaries and Beginners.
Quartette—Mrs. Doolittle, Mrs. Welbanks, Mr. Cook and Mr. Wilson.
Piano solo—Mr. Alec Gordon.
Vocal solo—Mr. Allan Wilson.
Reading—Mrs. Campbell.

Rev. Mr. Jones pastor of the church was called upon to make a presentation of a Scofelield Bible to Mr. and Mrs. Looker from the members of the church, in appreciation of their loyal devotion and service during their long residence in Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Looker who are moving to make their home in Montreal, expressed their regret in leaving the city and their kind friends here.

Miss Mildred Lloyd on behalf of the Live Wires Class presented Fred Looker with a gift in remembrance of his faithful attendance in the Sunday-school.

Mr. Berry moved a vote of thanks to the ladies who prepared the excellent banquet.

Mr. Jones closed in prayer.

58 YEARS AS SCHOOL MARM

Napanee, Oct. 16 — Continuous teaching in the Napanee public schools for 58 years is the notable record of Miss Jessie Mair, who in 1875 began a teaching career in a little school in Sheffield Township, near Tamworth. Other rural engagements were fulfilled, and in 1881 she was appointed to the staff of Napanee public schools, where she remained until her retirement last June.

In recognition of these years of service and loyal citizenship, the Board of Education and teachers of the school, with other prominent citizens, met last week in the school hall, where Miss Mair was given a gold wrist watch from the Board of Education and a Crown Derby tea set from the teachers. Alpine Woods, who for over 20 years has been chairman of the Board, made the presentation. M. R. Reid, inspector, and a former pupil of Miss Mair, spoke briefly on behalf of the inspectors.

It is generally conceded that the greater part of the population of Napanee was at one time or another taught by Miss Mair, who, with a record of 58 years' teaching, is the undisputed dean of Lennox and Addington County "school mams." It is probable this great term of service, devoted entirely to child education, is unbroken in the province.

POISON SPRAY USED ON EATEN BROCCOLI

Los Angeles, Oct. 16—(AP)—Seven persons were in hospitals today, three of them in an extremely critical condition, and several others were being treated in there homes as the result of eating poisoned food served at a Sunday dinner at a fashionable Monica Beach Club.

Police physicians diagnosed the cases as poisoning resulting from the eating of broccoli which had been sprayed with a poison by the grower to kill plant pests.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Important Operators, As Well As Public, Out of Market Because of Spotty European Picture — Stocks Break Sharply in Toronto Around Noon — One to Two Point Loss Being Recorded.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 16—(AP)—Modified financial meeting today represented basically few abrupt price trend indications and trading generally hinged cases of individual buying for developments.

Transactions in stocks were at a minimum and most leading issues displayed a sagging tendency. Rubber rails and various industrials were quite heavy at times, due principally to the widening of the gap between bids and offers. Important operators, as well as the public, were reported out of the market. The spotty European picture apparently was a contributing factor, although not particularly disturbing for the moment.

Shares of McIntyre, Dome, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were off fractionally to around a point. On the curb Hiram Walker Gold Mines was sharply slipped, below previous closing prices. Dominion Government issues held unchanged while the 4's-4-ies eased 1-4 point. The Canadian dollar lost 3-16 of a cent at 96.56¾ cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, October 16—(CP)—Mining shares continued the rounding off movement which got under way last week, prices at noon today showing losses to $1.50 among the active leaders. Local weakness was communicated to the standard list mainly through the shares listed in New York, where many issues were on a stronger U.S. dollar.

Some of the junior Gold Shares recovered a little before noon. McIntyre and Dome had losses of $1.50 at the end of the first hour but at noon the former was down only $1 and the latter 75 cents. Hollinger weakened 30 cents and Lake Shore 50 cents.

Nickel alone of the Base Metal group was inclined to firmness. It ranged 36 cents in the early transactions but soon stiffened and at noon was holding at $18, Noranda dropped 50 cents.

The drop in prices started from the opening, but depression in the gold group appearing as a natural reaction to the drop of three shillings in the price of fine gold in London. Recessions ranging up to $3 a share in the first three hours of trading for Dome, McIntyre, Preston East Dome, Hollinger and Hudson Bay.

In the Base Metals issues were less severe with mid-afternoon except in Noranda which lost $2. Nickel was comparatively steady, hauling its loss to 50 cents in the first three hours.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—Prices were generally lower from the opening today and at noon the Toronto gains and about 40 recessions. Weakness in New York inspired considerable selling at sagging quotations. A mild rally at the end of the first hour made little headway although Nickel held its recovery to $18 against a morning low of 18.85.

Weakness was more definite in the interlisted group. C.P.R. at 12 2-4 was down 3-4. Brazilian dropped a half point to 13 1-4 and Ford of Canada, at 5 3-4 was off 1-4. Smelters weakened a fair points.

In the Distillery group Walkers common eased back to 44 2-4, down 1 1-4 while Distillers Seagram was down more than a half point to 30 1-2.

Weakness in the market was evidently due entirely to the break here today were: gains were confined to a few issues. Base Metals pulled extras down 19c; eggs seconds (wrecked) down 16c; churning cream, No. 2 B 19c; churning cream, No. 3 B 18c; butter, No. 1 solids 24 1-2c; butter, No. 2 butter solids 23 1-2c.

Ontario Cobbler potatoes, per bag 80 cents.

Dressed: nominal price on handpicked white beans, in carlots, f.o.b. at point of shipment 90 cents.

FARM PRODUCE IN WINDOWS

Ontario Products Week to Stimulate and Help Consumption

Fresh products of the farms and fields of this county will be given prominent display in downtown merchants' windows this week, on observance of "Ontario Farm Products Week," sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and observed by municipalities throughout the Province.

Under the direction of Mr. Joseph Wilson, district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and assisted by the local Chamber of Commerce, local merchants have already commenced the work of trimming their windows with typical products of Ontario farms. The movement is sponsored by the department in an effort to stimulate the consumption and use of home products.

Windows will be awarded points according to prominence and attractiveness of displays and will be judged by municipal representatives. Literature and advertising matter is to be obtained from the local Chamber of Commerce promineni in the windows.

Rules are simple and include only the showing of products of Ontario origin. Prizes will be open also to all retail merchants.

MONTREAL AND OTTAWA TEAMS TO BE FEARED

Both Show Strength in Disposing of Argos and Tigers

QUEEN'S WINS

'Varsity Swamps Western and Looks Like the Team to Beat

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 16—(CP)—The eastern football problem was beaten down today to a straight open-and-shut, two-and-two-make-four proposition. If it turns out the answer isn't four then a great many people —particularly a great many people around Barrie and Montreal—will be somewhat shocked.

Only way and anything the chief fish in the Interprovincial Union became a two-team affair Saturday as the first members of the eastern section clubs surviving a twin raid. Montreal agreed a touchdown after two forward passes by Carl Perina had opened the way and defeated Hamilton Tigers, 7-0.

Not only are Ottawa Roughriders a strong force—Vic Ghezzi, lucky crew. Which was perhaps just as well Saturday, when Toronto Argonauts beat Wally Masters' team back to their goal-line twice and from these scoring chances scored nothing while the fortunate opposition scored six. Ottawa, 18-6.

No team ever paid more dearly for fumbles than Argos. Only the Ottawa one-yard line in the second quarter, the Scullers pulled themselves together for a major score that would at least tie the count; and possibly send them into the lead. Big Tommy Burns fumbled as he hit an unyielding Roughrider line, the loose ball was scooped up by Andy Toomey and the slim young Ottawa backfield tossed the 110 yards—count 'em—for a touchdown.

There were other decisive blows struck in the tilting here, and there but none was nearly as damaging as the Tommy dash. When it seemed the score just had to be satisfactorily read Argos 8, Ottawa 7, special Ottawans looked on a card, that read: Ottawa 13, Argos 2.

Overnight Sensation

Tommy, an overnight sensation beside such sons as Abe Eliowitz and Lorne Johnson, was on the receiving end of a Johnson pass of 45 yards in the first quarter to score the other Roughrider touchdown. Teddy Morris, Burns and Jack Taylor played starring roles for Argos but the Scullers missed the mighty boot of Ab Box, who may be back in harness next week.

Huck Welch and Frank Turville staged a brilliant punting duel in Montreal, the wingmen struggling valiantly in mid-field up and down the stage and both sides watched for the breaks. But the good right arm of Perina finally tipped the scales. The former University of Pennsylvania ace tossed for three passes, the present Wheeler's deep into Hamilton territory in the second and Bolen scrambled over for a touchdown himself.

It was the only major count of the gruelling battle. Turville kicked every Tiger point, Welch added a field goal from placement early in the first period.

Smasher Outstanding

Led by the veteran Jack Sinclair, who ran a fleet Western backfield into exhaustion chasing his towering punts and nosed two touchdowns, University of Toronto's intercollegiate champions completed the Western trio from London 21-1 to move into the lead in the collegiate division.

Sinclair was the outstanding player on the field in his passes made fewer blunders than in inexperienced, uncertain Saturday last. Nothing more was needed to make victory certain.

At Kingston, Ted Reeve's Queen's team had to play sound defensive football to win 8-2 over Bob Snider's McGill. The Redmen made a brilliant stand before going down to their second straight defeat.

Sarnia Imperials, not faltering but hardly impressive, were what should, took a 17-1 decision from St. Michael's College at Hamilton ed the odds, that they will capture the O.R.F.U. title for the third straight season. Norman Perry, Peet backfielder, ran 85 yards through a broken field in the third quarter for the only feature of a game in which the home collegians put up a strong stand.

Balmy Beach surprised a Hamilton crowd with a shutout victory that netted them a 15-8 win over the Tigers that may spell doom to second place in the Ontario Union standings.

TORONTO VARSITY SWAMPS WESTERN TO TAKE LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Toronto Varsity took undisputed lead in the Intercollegiate group on Saturday, October 14, by decisively defeating Western University's Mustangs 21-3 at Toronto. The above illustration shows a concentrated attack by Varsity on the Western line. Just after the picture was taken, Varsity plunged over for a touchdown. Meanwhile McGill was losing surprisedly, to Queen's.

CURRENT SPORT

Following the defeat of the Belleville Collegiate seniors one week ago Saturday Coach Shiels informed us his charges would be "in there" before the schedule terminated. Judging from the shellacking they gave "Nez" Legge's squad of grabbers at Peterboro on Saturday last Mr. Shiels knows his football.

From what we can gather, although we, and yes, the locals assumed the offensive from the start and never gave the Petes an opportunity to become the aggressor, Apparently Vimmie Fellwell's trusty boys were working overtime as his kicking was deadly all during the contest. The return of Mayo "Tarzan" Rigby worked wonders with the local's Nez of scrimmage, they seemed to have more pep and initiative in their work than heretofore. Rigby sadly lacked confidence, however, but his 25 yard try was undoubtedly the feature play of the day, not discounting Fellwell's kicking or Hillen's good work.

In all fairness to Coach Legge and the Petes, we should inform the fans that Westby, their star kicker, was not available owing to illness. We do not imagine that Westby's presence would have made up the difference that separated the two squads on Saturday even if he had played. These Petes can save three forward passes, we understand.

Providing Coach Shiels can induce about ten more of last year's champions to return to his old position in the line—new guys will be "watch the tri-color again in 1933."

Some time this week the hockey schedule for the Kingston City League is to be released. Manager Walter Pattison is endeavouring to arrange a couple of practice games for his local Clinic Service champions before they start the long pre-season's grind. Of course these practices will be held in Kingston.

Manager Jake Yarrow and his charges leave tomorrow for Guelph where the Rocks-Church-Yaverer-Phillips outfit meet Hector "Lefty" Goldsmith in the th'rd and final game of the Intermediate O.H.A. finals. Both previous games have been out-and-out battles, there's hailing. The question now arises "which team will do the kite act?"

A few shake-ups occurred in the Canadian football games over the week end at any rate. Montreal surprised the champion Tigers by handing them a 11 to 7 beating, while Ottawa beat the great Argonauts squad 8 15 to 8 shellacking. The Intercollegiate games ran true to form with Varsity downing Western 21 to 2 and Queens eking out a 3 to 2 win over McGill.

Owners of the Montreal Maroons are trying to secure the services of "Cowboy" Welland of Ottawa and Roier Roth of Buffalo. Both are high-class centre men, and Montreal will have their troubles getting them into the fold. It is certain that Ottawa will not part with Welland unless they get an outstanding star in the deal.

Neuritis

Neuritis is an abnormal condition in the body wherein the nerve trunks, nerve fibres and nerve sheaths become inflamed. The condition may be local in varying a few nerves only, or it may be general, more or less scattered over the entire body. Should you be suffering from this very unpleasant disorder, we wish to advise that our treatments will remove the cause of this condition for you. Neuritis or inflammation of a nerve does not exist without a cause.

Head-On Tackle Tough---On Tackler, Too!

Coach Points Out the Dangers of This Method

Written especially for The Ontario Intelligencer and The Central Press

BY HERB McCRACKEN
Head Football Coach of Lafayette

THE TYPE OF TACKLE which is toughest on the tackled—AND THE TACKLER—is the head-on tackle.

It requires a strong stomach on the part of the tackled. But it also requires a strong head on the part of the tackler!

When both parties have these requirements the head-on tackle may be undertaken. But it is a dangerous business.

I mean not only dangerous for those inexperienced players, but even for the veteran college player. For any player the other methods of tackling are better in the long run.

The head-on tackle depends largely on the force of the head-on-body against ball carrier's solar plexus for its desired effect. In this respect it is much like the flying block one sees in the professional wrestling ring.

The "grunting picture" presented herewith shows the head-on tackle at its deadliest.

If the idea of tackling is to knock out the ball carrier in addition to simply downing him and bringing the advancement of the ball by the enemy to a quick conclusion — then the head-on tackle might be called an improvement over the straight shoulder tackle.

However, in most situations—including the one shown in the accompanying pictures—the shoulder tackle would have accomplished the only sportsmanlike object, that of arresting the ball carrier's progress just as effectively.

In this case there was no reason whatever for the head-on tackle—since the objective was only to down the ball carrier and keep him down until the whistle blows.

In picture No. 1 we see the tackler going into a crouch as he advances toward the ball carrier who — not seen here — is rapidly advancing from the left.

Picture No. 2 shows the impact of head against stomach. In No. 3 the tackler has grasped the ball carrier's hips. In No. 4 and No. 5 both men are falling. In No. 6 the ball carrier and tackler are down—with no one badly injured, we hope.

Dr. Mal. Stevens and Dr. William Phelps of Yale, in their book, "The Control of Football Injuries," advise against the use of the head-on tackle—in the interest of greater safety in football.

B. C. I. Defeat Peterboro in Lift Lock City 14-3 by All Round Display

Rigby's Run For Thirty-Five Yards For Touch Was Bright Spot

FOLWELL BOOTER

Forward Passing of Petes Was Their Best Weapon

Playing inspired football, the Bellville Collegiate seniors defeated the Peterboro Collegiate seniors in the Lift Lock City on Saturday last by the score of 14 to 3. The local tri-color out-played their Peterboro rivals in every department never being headed. The back field, with Virgil Jinnah Folwell, excelled themselves both on the offensive and defensive while B.C.I. line of scrimmage played errorless football, tackling and opposing end runs in a most skillful manner all during the contest.

The game saw the return of Mason "Tarzan" Rigby to the lineup and the stellar middle winger of last year's team, despite the fact he lacked condition, romped home to score the only touchdown of the day after completing a beautiful 35 yard run. Morgan, Gordon, Ketchenson and Cole also displayed the brand of football that won for the locals the C.O.S.S.A. title for last year. Weaver proved the best alternate used by Coach Shiels. One of the features of the game was the the deadly tackling of the two local outsides, McFarlane and Tennet. Both of these lads turned in stellar performances.

Captain Captain Folwell did the majority of the kicking for the locals and outbooted strongly the utilized efforts of Jopling and Marsh, who kicked for the Petes.

The home team was minus the services of their ace kicker, Westbye who was forced to witness the contest from the side lines owing to illness. Jopling, Marsh, Glover and Darcy, subs, McKone, Marrow, Young, Westby and McIntyre.

Belleville C.I.—flying wing, Cook, halves, Folwell, Reynolds, Milne, quarter Ostrom, ends Cole, Inniss, Ketcheson, McKinney, middles Morgan, Rigby, outsides, Temple and McFarlane, subs, Weaver, Johnson, Saunders, Watson, McBrinth, Andrews.

Referee, Richardson, Peterboro, umpire, Townsend, Belleville, head linesman, Hickey, Peterboro.

BOWMANVILLE BOY KILLED

William Tell Trick Is Blamed For the Fatality

Bowmanville, Oct. 16 — Shot through the head by a charge from a .22-calibre rifle in the hands of his brother-in-law, Arthur Hockett, Arthur E. Lewis, a 15-year-old Bowmanville lad, was fatally injured in the presence of his father on Saturday afternoon.

The father, son and Hockett had gone out shooting after dinner near the Goodyear plant flats and were returning when the Lewis lad is said to have challenged Hockett to hit his hat as he threw it in the air. Placing an apple in it he threw it, and Hockett fired and missed. Taking the apple out, the lad threw it in the air again, and Hockett aimed and fired as it came down. Just as he pulled the trigger, he later told Chief Constable Syndey Venlon, he saw young Lewis either step or trip in front of him, and the charge hit him just behind the temple, coming out at the back of the head.

Seeing his son fall to the ground shot, Fred Lewis fainted, and it was not until Hockett had revived him that the two were able to carry the lad half a mile to the Goodyear plant, where Dr. C. W. Slemon was called to attend him. He was taken to Bowmanville hospital, but he died seven hours later at 5 o'clock on Saturday evening. Coroner Dr. V. H. Short, after questioning the two who witnessed the accident, decided that an inquest was not necessary. Arthur Lewis, an only son, is survived by his parents and two sisters.

CELESTIAL LOSES FIANCE THROUGH ELOPEMENT

Charge of Theft Against Pair is Withdrawn

Excitement ran high and general confusion predominated in the local police court on Saturday morning and continued until long after the termination of Saturday's local court proceedings when Belleville His Worship Magistrate" Mikel dismissed Miss Celestial Hamilton and Anthony White, both of Morrisburg, young couple found themselves guilty of a charge of theft previously laid by Eddie Mann, a Chinese merchant of Belleville.

At the outset, on Friday night when Mann claimed he had been robbed, his friends rapped and and a host of other grelvances, the local police were in somewhat of a quandary. The charge against the local Celestial community consisted of the theft of a watch. Miss Woodhouse, who was enroute from Morrisburg to Toronto via Belleville, where she was to have married him on Saturday, had vanished with the watch. The watch was visiting at a local Chinese cafe. It was also discovered that the young lady in question had suddenly developed a fancy for a former beau who had followed the prospective bride-to-be's path to the "big town" from Morrisburg. Anthony White was the determined third man in the case and in the light of an impending marriage id Mann, Miss Woodhouse and White quickly got together with White.

The second episode was shortlived as Constables Evans and Taylor had fully investigated the complicated case and after sizing the situation up had the fleeing pair arrested in Toronto. When they appeared in Saturday's police court, Eddie Mann, it seems, had rejected prospective bride-groom failed to appear against the accused and they were dismissed. Mann told the police that the fleeing pair had taken $73.00 of his money. The fact was never established, however, as Mann refused to testify before His Worship. The entire bedlam of labbering Chinese was translated throughout by Constables Evans and Taylor, who finally pacified all concerned.

Pancake grinned. "That ain't nothin, kid," he said. "Watch this." He raised his fork to stamp on Vern's face.

His leg screamed and rushed to him, kicking and clawing.

Pancake struck him with the flat of his hand, knocking him against the trunk of the tree. The boy lay there whimpering.

The reptile had given Vern a chance to gather a little more strength—not much but enough to enable him to draw himself to his feet.

Pancake grinned as he turned and found Vern off the floor once more. The longer the vengeance lasted the better he liked it.

He came toward Vern. The latter tried weakly to strike at him, but never had enough strength to hold up his leaden arms and, laughing, the giant engulfed him in his ex- brace.

Vern was a limp weight in his adversary's arms. Pancake lifted him off the floor.

"Brother," he said, "you came up and now you're goin' down. The elevator is waiting, which ought to step."

Pancake had carried him to the rail. Now he swung Vern's light body over the side.

"When you get down tell 'em the kid will be along in a minute."

Enjoying the torturing fear which he was inflicting Pancake let go the support under Vern's shoulders first, supporting him for a moment head down.

"Goodbye, brother," Pancake began and then with a yell of surprise and pain slowly relaxed his hold on Vern's knee.

Sheer terror gave Vern a little more strength. Instinct made him clay out into space. His fingers clinched at something—it was one of the supports of the platform rail- ing and he hung.

Vern looked up to see what his enemy was going to do next.

The face of Pancake was leaning over toward-him.

Vern wafted for him to move, to speak.

Nothing happened except that something warm and moist began to drip on Vern's fingers.

Why he hung on Vern could not have told. Instinct to preserve life as long as possible is the sole ex- planation of the man's conduct in hopeless situations.

He could only avert death by a few moments at best. Even if a bullet from below did not kill him his grip would have to relax shortly.

There hadn't been much strength in his fingers in the first place and now he was weary beyond all him- man endurance.

His mind reeled a little. It seemed best to let go and have the agony over with.

But the fingers did not obey the decision of the brain. They clung with the will to hold on had gone.

Then suddenly they did let go.

But something had grasped him by the wrists first, something that held while his consciousness went off duty in a dead faint.

CHAPTER 35

When he came to, which was probably several minutes later, Vern found himself on the floor of the platform with Dr. Snyder and Judge Hale bending over him and applying water and brandy alter- nately, one outside and the other inside.

Vern enjoyed the blank feeling of content which accompanies return- ing consciousness for only a mo- ment. Then the tension of the sit- uation struggled back into his mind.

"Where's Pancake?" he demanded, weakly.

"Dead," Dr. Snyder volunteered and then added the details which Vern would be sure to ask for.

"Dummy shot him, trying to hit you. You climbed on and caught you just before you let go."

"Dummy is loose?" Vern ques- tioned more alertly.

"Yes. He managed to untie him- self when we were not watching him."

"Hmm. Where is he now?"

"I don't know. He started off to- ward the beach."

"Fine friend" Vern's worst fears supplied the question.

"Search," the minister admitted re- luctantly. Evidently he had not wanted to tell Vern that part yet.

That ended completely any reca- tion for Vern's mind. It came back immediately to rail chaps of its quarterdeck.

Vern struggled to a sitting posi- tion. "Give me one more drink of that brandy and we'll start down."

"Rot," protested the judge, "you ought not to try to."

"I know it, Vern brushed the ob- jection aside, "but later it won't do any good. If one of you will go down and see if there is any of the regularities in the cleats we'll start. I can make it. I've got to."

And he did. It was painful and slow work, however. His fingers, al- ready strained from the effort of holding the weight of his entire body for several minutes, felt as if they could not answer another call to duty but they did.

At the foot of the tree Mr. Mac- Leish met them.

"Ferguson followed them while I waited to see if you needed me," he explained.

"Which way?" Vern demanded. MacLeish pointed.

If was the Arabs who had frightened Blake's horse "These be Saracens!" gasped Ouhaida. "Me likes not the way they look at me," she whispered, eating Blake's arm. "Neither do I," replied Blake, on guard. The Sheik repeated his protestations of friendship and asked many questions about the City of Mimmo. And all the while his followers pressed closer to Blake. Suddenly, at a signal from Jad, four scal- liwat Bedouins leaped upon the American and bore him to the ground, taking his gun, while at the same time another seized the Princess Ouhaida.

"Come on," Vern ordered.

They crashed through the un- derbrush, disregarding the sig- nal fires which they might have used had there been more light.

"Hurry, hurry!" Vern constantly urged. "Oh, Lord, let us get there in time."

Just as they came in sight of the beach where the jungle thin- ned out Vern heard a brief, in- ular explosion, the preliminary cli- max to a recently aroused mus- cle motor.

"Hurry!" panted Vern.

On the water it was quite light. The moon had broken through a swirling cloud curtain overhead.

They were running. Or at least Vern was. He had not time to see what his companions were doing.

ISLAND GIRL

by FRANK R. ADAMS

With a snort of rage Pancake snatched the stool from his adver- sary's hand and threw it over the rail.

There was too much room be- tween tree tops for Vern to hear it crash on the ground below but did not doubt that it made a terrific racket down there especially if it struck anything.

These did not seem to be much gained by having forced the issue in the lookout. Vern had no false idea of his own powers in the kind of a fight that was going on. And look seemed to be running against him. He also had no illusions as to what would happen when once Pancake got his hands on him.

There would not be any question of mortality against the life of one loser.

And yet confronting this fate Vern was strangely happy. He had the consciousness of having made an effort to defend the girl who had chosen him to be the recipient of her love. It would be rather bet- ter to have died in an attempt to justify her choice than to live like a caitiff who has allowed a thief and marauder to run off unhinder- ed with his dearest possession.

The events of this night made up a life time anyway. If there should not be any more, why, this was enough—surely an even exchange at least for many years of the routine of Fifth Avenue and Broadway.

The fight, if it had ever really been a fight, now became a pursuit with Vern unhappily cast in the role of the hare. The platform was like a squared circle with a pole in the middle of it. Vern took every possible advantage of the obstruc- tions which he the lighter man. And Pancake himself of. It made dodging a little easier. In time Vern would have been able to wear his opponent down to a condition where they might have fought on more even terms.

But by an accident, the advantage of time was taken away from him. Drury, the boy, undoubtedly meant to help, his cowed spirit was slowed by reviving under the stimulus of excitement and on his ming must have dawned the realization that upon the outcome of the struggle which was going on depended his own safety.

He picked up the remaining stool and threw it in the path of Pan- cake. The latter unfortunately chose that very moment to dodge back and go the other way.

Vern saw his opponent's man- euvers and shifted direction too.

But he did not see the stool.

He crashed over it to the deck of the platform and Pancake came down on top of him.

For a moment Vern was too dazed to realize what had happened.

CHAPTER 34

As he lay there he was conscious for the first time of a sound like innocuous opening bottles of wine—a distant popping, as of lightly fitted corks. It puzzled him.

Then his attention was snapped back to the hopeless light in which he found himself.

Pancake pinned him down by sheer weight while he was getting his wind. The big man was breath- ing like a steam exhaust and then, if ever, would have been the time to force the issue.

But, unfortunately, Vern was at the end of his own resources too. And he was slightly dazed by the fall. There wasn't an ounce of ef- fort left in either man. But mere passive weight gave Pancake the advantage. And being on top made it easier for him to recover his wind.

The stool was smashed and the fragments lay under them.

Finally Pancake began to get up. Vern tried to do likewise but he couldn't. Perhaps a bone was brok- en somewhere. He could not tell.

The popping of distant corks kept up. There were thuds in the floor- ing of the platform. That explain- ed the noise. Bullets! Someone was shooting at them from the ground. Not that it really made any differ- ence or would. Apparently the plat- form floor was very thick and there was little chance of a stray shot penetrating, even if it was fired from a friendly weapon.

And the fight was not going to last much longer. Vern could read that in the eye of his opponent as the latter struggled slowly to his feet. Pancake's face still came in gasps but on his lips was a gratifying smile. He knew his victory was his and he was enjoy- ing it.

He stood on his feet and kicked Vern once in his ribs. Vern did not cry out but the boy did. Sometimes

"Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, what do you do?"

"I'm looking the want-ads through and through."

"Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, what do you find?"

"Bargains that save me more money and time."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Less than ten years ago Claudette Colbert was an ambitious young student, with professional stage fascination from her thoughts.

Today the screen star and former stage favorite, who appears tomorrow and Wednesday at the Belle, in Hollstone's romantic thriller for United Artists, "I Cover the Waterfront," with Ben Lyon playing opposite her and Ernest Torrence beside the supporting cast, can look back over a decade that has brought her international fame.

A True Cosmopolite

A true cosmopolite, Miss Colbert was born in Paris, France, and reared and educated abroad and in New York, where her family removed in 1918. After leaving the Washington Irving High School she enrolled in the Art League and it was while she was a student there that a remark she made in jest led to a brilliant stage career and eventual stardom in motion pictures.

A guest at a tea Miss Claudette was introduced to Ann Morrison, playwright. The art student jokingly asked the author of "Pigs" to cast her in a new play. "Why Westcott," then about to be staged, Miss Morrison took Claudette at her word and arranged for her to play a bit.

Miss Colbert "confessed" to James Cruze, director of "I Cover the Waterfront," also a guest at the tea, during the filming of the picture based on Max Miller's best selling book, that she while-lied to get the second role on the stage. Convincing Brock Pemberton that she had several years' experience to her credit, she persuaded him to cast her as the leading woman in his production, "The Marionette Man."

AT THE CAPITOL

An Instant Hit

An instant hit is decided—hit. Miss Colbert thereafter, with the exception of the time she appeared in an all-star cast revival of "Leah Kleshna," always played the leading roles in stage plays.

Among her Broadway successes were "The Gay Divorcee," "Would You Do t o Have Money," "A Kiss in the Taxi," "The Ghost Train," "The Pearl of Great Price," "Barker" which she also played in London; "The Mulberry Bush," "El Gringo," "Fast Life," "Tin Pan Alley" and the Theatre Guild's production of Eugene O'Neill's "Marco Millions." Her last stage appearance was in "Ten Nights in a Barroom."

Miss Colbert's screen debut was in a silent picture, "Love O' Mike."

"The Hole in the Wall" was her second picture, and then came "The Lady Lies," now showing at the Belle, better talking pictures, which spread Miss Colbert's fame far and wide.

Successively she won the feminine honors in "Manslaughter," "The Big Pond," "Young Man of Manhattan," "Misalaughter," "Honor Among Lovers," "The Smiling Lieutenant," "Secrets of a Secretary," "The Wiser Woman," "Sarah and Sex," "The Misleading Lady," "The Phantom President" and "The Sign of the Cross."

Great Versatility!

Miss Colbert's versatility is attested by the ease with which she jumped from her role in Cecil B. DeMille's Roman period spectacle to her 1933 characterization in the Richard Small production "I Cover the Waterfront" with its modern high-powered news gathering, smuggling and mile-a-minute romance.

The brunette beauty has starred or led from one of the most-talked about boy-meet-girl stories, is a decided brunette, with large brown eyes, and is five feet, five inches in height and weighs 103 pounds.

In private life she is the wife of Norman Foster, but few people, it knows, they maintain separate establishments, and have ever since their marriage, five years ago.

KICKED IN STOMACH BY HIS HORSE

Suffering from a severe shock received when kicked in the abdomen by a horse, Bert Hunter, Marmora township, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital late Sunday evening. Mr. Hunter was attended by Dr. Gibson and no serious injuries were reported. Fortunately the horse's hoof did not break any bones. The patient is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

Don't Fear Motherhood

THOSE women who dread motherhood should follow the advice of Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas of 95 Kimberley St., Toronto, who says: "At one time, before my baby came, I was in a fearful state of mind. I was in a fearful state of mind. I was in a fearful state of mind.

ITALIANS URGE FOUR-POWER PARLEY ON ARMS

Four-Power Parleys on Disarmament are Advocated by Italians

Premier Daladier Says France "Not Blinded to Acts"

FRANCE IS READY

Premier Asks Why Germany Not Ready to Accept Honest Plan

By Joseph E. Sharkey

Geneva, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Italian delegates were understood today to be urging four-power conversations of the disarmament problem.

The Italians accepted the definition of the American position by Norman H. Davis, the United States representative, as meaning his country would participate in no so-called political disarmament negotiations whatever.

Paris, Oct. 17 (AP) — Premier Edouard Daladier, calm but grim, demanded Chancellor Adolph Hitler of Germany by questioning the Reich's reason for withdrawing from the Disarmament Conference.

The Premier rose in a tense crowded Chamber of Deputies and demanded: "What is Germany ready to destroy all armaments, why do they withdraw from the conference just when we drafted a plan?"

He spoke of "the grave events of the past days, Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and Germany's withdrawal from the same conference," and then announced that France again was ready to take disarmament at Geneva, Oct. 16.—The world hailed the Chamber that the government would make the economic phase's master of confidence.

Replying to the German Chancellor, the Premier said: "We are not ready to be betrayed, but neither are we blind to any fact. If one seeks an agreement, why begin with a rupture? Why not accept an honest disarmament plan?

"If Germany is ready to destroy her arms down to the last rifle and machine-gun, why not accept a plan which could assure an effective disarmament?"

FRONTIER COLLEGE SUPPORT IS URGED

I.O.D.E. Members Calling on to Support Institution

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Surrounded by banners of Canada Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. William Morrison of Hamilton, Provincial Regent, made a plea for the delegates attending the Provincial annual meeting here Tuesday to support Frontier College. Mrs. Mitchell P. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, if his party should win the next provincial election.

Asserting that interest carrying charges on all debts in Canada now amount to more than the total value of all basic production in the Dominion, Mr. Hepburn declared the necessity is seen for combatting this insidious propaganda."

Both Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Jas. Ince, National Regent, asked the delegates to assist Frontier College, in emphasizing the work of the teaching among foreign workers in mines and lumber camps.

CANADIENS ARRIVE

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League opened their pre-season training here today when, with Coach Cecil Hart, they turned out at the Queen's University gymnasium.

Basketball and light - lumbering up exercises were featured in the work of the Quebec team and the same programme will be repeated Tuesday.

Thursday the team will take the ice at the Harry Avena.

Mitchell F. Hepburn Makes Statement at Chatham

DEBT CHARGES

Would Overhaul Present System of Taxation on Money Barons

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Greatly increased inheritance tax was today forecast by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, if his party should win the next provincial election.

Asserting that interest carrying charges on all debts in Canada now amount to more than the total value of all basic production in the Dominion, Mr. Hepburn declared the necessity is seen for combatting this insidious propaganda."

Both Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Jas. Ince, National Regent, asked the delegates to assist Frontier College, in emphasizing the work of the teaching among foreign workers in mines and lumber camps.

TWENTY NINE FACE TRIAL

Charged With Seditious Conspiracy at Quebec City

Quebec, Oct. 17 (CP)—City Policemen entered the witness box in the court of session here today to testify against 29 members of a religious society charged with seditious conspiracy.

The constables, who reported they arrested the 29 men and women in the act of distributing literature in city streets and canvassing private homes, gave Judge Arthur Fitzpatrick a detailed description of the pamphlets and circulars found on the defendants when they were distributing. It was stated the literature in the form of letters was of an anti-clerical nature.

The group were arrested about two weeks ago, and many were forced to go to jail, unable to find bail. The Attorney-General of Quebec was also charged with being in possession of obscene literature tending to corrupt public morals. He was released on bail of $100 when arrested and appeared with the others in the Magistrate's court accused come from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and various Ontario cities. Sixteen of the women included in the list.

Historic Villains of Uncle Tom's Cabin Meet New Retribution

San Francisco, Oct. 17—Swift and violent retribution, the kind countless audiences have longed for, fell upon the historic villains of Uncle Tom's Cabin here last night.

During the famous chase scene the fat slave Elias, the fugitive quadroon girl, one of the bloodhounds sprang at Simon Legree. While Legree went sprawling across the stage, the hound took a determined grip on the seat of Lawyer Marks' trousers.

The surprising climax in play during a rehearsal at the President Theatre so upset little Eva that she was unable to continue. Monsieur Henry Mohn, playing the part of Lawyer Marks, was unharmed, but his trousers had been. Edwin Max, the Simon Legree, had his cuts and bruises bandaged.

Black Rose Seen at Bancroft Nearly Sixty Years Ago

Story of Black Rose in Germany Starts Talk

GROWERS' VIEW

The goal of perfection for horticulturists the world over was believed to have been reached when word came this week from the Saengerhausen rosarium, Germany, that a black rose had been developed. Not nearly sixty years ago, at Bancroft, a resident of this city, and living there, closely remembers seeing one blooming in a little cemetery.

"Nearly sixty years ago my aunt attended a funeral at Bancroft and in the graveyard there she saw a rosebush bearing black roses," a well known Belleville lady stated to a reporter today. "She asked how it was produced and she was told that a grafter had put a bud of yellow on a blackthorn root." The informant's memory was recalled by the story of a black rose born in Germany by crossing of two dark rose strains.

"I remember my aunt telling about it," said she in regard to the Bancroft black rose.

Local horticulturists are a bit skeptical concerning the statement that a black rose has been developed. "Perhaps a real dark red one but I have never seen a truly black one," the Rev. Harold Reid, well known nurseryman and horticulturist stated today when questioned.

"Whether or not the color of the 'black rose' reported seen in Bancroft so many years ago could be laid on some chemical combination of the soil, or through the grafting of the yellow rose to the blackthorn root, Mr. Reid, could not say. He admitted, however, that it was entirely possible.

"Horticulturists have striven for years and years to develop such a rose. I read the account in your paper the other day with interest that one had been brought out in Germany. Even this one I have noted, however, is not really black. The main reason, stated Mr. Reid for the development of such a rose is merely that 'some horticulturist wants to be different from the all other fellow.'

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Chicago, Oct. 17 (CP) — From Hanover, Kan., came John J. Athe, a farmer, yesterday explaining he paid off the mortgage on the farm and financed his trip to the World's Fair by catching a skunk.

He skinned the animal 'and was even a major prize of $750 in an animal fur show sponsored by a local newspaper.

Valley City, N.D., Oct. 17 (CP) —Freeman Anderson says that when he shot a gopher sitting in the air he bird fell on a rabbit which dashed away with the pheasant in its back. Mr. Anderson, for several yards, the pheasant fell off.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17 (CP) — Mrs. Mary Widmann failed to show up for jury duty yesterday, but, instead of issuing a bench warrant, the court sent her congratulations.

On the back of the jury notice, Judge Raymond Magnelle penned the story of a baby born in Germany by crossing of two dark rose strains.

"I remember my aunt telling about it," said she in regard to the Bancroft black rose.

FRANCE PRESSED FOR TAXES

Ice Breaker Brings News of Arctic Discoveries

Situation in Europe

(By The Canadian Press)

Disarmament conference delegates began a 10-day recess beginning today, with governments to plan ways of meeting the situation growing out of Germany's withdrawal.

Premier Daladier of France sensed a strengthening political position as a result of patriotic manifestations in reaction to Germany's stand as a re-opening of parliament neared.

Trouble piled high around the head of Little Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's vigorous Chancellor, as jagged Nazi plots against his government were afoot. Labor difficulties flared.

Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, though deeply concerned, spoke philosophical, "No news," said he, "is never so good or so bad as it seems at first."

And in Germany, Chancellor Hitler summoned Nazi leaders for important conferences to lay policy for the coming weeks.

Cartridge Gets Into Pipe Blows Up While Lawyer Takes to Lady Nicotine

No partridge, no tobacco, no shooting, and what has been indeed and unspectacular, a rising young solicitor of Belleville is receiving the congratulations of himself and friends today.

Monday afternoon Hugh Carpenter, and a Bridge Street business associate, proceeded to the woods of the Oak Hills' ridges. By silencing disposing of some of the ruffled grouse of that neighborhood.

The lawyer was equipped with a 22 rifle, and the explosives for this sort of destruction were carried loose in his coat pocket. The shadow of golden crept over the golden, red and russet-brown forests of the hills and the birds had fallen to the lot of the luminous. It had been a barren afternoon.

Homeward bound in their car the would-be hunters sought solace in the soothing pipe. Carefully selecting the appropriate with the noxious weed he proceeded to strike the lucifer. Only a few soul-satisfying puffs had been taken by the legal adviser, when bang went the pipe, to lay shattered on the car floor.

A lone cartridge had dropped in the bowl of the pipe and the tobacco placed on top of it. The bullet section was found in the car floor. The shell could be discovered by the huntsmen

BOOST TAXES OR PICK OUT NEW CABINET

Premier Daladier Proposes Seven New Sources of Revenue

PENSION CUTS

France Offered Opportunity to Resort to Straight Lottery

Paris, Oct. 17 — Premier Edouard Daladier today challenged parliament to boost taxes and make economies on a total of 4,000,000,000 francs (approximately $165,000,000 Canadian funds) or find a new cabinet.

The premier, in a summary of the new measures which he asked to be approved within a week, proposed seven new taxes to bring 2,200,000,000 francs in economies ($222,000,000 approximately.)

A battle was predicted over the 1,900,000,000 francs (approximately $76,000,000) cut from the five per cent. reduction in the pay of functionaries and military men and in pensions.

Some of the teachers already have passed a resolution saying they would strike.

The new provisions outlined by M. Daladier are the substitution of an increased gasoline tax for automobile licenses and a frank resort to a straight lottery.

The seriousness of the situation was bluntly stated. After saying that France would be unable to borrow unless the budget were completely balanced, the premier reminded parliament that the country must borrow next year to meet bond maturities and to finance a public work program.

"To deprive ourselves of the power of borrowing is to refuse to balance the budget would be soon to resign ourselves to inflation," said the government leader.

Prevention of Depreciation

The Premier declared that "the economic crisis is not confined to France's money and save the country from another depreciation of the franc. Unemployment and poverty would be infinitely more painful than sacrifices asked."

The new revenue would include: $50,000,000 through the elimination of tax frauds, $55,350,000 through the abolition of tax privileges, $11,-500,000 in various small tax rearrangements, $13,450,000 from a tax on gas and electricity AIMED at increasing rates, $14,350,000 in monopoly profits, a 10 cent per gallon tax from the additional gasoline tax, $40,000,000 from the national lottery and $42,000,000 from the coinage of nickel and silver.

Pension reductions in addition to the reduction in salaries and pensions, would consist of $18,000,000 in an undefined trimming of the ministerial budgets, $30,000,000 in the reduction of the unemployment allowances for big families, overtime and the like, and $12,450,000 from the reorganization of the social insurance system.

The pensions economies include a $12,500,000 reduction for the war veterans, the monopoly receipts include an undetermined amount from an additional tax on petroleum importers.

The fraud prevention items include the cost of a lottery holding a part of the dividend coupon of each ticket which may be used to pay income taxes.

BRIDEGROOM OF DAY HELD AFTER CRASH

Man Fails From Running Board of Car

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 17—E. J. Piggott, bridegroom of a day, was held on reckless driving charge today while Clifford Palmer was treated in a Michigan Soo Hospital for a fractured skull, the result of a wedding party accident.

Palmer fell from the running board of the car driven by Piggott last night in the Ste. Mary River ferry dock. Piggott was married to Miss Myrtle McCauley here yesterday.

LOAN IS OVER 31 MILLIONS FOR

Cash Subscribers Are Subject to Drastic Reductions

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—The Dominion of Canada 1933 refunding loan for $27,000,000 was over-subscribed by $31,000,000, the Department of Finance announced. Total subscriptions amounted to $258,000,-000.

Of this amount more than $179,-000,000 were conversion subscriptions which under the terms of the prospectus are allotted in full. The last-mentioned figure of $179,000,000 includes conversions of 1923 Victory bonds, as well as $40,000,000 of short-term obligations.

As the loan was fixed at $253,-000,000, cash subscribers are subject to drastic reductions. The basis of allotment announced is applicable to both six-year and 12-year maturities in the loan.

Subscriptions up to and including $5,000 allotted in full.

Subscriptions more than $5,000 and up to and including $10,000 allotted 90 per cent to nearest $500 with minimum allotment of $5,000.

Subscriptions more than $10,000 allotted 40 per cent to nearest $500 with minimum allotment of $7000.

Forecasts—

Northern Ontario: Strong southwest to northwest winds; cloudy and becoming cooler tonight with showers or snowflurries. Wednesday: West to northwest winds; mostly cloudy and cool.

Lake Superior—Strong northwest winds; mostly cloudy and rather cold, with scattered showers or local snowflurries.

Moners and Rainy River—Partly cloudy and rather cold; possibly a few light, scattered showers.

Manitoba—Fair; not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Partly cloudy, with much the same temperature.

NEW HYMNAL FOR BAPTISTS

It is Thirty One Years Ago Since Present Book Was Authorized

Brantford, Oct. 17—At this morning's session, Chancellor H. I. Wheaton of McMaster University, Hamilton, reported the Hymnal Revision Committee that a thorough search for the best possible hymn book for the church was being made. He recalled authority has been given for an inquiry as to the advisability of replacing the Canadian Baptist Church Hymnal, authorized in 1902.

The Baptist, he said, was the only major denomination in Canada which had not revised its Hymnal within recent years. The British Baptist Hymnal was now being revised.

The report of the committee considering the hymnal expressed the hope it would be possible to secure the co-operation of the Maritimes and Western Canada so that a new hymnal would be truly Canadian. Meanwhile, however, was only a hope at present.

The report said the new book should be "a book providing a key for many tunes, a better selection of new hymns, tunes and a sufficient number of hymns available for evening and other than the more informal church gatherings. The committee recommended the adoption, as far as possible, of hymns printed, subject to such deletions and additions as would seem advisable, holding that to publish a new book would be too costly. No hymn available would be suitable without permission to reprint.

"The question of revision of the United Church Hymnary to make it better adapted to our needs is one that in details does not arise but approval has been expressed for the main proposal," the report continued. "But some preparation that such a revision can be and will be carefully made will be desired by some before they will agree to the main recommendation."

The report ended by suggesting the committee be continued for another year, but more details for proposed revision be worked out and a list of suggestions from the convention.

The report was adopted and thanked for further consideration.

EMPIRE EXPORTS

Windsor, Oct. 17—Exports of the Ford Motor Company of Canada to other parts of the Empire will be 30 per cent greater in 1933 than in 1932, William R. Campbell, president, announced today. Increases are most marked for Australia, India and South Africa.

Reversing Falls Found in Fiord in Baffinland Survey Party Reports

Second Phenomenon of Kind, Only Other in World Being in Canada

COAST MAPPED

Few Eskimos Wander Barren Coast in Food Quest

Quebec, Oct. 17 (CP)—The government icebreaker, N. B. McLean, in command of Capt. J. Salcom arrived here today three months in the waters of Hudson Bay.

Members of the Canadian Hydrographic Survey Expedition who left here aboard the vessel in July to engage in charting the coasts and waters of Hudson's Strait returned on the McLean. P. C. Goulding Smith, of Ottawa, who has spent several years doing sub-arctic survey, was again in command of the expedition, assisted by F. M. Twist, of St. Helen, Kamouraska; J. C. Meighen of Halifax and a party of Eskimo guides.

The scene of this year's operations was the northeastern coast of Baffinland. The equipment of the survey consisted of two motor launches and sectional wooden huts. With the co-operation of Captain W. J. Salcom, who sounded the coast, and ran on a modern echo-sounding instrument, having been installed on the ship for the purpose.

Heretofore the maps of this coast were based on mere sketches made by the early Elizabethan navigators. These sketches necessarily were of a most incomplete nature, most of the main coastal features being entirely missing or greatly distorted.

Richness of Coast

Absolutely devoid of growth, the coast of Baffinland is very bleak and inhospitable in appearance, according to the description given by members of the survey party. The great Grinnel Glacier, an extensive ice-sheet, covers the height of land in this vicinity, can be seen gleaming white from afar at sea. Numerous inlets deeply indent the coast which is fringed with many small islets and rocks. The largest islands, known as the Middle Savage Group, include Baffin Island, a large 600 feet high.

With the exception of a few Eskimos who wander along the barren shores in search of food, the coast is quite uninhabited. Caribou, seal, walrus, and Arctic trout form the chief food. Arctic char, a salmon and finer species than the more South Bonny and finer species, are considered a choice delicacy. The only land animals in much used for inner clothing on account of its great warmth and lightness.

Reversing Falls

The discovery of an hitherto unknown reversing falls, described as second fiord in the southeastern coast of Baffinland, was a valuable result of this year's expedition, it was explained. So rare is this phenomenon of nature that until this is discovered only one was known to exist in the world—the famous reversing falls of the St. John River, New Brunswick.

The survey and investigation of this third inlet of reversing falls was only incidental to the main work and purpose of the expedition. A long stretch of coast was charted, a complete set of tidal observations were recorded and a series of precise astronomical observations definitely established the geographical position of this hitherto little known land.

GIRL WEARING DAD'S PANTS

Police Testify at Trial of Two Held For Armed Robbery

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 17 — (CP)—Ina Rolfe, 21, and Grace Walters, 20, of Niagara Falls, Ont., were charged in police court here today with the armed robbery of the Crystal restaurant here Sunday and remanded for a week. They did not plead and no evidence was taken.

St. Catharines police arrested the girls in Niagara Falls last night, alleging they assisted an unknown man in the holdup of the restaurant. While the man covered the manager with a gun and got $120 in cash, one of the women stood inside the restaurant while the other pulled the car outside.

Police chased the machine as it sped away but the girl driver drove 70 miles an hour and escaped. When police made the arrests they found one of the women admitted she had worn a pair of trousers she borrowed from her father while the

CHARLIE CONACHER REFUSES CONTRACT

Asks $7,000 But Refuses Cut of Less

Toronto, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Charlie Conacher, right wing of the Toronto Maple Leaf Conacher-Primeau-Jackson line, is a holdout, the Toronto sports report in a special story today. He has been offered a $6,000 contract with several bonus clauses, which would push the $9,000 he got last season and big raises to accept.

Conacher, whose average salary has been $8,500 in his four-year major career, is willing to accept $7,000 but can't see the big drop. If he signs he will not go to the Leafs' training base at Malton, Toronto, now unless an agreement is reached.

WOMAN'S CLOTHING TAKES FIRE AS SHE FALLS LIGHTING STOVE

Believes Woman Suffers Heart Attack While in Act

Mrs. Hester Mills, widow, 76, fatally burned at her home in Brighton late Sunday afternoon and passed away in the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning. Late last night of the same day, Apparently suffering a heart attack, while she was lighting the fire around six o'clock, the aged woman fell on the stove and before she was discovered had sustained third degree burns about the face, head, arms and chest. Dr. Clarke of Brighton was called and after examining the aged, had the woman removed to the hospital. Dr. Gibson attended, but the burns were so serious she hope of saving her life was entertained. After investigation by Deputy Coroner Dr. F. M. Dure, an inquest was considered unnecessary. The deceased has been a resident of Brighton many years and was well known and highly respected by a wide circle, who will exceedingly regret her demise.

City and District News

WORK PROCEEDS WITHOUT HITCH

Relief work programme in the city is proceeding without a hitch, stated city officials today. So far no casualties have been reported among the large number of workers except the minor injuries to a finger of one man employed on a sewer construction project.

BURNING OF TRASH PILE CAUSES RUN

A burning trash pile at the rear of a downtown store gave firemen a run to a Front Street garage this morning. Fanned by the wind sparks from the small fire had previously threatened to ignite some of the wooden buildings at that location.

FIREMEN HOLD SUCCESSFUL PARTY

Blue-coated fire laddies of the city played host to hundreds of the city and district at their annual euchre and ball held in the Armouries last evening. Despite the rain, attendance was reported even better than on previous occasions. The fore part of the evening was devoted to games of progressive euchre, while dancing to the strains of the Commodores was featured during the latter part of the evening until an early hour. Scores of prizes donated by merchants of the city were presented to the holders of the lucky tickets. The affair is an annual one held by the department and it seems towards raising funds for the purchasing of supplies which are given each Christmas to the needyof the city.

TOBACCO STOLEN FROM LOCAL STORE

Activities in and around the police department were rather quiet during the past 24 hours. Constable Emmett brought in to the police station that he found at the rear of Holway's service station early Tuesday morning. The store was equipped with a basket-carrier on the front. Ed Thomas, local chemist, reported that 65 packages of cigarettes had been stolen from his upper store, on Front St. Mr. Thomas assured the police, that the store had been securely locked on Monday evening but upon reopening the store the next morning the jobwas found missing. The police are investigating.

MAY EXTEND ROAD ON McDONALD AVE.

Hastings County councillors and members of the local city council will meet today at the north end of McDonald Avenue, where an extension of further road work at that location will be taken under consideration. It is believed that county officials and the city will share the cost or needed road improvements at that point. The work is of mutual character.

EGGS SELL TODAY AT THIRTY CENTS

Tuesday's mid-week market saw considerable business transacted during the hours of trading. A variation in prices were noted when eggs sold for 25c a dozen and better brought 25c a pound. The usual fine display of seasonable fruits and vegetables retailing at the prevailing prices, were offered for sale.

30 POUND SUGAR BEET EXHIBITED

What is believed to have set a record for sugar beet growers of this central district is displayed in the show window of Brickman's Feed Store on Market Square today. The huge beet weighs exactly 30 pounds and was grown on the farm of Mr. Jos. Symons, Mountain View, Prince Edward County.

PLACE CAPTURED GUNS ON CEMENT

Workmen are preparing concrete foundations today for the new entrance to the local Armouries upon which the heavy guns, which grace the Armouries lawn will be placed. Formerly the coloured trophies had developed deep ruts in the lawn's ground under the wheels in their old positions.

REV. DR. MARTIN GIVES LECTURE

Anniversary Terminated by Congregational Meeting

Terminating the observance of the 87th. anniversary of John Street United Church, a musical progress and a lecture by the Rev. T. T. Martin, M.A., D.D., of Hamilton, was given last evening in the hall of the church. Ex-Mayor R. J. Graham, for many years superintendent of the John St. Church Sunday School, and who has ever been one of the church's most active workers and financial supporters, occupied the chair for the evening and most capably carried thru' his responsible duties, contributing to himself and pleasurable to the audience.

Dr. Martin's address was based on the subject: "From Castles and Cathedrals to Homes and Schools" A few years ago Dr. Martin represented the Canadian Church at the assemblies of the churches of Scotland and Ireland in Edinburgh, and last year visited the institutions of the United Church in Western Canada and during that time planned the mission chapel at Churchill.

Over the castles and cathedrals, the pomp and dignity of the service of the church in Scotland, he carried his audience to the wilds and barrens of Canada. From the gladsome and grandeur of Scotland, to the humble abodes of the miners, lumbermen, lumbermen and Indians of the North West Territory. The same spirit of devout worship to God, the fundamental principle of it was the same whether carried out with the pomp and grandeur of ceremony in Scotland or in some humble abode in the wilderness of the New World.

Abundant With Stories

Dr. Martin's address was abundant with stories of Scottish folk lore and centuries' old history of Scotland. He drew a picture also of the conditions he had found in Northwest Canada, the life of our residents there, their joys and sorrows.

Thoroughly enjoyed by all who heard him, the thanks or the audience was tendered and presented by Dr. Martin by the Rev. J. Semple, pastor of the Bridge Street United Church.

The delightful musical portion of the evening had been arranged by Miss Leona Riggs with the assistance of Mr. Alec Gordon, organist of the church. Each and every contribution on the programme received well merited and hearty applause by the audience. Miss Riggs and Mr. Gordon played as a piano duet "Raymond's Overture." Miss Riggs sang two solos, "Robin Adair" and "Annie Laurie." "The Bluebells of Scotland" and "Loch Lomond" were the contributions of Mr. William Morris. Miss Evelyn Reddick was the soloist in "Bonnie Mary Ain Folk," and Mr. Cyril Scott delighted all with his piano rendition.

HAMILTON STORE IS LOOTED OF JEWELRY

Manager is Former Belleville Resident

When Leslie Woodley, manager of a jewelry store at 90 King Street West, Hamilton, opened the shop Monday morning he found that the place had been entered during the night and articles valued at more than $700 taken from the place. The thieves had watched until the street was deserted and then forced the transom above the door until there was a space large enough to allow a man to get in. When the burglars left the premises the front door was left locked and the robbery was not discovered until Monday morning.

The loot included 21 ladies' wrist watches, 13 men's wrist watches, 22 rings, both ladies' and men's, and 15 fountain pen and pencil sets. The value of the missing goods was set at $735.

Silverplate stolen from the store was found early last night by a 12-year-old boy. He notified his parents, and they called the police. It is thought that the articles were discarded because they were too bulky, also because their ownership could be easily traced. There was no trace of the rings, watches or other valuables.

Leslie T. Woodley, manager mentioned is a son of George T. Woodley of this city and has been in Hamilton for some years.

OBITUARY

LATE ALBERT A. TUMMON

Trenton, Oct. 17 (Special) — One of the largest funerals ever to take place in this town was that accorded the late Albert A. Tummon, whose sudden and untimely death a week ago Monday last, so shocked this community. To pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of a comrade who had answered the call of "Last Post," the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion attended in body to join with a host of this town's residents in a like duty.

Service conducted by the Rev. C. Brethen was held in Grace United Church at 3 p.m. and interment was made in White Lake Cemetery. There the Rev. Mr. Brethen also officiated and "Last Post" and "Reveille" was sounded by Corp. Barr of the L.O.L.

The bearers were six returned men of Trenton, Lorne Foster, R. M. Heath, R. Beer, J. McGibbon, G. LaBrash and C. Harrison.

MRS. MARTHA SINE

Following a short illness, Mrs. Martha Matilda Sine passed away on Monday at her late residence in the 6th concession of Sidney. The deceased was born in Thurlow Township, 89 years ago, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Hessell, and for 49 years had lived in the vicinity where her death occurred. She was a member of the Scott United Church and funeral service will be held there at 3.30 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon. Three sons and three daughters survive. Mrs. Egbert Sine of Sidney township and Mrs. George Sine of Rawdon.

LATE JOHN WANNAMAKER

Ameliasburgh—One of Ameliasburg's old residents, Mr. John Wannamaker, passed away at his home here on Tuesday last, in his seventy-sixth year. The funeral on Thursday was largely attended and the floral offerings were beautiful. The service being held in the United Church, Ameliasburg, conducted by the Pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher and Rev. John Knox of Belleville. The remains were interred in Grove Cemetery.

Surviving are one brother, Egerton and a sister, Mrs. Alma Benson of Wellington. Those attending the obsequies from a distance were Dr. Gerald and Mrs. Benson of Toronto, and Mrs. Zella Wannamaker of Perth. Much sympathy is extended to the relatives in their sad bereavement.

LATE H. L. LLOYD

The funeral of the late Herman John Lloyd, whose death occurred early Sunday morning was held at Zion United Church on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 p.m.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Everson and opened with the singing of Hymn 760, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Rev. Everson led in prayer after which the 23rd Psalm was read. The choir sang a beautiful voluntary, entitled, "Looking This Way". The pastor delivered an uplifting sermon, based on the 15th verse of the 90th Psalm. So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts into wisdom. The services were brought to a close with hymn 227, "Abide With Me".

The funeral procession then wended its way to the Plainfield Cemetery, where interment took place with Rev. Everson officiating at the grave.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. Albert Dan and Perry Bronson, George Watson and Arthur Gor-

DR. BLACK IS NEW DIRECTOR

Wellknown Figure in Michigan Once taught School at Bethel

Dr. B. F. Black, for fifty years, physician and business man of Holton, Michigan, has been appointed supreme medical director of the Supreme Test, Order of Maccabees of the United States and Canada. It has been announced, Dr. Black has moved to Detroit to assume his new duties.

A son of James Black of the township of Murray in Northumberland County, Ontario, Dr. Black is remembered here by many persons. Particularly about Bethel is he well known for he taught school for several years.

His office will be in the Maccabee Temple at Detroit, where he will work with Supreme Medical Director Dr. Hanchett. The two men will have supervision of all medical work of the order in connection with insurance applications.

The departure of Dr. Black and Mrs. Black from Holton, Michigan, is regretted in that community where they are known for their kindness and their community spirit. Both have given freely of their time for many years in helping every project that promised educational or financial benefit to Holton.

Dr. Black served for eleven years as president of the Holton High School Board, he has been a member of the district school board, director of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, Manager of division, was formerly a member of the Muskegon County Medical Society, has been president of the local bank at Holton since it was organized, and although not a member of the Muskegon County Farm bureau, has been actively interested in its work for many years.

"Mrs. Black has been a leader in Ladies' Aid Society work, says the Muskegon Times, "and has been prominent in the Holton P.T.A. Though not a member she has been one of the most active members of the Methodist Church here.

"Dr. Black was born in Murray township, Ontario, Canada, on July 10, 1883, immediately on graduation from Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario. He has resided here since. Dr. and Mrs. Black celebrated their thirty third wedding anniversary July 16th. They have two children, a son, Harold L. Black, professor of mathematics at Grandville College, New Wilmington, Pa., Mrs. Theo. C. Jarreyans, wife of the pastor of the Congregational Church at Bay View, Wis., and Miss Lucille Black, instructor at the North Muskegon school.

"Dr. Black recalls that of the physicians who were practicing in Muskegon when he came here, only three, Dr. F. W. Garber, Dr. John Vanderhaar, and Dr. George L. Le Fevre are still practicing in the county.

"A hobby of the doctor's for many years has been his purebred Jersey herd on his farm on Ruddiman Slide. He has won numerous prizes with his herd.

"The recog of his bank during the 34 years of his direction as president has been a source of pride to him. He was elected president when the Holton bank was first organized in 1909 and has held the office since. The Holton bank was one of the few village institutions in the state which opened 100 per cent following the banking holiday."

Mr. and Mrs. M. Smith, Shanghai, Visit Stirling Friends

Stirling—Mr. and Mrs. M. Smith of Shanghai, China, were guests last week-end of Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Kotford at the Manse, Mr. Smith who is home on furlough will return to his post as treasurer of the missions of the Southern Methodist Church, with office in Shanghai, in January. His journey has been held for six years and all, has spent thirty-two years in China see mission field.

In conversation with him he stated that the outlook for China from a Missionary's standpoint is more hopeful than it has ever been previously. Tremendous crowds are now thronging to the Evangelistic meetings and it is felt that the advent of Christianity to the nation may exert a tremendous influence over the future of the country. That spirit of unanimity and unselfishness, savouring of foreign intervention, due largely to antipathy excited by Russian Bolshevism, has been for the most part overcome and the Chinese have now a feeling of more friendly attitude to the preachers of the Gospel and flock to their Evangelistic gatherings with minds not only receptive and of a high intellect, but receptive and eager to learn of God.

In reference to the present spirit of unrest, Mr. Smith stated that this and other parts of the country and will continue to do so until the line wrested Manchuria from the hands of the Japanese. China's inability to right the situation restoring her Manchurian territory to her lies, for the most part in the corrupt government and dishonesty of Chinese Government Officials. Mr. Smith was in Shanghai during the period of fighting over a year ago when the Japanese residents arose in organized resistance to the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods instituted by the Chinese subsequent to Japan's seizure of Mageburia. It was during that section of the city enclosing the Chinese troops was, from a neutral view-point by no means justifiable and 60,000 Japanese were forced to flee from their homes with the bloodshed itself amounting to tens of thousands, many of these women and children. However, concentrated action was not taken by the Chinese who were divided into two factions, one that was willing to strike while the iron is hot, as it were, and the other party which felt that the Chinese time was not quite unprepared to combat Japan with her superior fighting equipment.

In spite of government negotiations made quite independent of Shanghai officials, and who, needless to say, is resentful of Japanese control, the question remains a burning issue and agitation runs too high to subside before Manchuria has been restored. The Japanese owner be it in five years or fifty years time.

MEDIATOR IS APPOINTED

All Phases of Furniture Strike Will be Investigated

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 17—(CP)—Appointment of L. J. Salter, former local furniture company executive, as special investigator to inquire into all phases of the furniture workers' strike here indicated today the Ontario government's desire to have the strike settled as soon as possible. Mr. Salter's appointment was announced last night by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Provincial Minister of Labor.

Meanwhile, there seemed little likelihood of the 800 strikers going back to work for some time Brockhurst, Furniture-Gifford's and the Preston-Noelting plant have been closed down by the employers for an indefinite period, and together the three plants still negotiating with the strikers.

The Preston-Noelting concern complained bitterly in a statement to its employees yesterday of "outside interference" which it claimed had resulted in the breaking off of negotiations. "The fact is the employees came to do as they chose and the Union has no intention of ever negotiating a settlement of the strike," the company declared.

Shortly after time, practical agreement had been reached and at the last minute there had been "outside interference" the firm said.

POLICE AND CITIZENS COME OUT BEST

Two young men, who were born for better things, have throught their disregard of the property rights of others won for themselves places in the penitentiary at Portsmouth for their attempted hold-up at Wellington Canadian Bank of Commerce on Wednesday of last week. Seven long years for a lapse from law and order but it was a lapse which called forth the comment from the magistrate that it was only their youth that saved them from a much heavier sentence. The penalty for armed robbery may even be life and the lash.

The desperate aim of two young men has failed. They found in law-abiding citizens and the guardians of order more than a match for them. These are days of violent robberies and the ease and audacity of armed bandits has developed the keenness and precautions of the people of town and countryside. Not long ago two young men, recently out of the penitentiary, went forth by night to rob a store at Thomasburg only to arouse the neighborhood and bring about their arrest after an all-night search in the woodlands. They are back at Portsmouth. It was the same in the Wellington case; the staff of the bank, the police, the officials, the police and the farmers, all were found united in a common front to ward off the contemplated theft and to respond to the challenge. With such determination and skill did they work on their own initiative in fighting the bandits and in giving the alarm that the lure of the pursuit of the fugitives, that within eight hours after the unsuccessful attempt to get money at the bank, the pair were arrested in the wood near Hillier.

Escape and denial were out of the question, so closely had the roads been guarded, their movements detected that they confessed. On Monday, they heard their sentence at the mouth of the county magistrate.

If crime has ever received a check it is in Prince Edward County, where the first attempt of the kind fell before the commonsense and loyalty of the inhabitants and the people whose property they were guarding. Everyone held his head and the result was a complete bottling up of the bandits.

The thoroughness of the search instituted by the provincial police under District Inspector W. H. Lougheed, with the co-operation of the people and the local authorities is such as gives the people the utmost confidence in the police as guardians of peace and order and protectors of the lives and hoards of citizens. The citizen, representing law has proven superior to criminal interest. The banking fraternity will admire the heroism of Manager Kyle, who fought the bandits to rout them, and of Teller Watson, who in the midst of uncertainty and danger held his head. The courage and bravery of those on the side of the law outwitted lawlessness.

Any youth or boy harboring criminal thoughts or daring to venture which may lead to the slippery path to doom should learn a lesson from the end of these two young men who have served a term in jail for their offence against peaceful society.

THE RIDDLE

Her heart was cold, her thought unstirred,
Although life's loveliest voices spoke,
Until at last the magic word
Upon her eager hearing broke;
Until at last into her night
The long-desired vision came;
Then through her being swept delight
As sudden and as swift as flame.

Why all life's boons, save one, must be
No more than drifting wind's refrain . . .
This is the endless mystery
Which all must question, none explain.
Each seeks the key that, for him, swing
Wide the gates to Paradise;
Each follows one white gleam that brings
His dream of heaven to his eyes.

MACHINE GUN KELLY AND HIS WIFE, convicted of kidnapping a wealthy man and collecting ransom of $100,000, were sentenced to life imprisonment at Oklahoma City. Kelly boasted that he would never be taken by the police, and if taken would never be held. He was taken, held and must spend the rest of his life in prison, because he sought the "quick" way to money, drifting from legitimate business to bootlegging, then into kidnapping. His wife worked with him and she, too, has been withdrawn from circulation. A daughter of fifteen is left and to her the $30,000 home and $10,000 interest in other property has been transferred. For a time crime paid this couple in abundance of money, clothes, jewellery and almost everything they desired—Kelly was riding on top of the world—boasted of his prowess as a bad man—but the law reached out and grabbed him—now he's just another number in a row of numbered men who are separated from the rest of the world for their own good and the good of society generally. CRIME DOES NOT PAY.

The naval doctor was awakened by the 'phone jangling at 3 a.m. "What is it?" he asked sleepily.

"Well, you see, doctor, we've been having a party and I'm terribly worried about Ensign Twiggle," came from the other end of the wire.

"But my brother one? Is he seeing elephants or something?" the doctor asked, annoyed.

"That's the trouble, doctor," was the reply. "They're there in full of them and we can't see any!"—Judge.

EVEN BANDAGE WILL CHANGE OVER MANNER

Bandage Echanges Ego of a Child, Adds to Importance

By Leslie E. Bloch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Observe a person with a bandage and note how conscious of the fact he is. Observe also how he exaggerates the part that is sore. Suppose, for instance, demands, or a bandaged eye. And if he has injured his ankle or leg or slightly he surely "puts on blister" the pain and difficulty in walking from which he is supposed to be suffering.

Strange as it may seem, a bandage often changes a personality in a most remarkable manner. Or perhaps it does not seem so strange after all when, you recall how proud you felt when you wore a bandage as a child and how eagerly you were to grasp any opportunity of having one applied.

Children invariably show their playmates any pimple or boil or bruised skin and make a great fuss about it. This also serves as a salve to injury and the more game that is used in binding it up the happier they are.

A bandage enhances the ego of a child; it makes him important, it distinguishes him from the rest; it elicits inquiries; it may even forfeit sympathy and pity.

All these feelings the bandage brings as regards adults. A bandaged man or woman is a marked individual and invariably attracts attention. People turn around to look at him, and sometimes express surprise, sympathize. Thereby, of course, his self-esteem is augmented to a decidedly pleasurable degree.

Self-pity must likewise be considered in this connection; a feeling by the way, that few do not indulge in and that few should do not enjoy.

There be sorry for ourselves, whether because of an accident, an illness, an adverse turn of fortune or whatnot, produces a kind or thrill that is understood, and that everybody is able to observe in his own reactions if he is honest enough and fair and sincere, to detach himself and study his own character as though it belonged to a stranger.

Self-pity, of course, is a kind of relief; a relief from the strain of being one's own in this world of conflict; a relief from trying to be liked. For when we pity ourselves we, in a way, are loved even if it be with a sense of detachment. That, however, is better than we are accustomed with by others is very effective compensation.

Although we tend to exaggerate minor injuries, and to magnify various mishaps usually go not make us behave that way.

In such cases their steps in and overshadows the glory of being bandaged over. Sometimes the bandaging must be considered as well as hospitalization, personal income, instructed activity and all the other compensations that will accompany a long illness.

In conclusion it may be pointed out that some people indulge in bandage psychology without bothering to wear one. They make believe their friends, for instance, make a big fuss over every trifling accident or misfortune that you know, as well as they, is purely imaginary.

Therefore be on the alert for bandage psychology in others. Be also aware of it in yourself. Resist the inclination to be coddled and pampered when it is not actually necessary.

Dr. Bloch's Daily Diet Hint

Persons suffering with stomach acidity often find it beneficial to drink alkaline waters. Many of these are on the market, foreign as well as domestic. Such waters contain sodium bicarbonate which is the chemical name for common chloride (common table salt) the sodium chloride, making a palatable mixture.

Well, I dont like to seem unusual-ly vane, but I must admit I haven't seen nothing that looked as natural appearance I prefer, pop said.

And we kept on swalking proud with our white corsoages and pop said, O, pop, look how high.

Meening a airplane like one we use us almost out of site up in the sky, so I looked up and looked at it, and me look about as big as rabbits pop from acrss the street.

I'm sure we dont look at big as rabbits, pop said, and I said, Well how do you think we look, about as big as bees?

A sertain doubt that we even look that big, pop said, and I said, Well, gosh, I dont see why any all the smaller a person can look and still have eyes you think so? we look like fleas? I said.

My personal opinion is that the gentleman up there cant see us at all and isn't even aware of our existents, pop said, and I said, Holey smokes, and here we thawt we was important, pop said, and I thawt. That just goes to prove, I said.

CO-OPERATION FRIENDLINESS IS ADVOCATED

Premier Bennett Addresses His Constituents at Calgary

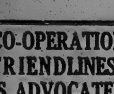
PUBLIC MEETING

No Expenditures of Vast Importance to be Started Soon

By C. R. BLACKBURN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Calgary, Oct. 17.—(CP)—An earnest plea for "some thinking, co-operation and friendliness" on the part of the people, was voiced by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett as he concluded his public correspondence in his own constituency of Calgary West.



The Prime Minister devoted his time last night to a more or less conversational discussion of his views on world affairs and human affairs and pledged himself to some continued fight against any power aiming to "sow the seeds of destruction" in the minds of the people.

A brief account of the world events significant to Canada during the past three years was given at a luncheon tendered by the Calgary Board of Trade. The evening address was to a public meeting sponsored by the Calgary Conservative Association and presided over by A. W. Cruickshank of the organization. Prior to the meeting the Prime Minister personally greeted about 1,000 of those who attended.

Today the Prime Minister will journey to Lethbridge where he will address a meeting this evening afternoon, returning later to Calgary. Tomorrow night he will l.ave for Regina. Mr. Bennett has not deserved to keep his last day in Calgary free from engagements as that he may devote his full time to personal matters.

To the two Calgary audiences he addressed the Prime Minister expressed the belief that after some careful progress, in keeping with the sound financial principles followed by his government, Canada would reap the full advantage of the recovery that he believed was apparent, among all important countries in the world.

No ambitious undertaking involving "vast expenditures or great public projects" could be launched by the Dominion, he said, at present until a stable trend could be observed in the countries whose prosperity was most likely to affect that of Canada.

Real Spiritual Forces Silent in Germany but Not Extinct Declares Einstein at Halifax

"People Easily Cajoled Into New Venture Because They Think They Cannot Change For Worse", He Tells Canadian Professor — Disinclined to Speak of His Own Sufferings.

Halifax, Oct. 16.—(CP)—Germany's "real spiritual forces" are not extinct but "crushed into silence," Albert Einstein told Prof. D. H. Stewart of Dalhousie University as the latter carried the noted physicist, to the United States, stopped in Halifax Harbor. The Dalhousie professor in a public address here discussed his conversation with Dr. Einstein.

"The distracted people Dr. Einstein thinks, are easily cajoled into a new venture, because they think they cannot change for the worse," Dr. Stewart declared. "The real spiritual forces of the country are not extinct, but crushed into silence. There is all manner of discord, but the intellectuals are not lacking in courage, and in the dictatorship that has been established, it is impossible to guess how large numerically the dissentient number is.

"But about his own hardships," Dr. Stewart continued, "about the manifold details of injustice done him of which the rabble have told us, Dr. Einstein showed no disposition to speak. Once or twice, when about the character of the present Government, it checked it for he seemed still to have a vitality, full of his Fatherland, and the incisive comments of a foreigner might not have been pleasing.

"He was by no means not free of a resentment as of sadness which came into his voice as he spoke of the perils of civilization, of the menace to that spirit of free enquiry which had been the nerve of all real progress in the past.

"What astonished me was that he was his avoidance as he spoke of all merely personal grievances and dealt with matters the individual if the good cause is secure? Science is of much more than any single scientist, or than all the scientists combined. But stress can never advance unless the zeal of the individual scientist is at work unfettered."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE A Nasty Job

Screen actors have found themselves in many strange situations during the filming of pictures in Hollywood's history, but no assignment was ever so bizarre as the experience of a group of Chinese atmospheric players in "I Cover the Waterfront," Reliance's romantic thriller for Unity Artists, now at the Belle.

They were paid to be modern Jonah's only instead of whales, they had to live inside sharks.

This fantastic situation, which in story is not so fantastic as it sounds, according to authorities who for years have been combatting the smuggling of Chinese into California, was necessary to fit the story action in the picture based on Max Miller's best selling book, "I Cover the Waterfront."

Giant Sharks Caught

Ben Lyon, playing opposite Claudette Colbert, has the role of a reporter who aids fishers men in running down a gang of Mexico-Chinese men, headed by Ernest Torrence, whose real racket is smuggling Chinese into the United States. After landing pockets of despondent people aliens under the very noses of the authorities, the mystery finally is solved. The Chinese are made charts delivered to a fertilizer factory.

In bringing this action to the screen, the film company under the direction of James Cruze, the man responsible for "The Covered Wagon," "Old Ironsides" and other epical productions, cruised the high seas off the California coast until it encountered a school of huge sharks.

After a battle lasting for hours, and while cameras and sound equipment recorded the action, harpooners succeeded in landing several of the monsters, some of them 36 feet long and weighing three tons. These "elephant" sharks are among the largest found in the waters of the globe, and this particular school was the biggest ever known in California.

Returning more than 160 miles to the waterfront location at the port of San Pedro, where the United States battle fleet, and the U. S. S. Constitution, popularly known as "Old Ironsides," added to the "atmosphere," the sharks were strung up with the aid of steel cranes, and the Chinese participated in the terrific action of the climatic scenes in "I Cover the Waterfront."

Bound hand and foot with chains the smugglers, in the story, being always ready in three days' time aboard and destroy the evidence in case of pursuit and capture by U. S. Coast Guard cutters, the Chinese captives were enabled to breathe by means of a gas mask contrivance, attached to rubber tubes running to the open jaws of the dead monsters.

Outside of having to burn their clothes and scrub themselves thoroughly after emulating Jonah, the Chinese players suffered no ill effects as a result of the unique experience.

Fortunately it was not necessary to film reptiles, for the producers, through interpreters, insisted "they want to do again."

A big comedy revue, The Canadian News Reel, and a funny Sennett Star comedy will be presented on the same program.

"WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD WOLF"

The pleasantest cinema recreation of the year, by all odds, is Walter Disney, and his brief "Silly Symphonies." Nothing convinces by the motion picture in the past ten years has caught on so magnificently. Nothing is so satisfyingly childish, human and refreshing. Ten minutes spent with Mr. Disney and his colored sequences of pint-size humans, and two hours spent with the most perfectly shaped flaxen doll before the camera.

When Mr. Disney annexed color with music and sound and rolled into one his wonderful child "Three Little Pigs" he gave the world a handsomer Mother Goose day gift. No film of the season has been so genuinely joyous, or so eagerly asked after. The public has followed these "Three Little Pigs" and one Disney brother to another, in proving the most unique picture house attraction.

It is Weeks at Broadway's Capitol with Mr. Disney and his colored progressives of pint-size humans, and when two hours spent with the most perfectly shaped flaxen doll before the camera.

"Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf", that is now featured by vocalists on many radio programs, and interviewed with marked success, orchestras and bands in exclusive night clubs and vaudeville theatres in the United States and Canada.

The picture followed its daily exhibition on its recent return engagement at the Uptown Theatre,

PENAL SYSTEM ATTACKED BY WM. F. NICKLE

As Administered Disgrace To Our National Life

RECOUNTED TALES

Existed Before Riots, What Convicts Claimed Reign of Terror

Montreal, Oct. 17 (CP) — "The penal system of Canada as it is now administered is a disgrace to our national life and should be swept away," declared William F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston, Ont., former Attorney General for Ontario, speaking before the Young Men's Canadian Club here last night.

"The rights of convicts in our penitentiaries must be recognized," Mr. Nickle stated. "The code of rules by which Kingston penitentiary was being operated at the time of the so-called riots, on Oct. 17, 1932, were the regulations laid down for the government of penitentiaries in 1886. In that code only recognized rights of convicts were to be fed, clothed and housed. Beyond that, anything they were allowed to have was by virtue of privilege, without any question of right."

Mr. Nickle recounted tales of suffering undergone by convicts in Kingston penitentiary in the months last autumn. The lives of the convicts were regarded solely upon the will of the warden, he said. Aside from the exercise of "the pitiful rights allowed them in the prison rule," the penitentiary last year was drastically overcrowded, cells were divided by wooden partitions, men were housed in the corridors, and the depression had cast in among hardened "repeaters" —criminals who had served many terms—a tragic number of men, who, for bringing a fourth conviction, full now of his Fatherland, and the incisive comments of a foreigner might not have been pleasing.

"He was by no means not free of a resentment as of sadness which came into his voice as he spoke of the perils of civilization, of the menace to that spirit of free enquiry which had been the nerve of all real progress in the past.

"What astonished me was that he was his avoidance as he spoke of all merely personal grievances and dealt with matters the individual if the good cause is secure? Science is of much more than any single scientist, or than all the scientists combined. But stress can never advance unless the zeal of the individual scientist is at work unfettered."

R. VANDERWATER SPEAKER AT "Y"

Deals With History of Canada in Three Phases

"Canadian Citizenship" was the interesting subject upon which Col. Roscoe Vanderwater spoke to the members of the local Y.M.C.A. on Monday evening last.

In introducing his topic Col. Vanderwater divided his subject into three distinct phases — past, present and future. He stated that the past he referred to the history of Canada under French rule, British government and the immigration period, as he referred to it. The latter was the period when Canada accepted Europeans, or non-English speaking individuals, under her protection. The last referred to people were being educating to think and act as Canadians even onto this day. As for the other two phases of the country he considered that her geographical position with a vast land of over 3,000 miles wide and over 500 miles in breadth. Under this category the speaker referred to Canada as being the most resourceful country in the world, with the exception of Russia.

As for the present the speaker spoke on citizenship with regard to loyalty to one's community, Col. Vanderwater stressed loyalty to one's church, club and most of all municipal affairs. As to the present depression the speaker gave his opinion, that, it had aided to our education as it gave each and every individual an opportunity to take stock of such artificial periods as from 1920 to 1929. "Prior to 1914 Canada was referred to as a British colony but, during the Great War Canada earned her place as a great nation, among nations, and we are recognized as such in the world," emphatically said Col. Vanderwater, later he admitted, that Canadians had a tendency to be unmindful in national affairs owing to the fact, that we border the largest financial country in the world. The speaker tried to instill into the minds of those present, that such principles and ideals should not be prevalent as Canada's future was one of optimism.

Referring to the future the speaker dwelt lightly on the recent crisis and their effect on other countries. "These phases do not 'enter into the picture' but, rather, the question of transportation and responsibility of government," said the Colonel. As for the former, Col. Vanderwater emphatically pointed out, that something regarding Canada's railways, canals and highways would be the chief question facing our future governments, while in the line of responsible government the various parties concerned would have to lean slightly towards the socialistic form of government to assure success in the future. "A socialistic trend, wherein the greatest good for the greatest number would be result and should be the policy of a Canadian government", was the concluding note of the speaker.

The speaker was introduced by President Ken Thomson and thanked on behalf of the club by Past President Lloyd Hubbs. During the evening Alec Gordon delighted the gathering with an excellent piano number, a medley of airs rendered of the coming Y.M.C.A. annual financial campaign, which opens next week. The campaign workers will be guests of the club at their next meeting. The members were also informed of a monster runn-ing-dance to be held by the club next Saturday, when the greatest dance orchestra ever staged in Belleville will be thrown open to the public in the auditorium of the Y.M.C.A.

REBEL GENERALS ARE ARRESTED IN CHINA

Tried to Flee Lines Disguised as Peasants

Peiping, China, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Two of China's rebel generals were dramatically arrested today as a result of activities, which threatened Sino-Japanese peace in North China last month.

The Generals, Feng Chen Wu and Chin Hung Chang, deserted the Loyalist northward drive, Peiping and, disguised as peasants, attempted to pass the government patrols on the way to Peiping.

The latter was recognized, however, and both outlaws were arrested and brought here for trial.

Toronto, to Mr. Herbert John Dallimore, son of Mrs. Dallimore and the late Mr. Edward Dallimore, of Teronto. Rev. Canon W. L. Baynes Reed officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. W. H. Mould played the wedding march and played softly throughout the ceremony and signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore a lovely gown of white satin made on Princess lines with leg o' mutton sleeves. Her veil was arranged with clusters of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Doris Gerrard, was attired in white lace overnet and the bridesmaid, Miss Lillian Dallimore, sister of the groom in orchid satin with lace overnet. Both wore small turbans matching their frocks and shoes and carried Talisman roses. Little Miss Vera Merrill sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore a frock of yellow taffeta with old-fashioned hat to match. She carried a basket of roses. Mr. Norman F. Wright acted as the best man and the ushers were Mr. Ralph George and Mr. Jerry Scott.

The bells chimed out their good wishes as the bride and groom left the church.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was decorating very beautifully with autumn flowers. Mrs. A. B. Merrill, mother of the bride, wearing a gown of brown velvet with hat and shoes to match, and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Dallimore, mother of the groom, wore navy blue velvet, trimmed in black, with hat to match, and a corsage of roses.

For the couple left for a short wedding trip, the bride wearing a smart ensemble of brown lace, hat and shoes to match, amid showers of confetti and good wishes from their friends. They will reside in Toronto.

MOSSMAN—MASTERSON

A pretty wedding took place at Christ Church's 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, when Loretta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Masterson, became the bride of Roy Clarence Mossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mossman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Wright. The bride made a charming picture in a dress of Russian crepe with hat and accessories in grey. Miss Sally Salisbury was bridesmaid and wore a figured chiffon dress with hat and accessories to match. Mr. Earl Mossman was his brother's groomsman. After the ceremony the bride and groom left for Toronto. On their return they will reside in Thurlow Township.

Give Baby Start In Life

(By Constance Cameron)

The point on which many young mothers go wrong even while endeavoring to give their babies every advantage, is the time at which to start bedding dainty bodies for them.

When the mother has been properly fed, the baby has a better chance of being born in a healthy, vigorous child. The mother will be better able to nurse him and will have strength to give him the care he needs. It is not safe to leave a mother's food to chance or whim. The diet should be planned with the help of a doctor.

Sample menus for women of average weight and also for those who are underweight or overweight are suggested. The amount of food needed varies with different mothers, from about 2,000 calories a day for the overweight woman to about 4,000 calories for one overweight or for one of average weight who is obliged to do much work. For a nursing mother of average weight, 3,000 calories is needed.

Whatever the diet may include, it should be planned so that the first food given may be provided by the protective foods. These foods in the following order are listed in the bulletin the "daily dietary essentials."

One quart of milk, one raw vegetable salad, one eggs, one vegetable other than raw, one cooked green leafy vegetable, one serving of whole grain cereal bread.

To these dietary essentials must be added starch and fats, peanut butter, sugar and butter. The amount of these should vary depending upon the total number of calories needed in the diet.

The mother's diet during pregnancy is important for the development of the baby. If the diet does not begin to form six months before his birth and continue to grow after Genesis, Ontario, with lace overnet and the bridesmaid, Miss Lillian Dallimore, sister of the groom in orchid satin with lace overnet. Both wore small turbans matching their frocks and shoes and carried Talisman roses. Little Miss Vera Merrill sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore a frock of yellow taffeta with old-fashioned hat to match. She carried a basket of roses. Mr. Norman F. Wright acted as the best man and the ushers were Mr. Ralph George and Mr. Jerry Scott.

The bells chimed out their good wishes as the bride and groom left the church.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was decorating very beautifully with autumn flowers. Mrs. A. B. Merrill, mother of the bride, wearing a gown of brown velvet with hat and shoes to match, and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Dallimore, mother of the groom, wore navy blue velvet, trimmed in black, with hat to match, and a corsage of roses.

For the couple left for a short wedding trip, the bride wearing a smart ensemble of brown lace, hat and shoes to match, amid showers of confetti and good wishes from their friends. They will reside in Toronto.

MOSSMAN—MASTERSON

A pretty wedding took place at Christ Church's 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, when Loretta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Masterson, became the bride of Roy Clarence Mossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mossman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Wright. The bride made a charming picture in a dress of Russian crepe with hat and accessories in grey. Miss Sally Salisbury was bridesmaid and wore a figured chiffon dress with hat and accessories to match. Mr. Earl Mossman was his brother's groomsman. After the ceremony the bride and groom left for Toronto. On their return they will reside in Thurlow Township.

HAS COLLECTION OF FAMOUS SHOES

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The poets Amelia Earhart flew to Paris in the first dancing shoes bought by Ruby Keeler, Marilyn Miller's blue satin pumps and Queen Victoria's white satin shoes are among the historical footwear shown here by Herman B. Delman and placed on exhibition in the shoe salon of a New York store last night.

Only three pairs of the historic 500 belonged to men—the shoes of Pope Pius XI, those of a bishop of Trieste, and those of Lafayette. The bedroom slippers of the Empress Eugenie, as well as Egyptian clog 500 years old, and shoes of Venetian courtesans of 1600 to the South Seas are included. The collection is insured for $50,000.

CROP OF 148,000 BARRELS

The apple crop of Prince Edward County is estimated this year at 148,000 barrels by Mr. Earl Weese. Last year it was 125,000 barrels. These are busy days in the county orchards where picking and packing are going on, also at the cold storage plant, which is working 24 hours daily.

FALL MENUS

(By Barbara B. Brooks)

Summer, with its abundance of fruit and vegetables, is rather good to us, but the best of the year is here. Now that fall is here, more time has to be spent planning meals which will have variety, either through the use of many different foods or by serving the usual foods in different ways.

One of the most attractive vegetable platters that we have ever seen was revealed by a Parent-Teacher. She stuffed peppers, tomatoes and cabbage leaves with a meat and cereal mixture; put them alternately into a kettle, added tomato juice, covered the pot and let them simmer until tender. The peppers can be parboiled before stuffing them. The cabbage leaves are dipped in boiling water before they are rolled and fastened with small wooden skewers.

STUFFED VEGETABLES

3 cups left-over meat (ground); 1 onion (finely chopped) 1 cup rice krispies, 1-2 tsp. salt; 1-8 tsp. pepper, 1-3 cup tomato pulp, 2 green peppers, 3 tomatoes, 6 cabbage leaves.

Mix meat, onion, rice krispies, salt and pepper. Moisten with tomato pulp. Stuff the vegetables, place in kettle, add tomato sauce, cover and cook until tender.

TOMATO SAUCE

2 tsp. butter or oil, 1 tbsp. onion (finely chopped), 2 tbsps. celery (finely chopped), 1 tbsp. green pepper (finely chopped), 1 No. 2 can tomatoes (2 cups), 1-2 tsp. salt, 1-8 tsp. Worcestershire sauce, 1-3 tsp. sugar, 1-4 tsp. pepper.

Cook onion, celery and green pepper in butter or oil until tender but not brown. Add tomatoes and seasonings. Cook during occasionally until the water from the tomatoes has evaporated and the sauce is slightly thickened.

Some people are afraid to use garlic, but it is a seasoning which raises uninteresting dishes out of the ordinary class. Try it with the spinach recipe.

NOVEL SPINACH

4 tbsps. butter, 1-4 pound mushrooms (sliced), 1 clove garlic (crushed), 2 pounds spinach, 2 tsps. lemon juice, salt, pepper.

Heat the butter and cook the mushrooms and garlic in it for ten minutes, stirring in an up spinach which has been washed, thoroughly drained and chopped. Season with salt and pepper and cook for about 10 minutes or until the spinach is tender. Add the lemon juice.

Left-over cooked beef means just what its name implies. Vegetables, either raw or cooked, may be mixed with French dressing and served on lettuce or cabbage leaves. Such a salad bean muffins and fruit form a delicious luncheon at this time of year.

Start Your Child's Training at Birth

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A MOTHER WRITES in to ask how long she should begin toilet training her two-year-old child. My reply would be, if I were writing her, "two years ago." But my reply would be sent in all seriousness, too.

At some time or other I read somewhere or was told: "Never let a husband nor a baby do anything once that you don't want him to do again." The baby should begin his training here

Burglary Auto Accident

Burglaries are becoming more numerous of late. You can protect your household against BURGLARY and yourself against personal HOLD UP—both included for $5 per annum. Automobile Accident Insurance $1500, for $5. per annum.

These are cheap, but they are excellent.

Trends in Market Difficult For Traders to Define—Mines Firmed at Opening But Wearied at End of First Hour And Eased Back ... Volume is Heavy—Stocks Changed Little Due to Short Covering but Weakness Allowed Gains to Fade

TORONTO STOCKS . . .

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Industrial stocks showed a preponderance of gains at the end of the first hour or more today on the Toronto Stock Exchange, the party to short covering and to new buying on the assumption that the slump was over but in the second hour there was a renewal of weakness and most of the early gains were chilled. Volume was heavy in Nickle, Wabun Exploration and Ford A.

In the early sales Walker's common pushed up to 42 and at once was holding part of the gain at 41 1-3. Imperial Oil held still up 1-3 and Distillers Seagram 9-8.

Interlisted stocks, with exception of Brazilian were unchanged or lower at noon. Brazilian retained a gain of 1-3 at 13 1-4. C.P.R. was up 3-8 at 13 1-2 and steelers was unchanged. Noranda had regained 35 cents but returned to $18 where it was unchanged. Ford A dropped to 9 1-4.

In the first hour the market had the support of short covering and also with considerable investment buying and pricing moved slightly but definitely upward. A new selling wave on the New York market soon broke, however, again unsettled Toronto listings.

Distillery shares fluctuated with New York "wet" issues. At midafternoon Walker's common held a gain of 1 1-4 and Distillers Seagram and Alcohol A had narrower fractions to the good. Oils showed no change and Ford A and Brazilian had gained of 1-4 to 1-2.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Spots of resistance appeared in the financial market today although there were so many dips and rallies that trader generally were difficult for traders to define.

The stock list started out with indications of regaining now of the substantial losses of the previous session. Recoveries of fractions to points, more than a point were recorded by most of the leaders in the first hour of moderate trading. The advance encountered a flood of offerings, however, and there was a subsidence of recovery and the list finished very little changed.

Bonds were rather irregular.

Canadian issues were moved in rather narrow confines. International Nickel and Canadian Pacific sold unchanged while McIntyre Porcupine and Dome rated fractional gains. At the curb, Hiram Walker was quoted around its previous close while Gold Stone Mines gained 1-4 point.

Dominion Government 4s eased 4 1-2s ruled unchanged but the 5s eased 1-2 point. The Canadian dollar was up 5-16 of 1-a cent.

TORONTO MINES

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Mining Stocks moved generally as the opening of the Standard Exchange today but a few issues showed weakness at the end of the first hour and were still under pressure when in line with the New York list which became unsteady after a fairly firm opening. Trading was heavy in the morning session.

The highest improved price for bar gold helped the gold issues. At noon Hollinger was up 5 at the new high. Teck Hughes 20 cents, Wright Hargreaves 25, Hollinger 15 while Reserve was unchanged and Dome off 20 cents.

Nickel stocks moved with the New York list in the second hour, dropping an early gain of 1-4 point. Noranda moved up 50 cents.

The advance in the price of bar gold in London to nearly 131 shillings provided an argument for higher prices in the gold shares and advances were scored by the leaders but New York weakness around noon shaded the best prices considerably. Trading in gold shares declined part of the morning gains.

Dear Sir or Madam, particularly Normoda and International Nickel clung to the upside through the decline, closing at mid-afternoon the whole list had boarded small gains.

WILL SEND CARLOAD PROVISIONS TO WEST

Car Will Be Loaded at Stirling, Madoc And Belleville

In order to alleviate the suffering to some extent in the drought areas of Saskatchewan, the United Churches in the Belleville Presbytery are preparing a carload of perishable, church commodities and clothing to be sent in the near future for distribution in these areas. The same plan was followed two years ago and the help given by the Belleville and Bay of Quinte Presbytery was more than appreciated by the people. The C.N.R. and the railroads are doing their part in this relief work by transporting the car to the west free of all charges and it is the wish of the Presbytery authorities to have everyone help and make an effort to add their quota to the car. It is the intention to have the car sent to Stirling, Madoc and then to Belleville for loading purposes. It is hoped to have the car will be at these points has not been definitely settled but will be announced shortly.

CAR SLUES ON WET STREET

Passengers Receive Minor Injuries And Cars' Badly Damaged

Wet slippery pavements were alleged responsible for an automobile accident near the corner of Church and Dundas Streets about 8.30 p.m. last evening, when a motor car driven by Glen Pearo 303 Bleecker Ave., and occupied by three women and a child, overturned.

According to the police report, Pearo car skidded across the intersection applied the brakes of his car. The automobile skidded sideways and struck the curb, overturning which was proceeding eastward, in the front left fender damaging the axle, radiator and running board to the value of about $100.00. The Pearo car skidded across the boulevard before coming to a stop, after striking the Vichier car, owned by Mrs. Lucien Vichier of Belleil the Pearo'clegar.

Chief Constable Ward and Isard investigated the accident and summoned Dr. Chas. who attended the injured persons.

ANDY TOMMY BEST SCORER

Colorful Cog in Ottawa Offence Leads Inter-provincial

Toronto, Oct. 17 — (CP)—Andy Tommy, 24-year-old gridder who came up from intermediate ranks to make himself the most colorful cog in Ottawa's Big Four rear division, led all scorers in the Inter-provincial Rugby Union today. The big shouting Canuck, Frank Turville of Tigers, Jack Taylor of Argonauts and Cheri Perina of Montreal, trailed the agile Tommy in that order.

His touchdown against Hamilton in the first game of the season and the two he scored last Saturday against Argos gave Tommy, playing his first season in the major circuit, a total of 18 points, two more than Turville, The Boughrider sensation learned to jog a football on Marianne British rugger fields.

Turville, heaviest scorer in the east last season accounted for 12 points with two field goals and seven singles. Twice beaten, the Tigers have scored only a single touchdown in two contests. Ray Boadway got it. Jack Taylor's two touchdowns, both against Montreal, placed him third behind Perina was fourth with eight points and Alex McPherson fifth with seven.

Not only does Jack Sinclair of University of Toronto lead intercollegiate scorers in the league in 24 points is more than the entire opposition. Queen's, McGill and Western, has been unable to muster. The Queen's total is six points. Western has scored seven and McGill two. Sinclair, one of the greatest all-round backfielders in the country, built up his total with two touchdowns and 16 singles.

Boyce Sherk of Western, speedy freshman from Port Colborne, Ont. high school, scored five, all on singles and Davis of Queen's accounted for four points with a field goal and one single. Arnold Arupp of Varsity accounted for the only three points Sinclair didn't score for the blue team with a field goal. Two touchdowns gave Roy Brown, Barnia quarterback, the lead in the senior O.R.F.U. group over Allen of Hamilton, who scored six points. Allen converted a touchdown and kicked five singles.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR BALL GAME

Picton-Southampton Final Will Also be Broadcast From Guelph

Information was received in the city at an early hour this morning stating that besides a special train being chartered to transport the followers of the Picton club to Guelph on Wednesday, the game itself would be broadcast over a Canadian radio station. Train communications between points east of Trenton are being arranged by the C.N.R. so as to accommodate those desirous of joining the party among who leave Picton about 7.00 a.m. Wednesday. Persons making the trip from Belleville can join the special train at Trenton continuing westward to Guelph, the scene of the intermediate O.B.A.A. finals being played between Picton and the Southampton "Fishermen." Doris "Warpy" Phillips will oppose Hector "Lefty" Goldsmith in this final game. Each hurler is credited with having won two contests at previous dates. More than the usual amount of provincial interest has been taken in this series, thus the decision to broadcast the game over the air. The train from Belleville making connections with the special at Trenton leaves the north station at 8.00 a.m.

TWO APPROVED FOR CANONIZATION

Vatican City, Oct. 17—Twenty-one cardinals meeting with Pope Pius at a secret consistory approved the canonization of the Blessed Bernadette Soubirous of the Sisters of Christian instruction, Nevers, France and the Blessed Joan Antida Thouret, founder of a branch of the Sisters of Charity. Blessed Bernadette's name is linked with the miraculous shrine of Lourdes in France.

The Pope read a long allocution exalting the Blessed Soubirous and the Blessed Thouret and urging the cardinals to cast their votes in favor of the canonization. Cardinal Laurenti briefly described the lives and the miracles of the prospective saint's. The cardinals each written votes and gave unanimous approval.

CHALLENGE FOR TROPHY

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Royal Yacht squadron today announced it had filed a formal challenge with the New York Yacht Club for the America's Cup, famous yachting trophy which the late Sir Thomas Lipton tried so long to win for England. The challenging yacht is Tom Sopwith's Endeavour, now being built at Cowport.

HAMILTON TIGER LACROSSE TEAM WINS DOMINION TITLE

They found it difficult to raise enough money to see them across Canada. But they washed all opposition until they hit New Westminster. "They" are the Hamilton Tigers of lacrosse fame, who by four brothers is composed of (Top, New Westminster, traditional lacrosse champions of the Pacific coast, for the Dominion lacrosse championship. The Tigers playing at the top of their game, walked right into the Salmon Bellies and took the first two games played by good margins. But they struck a snag and the desperate fishermen came back strong to take the next two in the best three out of five series. Dominion Lacrosse Title Won by Hamilton Tigers in Five Game Series

Defeat Salmonbellies in Last Game By 12-7

ONCE DOWN

Winners Hang up An Enviable Record in Season

New Westminster, Oct. 17—(CP)—Tigers of Hamilton today are monarchs of Canadian lacrosse, holders of the historic Mann Cup for 1933.

They won this famed trophy last night, defeating New Westminster Salmonbellies 12-7 by staving off a desperate last quarter rally in which Salmonbellies brought up all their heavy artillery but failed to crash an all but impregnable defence.

Winners of the Eastern Canada championship, the Tigers stalled a trail of victory from the head of the lakes to the coast, coming out of the east they first met and defeated Fort William's stars moved on to Winnipeg and took the famed Argos into camp, and then made the long hop to Calgary where they gained victory over the Shamrocks, Alberta champions.

Hero of the final game was goalie Bobby Rohmer, in the last 18 minutes of torrid play, it was Rohmer and he alone, who protected the one lead built up by three quarters of brilliant and stirring battle. Direct shot after shot rained in on him as the Salmonbellies circled throughout the whole quarter seeking to score and he allowed only one goal.

Meanwhile Clarke and Matt Rohmer clinching the victory by scoring two goals in the last five minutes.

In only one quarter did the Westminster team, bolstered not only by veteran Willie Patwell, but also by their renowned home player George Fergey, dominate the play. This was in the third when seeking to overcome a five-goal lead of the Tigers they outscored their opponents 3 to 2.

Once Two Down

After Salmonbellies had taken a two-goal lead in the first quarter Hamilton got their flying offensive in action and suddenly took command. They led five to two at the end of the first quarter and were never headed after that.

The finish was a futile but grim struggle by the Salmonbellies to overcome a tremendous handicap. It was a bitter struggle and the second quarter threatened to end in a regular donnybrook. Hugh Kelly and Ray Baker landed in the centre of the floor, but provincial police stepped in and separated the tangle of players and the trouble was smoothed over. Spectators, too, invaded the floor before order could be restored. It was said to be the first fight in five years in a Mann Cup final.

All races of battle had vanished immediately after the game as players fraternized on the floor, congratulating the victors.

For Hamilton the superb Matt Rohmer was the hero of the attack. He scored four goals. Kelly and Lulidair scored two each. They were both injured, Kelly being cut on the nose and Lulidair being slashed across the head.

Today the Tigers prepared to take the home trail, with the possibility of one more game before hanging up their sticks for the season. They may play an exhibition game at Regina en route across the prairies.

Statements in Letters Read at Inquiry at Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 17—The question of whether the Hartt and Adair Coal Company had any obligation not to import German coal occupied the attention of the Court of King's Bench as the prosecution continued of six coal companies on charges of forming a price combine.

Andrew Flemming, vice-president and general manager of the Hartt and Adair Company, was in the witness box throughout the session. Louis St. Laurent, acting as prosecuting counsel for the Quebec Attorney General, produced a letter from Mr. Flemming which spoke of "our promise not to import any German buckwheat."

Mr. St. Laurent produced a letter from R. L. Piercey of T. T. Pascoe Limited, Swansea, to Mr. Flemming, which brought a smile from Mr. Justice Willrid Lalliberte, Judge hearing the case, and a laugh from Senator Lorne C. Webster.

"I told the people at the dinner," the letter said, "that Webster was not the only one who had been working in Canada for the Welsh coal trade. Dr. Camsell had been greatly interested in it since 1912, and the only difference was that Webster got a dollar a ton for his interests and Dr. Camsell nothing—he is a civil servant."

Dr. Charles Camsell is Deputy Minister of Mines at Ottawa.

Another letter from Flemming was produced, as follows: "Signatory has seen Mr. Aird on one or two occasions, but no suggestion has been made as to what the price will be. He has intimated that we are prepared to co-operate."

The reply from Piercey was then read: "We are glad to note you have seen Mr. Aird—we sincerely hope you will be able to agree on prices, and, now you have 100 per cent. of the Welsh coal business in your hands, you should be able to get the utmost price out of Welsh coal."

"Did you get the utmost price?" Mr. St. Laurent asked.

"That was the supression of Mr. Piercey, who was in Wales," Flemming replied.

"Yes, but I am curious to know if the hope from Wales was possible in Canada?"

"I should like to know what is the utmost price," Flemming said. "It was a fair price, but not an utmost price."

CURRENT SPORT

Our Peterboro confreres seem somewhat surprised following our statements of last week relating to the future possibilities of baseball in Belleville. "Well pshaw, you ain't heard nothin' yet."

First and foremost we wish to make one thing quite clear. The young Lilliput City scribe takes a slight dig at the Nationals and their executive regarding some sort of a job guaranteed Ernie Holmes last spring. One thing we do know along these lines is this—Holmes was given two jobs by local professional employers, both these positions have long since been filled and those who believed Holmes are fickled to death with their chances—"You're welcome." And the Nationals are interested in neither "Warpy" Phillips nor Bill Callaghine. We hope everything is quite clear to the Peterboro sport writer by now.

Following in the wake of last week's statement in this column relative to the future possibilities of baseball we have changed our ideas as to the future of the summer pastime in this town. After carefully closely the Picton intermediates and their drawing powers, lately we are of the opinion that Belleville baseball activities might fare just as well in a fast intermediate group as they would in a senior loop.

This question, along with others will be thoroughly aired at the coming baseball meeting to be held at the Y.M.C.A. later this week. All interested in junior, intermediate and senior baseball locally should make a special effort to be present at the meeting. "Come one, come all, it's free."

Coach Shiels' senior gridders jumped from the cellar to second position in the Lake Shore group of C.O.S.S.A. football following their win over Peterboro on Saturday. The league leading Oshawa seniors experienced little difficulty in downing Lindsay Collegiate and now enjoy the top rung of the group ladder. The local seniors journey to Lindsay on Saturday next, while the local junior squad entertain the Picton Juniors at the Fair Grounds on Friday afternoon.

Coach Shiels' charges were literally run ragged for the better part of the final quarter at Peterboro last Saturday as the Petes were loosing forward passes almost at will. As in past years the local team has proven a slow squad to condition and, from now on they should be seen at a much better advantage. Both squads, junior and senior, will be out to practice this evening with Coach Shiels and Jack Taylor of the Argos drilling the senior and Instructor Laughlin working on the juniors.

Repeatedly yesterday we were answering the telephone relative to the possibilities of the Picton intermediates chartering a special train to carry their supporters to Guelph for the third and deciding game verses the Southampton "Fishermen". We burned many telephone and telegraph wires before it was finally related to us, that the Prince Edward County magnates, were not going to run a special train to Guelph.

According to what information we could gather the train will leave Picton about 7.00 a.m. Wednesday and persons desiring to make the trip from points east of Trenton will have full access to the rail rate prices that have been arranged. Naturally the train will stop at all points between Picton, Trenton and Guelph picking up passengers all along the line. The fans east of Trenton will travel via the regular morning train to Trenton, where they will join the happy throng on the "baseball special". The fare has been provided—this lowered and is within reach of most everybody pocket. "Let's climb on the band wagon and have one more day's outing."

When the first cotton spinning factories were established, about 1800, they employed many young children, and working hours were from sunrise to sunset.

From the Hockey Training Camps

(By The Canadian Press)

Right in the middle of the football season, they're manufactured ice and turned loose the first of the hockey hordes. Most of the National Hockey League teams were ready for ice, several had already tried and others were ready to start this week.

New York Americans beat all Canadian division teams to the ice as Ottawa last night. With the first members of his squad on hand Coach Joe Simpson allowed his players to put in a good skating practice. The real conditioning starts today.

Canadiens also worked out today for the first time on ice. The French team, almost at full strength on their arrival yesterday at Kingston, had Howie Morenz and the Mantha brothers Sylvio and George, signed to contracts. It was expected Aurel Joliat and Johnny Gagnon, completing the front line partnership with Morenz would sign later this week.

Coach George E. Boucher, confident he can develop a contender at Ottawa, expects to look over more than a score of players within the next few days. The Senators born held their first ice workout yesterday after two weeks or more of outdoor conditioning.

Boucher has come in for experienced talent in his drive to rebuild the Senators. The only amateur trying for a place is Jerry Shannon, star winger of Niagara Falls Cataracts. Senior Ontario Hockey Association championship honors other new forwards are Bud Cook, brother of New York's Bill and Bun who played with Boston Cubs in the Canadian-American League last season, Jack Wasnie, with Americans in 1932; the veteran Perk Galbraith from Boston and Ted Saunders, a high-scorer with Boston Cubs.

Out in Chicago, Tommy Gorman is getting his team and waiting for the appearance of the Clancy he expects will join his Black Hawks one of the sroncest defence corps in the game when Lionel Conacher gets through playing football with his Toronto Argonauts in the Chicago camp, Gorman will be ready.

Among aspirants for forward berths with the Hawks are Herbie Lewis, Owen Sound. Ont., product who was a high scorer in the American League last season with Buffalo Olters and Earl Seibert, Regina native who led American league scorers in a Wichita uniform.

At Detroit, Jack Adams has a couple newcomer. He is Gordon Pettinger, the Flin Flon junior picked for stardom by Frank Patrick and picked on the waiver list by brother Lester after a couple season with Rangers. Adams has also the Canadian Soo Greyhounds and one of the greatest juniors ever produced.

Smiley John's team was the sensation of the N.H.L. season last year and the tall Irish is back. Adams fears he doesn't require changes, that the experience his players have acquired make them more dangerous than ever.

Toronto Leafs are expected to start training later this week, at Kitchener.

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

...tripped over a prostrate form at the edge of the clearing.—Warner Ferguson probably.

But he could not wait to see who it was or whether it was a living being or a corpse.

The yacht was at the tiny rotting wharf that he had noticed that morning.

But someone was moving on deck. The motor was settling down to a steady misfiring.

Vern stepped onto the dock. There was only room for a dozen feet to go when "Wings" started to move.

There was not the least bit of a good jump between the pier and the boat when Vern reached its extreme end.

Vern jumped.

But he was too tired.

The grateful cool water received him into its embrace.

He swam after the receding yacht but what was the use?

The smooth figure of a man stood at the wheel turning from time to time to make a gesture of derision toward the shore.

CHAPTER 37

Vern dragged himself, dripping, out of the water and sat down on the beach.

It was such a hopeless situation.

And he had so nearly achieved a victory against unbelievable odds.

There wasn't even a fast rowboat in which they could pursue the escaping buccaneer and his hapless prisoner.

There was no way of communicating with the mainland, probably no fast boat anywhere near even if he could get word to shore.

The necessity of taking care of Dennis Drury who had been pretty badly hurt by a blow from the butt of Dannycliff's rifle forced Vern all to go back to the house.

There was certainly no point in staying down on the beach looking in the direction in which the yacht had departed.

So the four of them including Drury who turned out to be a good kid as soon as his confidence began to return, carried the invalid of the island back to his ancient manor house and in the candle-lit drawing room they administered first aid. For a long time the man remained unconscious and Vern was afraid the fluttering heart would run down.

But at the end of an hour he opened his eyes.

"It's my deal," he mumpled. "And that makes it a round of roodles."

They finally convinced him that the poker game had stopped for the time being and that he must stay flat on his back until his strength returned.

They did not tell him that Irene was gone and he seem satisfied that Drury was once more among them.

A little later he dropped off into a natural sleep and Vern, assured of his safety for the time being could take a reservey of his own troubles.

The fact that he was wet and that his last cigarettes were gone did not really matter. He got himself one of Warner Ferguson's presumably home-made, cigars and found a dry box of safety matches.

But Irene was gone seemingly beyond recall now. While she was still on the island there had been a hope that fate could be tricked in some way that circumstances could be turned to advantage and the spoils wrested from the hands of her unscrupulous conqueror. But the possession of the yacht and the girl both gave Dannycliff decision.

Vern was assailed by a horrible fear. What if Irene were dead already? He had seen her father take that method of escape from her horrible adoptive when all else failed. Rather than live with their lovely body was floating lifeless in the breakers. Vern shuddered at the sound.

He hid his face in his helpless hands to try to shut out the sight which his imagination had painted for him.

And then almost as if in a dream he heard Irene's voice saying—I think that he was in New York then—

It was the long drawn out whistle of a steamship somewhere in the distance.

The unaccustomed noise awakened Warner Ferguson who wanted to go down to the shore to investigate. But Vern persuaded him in condition for any further exertion and Vern promising never to disturbed Drury and the old men to stay at the house while he went down to the beach.

It had not been an hallucination. Just as he reached the beach the signal came again the sonorous hoot of high-pressure steam tearing and stretching itself. It was nearer this time and Vern saw that from above was a restless stream of illumination that could come from no other source than a searchlight. He beam was directed in long swings behind the intermittent interjection of the shore.

Vern could not imagine what they were searching for. But it did not make any difference. There was a chance that they might be a revenue cutter on the trail of rum runners. In which case they would probably be willing to help him. Or they might be rum runners themselves looking for a hideway. In that case he might be able to induce them for a consideration to enter his service.

At any rate it seemed a chance. Hastily collecting together a little dry wood he built himself a small bonfire on the sand and lit it.

Apparently those on the vessel off-shore were looking for some such signal for they immediately stood in toward the light and in a few minutes coasted slowly up to the wharf. Vernon standing near his fire was surprised to be hailed.

"Ahoy, Vernon Mabee."

"What the deuce!" Vern ejaculated. The voice from behind the searchlight was that of the man he had left at the point in Yendoe.

"Dune aboard," invited Dodd Speed genially.

CHAPTER 38

"Snap off that light so I can see you," Vern requested.

With the search light off the night for a moment seemed an impenetrable black pocket but his eyes shortly become accustomed to the dark and Vern made out the outlines of the craft which lay along side of the wharf. It was not nearly so big as the whaler, about comparable in size to the one Canfield and while he was inclined to grumble a little at first he entered enthusiastically into the idea after Vern told what had happened.

As everyone knows there is not much room for anything on a tug but machinery and a pilot house. The three men held their conference forward of the pilot house which is about the only place on a tug boat where the noise of the engines is subdued enough for thinking.

Vern outlined what had happened then demanded, "What the son of a bitch are you doing down here?"

"Well," Dodd explained, "there were several things about the look of this expedition that you jumped into that I didn't like. And besides that I had a scrap with Mabel just before you left—she acted funny unexpectedly that night and wouldn't believe me when I told her where I had been and as I had nothing but a lot of time of my hands, I was bad sorry I'd left you alone with you. "Well, why not," says I. "Even if you didn't need it I figured that I could do a little fishing down here so I inquired at that lodge where the yacht was tied up to find out where she was registered from. They seemed to know about where this island was, but the regular boats don't make any stops near here and the only thing I could get to make the trip was Captain Canfield's tug. He has had a little difficulty with the rum'r authorities recently and was on his own time temporarily. Well there you are. I chartered his tug and we have come to visit you, apparently just in time."

"I'll say you're just in time," conceded Vern. "I only hope it isn't too late."

"You aren't in love with this Jane are you?" Dodd questioned curiously.

"What difference does that make?" Vern replied.

"The devil of a lot of difference it does," Dodd spoke his eagerness and turn around. As a man who is married almost for the first time."

"Don't be a fool. This isn't a question of marriage. I tell you Dodd this's life is at stake."

"Oh, a girl, your girl, you know," Dodd pointed out.

Vern stamped his foot impatiently. "Not so far as I'm concerned."

"You see Captain," Dodd observed gloomily to the skipper, "I was afraid this would happen. You be a witness that I have tried my best."

CHAPTER 39

It was nearly dawn by the time Vern had finished. There was plenty of light so that they could make out that a considerable sea was breaking through between the two points of land. Just inside the shelter stood the yacht "Wings". So if thought she might well live," said Vern. "It was really our only chance."

"But she is beginning to move now," said the captain. They were still five or six miles away and the captain was doing the guiding.

"Do you think they have seen us," Vern questioned.

"No, not necessarily," replied Captain Caulfield. "The chances are that this crap Gerald has been waiting for the tide to turn. When the tide starts ebbing it will be easier to go with it. They would not have much chance any other way. The tide has been running less than half a hour ago."

Sure enough the yacht headed straight for the inlet. Vern prayed that she would get through safely. She did.

Before the tug arrived at the narrow passage "Wings" was seen to out to sea pitching violently in a steep, enough controlled half by the wind and half by the tide.

The yacht has an advantage of four or five miles start but the tug had more powerful engines and under some conditions could make better time.

The yacht, if skilfully handled as Irene could do it, could probably go a little faster in the kind of sea that was running. But, fortunately, Irene was not at the wheel. Instead it was "Dummy" and while he was a good sailor he did not know the boat so well as did the girl skipper and the space between the two crafts began to close up.

At the end of a couple of hours pitching the tug had decreased the lead to about three miles and there was no question in the mind of the helmsman on the yacht that he was being pursued. Through the glass they must not kill thee," wept the girl. "Canst ever forgive me my cruel words—I did not mean them" "I love you, Guinalda!" cried Blake. The Arabs dragged her away after deciding to leave Blake to die where he lay. As they bore her from his sight, she called back through the fading night, three little words—"I love thee"—and then the retreating footsteps died away in the distance.

"Here, let me take those glasses." Vern snatched them from his friend and turned them on the deck of the yacht.

Yes, it was Irene in "Dummy's" arms. She seemed to be limp and helpless. He wondered if she was unconscious or merely bound in some way.

"Dummy" carried her forward to the wheel house. The sail was not hoisted so the spar was bare. "Dummy" stood her up beside against the mast and then with the main-sheet lashed her in that position.

Why?

It was five minutes before Vern gathered the full import of what had happened.

THE HAPPINESS OF MOTHERHOOD

It Depends Upon Health—Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Before my first baby was born I was very ill and dizzy. My husband went to the drug store and bought a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and made me take it according to directions. TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

Quickly Blake was bound while the Arabs debated what should be done with him. One tried to slit his throat. It was then that Guinalda tore free and threw herself upon Blake's body. "Thou shalt not slay him!" she cried. "Take my life instead." "They cannot understand you, Guinalda," said Blake. He begged that they give the Princess her liberty, but the Arabs only laughed.

The great red moon rose high above the distant Inch by inch the beast crept upon Blake. Now it mountains. For awhile all was silence as Blake was about to spring. Horrified, Blake could not lay silently still by his friend. What was that? take his eyes from the hideous, snarling face. He saw it leap suddenly with catlike lightness and agility Came the sound of stealthy, padded feet. Hark! and at the same instant he saw something flash saw it being hauled upward into a tree that overthrough the air. The beast crouched in mid-leap and was jerked backward. Then to his astonishment Blake hung the sack.

BY-ELECTION STIFF FIGHT

C.C.F. Advocates The Abolishment of The Senate

WADENA, Sask., Oct. 17.—(CP) —"If the Senate refused to pass laws sponsored by the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation a few politicians would be found in the upper chamber and the 'old gentlemen there' driven home", declared William M. Irvine, M.P., for Wetaskiwin, addressing an audience of Mackenzie Constituency voters here.

Endorsing the candidature of E. St. George Stubbs, former Winnipeg County Court Judge, the C.C.F. nominee in October 23, by-election, Mr. Irvine added that when the Senators has been 'sent home' the necessary change in the constitution to put the Senate permanently out of business could be effected.

On polling day, Mr. Stubbs will be opposed by A. J. McMillan, Liberal, L. I. McKinnon, United Front Party, and S. H. Edgar, Independent.

Hon. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, enter the campaign with address to the electorate tonight...

CRAWLING ABOUT WITH LUMBAGO

Here is some useful information for anyone troubled with that uncomfortable complaint. Mrs. Hall, a woman writes:

"For years I suffered from lumbago. During wet weather, I could only lumber in bed, with great stiffness and pain. I was so stiff and ached so much. Two years ago I had both lumbago and sciatica, and crawled about for a fortnight, resigning very much myself and losing 16½ instead of 2½. Someone said, 'Get Dr. Miles' Pain Pills,' did, and I have taken them ever since, and I can say that I have not even had a hint of lumbago these days."—(Mrs.) Hall.

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in keeping lumbago at bay? Simply because it helps right down to the root of the trouble and removes the cause, which is an impure bloodstream. The six salts in Kruschen keep the bloodstream pure and vigorous by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

94 YEARS OLD ON MONDAY

Miss Martha Benniger Surprised on Natal Day

On Monday, October 16th one of Belleville's ladies, Miss Martha, the person of Miss Martha Benniger, celebrated her ninety-fourth birthday. Miss Benniger spent the earlier part of her life teaching school and later did nursing. Miss Benniger loved and respected by every one, met her. This was shown by the number of friends, who called to see her at home during the day.

In the afternoon many of the Belleville ladies called on Miss Benniger, bringing her many lovely flowers and before she had afternoon tea with her.

At night about thirty of Miss Benniger's relatives met and gave her a surprise party. The evening was spent in music, readings and visiting with Miss Benniger, who is ever cheerful and cold many very interesting stories about her younger days. Among the guests were Miss Cornelia Benniger, aged 86, a sister, and Mr. Phillip Denyes aged 91, a cousin of Miss Benniger. These five people are in the best of health and enjoyed their evening greatly.

One feature of the evening was the beautiful birthday cake which was given to Miss Benniger by her relatives and was much admired by everyone.

Toward the close of the party lunch was served by Miss Benniger's niece, Mrs. Chas. Frost who helped in a large way to make the party such a success.

Everyone went home, feeling that they had had a very enjoyable time and wishing Miss Benniger many more happy birthdays.

SMALL BOTTLE CONQUERS MOTHER'S COLD AND BANISHES BABY'S COUGH

Here is just another instance enough to command that you prove there is "nothing like BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE" for coughs, or else you'll let me, Mrs. Hadley, of Todmorden, tell the story herself.

"Recently, I had such a cold I couldn't speak. I got a small bottle of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE and in a couple of days my cold had disappeared. My little one also had been coughed a great deal at night. I gave him a few drops of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE on sugar. It stopped his cough entirely and now he sleeps the night through."

That is one great feature of Buckley's—you can give it to a baby with the same perfect safety as you can to a grown-up. If you have a cough, cold, 'flu or bronchitis, get a bottle of this remarkable remedy today—it acts like a charm, simply cry pieces it. Sucks 5 minutes.

U. S. TO HAVE "DEVIL'S ISLE" FOR PUBLIC ENEMIES

Alcatraz Island, in San Francisco Bay, long a military prison, said to have been selected by U.S. government as the prison into home desperadoes, kidnappers and other persistently troublesome federal convicts. It is more than a mile from the city's mainland point. A swift, forbidding current swirls it constantly around it, and in all its long century history not one prisoner has ever made an escape from it.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE IS AFTERMATH OF CAR ACCIDENT

Remanded For One Month on Criminal Negligence Charge

TRENTON, Oct. 17.—(Special)—John T. Ball of Belleville, appeared in the local police court yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Thomas Deroche and Chief Constable Ross, one of reckless driving. Found guilty, he was fined $25.00 and costs, while a criminal negligence charge was remanded one month.

This case was the aftermath of an accident early last Monday morning, when a car driven by the accused crashed into the ditch near Dr Farley's residence breaking off a large post and rolling down the hill, where it came to rest on its side on the Canadian National tracks.

Miss Isobel Tugnutt of Trenton, received injuries to her head, while the driver and his companion, Mr. W. K. Swallow of Belleville, were uninjured.

A local resident paid $50.00 and costs for consuming liquor. He was charged with having liquor illegally but this was reduced to consuming by the magistrate.

A Frankford woman received a further enlargement in a breach of the Inland Revenue Act.

Two automobile drivers had their case enlarged till the 26th., while another resident charged with owning beer under the ban of his own use and family, was enlarged one week for sentence.

Fines totalling $50.00, represented by Crown Attorney B.C. Donnan K.C., of Belleville.

Fire Loss Averted

Yesterday afternoon a call was received at the fire hall from James Rink's residence on Dufferin Ave.

Fire Engineer Greer, accompanied by a police officer answered the alarm. They found an overheated stove and several excited people. With the use of chemicals the stove and pipes were cooled off and probably a more serious fire averted.

Concert at Airport

Boxing fans throughout the district have enjoyed the bouts at the Airport by members of the relief project and on Wednesday evening in the hangar, Music lovers will have their chance. Talent from "Legion" will furnish the evening's entertainment under the direction of Sgt.-Major Wilberly.

There are several real talented singers and musicians of all kinds among the five hundred men employed on the project and a real evening has been arranged with the Belleville Pipe Band in attendance.

The proceeds are in aid of the unemployed men's sports' fund.

Straw Has Been Scarce

Straw has been scarce in the Province this year and factories who require the product has found it exceedingly difficult to procure it this season.

Men, whose business forces them to consume straw have found straw to be very scarce in the district this year. Last year there were many stacks in Prince Edward County but this year there were none. Others in the district have reported very little straw and it has been found necessary to go out of the province in some cases in order to procure the needed amount.

The Belleville Pipe Band will be in attendance.

MARTIAL LAW IS EXPECTED

Popular Demand For Restoration of Death Penalty

(By Wade Werner)

Vienna, Oct. 17.—(Special)—The official government gazette, "Wiener-seitung", today front-paged an intimation that a declaration of martial law was expected soon.

Banner-lining "restoration of the death penalty", the paper indirectly announced the subject of martial law by pointing out that "there is an overwhelming popular demand for the reinstatement of the death penalty".

The demand, it was added, convincing the government that something should be done, but inasmuch as capital punishment has been constitutionally abolished from the criminal code, there is only one way left—declaration of martial law.

Such a declaration automatically would carry with it the war-time penalty of death for murder, arson and related offenses.

The gazette also printed a Communique while described briefly the conspiracy uncovered at Lyons yesterday, in which authorities said that officers and former officers planned a "fete arm, uniform and equipment" at the Lins Garrison for use in "further action".

As a result of the uncovering of the plot, political police today were in the midst of a widespread investigation in all garrisons and branches of the army.

REBELS LOSE 500 KILLED

Revolutionists Are Put to Rout in Siam Revolt

Bangkok, Siam, Oct. 17 (AP) — Rebel troops were reported on the run today with loyal forces in vigorous pursuit. As the scene of battle shifted to the center from the city with the attackers' retreat northward, it was announced unofficially the rebels had lost 500 killed and 1,000 wounded since the revolutionary movement began.

Prior to the battle government troops recaptured the airport, but when they took possession they found it stripped of all planes, armaments and munitions.

Rebel and loyal aviators clashed in the air, heavy casualties after the attackers had taken over the latest equipment.

While one detachment forced the fighting farther from the city to the north, others were ordered to proceed southward to quell a rebellion.

The Penang Express resumes service today, but business in Bangkok continued disturbed with foreign exchange transactions at a standstill.

21ST PADRE TO BE CHAPLAIN AT "PEN"

Resigns From Rectorship to Take Post

Hamilton, Oct. 17.—Major the Rev. W. E. Kidd, M.C., M.A., rector of St. John's Anglican Church in Ancaster announced that he would resign from that charge at the end of this month to accept the appointment of Chaplain of Portsmouth Penitentiary. Rev. Mr. Kidd came to St. John's in Ancaster from Kingston seven years ago.

He received his M.A. at Trinity College in 1906, after being ordained deacon in 1904. His first charge was at Coe Hill Mission and he was later vicar of Napanee from which charge he resigned to enlist in the fall of 1914. Mr. Kidd joined the 21st Battalion as its chaplain and went overseas with it. He went to France with the same unit in 1915 and won the Military Cross at Courcelette in September of 1916. He remained in France until 1918 at which time he was placed in the military hospital at Cobourg, and in 1920 went to St. George's Cathedral at Kingston. In 1926 he came to Ancaster.

BURR BRIEFS

THANKSGIVING

For all the blessings of the past,
For all Thy mercies which do last,
We thank Thee Lord.
For all our needs Thou dost supply,
In times of danger Thou art nigh!
To help when cries to Thee we cry,
We thank Thee Lord.

For saving grace and keeping power,
Which Thou supplies hour by hour,
We thank Thee Lord.
In times of danger Thou art nigh
To heal the sick or dry the tear;
Thy comfort doth sustain and cheer.
We thank Thee Lord.

We thank Thee for the food we eat;
The friends we have upon the street;
We thank Thee Lord.
When near the close of Life's brief day
We feel Thy hand clasp all the way
Sustaining us to Thee we say
We thank Thee Lord.
—Mrs. George Fox.

On the 4th day of October, nineteen thirty three,
A fair was held at Madoc that was worth your while to see;
To see that Fair we long had planned,
And thought we'd work to do there,
And though we'd work to do a plenty we'd have some fun also.

The day was somewhat cloudy, although it didn't rain,
And every little while the sun peeped out and shone with all its might,
The motoring was splendid, the roads were very fine,
We left Quinte's Isle or Lakes and Bays three-quarters after nine.

From Belleville going northward on woodland, vale and hill,
Such gorgeous autumn tints display-ed we fear can't be outdone,
We some new sight discovered as on our way we did run,
And ever the autumn woods reflected in Moira's lovely lake.

With friends at Eldorado we were glad to stop and shake,
And so we hastened onward thro' Madoc's busy street
To see and greet old friends again after many years have passed,
Just to recall those happy faces is a pleasure that will last.

A short time after dinner to Madoc we returned
To see the sights of Madoc fair, and this one thing we learned,
That Thompson's Store is the one motto they are striving more and more,
And we can see that fair 'tis better than before.

They're a president and treasurer who work successfully
And always do what's the best or all the fairs we go to see;
There's a lot of things to mind them who made those cakes and pies.
who all work with a will,
And one thing must by any means is secretary Hill.

Two "well-bread" men mid loaves and cakes were glad arrayed,
Though they had risen from the dough a prize card they displayed,
And so it was a much heart through his stomach lies.

The flowers there were beautiful and many kinds to see;
Hand painting, and embroidery, lastwork and tatting fine,
Fancy quilts were there displayed, with quilting O, so fine,
And hand made rugs of many kinds hung there upon the line.

Pumpkins there and squashes too, of which I'm sure that any one of them would make a mighty pie,
There were many kinds of apples, both red and green and yellow,
While cauliflower, cabbage, beets, and parsnips met our view.

Peppers in bunches, mangels, and some real good potatoes,
And if you cared to look there were prizes given for roots,
O, yes, there was a midway that attracted many boys,
Side shows and peanut vendors called out in voices loud.

The poultry en display was a very good exhibit,
The fowls, turkeys, ducks and geese, and other domestic animals;
And sheep, swine, cattle, horses, were there all safe and sound,
While all the racing horses the race course trotted round.

The fair at last was over and we reluctantly bid away,
There were chores to do at home—we must not stay all night.
It was a happy day we had, a day of right good cheer,
And already we are planning to go again next year.

—Mrs. George Fox.

THE ROD OF IRON

By Arthur R. Stott

"Yes, Mary, I've lost my job."

If the old world had turned upside down and had dashed headlong into the family of three into unchartered space, Mary could not have been more surprised and horrified.

To think that her husband, little Sally and herself must adopt the upper-class simian slang, "back to the old folks", made Mary turn pale. The thought of storing their dear intimate belongings, even to go to Sarah's farm as Grand-father Morton's, made her shake with poignant apprehension.

Dear old Bill seemed to take it more philosophically. He straightened his shoulders a bit, and he said, "It'll be only for a short time, Sarah, as twin Jobless Bill is not afraid in this rambling place!"

"Afraid of what?" snapped the older woman.

"The noises her own little bed, for one thing, and we forgot to bring along an old doll she always hugs to sleep with when she takes a nap, for another." Mary turned to the little girl. "Come, Sally dear, Tell great Auntie you're sorry; and then mother'll lie down with you."

"Lie down with that big child!" exclaimed Grandmother Morton. "You should be content to go to bed alone!"

Sally began to whimper; then the whimper verged into a full-throated cry. Something in Mary's nerves snapped. "I don't know what is the matter with me, Sally!" she cried. "I always managed Sally all right until we came out here, but something has gone wrong. I'm going out and find Bill!"

"No, you don't!" Grandmother Morton objected. "You'll do no such thing! If you want to find Bill, I will."

But Mary, snatching open the kitchen door ran out and closed it behind her, none too gently. Good old Bill would understand!

It was until she was out of the house, however, that Mary suddenly recalled a trip her husband and his father had made to the village store. This was another disappointment; and childish as it seemed, she walked to the shrine of a large barn, dropped down on a mound of redolent hay that had slid from one of the lofts, and began to cry into a torrent of sobs.

Presently the sobs ceased, and Mary leaped to her feet. What had Grandmother Morton said? She had said that the child deserved a spanking.

Panic-stricken, she dashed toward the house. What sort of a mother was she to leave her child to the mercies of one who had brought up her own like the good old plan of "spare the rod, spoil the child"?

The quiet in the kitchen was intense. Only the broken sobbing of Sally told of the recent calamitous happening. Hurriedly passing through the dining room, Mary ran upstairs to the front room that was hers and Bill's. Where was Sally? And where had Grandmother Morton disappeared to?

While it was useless to look for Sally in the big four-poster, nevertheless, Mary opened the door leading into the next room, and glanced on this very article of furniture. On that very bed lay Grandmother Morton and Sally, who was cuddled tightly against the woman's breast. Silver head and gold lay on the same pillow, both peacefully sleeping.

Mary's eyes no longer held the hardened brightness of twin diamonds; for tears had softened them into pools of love. Creeping quietly over to the sleepers, she pressed one tender kiss on the wrinkled cheek of one, another on the soft, velvety lips of the other, and slipped silently out of the room.

"Like mother, like rod of iron", she murmured laughingly to herself as, making her way down the stairs to the kitchen, she carefully removed the broken dishes; and then went out into the sunlit yard, just as Bill and his father drove up.

"Hello, dear!" called out Bill. "How's everything?"

"Wonderful!" answered Mary; and then to Father Morton, "I just love this place!"

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

Story of Professional Life Pleases Large Crowds at Capitol Theatre

"Mary Stevens, M.D." featuring the famed star, Kay Francis, is all it promised to be for the months of professional life and personality. Monday evening to see this picture the Capitol theatre was crowded with spectators who were thrilled with this very dramatic and appealing film of the home life section. Interested for a time by the appeal of the world.

Of course there is the story of true love that never did run smooth. Kay Francis, who plays the part of Dr. Andrews, is associated from early years with Mary Stevens. They go to medical school together, they graduate, and pass through the period of interne, and it looks early in the play as if they were to unite their interests in marriage, but not so. The appeal of the world of money, influence, and power becomes too great for the medical service in the medical profession and Kay is on the verge of ruin as a professional man as he fails in his duty. Then, in the end, he chooses to be able to satisfy her desire to help suffering humanity. It looks like ruin on both sides, but after the tribulations which all have gone down Dr. Stevens, she is reclaimed to the life of service through an operation performed on Garfield by the role of the nurse and doctor's assistant.

Supporting this feature production is a delightful farce with Jimmy Gleason playing the lead. The news reel and the travel reel dealing with the Lions Club Convention, are more than worth while.

DUCK HUNTERS MISSING ON BRADLEY BAY

Store Manager, Farmer, Feared Drowned as Gale Sweeps Over Bradley Bay

George Shaw of Dominion Stores at Campbellford Missing

BRADY WITH HIM

Upturned Boat Found on Bradley Bay Shore

Peterborough, Oct. 18 (CP) — Strong wind that whipped up the surface of Bradley's Bay, seven miles south of Campbellford is believed to have overturned the canoe containing George Shaw, 46, manager of the Dominion Store at Campbellford and Alfred Brady, 30, Percy township farmer, causing their death by drowning among the rice bed of the bay.

The two men were on a duck-hunting expedition. Search for the men was abandoned early today. A party, organized after their lengthy absence, found their car at the boat-house and further down the shore the upturned canoe. Both men were strong swimmers. Mr. Shaw is married and the father of two children, while Brady is a returned man in an employee of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, both had important business appointments today which it is known they intended keeping.

"The set out together about five o'clock last night from Campbellford. They left their car at the bay where they secured a 12-foot canoe. George Carter, former resident nearby, saw the two out on the bay while he was fishing. But it was too dark to identify them. Later he said he heard a shout but paid no attention as it was not repeated. Since daylight, kearcels have sought he seen and dragging operations in the rice bed started this afternoon.

GIRL CHAINED TO BED, STORY TOLD POLICE

Court Inquiry Opens Thursday in Terreboune Report

NO CHARGES YET

Provincial Expert Speaks of Evidence of Brutality

Montreal, Oct. 18 (CP)—Tales of a 12-year-old girl being chained to her bed for two months in her home at Terrebonne, Que., were told to Chief Louis Jargaille, head of Provincial Detectives for this district, here today. The girl, her father and mother and three other children were at provincial police headquarters for questioning. No charges have been laid against the child's parents but Chief Jargaille said they would appear as witnesses in a court inquiry tomorrow at St. Jerome. Names were not given out.

Rumors about the village of Terrebonne were communicated to Chief Jargaille by the village constable and last night he sent Inspector G. Dion and A. Surcoher to investigate. The detectives brought the entire family to Montreal. The children told the police that the 12-year-old sister had been beaten severely every night for the past two months and had been chained to her bed every afternoon on her return from school. The parents of the girl their parents had kept them from telling anyone of the matter.

Covered with Bruises

Dr. Rosario Fontaine, provincial medico-legal expert, examined the little girl today and said he had seldom seen such evidence of brutality. Under the girl's clothes, undernourishment, mentally dulled, by her ordeal, the child was covered with angry bruises and open wounds the doctor said.

When the detectives reached the farm house last night the little girl was not chained, they said. Instead, loosening of the other children, however, revealed that it was the first night the child had not been bound to her bed by heavy iron chains, according to detectives. They said they found the chains with padlocks fastened to the bed and that the keys to the padlocks were on a string around the 34-year-old mother's neck.

The girl and the other children were under care of police surgeons and matrons today.

TO GIVE WORK TO CANADIANS

Encyclopaedia Britannica of Canada Ltd., is Formed

New employment for a large number of Canadians is foreshadowed by the announcement of the formation of Encyclopaedia Britannica of Canada, Limited to produce and distribute this well-known reference work in the Dominion.

Head office of the company has been established at Toronto and branch offices will be located in all the larger cities as quickly as organization permits.

"The new company will be entirely Canadian and will employ more than one hundred sales representatives from coast to coast" said F. J. Harler, general manager of the new enterprise; "in addition many other Canadians will receive employment in the paper-making, printing and bookbinding trades through the new policy of publishing Encyclopaedia Britannica in Canada instead of importing it. Book-cases which are sold with the sets are being made in one of Canada's leading furniture plants.

"Encyclopaedia Britannica was founded in Scotland in 1768 and has since preserved its British nationality," said Mr. Harler. "This is evidenced by the fact that while the list of leading authorities who have contributed to the work is, of course, international in scope, there are more British contributors to the new 14th edition than those of any other nation."

STEEL INGOT RATE IS LOWER

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP) — A decline of five points in the steel ingot production rate, bringing the national average to 33 per cent. of capacity, was reported by "iron age" today. The decrease, which had been expected, reflected completion of orders against third quarter contracts.

R. TARLINGTON BADLY HURT

Former Belleville Man Collides With Transport at Kingston

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—R. M. Tarlington, Brockville, is in the hospital in a serious condition today from injuries suffered when the automobile he was driving collided with a Motorways transport on a city street. He was rushed to Kingston hospital.

The injuries suffered by Robert Tarlington of Brockville in an auto accident here earlier in the day will not, been completely diagnosed but his condition remains critical.

It is feared he may have received a fracture at the base of the skull and a fractured jaw. He is confined to Kingston General Hospital.

Tarlington used to live in Belleville and conducted a shoe store.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 18 —(CP) —A determined man is Admiral Walker, a negro.

He hitch-hiked from California to plead guilty of a manslaughter charge growing out of the death of two men in a card game.

A judge gave him one to 14 years.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—(CP) —By this time next year, William Howard should be an authority on "Sobriety."

He pleaded guilty to carrying a pistol and Judge Raymond MacNeille said:

"Since these pest you into trouble, I think the proper punishment is for you to write the word sobriety' 1,000 times a day for the next year."

TRENTON MAN AUTO VICTIM

Frank Giosesitto Killed Crossing Road Near Prescott

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 18. (CP) — Frank Giosesitto of Trenton, died in hospital early today from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile on the highway near Prescott. He stepped to the roadway to exchange places with the driver of a fruit truck and was hit by a car proceeding in the opposite direction. He suffered internal injuries and a broken arm and ribs.

EVANGELIZE OR FOSSILIZE

Baptist Divine States People Living in World of Crumbling Religion

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP)—Aid has been extended to 70 Baptist Churches, principally by assistance in the construction of manses where financing was difficult owing to high interest charges it was disclosed here today at the Church Edifice Board, presented before the Ontario-Quebec Baptist Convention by Oliver Mailer, Weston, Chairman and Rev. W. P. Fergusson, Toronto, Secretary today.

In his address Rev. J. S. J. Moore, Toronto, the report of evangelism was presented by Rev. Dr. H. H. Bingham, Toronto. He dealt broadly with evangelism, declared people were living in a world of ruins and crumbling religions and were at a turning point in history when men and women were seeking, in their utter loss, for a religious liberty.

From a religious point of view the world was a neighborhood, not a brotherhood. The main business of the church was evangelism, soul winning. It was a case of "evangelize or fossilize."

Rev. Mr. Clemann, Ottawa, reporting on church welfare, placed the decline in church membership to restlessness in the days of the ministry, mental and spiritual inertia and indifference to depart from old methods of working.

TIRE COMPANY CHARGED

Washington, Oct. 18.—(CP)—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has been formally charged by the Federal Trade Commission with making false advertisements in its products in favor of Sears, Roebuck and Company, in violation of the Clayton Act.

Nationalizing Arms Industry Says France

PARIS, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Nationalization of the French Arms Industry in the event of disarmament was provided today in an amendment by the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies in celebration of the Arms Control Section of the Government's Finance Bill.

The Nationalization would coincide with the beginning of the actual disarmament. The committee is rushing examination of the measure and hopes to pass it by Sunday.

The Finance Bill provides for governmental control of the manufacture and sale of war materials with the State authorized to buying the munitions firms and a government representative placed in each factory.

A 30 per cent. tax would be levied on sale of other arms which could be sold only in specially authorized stores.

European Arms Situation

(By the Canadian Press)

Austrian government authorities continued their investigation of alleged Nazi plots to seize arms from the Linz and other garrisons as it was disclosed a nation-wide Nazi military organization has been developed.

Rumors contemplated the possible implication of the declaration of Prince Minister Henning of Denmark—coincident with reports of military units in Slesvig had been reenforced—that the Danish southern frontier would be defended "by all means at our disposal."

The political chess between Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, and Baron von Neurath of Germany, attracted international interest.

Rumors of an impending Austro-German agreement in the Austrian and Nazi problems arose with word Guido Jakoncig, former Dollfuss cabinet minister, had been in Berlin since last week.

Al Smith's "Cold" Puts Damper on Hopes of Tammany Hall Chiefs

New York, Oct. 18—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith has a cold—and political observers were eyeing a fever today trying to figure out the probable effect on Tammany Hall's health.

The men of Tammany gathered last night for the traditional "installation rally" designed to start Mayor John D. O'Brien's campaign off with a bang and repulse the possible threat of dissension and the recovery party to drive the tiger from power. Smith—for the first time in years—was absent. The word was passed around that he was "home in bed with a cold."

The New York Times interpreted his absence as "a blow to the leadership of John F. Curry, Tammany chief, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic boss."

The absence, the paper said, "was accepted by followers as confirmation of the reports that the former Governor refused to yield to Tammany's pleas that he come to the rescue."

DENIAL GIVEN RIOT RUMORS

Isle of Pines Prison Containing Cuban Officers Quiet

Havana, Oct. 18 (AP)—Recurrent reports of trouble in the Isle of Pines prisons, where most of the officers captured in the National Hotel battle are confined, were categorically were denied by the government today.

Major Bonifacio Ferrer, military aide to President Ramon Grau San Martin, declared "everything is going fine at the Isle of Pines and contrary reports are just plain rumors."

The most persistent rumor was that some of the soldiers guarding the imprisoned officers had refused to obey orders to shoot the appointed leaders, declaring the imprisoned men were their rightful commanders.

Montreal, Oct. 18 (CP)—Condition of Miss Grace Bromley, 25, formerly of Pembroke, Ont., critically injured when she fell 50 feet from a gallery outside her apartment here to the pavement—was described at hospital today as 'fair.' Miss Bromley suffered a fractured skull and other serious injuries, and surgeons are amazed she is still alive.

HUNTER SHOT WHEN ONLY 35 FEET AWAY

Companion Held on Second Degree Manslaughter Charge

Malone, N.Y., Oct. 18.—(AP)—William Murdick, 25, of Albany, was held in the Franklin County jail today awaiting action of bail on a charge of second degree manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of his business partner, Harold Drapeau, 24, also of Albany, while hunting deer Monday near Tupper Lake.

Murdick was ordered held by Dr. Frank A. Wood, coroner of Franklin County Coroner after an inquest yesterday at Tupper Lake revealed that Drapeau was only 35 feet away when Murdick testified he shot at a deer as it ran into a clearing at the rear of their hunting camp and that his business partner was in the line of fire.

SIX PLEAD THEIR GUILT

Three Girls Are Given Suspended Sentence at Trenton

Gordena Craig, Doris Dinelle and Pearl Vieau of Ottawa, pleaded guilty to stealing a motor car at Trenton, also driving it while drunk and without a motor car. Oscar Huard and Fred Dinelle, also Ottawa youths, were remanded for twenty-four hours. They also pleaded guilty to them.

After communicating with Ottawa, the Magistrate sentenced Oscar Huard and Fred Dinelle to a year's suspended sentence. The three boys will be turned over to Ottawa authorities.

It is said the three boys are wanted at Ottawa for the alleged taking of a car, abandoned in Trenton.

The six above, with another youth, who escaped at Trenton, came up from Ottawa together.

WESTERN TOUR OF BENNETT NEARS CLOSE

Courageous Front To Trials of Today Urged

EMPIRE PACTS

Aid to Provinces is Promised to Fullest Extent

(By C. R. Blackburn, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Calgary, Oct. 19 (CP)—Completing his speaking tour of Western Alberta cities, Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett returned to the city of his adoption today to spend one more day of rest before starting on the return journey to Ottawa. Tonight he will start for Regina where he is scheduled to address a luncheon meeting tomorrow. That will be his last speaking engagement of the tour.

Confidence Retained

Canada's tariff policy has served the purpose of protecting Canadian home markets and Canadian industry, Mr. Bennett said. And replying to recent speeches by the leader of the opposition, he declared the only trade that had been reduced was that of Canada with trade of foreign countries.

To the interjections of southern Alberta the Prime Minister commended he world's peace agreement signed in London last August and added them if they would not either produce less grain and secure a higher price.

Empire Pacts Saved

No new government that might succeed the present would dare commended is world wheat agreement, Mr. Bennett declared, nor would they repudiate the wheat agreement which he said was the first attempt to co-ordinate the supply with the demand.

Mr. Bennett spoke very plainly when he described the conditions confronting up to the depression and the great financial burden now carried by the people. He made no promise of any great spending programme but assured his hearers the Federal government would continue to help provinces in the fullest extent the national credit would permit.

DANISH ANXIETY

Denmark is Determined To Protect Slesvig Boundary

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(CP)— The Government stands squarely behind its Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, on the disarmament crisis and his controversy with the German Foreign Minister, Baron Constantin Von Neurath, it was indicated today after a two-hour cabinet session.

The Foreign Minister reviewed the whole situation caused by Germany's action at Geneva during the conference with the other Cabinet Ministers.

Great Britain was understood to be prepared to print the documents which support the Anna dispute, but it was likely it would take several days before a public policy can be shaped.

PARIS, October 18.—(AP)— If Germany reaches an Arms accord with France, it will be concluded at Geneva.

That, in brief, was the reply Premier Edouard Deladier had given today to proposals for Separate Franco-German negotiations.

"France," said Mr. Daladier in a burning attack on each Foreign Policy, "will be in Geneva Oct. 26 when the disarmament conference opens."

"If Germany is ready to destroy all armaments (Chancellor Adolf Hitler has said), "why," the Premier demanded before the Chamber of Deputies, "do they withdraw from the Conference just as we had finally drafted a plan?"

Equality Demanded

Berlin, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Equality with all other nations is Chancellor Adolf Hitler's unalterable condition for future International Cooperation, he told his followers in a speech last night.

"Germany is determined in the future," said the Chancellor, "to attend no conference, enter no league, sign no convention and sign nothing as long as she is not treated equally.

"Germany desires peace and nothing but peace. Honor is something without which we cannot live."

Copenhagen, Oct. 18.—(CP)— Slesvig, the southern part of Jutland, Denmark, mainly inhabited immately the Northern section of what was the German Province of Schleswig-Holstein.

This territory went to Denmark in a plebiscite held in 1920 under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Showers have occurred in the Lake Superior and Ontario eastward to the Maritime Provinces, and snow flurries in the north and west parts of Southern Alberta. The weather has been cool in the western provinces and has turned cooler in Ontario and Quebec.

Northern Ontario—Fresh westerly winds; partly cloudy and cool today and Thursday.

Lake Superior—Moderate northwest to west winds; partly cloudy and cool.

H. M. ROBBINS AGAIN HELD

Drunk in Charge of Car Laid After Accident Near Paris

Paris, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Charged with being drunk in charge of a automobile, Harry M. Robbins, suspended Ontario Deputy Minister of Health, was remanded in custody until Friday when he appeared in police court this morning. No evidence was presented.

Robbins was arrested last night on highway number two, two miles east of here, by Provincial Officer Geo. O. Brewster. He was found at the wheel of his ditched car. The officer brought Robbins to Paris and laid the information against him this morning.

The Ontario Government official faces three charges in Brantford growing out of an accident there. He is charged with criminal negligence, being drunk while driving, and having liquor in an illegal place.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP) — Under arrest in Paris on a charge of being drunk while in charge of an automobile Harry M. Robbins, Deputy Minister of Health for Ontario, until his recent suspension, failed to appear in Brant County Court this morning to answer three charges laid against him.

Magistrate J. Blake added a note to the information regarding the estreating of bail. Defence counsel declared Robbins was unavoidably absent.

GENEVA UNHEALTHY DECLARES HITLER

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP)—In an address to sub-leaders delivered last night but given out only at noon today, Chancellor Adolf Hitler expressed the opinion his predecessors fell victim to Geneva Illness.

That he added, made them pessimists for the nation and optimists for the League.

"I, contrariwise, tell you that I am optimistic as concerns our people and pessimistic as regards Geneva and the League of Nations."

Germany, he said, was never more peace-loving than when it turned back from the unhappy atmosphere of that city.

FINE SPECIMENS OF BEETS SHOWN

Two large sugar beets are at present on display in Bishop and Ketch's meat store, which were combined weight of the two large vegetables is slightly over 38 lbs. The beets were grown by Mr. J. Ross Marshall Read, while the seed had been previously secured from the Bishop seed store. According to information given out by Mr. Bishop this species of sugar beet usually grows to an enormous size but, owing to the rather dry spring, the vegetables were not as large as have been seen in previous years. Mr. Bishop stated this morning he had seen plenty of beets, in seasons that had seen more rainy weather than 1933, as large and heavy as the combined weight of the two now on display in his window. "These two are excellent specimens for this year, however," stated Mr. Bishop.

TELEPHONE POLE BROKEN IN CRASH

Apparently losing control of the steering wheel momentarily was alleged by be the cause of an automobile accident, when a car driven by Ast. Lloyd, 183 West Bridge Street, crashed into a telephone pole breaking it off close to the ground, opposite the Belleville lawn bowling green, about 9.30 Tuesday night. Mr. Lloyd was proceeding southward on Yeomans Street, and was about to pass a car travelling in the same direction, when the accident occurred. Constables Evans and Arnott investigated.

TRENTON PASTOR SPECIAL SPEAKER

Members and friends of the Men's Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, had a guest speaker Thursday evening, the Rev. Mr. Kelly of Trenton, who was introduced to the gathering by the pastor of the church, the Rev. (Dr.) Spencer. Mr. R. V. Ulley, president of the club, acted most acceptably as chairman for the evening's proceedings.

"Nationalism" was the subject chosen by Mr. Kelly to convey to his hearers his conception and opinions of world-wide conditions today. His remarks were followed with interest by all who heard him and his concise expression on phases of national life in this and other countries was much appreciated.

Fires Are Forbidden Asphalt Roads

Calling attention to a bylaw which prohibits the practice, City Engineer Charles A. Mott, again today sounded warning against burning leaves on asphaltic streets or oiled roads in the city. Such forms of roads are greatly affected by the heat from burning refuse, he stated. A check-up is being made by the department to stop the practice.

DR. E.N. BAKER IS SPEAKER

With Dr. Semple Deliver Anniversary Messages at Dundas St. Church

The annual Thanksgiving Services in connection with the Dundas St. United Church, were conducted on Sunday last, the 15th of October and Tuesday the 17th. The Rev. Dr. E. Baker delivered an earnest, practical, soul-stirring message on Sunday o'clock, Sunday evening, to a fine, interested audience, from the text: Psalm 66: 16, "Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what He hath done for my soul". A very generous supply of fruits and vegetables filled the pulpit and decorated the windows—a silent testimony to God's bounties and an inspiration to thanksgiving.

On Tuesday evening, the annual Thanksgiving entertainment and social were given. The Rev. E. Farnsworth presided in his usual happy and acceptable manner when the following program was rendered, refreshments served and vegetables sold at nominal prices. MONTREAL LAWYER SPEAKS ON EQUITISM

Equitism as Remedy for World's Troubles Told to Kiwanis by H. S. Ross

One Hour's Work in Exchange For Another Hour

MANY WITTICISMS

One of The Finest Addresses Given to Club in Some Time

Supporting equitism as a remedy for the sick world's many troubles at this time-monetary unit representing on hour's work of any person in exchange for an hour's work from another person—Howard S. Ross K.C., D.C.L., Montreal lawyer, greatly interested the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon on Tuesday. His subject was Peace and Prosperity for all. Jack McIntosh presided, and the speaker was introduced by F. C. MacEwan and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by J. O. Hertly. Many guests were present including the heads of a number of women's organizations in the city besides representative citizens from all lines of business. It was one of the finest addresses, that has been given the club in some time and Mr. Ross will certainly be welcomed back at any time.

Howard Sellar Ross, B.A., LL.B., K.C., D.C.L., is a native of Nova Scotia and practiced law at Sydney, Nova Scotia for ten years before removing to Montreal twenty years ago where he has been and still is in active practice as a lawyer and now head of the firm of Ross, Mardinsen & Degy.

He studied at, Acadia, Dalhousie and Cornell Universities.

He has become a student of economics for the past twenty-four years and has made a special study of the land and money questions, government, co-operative movement, industrial relations and methods of taxation. He assisted in founding the Proportional Representation Society of Canada and is Honorary Secretary at Montreal.

He was one of the founders of Montreal People's Forum and was for some years President and chairman. He has been for many years president and chairman of the Education Committee of Montreal Brotherhood Federation made up of a number of Men's Clubs in Protestant churches, and is a frequent speaker at such clubs. He is an Honorary Vice-President of Montreal Brotherhood Federation.

He has made a careful study of Company Law and for some years contributed articles and letters on the subject to financial journals. He has been a book reviewer for some years and in addition to his law practice has built an extensive library which includes in particular volumes by modern authors dealing with the religious, social, economic, government, psychology, biology, criminology psychiatry and related subjects.

He has been a student of psychology for some years and spends one or twice each year at meetings of Montreal Psychological Study.

For some years he acted as Impartial Chairman of Montreal and Labor Adjustment Board dealing with disputes arising in the men's clothing industry and has acted as and suit industry and has acted as arbitrator on many occasions when appointed by the Minister of Labor under the Industrial Disputes, and Conciliation Act of Canada.

He is a frequent speaker in Canada and has addressed clubs before church, synagogue, labor, university and high schools, service and men's clubs, open forums and women's clubs.

In 1928 he spoke on "World Unrest—A Suggested Cure"—at the Chautauqua Circuit at seventy-two towns in Alberta and Saskatchewan and in 1930 spoke at meetings of the Institute of Cooperation of Alberta.

During the past ten years, while sympathetic to all reform movements he has become greatly interested in Equitism, an economic proposal which he has discussed before at least one thousand audiences in Canada and the United States.

New Freedom Claimed

The speaker was of the opinion Equitism would establish freedom between man and persons by means of a monetary unit which represented one hour of work of any such person in exchange for an hour of work from any other such person. Money aimed to obtain, secure and permanently maintain human and human associations by measuring the services we render from each other by a unit of their duration.

The adoption of such an agreement, the eminent Montreal lawyer maintained, would tend to destroy privilege and make it easy for all to share in nature's bounty. Natural resources would pass free of charge to the ultimate consumer. It would, in the end, be classless society, a system which was driving us over the abyss, the matter of price fixing a price upon what is not human work. He would send deputation upon Acts of Parliament as under Equitism we could with confidence depend upon acts of production accurately measured.

1,000 Hours in the Bank

Mr. Ross elaborated his thesis in claiming Equitism would make possible mutual banking locally and internationally. For instance, an adult would promise to redeem say 1,000 hours per year and check against that labor as represented in dollars. The superabundance of commodities now crushing the human race could be distributed equitably by the process proposed. Poverty would end, crime, war, cruel and wasteful economic conflict, all of them were inevitable until we had a pure money, which will free the natural resources and give the world a balanced land tenure, Mr. Ross continued.

The speaker went a step further and declined for the first time the salvage of many billions per year now spent on warlike preparations enough he said, to feed, clothe and house in comfort all the peoples of the world. It would give two good features of Capitalism, namely private property and individual initiative. It would allow the law of supply and demand to have free play, abolish the dominating incentive to get more work than one needs, make it possible for people everywhere to live up to a very definite Golden Rule: "Give as much work to others as others give to you, hour for hour."

New Values Foreseen

Equitism would make one part dollar worth at least $50.00 of our present tribute-breeding money, said the speaker, and would put money by which we try to measure our services in a proportion in relation to gold stored in vaults, as illegical as it is unscientific. Rent of land, rent of money; cruel, ruthless, profit inspired land taxation as we have them today in intervening on prestvenous, would be abolished by the plan proposed, asserted the speaker. The poor may become rich and the prevailed rich really rich. In adopting the Equitist proposal no sacrifice need be entailed. All would be infinitely better off and all would be able to afford to live honestly and free ourselves from the cardinal sin of compromise particularly in connection with our economic moralities.

New Theory 16 Years Old

In conclusion of his many-pointed address, the visiting lawyer said Equitism would enable the world to enjoy a plan of economy, thoroughly going co-operation and end the rule of some over others. In its place it would give self-government. It would keep the great ways open, while equally free individual would carry on the work of the world. This theory has been in process by way throughout the world for ten years with increasing force, and appeared to be a proposal that instead of merely fussing with the evil effects of a faulty system, goes to the root of the trouble by abolishing a system which places a price upon other than human work. Human work is not and cannot equitably source of ownership, declared the speaker, and sell nothing but human work, which through human work should have a price. The money which is to be issued solely by one hour's adult human work should be issued by non-profit making bank checks.

Equitism Teaches

That human work is the only equitable source of ownership.

That honest money can be issued sell nothing but human work.

That nothing but human work should have a price.

That the basic unit of account and exchange should be issued solely for, and redeemable by one hour's adult human work.

That this can easily and satisfactorily be done through mutual bank checks.

That this is necessary in order to abolish privilege and establish Equality of Opportunity for All.

That freedom cannot be equal where some rule others.

ELECTION NOT TILL SUMMER

Premier Henry Names More Definite Date For Contest

Toronto, Oct. 18—(CP)—Ontario's electors—who have for the most part been wondering just when the next provincial election would roll around, can go right ahead and wrestle with the furnace this winter, for the election won't be here until summertime. Premier George S. Henry made that fact quite plain in the course of an address here last night, when he invited members of the MacDonald-Cartier Club to be ready "to get into the fight with us sometime next summer."

It was the most definite indication of election date that has been given by a no far, for he, with various cabinet ministers, has said it would be "in the very near future" before the life of the house "expires."

According to Queen's Park reports, the government plans to embark upon an insurance platform during the campaign using both federal and provincial Ministers this winter.

Hon. Harrie, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, outlined the work of the Department of Agriculture, and stated safety of Canadian banks internationally he does not thought much bank checks.

Premier Henry made it clear that he would be "in the very near future" before the life of the house "expires."

Remembrance Day Holiday Same as Sunday Say Ottawa Authorities

Ottawa, Oct. 18—(CP)—Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, is a statutory holiday, Amendment to this effect, was made by the Secretary of State's Department today in response to many inquiries as to whether Remembrance Day was a compulsory holiday.

In a statement the department explained that only Sundays are compulsory holidays. "Nevertheless throughout Canada general public recognition is usually given all holidays which are prescribed by the statutes of Canada." The statement follows:

"Chapter 4 of the Acts of the Parliament of Canada, 1931, provides that throughout Canada in each and every year the eleventh day of November shall be kept and observed as such under the name of Remembrance Day. Remembrance Day is, therefore, a statutory holiday the same as Sunday, Christmas Day, New Year's Day or Labor Day. Under the statutes of the Dominion and of the provinces, Sunday is the only holiday which is compulsorily observed by the closing of factories and stores. Nevertheless, throughout Canada general public recognition is usually given to all holidays which are prescribed by the statutes of Canada."

City Native Protests Against Employment of Outsiders

Lifelong Resident Says He is at End of Tether With Conditions

FLOCK INTO TOWN

A well known resident of the city who has made Belleville his home for the past sixty-five years believes he has a grievance. Things, particularly regarding work in the city are not to his satisfaction. He explains how matters stand with himself and for a large number of men who have also found themselves placed pretty much in the same position in which he finds himself. He says:

"For sixty-five years I have been a constant resident of this city. I was born here, as were my father and mother before me. I suppose I could be classed as a 'real native.' From the time I was able to get out and fend for myself almost I have owned my own home. I've raised a family here and have always spent my money here. My taxes have always been paid.

"Now I find myself at the end of my tether. My home is swamped with debts; taxes are going farther and farther behind. Soup the city will take over the house—the only thing I have left that is worth anything at all. I can't do jobs I was once able to do, but I could still work at such work the city is now providing for those who are already on relief."

"Here's the rub. I've never been on relief, I don't want to go on relief. Perhaps I wouldn't go on if I wanted to. Somehow I manage to get a little to eat, and I still have a place to sleep. How long that will be I don't know. I can't look for support from my children because they, too, haven't had it any more than I have.

"As it is now it seems that anyone can come into the city, from anywhere, take up residence for six months, and then apply for relief and get it. The city will look after them. They're found work and given all the help they need. What about our old-timers who have lived here all our lives and haven't ever asked the city for anything?

"Yet, still they flock into Belleville from all over. They come here from everywhere. They're gushing in all corners right into the discard. There doesn't seem to be any room left for the ones who were born here in Belleville and helped make the city.

"What's the answer?" he asks.

Charges Germany Jeopardizing if Not Wrecking Cause of Disarmament

REFRESHED MEMORY

Pacific Utterances in Reich Drowned in War Songs

(By Albert L. Wilson)

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—What many considered one of the most remarkable personal clashes between statesmen of two great powers in many years was brought into prominence today as a result of the counter-attack of Sir John Simon on Baron Konstantin Von Neurath.

Sir John as Secretary for Foreign Affairs headed Great Britain's delegation at the World Conference which opened on October 26 after Germany's withdrawal. Herr Von Neurath is Germany's Foreign Minister. Today, the effect of the counter-attack in which each challenges the word of the other — may have on the political careers of the two men in their respective countries and also on future Anglo-German relations, was awaited with widespread interest.

In a speech last night in which he charged that Germany was "jeopardizing if not wrecking" the cause of disarmament. Sir John repeatedly referred to what he termed Von Neurath's statement that he (Simon) was "spreading untruthful statements" about the German foreign Minister and "false views" of Germany's armament demands.

At one point in his earnest address Sir John said he was ready to "publish records and documents to show that he was right. Later, he declared he had refreshed his memory by looking up the documents and found that he was "absolutely right."

Calls Davis As Witness

He called upon Norman H. Davis head of the United States delegation at Geneva, as a witness that he was telling the truth and that Von Neurath was accusing him unjustly. The speech was given great prominence in morning newspapers but there was a tendency to comment less on the personal clash and the veracity of the statements which one paper called "their affair"—than on the British peace advocate's statement that "recent events in Europe unquestionably have increased the feeling of nervousness and positive alarm, which is the real reason why heavily-armed states hesitated to weaken their forces."

Referring to this, some papers editorially made points that while Chancellor Adolf Hitler and the German government sought to convince International opinion that Nazi aims fundamentally were changed and that they favored peace, the pacific utterances were drowned in an uproar of military parades and bellowing war songs throughout the Reich."

MILK COMMISSION FAVORED

London, Oct. 17 (CP): Suggestions of the London Milk Commission are "fair to all concerned," is the opinion of Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, expressed in a letter to local dairymen.

CRUSOE'S ISLAND BUSY

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Oct. 18.—(CP Cable)—If old Robinson Crusoe could bus rear his head and take a look around his little island of Tobago to see present-day activity.

For weeks the great harvest of coconuts has been booming and now a record shipment of some 5,000 bags is ready for the United Kingdom. The coconut consignment will be brought here by coastal steamer for transhipment to England.

AWARDED ONE DOLLAR, COSTS

Weller Dunk, of Stirling Successful in His Action

Weller Dunk, Stirling, and creamery employee of that village, was awarded one dollar and costs by the jury in the Peil Assize Court held in Cobourg yesterday in a damage action brought by him against Roy McCue, employee of a rival creamery. Dunk had asked for $2,500 damages for slanderous statements which he claimed had been made by the defendant to the effect that the plaintiff had been withholding cream money due his patrons on his route.

James Spry, Peterboro County, one of the chief witnesses, stated that in conversation with McCue, the latter had said that Mr. Dunk had not been paying the patrons There was about one hundred dollars outstanding which he and McCue told him. Five other men had heard the same statement, witness said.

Counsel for plaintiff was J. F. Douglas, Campbellford, and defence counsel was N. A. MacColl of Campbellford.

HEART ATTACK REMOVES NOTED MINING MAN

A. D. Miles, President of Kenora Prospectors and Miners, Suddenly Dies

Kenora, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP) — Death today had removed one of Canada's best known students of mineralogy. President of Central Patricia Mines, Limited, A. D. Miles, Toronto, a prominent figure in Canadian and Middle Western State mining circles, succumbed to a heart attack here last night.

Death came to the mining executive's chair in a railway train, near here, as he travelled to Toronto, but a few hours previous when he boarded the train at Winnipeg, he expected to be in excellent health. The body will be taken to Toronto for burial.

Born in Allentown, Pa., Mr. Miles was an instructor in chemistry and mineralogy at Yale University before coming to Canada. For years he was identified with the International Nickel Company and Canadian Copper Company.

CUSTOMS OFFICER DIES

Campbellford, Oct. 18 — James Daly, for many years connected with the customs here, died suddenly at his home.

What Does Your Mirror Tell You?

DOES it tell you that your complexion is poor, eyes dull? That you look nervous, tired out?

If so, faulty diet may well be the cause—too much starchy food and not enough of those containing the vitally essential vitamins, A and D.

This is a real possibility. One nutritional scientist has said, "Many people are so accustomed to physical and mental fatigue caused by faulty diet that they don't know how much better they might feel."

It is well known that nerve disorders, loss of vigor and strength are frequently caused by the lack of Vitamin D in the modern diet, and physicians know that eight out of ten people whose blood they test show the need for more iron.

If this is your case—try VIP

A cup of hot or cold VIP will supply all the iron a person normally requires each day, and without which your blood cannot be the bright red that gives a healthy complexion.

It will supply you with generous quantities of Vitamin B1 and three other Vitamins, as well as proteins and minerals, to invigorate, strengthen and build you up. After you've taken VIP for a time, your doctor will tell you such good news that you'll be glad to make a cupful or two of VIP a daily requisite. And VIP has such a delicious, nut-like flavor that it's a delightful addition to the daily diet.

VIP is obtainable only from drug and department stores. Two sizes: 10 oz.—65c. and 20 oz.—$1.10.

A FREE SAMPLE package of VIP is obtainable by writing Dept. J/Scientific Food Products, Limited, Yardley House, Toronto.

I certify to the Vitamin and Iron content of VIP, and to the accuracy of the statements in this advertisement.

THINGS TO LOOK FORWARD TO

It will be a happy day for humanity when several things now troubling man will be eliminated—the dangers of cancer, tuberculosis and of carbon monoxide.

Experts have been at work trying to develop a gas which will give out not the poisonous substance which brings death insidiously, but one which is harmless.

So far if such a gasoline has been discovered, it is not well known. Even fuel coal gives off a number of gases including the deadly monoxide.

Tuberculosis is gradually yielding before sunlight, open air, and sanitation. That the day will come when it is practically abolished is the hope of mankind.

But the cancer curse is still more and more serious. Yet doctors expect that from many groups working together will come some discovery which will spell the doom of the cancer plague. It may be by immunization. One doctor stated this week "I think that a breed about cancer will come from a group of workers all over the world. At present I think the most promising line is that we shall discover what seems to make certain strains of laboratory animals and human beings almost immune from cancer. We shall be able then to prevent cancer and make people immune and that will be better than trying to cure it."

There are many other things to be desired in the social world and in the world of economics but they will come slowly. Discoveries have taken place in the recent century that will make mankind very hopeful of the ultimate.

NATIONS' CALM IN CRISIS

The retort of a German attacking the statement of Sir John Simon expressing the British view in the Arms and League crisis, is just what might be expected of the people—to hit at the nation least likely to hit back in anger and in vengeance. Had the remark been made to France, there might possibly have been a different result, but the British reaction is the same calmness. The situation puts one in mind of the angered boy, who, placed in a corner, attacks not the one he is afraid of but the innocent bystander or the person who will not give back blow for blow. Germany knows too well not to say too much to France.

One can hardly credit some of the reports appearing in the papers telling how the Germans have throttled education and are training the young for the sole purpose of warfare. It would seem that Germany had a lesson she did not learn if this is true, and that it remains and some Germans, apparently, like a mad dog, do not want to see it—that Germany was defeated and gained its prevented from making a slaughterhouse of the entire world. Now it looks as if Hitler is snapping at anything and everything. Is war really the ideal of the German people as it Hitler, who can only hope to retain his hold on power by fanning animosities of the nation? Is the teaching child-hood even that they are born to war and war only as the chiefest occupation? No-nation of savages as far as known ever had so bloody a code. It is thought they would did have their forays and their wars. Not, in the ancient world where empires of great power were shaken and defeated and wiped out without a trace left behind them was the idea ever rampant that war was the only reason for national existence. If Germany is teaching that to her children she is preparing her back for a lash of scorpions which will make the Great War a smile of pain as compared with the agony that will suffer if she embarks on a brute struggle of conquest. The very children she is training in her schools to think of bloody conquest will be the victims and not of this, but it is to be hoped that these notions are not the opinions of the mass of the German people and that Hitlerism, as expressed by Hitler when will pass completely and fall an easy victim to a new form of government.

Meanwhile the rest of the world is restrained in its comment and the opinion is generally held that the outlook will improve with the passage of the weeks ahead.

We cannot make a more lively representation and emblem to ourselves of hell than by the view of a kingdom in war.—Craendon.

The few our wants, the nearer we resemble the gods.—Socrates.

Fools for arguments use wagers.—Butler.

It is the slowest pulsation which is the most vitalizing. He who will then know how to wait as well as to make haste. All good abides with him who waiteth wisely. —Thoreau.

SIDELIGHTS

GRAVE and GAY

TO AUTUMN

Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness!
Close bosom-friends of the maturing sun;
Conspiring with him how to touch and bless
With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run;
To bend with apples the mossed cottage trees
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core;
To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells
With a sweet kernel; to set budding more,
And, still more, later flowers for the bees,
Until they think warm days will never cease,
For Summer has o'erbrimmed their clammy cells.

Who hath not seen thee oft amid the store?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find
Thee seated careless on a granary floor,
Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind;
Or on a half-reaped furrow sound asleep,
Drowsed with the fume of poppies, while they hook
Spare the next swath and all its twined flowers;
And sometimes like a gleaner thou dost keep
Steady thy laden head across a brook;
Or by a cider-press, with patient look,
Thou watchest the last oozings, hours by hours.

Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music, too,
While barred clouds bloom the soft-dying day
And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue;
Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn
Among the river swallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies:
And full-grown lambs loud bleat from hilly bourn;
Hedge-crickets sing, and now with treble soft
The redbreast whistles from the garden croft,
And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.

—John Keats.

BREAD LIKE MOTHER USED TO BAKE is hard to get now for home baking of bread seems to be almost a lost art, in the cities and towns at least, but Oshawa has a lady citizen, 95 years old, Mrs. Jas. Dunlop, who bakes home-made bread to be proud of, according to the editor of the Oshawa Times, who should know bread as is bread. That a lady at the advanced age of 95 should even attempt bread baking is notable and Oshawa should be as proud of Mrs. Dunlop as she is proud of her bread.

KINGSTON HAS A POPULATION OF 23,669, 66 less than a year ago, which means that the Limestone City is barely holding its own, in fact is slipping a little, of course the "pen" population is not counted in that, or Greater Kingston might hit the 25,000 mark. But then the "pen" is in Portmouth (vide Portsmouth Penitentiary). Kingston never claimed the penal institution, in fact took pains to disclaim it at times—but now that the penal institution extends to Collins' Bay, with hot and cold water, baths in every room, radios and manicures, Kingston might well extend its boundaries and take in the extra population.

ONE RADIO NEWS ANNOUNCER stated Sunday that Germany was preparing to start a bacteriological war, which sounds even worse than chlorine and mustard gas, and liquid fire, modern methods of war frightfulness which were used in the Great War by Germany. Radio announcers, however, throw their words into the ether with a great deal of reckless abandon which the newspapers cannot afford to imitate. When statements are made in black and white on paper it becomes necessary to back them up with facts far removed from the shadowy substances which radio announcers build their speeches on:

HEART ONLY ORGAN WHICH WE CAN HEAR

Knowledge Dispels Unnecessary Fears About Heart

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Of all the organs the heart is the only one that we can hear. Small wonder then that we so often worry about it, fearing that it is not beating as it should or that even, perhaps, it will presently stop altogether.

Knowledge as to how the heart works should, however, help to dispel the many wrong conclusions that people arrive at in reference to this organ.

What is more, it should be pointed out that the heart is markedly influenced by the nervous system, especially by thought processes. In consequence, the more you worry about your heart the faster and harder will it beat.

That, in effect, is what palpitation is—a consciousness or awareness of the beating of the heart more often you feel your pulse and count the impulses the worse they get.

The heart is a muscular organ and a strong one. This muscle is unlike any other in the body. When it starts to contract it must contract all he way, so to speak, to completion. The heart muscle either contracts to its maximum ability or not at all.

Heart contractions force the blood from one chamber of the heart to another. Of these there are four, a right auricle and ventricle and a left auricle and ventricle.

The blood from the system is accumulated and enters the right auricle. Next it is forced into the right ventricle which lies below it. From there it is forced through the lungs and back to the heart again this time into the left auricle. From the left auricle a contraction forces the blood mass into the left ventricle, and lies from there it passes into the aorta and again into the system.

Valves are to be found separating the various chambers of the heart and for the purpose of these to prevent the blood from flowing in a reverse direction.

When the heart is normal its contraction sounds remarkably the word "lubb-dup". The first sound is "lubb" is a duller tone and one booming sound. The second, the "dup" is sudden, short and sharp. These sounds are produced by the heart's contraction and the closing of the valves.

When an individual is said to have a heart "murmur" it means that one or more valves do not close completely, and consequently a muffled sound due to the fact that some of the blood rushes back towards into the chamber from which it is being ejected.

Heart beats are rhythmical and automatic, they vary in rate during sleep, fever, digestion, indigestion, exercise, emotion, sleep, tobacco and the food eaters.

Two sets of nerves govern the heart rate. One, known as the "vagus or pneumogastric," runs down from the base of the brain and slows up the heart beat. The second arises from the so-called sympathetic system, which lies in front of the spine, and these fibres increase the rapidity of the heart beat. The two systems act each other, and make for smoothness of control.

The trained ear of the physician can also tell whether the heart is beating in a normal rhythmic case of doubt he can have recourse to a highly sensitive instrument called the electrocardiograph. This detects minute irregularities which escape the ear of the human ear.

What we must never do is worry about our heart, for this always affects it badly. Periodic examinations by a doctor competent in this line of work is, however, advisable. Then we don't worry for nothing.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Cow's milk and woman's milk are not alike in chemical composition. Human milk is less acid. It has milk sugar in excess and twice the amount of proteins or woman's milk and more vitamins fatty acids. The sugar content of both is practically the same. The differences, of course, account for the necessity of modifying every milk formula before giving it to the baby.

Little Benny's Note Book

Yesterday was Nora's day off on account of being Thursday, and she cooked supper and made pop's special dinner, to surprise him, being coconut pie, me standing there watching her with happy thots of what a surprise it would make under onions and things ma brawt in the coconut pie and cut it, me watchin big pop's face.

Visitors who happen to trudge upstairs in the city hall to the engineer's department will be treated to an object getting that hook in the road in front of the house of Mrs. Cowell, getting a new sewer unplugged, generally stop on their way out of the building to take a look at that big key hanging in a set of keys on the hook on the wall near the door. It's a pretty big key and perhaps the only one in the whole city. You can see the color right through the dust that has collected on it. And there's quite a lot of dust because it's been hanging there for a number of a long time now. On one side of it can be located the word "Yale" which it's the official key of the city. The Mayor or somebody of that sort used to present it to distinguished visitors who might happen to stop over in the city and ask for it to be recognized. Officials of the city hall, however, forgot when it was that presented to anybody. One official remembers that the last singer who was here a long time ago was given the key and the reason it was left on the wall in the city hall steps. He forgets whether it was Caruso or that one-eyed fellow that sings "Mother Machree" or not. It's a pretty solemn affair, the key being taken down from the hook and given a dust or two out and a few of those present are allowed to touch it. Once, the official key wasn't quite as big as the wooden one they've got now, but it was made of the same key and made of gold, or part gold, and it used to be kept in a box all by itself. One time a distinguished looking man came to see the Mayor and all the aldermen and the Mayor and others was sort of hustling around and peering into corners and drawers. As a last resort they looked in the box of history and put in a rush order for the official key. The man looked at his best and just an hour or so before the Governor arrived the key was delivered, all complete with a new brass chain and a couple of new fobs. After that the council thought it would be better to make it big enough so that they could see it nearly needs two hands to lug it around. Well, the engineer has got the key the visitor generally gets the freedom of the city. But just

Not being much to watch on account, of him having a blizzy expression on his face, the engineer of the office, and he started to eat his apple and chewed slowly and started to look at him insulted, me thinking, that he is fearse. I never give him a bite.

Which I did, saying, This is a real corker, isn't it?

Pop not paying any attention, and I not liking to be left out on it was a wipe instead, pop say-ing, What's the matter with your knee for a goormat, if it's not too personal to inquire?

Which it was only he didn't know it, and pop reached his plate for a first slice of pie without even mentioning it and ma stopped looking insulted and starts to look mad, and I said, O boy this is the greatest conversation in the history of the world.

Then pop-pop a good stiff kick in the shin, him saying, is that any excuse for committing murder and I not even an innocent bystiter. Pee gods watch where you're kicking, will you? and ma saying, You ayt to be kicked, and pot in a dish of pie.

And she got up and went out in the kitchen, and pop commenced to get, pop saying, What's all this, and I at last see a fact I am going down for the 3rd time, throw me a life line, Benny, for Pete sake.

Which I was only too glad to, it was a matter, wich I did, and pop ran after ma and I could see he was going to get pertending just to tease her. But

SEA-SERPENT CALLED "AMY"

"Hiachukaluck" Not Big Gamble Too Many Saw Her"

Victoria, Oct. 17.—"Hiachukaluck, Hiachook or "The Gamble" has been discarded by those trying to fasten a name upon Cadboro Bay's sea-serpent, and in desperation they have chosen "Amy."

That's all right for the feature writer, but whether it will stick with the public remains to be seen. Apparently the genius who named Cadboro's other "Congress" has disappeared along with his famous protege.

Here were two reasons for the change—first, the number of witnesses who have attested to sighting the monster has made "Big Gamble" unpopular in any language, it is considered. Second, those who have seen the attraction prowling itself in the sun and combing its hair decide the creature's feel sure it is feminine.

A photograph has come to light here showing strange creatures tossed up on the California coast some years ago. It had a remarkable head something of the size of the Cadboro bay monster, and a long, serpentine body of much smaller diameter than the head. The head had an undersung jaw like that of the newest sea-serpent but the body lacks the spots and would fall far short of the 90 feet claimed for "Hiachukaluck."

EFFORT TO BREAK WILL

Bequest Revoked by Addition of Second Codicil

New York, Oct. 18 (CP)— An effort to break the strange will of Horace Elliot Wadsworth, wealthy New Yorker who left $25,000 to finance an investigation of his death and an additional $100,000 in rewards for the apprehension of those responsible, has begun in Surrogate's Court.

Dr. Lorne Robertson of Stratford, Ont., filed objections to the probate of two codicils, contending Wadsworth was mentally unsound and subjected to undue influence when he added them to the will on December 31, 1931.

Wadsworth died in Reno, Nev., on August 9, supposedly while seeking a divorce. An autopsy conducted two days later indicated the cause of his death was acute alcoholism. Although providing in his will for an investigation of his death, Wadsworth gave no reasons for his apparent fear of a violent death.

Dr. Robertson, in an affidavit to the extent or $10,000 in the will itself, which was drawn on March 13, 1930, but the bequest was revoked without explanation in the second codicil.

MORE MEN TO BE CALLED

List For Friday Now Posted at Relief Office

In order to replace those workers who have put in their allotted hours on the relief work projects now being carried on in the city, a new shift of men will be taken on the various jobs on Friday morning. Their names will be taken from the lists by a clerk in the city relief office, in front of the city hall at 1.30 o'clock on that morning, weather permitting. Names of men who will be called are at present posted on the lists now hanging in the windows of the Central Relief Office. Although a few at present working will be kept on the jobs, the majority of those who will be called on Friday will consist of the married unemployed men in the city. Following this class of workers, who will fill in about 75 jobs, the single unemployed men will then be given their chance at the work.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (CP)—Miss Evelyn Tray weighs only 180 pounds but she beat a four-inch, 175-pound steel bar. 71 happened at the convention of the association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers and the "ask"—one-millionth of an inch—was recorded on a machine in the electrical apparatus known as the magnetic strain gauge.

Berwyn, Ill., Oct. 18 (CP)—J. E. Love may become a tavern keeper by inches. The question is whether the job and a bonus of 300 feet from a church. The law says that no neighborhood may consent to a beverage place if it is less than 300 feet from a church. Love and his neighborhood petition found it 300 feet, three inches. The board is studying the matter.

Edenburgh, Pa., Oct. 18 (CP) —The judge hesitated before sentencing Earl Cochran, 21, for a hold-up.

"What would you have done if the people had not obeyed your command to hold up the bar?" asked the jurist.

Cochran hesitated. He replied then: "I would have shot them."

"Three to 10 years," said the judge unsympathetically.

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 18 (CP)— Prisoners sent to jail on city charges have to learn a trade at the city workshop, or else.

Chicago, Oct. 18 (CP)—The police say it's never too late or too early for wanderlust to strike.

T. J. Hendricks, 70, of Nashville, Tenn., was brought to a police station. He said he hadn't hiked and walked to Chicago, seeking relatives. He was taken to a hospital.

Later came a 12 year old boy. He said he was Bobby Charron and that he thumbed his way from Jacksonville, Fla., to see the fair and get a job.

"PILGRIMAGE" AMONG FUTURE PICTURES

There are no old timers in Hollywood who go unfed. There are no paupers in the screen capital. And any player who really wants to stage a comeback as a star is guaranteed a chance, sometimes forced to make good.

Hollywood is often referred to as "heartbreak" town but it manages daily to belie that reputation. The trouble seems to be that too few of its good deeds are broadcast along with the other stories.

Evidence of this fact is found immediately in "Pilgrimage", Fox's production with Henrietta Crosman, Heather Angel, Maureen O'Sullivan, Norman Foster, in which these famous players are re-appearing on the screen in an effort to establish themselves again in the hearts of a fan population. "Pilgrimage" is to be presented at the Belle tomorrow (Thursday), and Friday, at matinee daily.

A collection of brilliants such as has rarely been seen in a single production together is composed in this instance of Shirley Blythe, once the seductive queen of film vampires; Nancy Clifford, who retired three years back to motherhood; Robert Warwick, one of the earliest and most popular of screen heroes; Francis Ford, former director and brother of John, and Rose Rosanova, whom critics once thought the screen's greatest character actress.

Chosen Bit Players Carefully.

John Ford, who directed the film offers his reasons for engaging them.

Experience has taught me that a "bit" well done is worth five times as much as a poorly done one, more attention is being focused on the character players. And the youngster in the game don't realize how much interest is directly related to the subject matter and offended by the acting abilities of leading players. Henrietta Crosman, Norman Foster and Marion Nixon.

The locale of the film goes from the Western communities in Arkansas to the cosmopolitan atmosphere of New York and Paris, the picture reveals some of the most elaborate settings ever achieved for a motion picture.

"3 Little Pigs" Returns

Belleville screen lovers will be delighted to hear that Walt Disney's popular cartoon color, "3 Little Pigs" is to return to the Belle and be exhibited with the above feature offering. The popularity of this screen gem undoubtedly due to the catchy part in the tune "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf", has won for the rag-ing sensation of America. This popular cartoon subject forms a sensational 13 weeks engagement on Broadway. The Belle News with its up-to-the minute events and "Hollywood on Parade" introducing Belleville stars will be exhibiting on the same program.

Silver Gift Night

Another of the popular "Silver Treasure Nights" will be presented at the Belle tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 8 p.m.

The night sky is a cabinet of Rogers 1847 Silver flatware. Nine other exceptional silver gifts will also be presented free to patrons.

An artist's impression of the new English presentation "F.P.1" in which Conrad Veidt, Leslie Fenton and Jill Esmond have the featured roles, at the Capitol Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

MAE WEST OF FILM FAME IS NOT ILL

Los Angeles, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Mae West went to bed today for 10 days but her affliction is only slight trouble.

She has the title for her next film, "It Ain't No Sin" but no sooner to go with it, and one is due in three weeks.

Propped up on pillows in the bedroom of her Hollywood apartment, the star dictates to secretaries. She says she can't work in an office "with people around."

She'll stay in bed for 10 days, come out one day to pose for pictures, and then go back to work for another 10 days.

May hopes at the end of her seclusion to have the plot and dialogue for her next picture completed.

FILM STAR ILL

Hollywood, Oct. 18 (AP)—Suffering a relapse after an attack of influenza, Frederic March, stage and screen actor, was reported in a serious condition at his home today. A physician was summoned and the physician were admitted to his room.

NO BILL FOUND AGAINST HAIG

Cobourg, Oct. 18—T. J. Hopkins, K.C., Toronto, is Crown Prosecutor at the Supreme Court sittings in session here before Mr. Justice Mc-Evoy, associated with Colonel F. D. Boggs, County Crown Attorney for Northumberland and Durham. A. J. Sloane, formerly of Toronto, is Defending Type Lauzia.

Court opened with a o'clock last night the Grand Jury, which had been in session since Monday afternoon, brought in a true bill in the murder charge against Lauzia.

No bill was returned in the manslaughter charge brought against Mrs. E. Hale, of Oklahoma City, Okla., in connection with the deaths of Mrs. Edith Pilkenord and son, Dances, of Kingston, who were killed in a motor crash on the highway between Colborne and Brighton on June 16, last. Dr. Haig, it was alleged, was driver of the car in which the deceased were riding.

SHOOTS SON FOR MOOSE

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 18.—(CP)— When Joe Legard, a Long Lac Indian, mistook a form moving through thick brush for a moose, he shot and wounded his 19-year-old son, Moose. The boy will probably recover.

Baptist Superannuation Fund Faces Big Problem

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)— Plans for strengthening of the superannuation fund of the ministry will need capital of $250,000 were made to the convention of Ontario and Quebec Baptist churches at Park Baptist Church here today.

The first business session of the convention heard that the new capital would be needed in view of the reluctance of churches to call older men, forcing the aged retirement, and for the Canadian Baptist, the church organ, which next year will celebrate the 80th anniversary of its founding in Brantford.

Reports noted churches were seeking younger pastors and the older men were finding it difficult to find fields wherein they would have the opportunity for service, at a salary equal to their needs.

Such men were being forced into retirement and must be cared for, it was asserted. The fund would be aided by the convention, pungent men should make provision for the time when they should be compelled to retire from the active service.

Rev. T. J. Allen, Aylmer, called for a $1,000,000 superannuation fund to care for those men who have given their life blood to the church and to whom the denomination owes its position. Rev. Dr. C. H. Duncan, McMaster, said a capital of $250,000 would need to be required if the church was to retain its present hold and care for the men dependent upon it.

A proposal to secure the right to the United States Government to make it conform to Baptist requirements in marriage and divorce matters was made by the hymnal committee. The body was authorized to continue its work for another year.

Tractor Monoxide Kills Woodchucks in Holes

Ingersoll, Oct. 18—North of Ingersoll it is learned one farmer has adopted a very successful method to rid his fields of woodchucks, which had become very numerous. He drives his tractor into the infested fields, attaches a rubber hose to the exhaust and after plugging the burrow outlet, he places the hose into the burrows of the woodchucks. The groundhogs are quickly smothered by the monoxide gas, and the one operation suffices for their destruction and burial. It is claimed that the pests have practically been exterminated on the farm.

Are Colds Really Dangerous?

SURELY a cold is the most annoying, depressing and dangerous of human afflictions. Besides, colds often lead to flu, pneumonia and other serious and fatal diseases. The disagreeable season in almost here when colds will be universal, and the victims will think they "caught cold". But no one ever "catches cold". We create colds. Colds are due to an internal condition developed by the crazy living habits of civilisation, evidenced by the fact that if a cold ever is "broken up" it is by speeding up elimination of the internal condition—by purging, sweating, hot lemonade, etc. Purging, to empty cold-causing impurities from the life canal (food canal); sweating, to cast acid accumulation from the blood; lemon juice, a powerful alkali-former, to neutralise the acid residues in the blood that were the immediate cause of the cold.

A cold is evidence of a wrong internal condition, Nature's device to throw off poisonous irritants from the body. But these irritants accumulate only because of some wrong living habits—chiefly wrong food habits and these irritants we need not have because we do not need to follow the wrong food habits that cause them.

It is all but impossible for one to escape "catching cold" who feeds upon the conventional diet of civilisation.

Invariably the conventional diet is acid-forming and acid residues must accumulate in the blood, causing viscid or ropy blood, sluggish circulation, a sense of let-down. Then comes a cold to eliminate the accumulated rubbish and prevent the serious illness that otherwise must follow.

All these dangerous and unpleasant consequences can be avoided by avoiding their cause, the accumulated acids.

I have had only 2 colds in 25 years, both in England, where my living regimen was not easily carried out, the last one 20 years ago, August, 1913. Formerly I had disgusting colds winter and summer. I have avoided colds by feeding so as to avoid accumulated acid residues in my body that bring on a cold.

To avoid a cold, 80% of the food intake must be alkaline. I shall gladly mail a list of alkali-forming foods upon request and my booklet "HOW TO KEEP WELL", both free,—write to Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., 555 Vine Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

My foods for 25 years have consisted largely of fruits, vegetables, nuts, milk, Kofy Sub and Roman Meal, Bekus Puddy or Lishus, the only non-acid grain foods known. To these I have added proper care of the skin, exercise and other resistance-building measures which I consider of great importance in avoiding colds... And one who lives upon proper foods has his blood in such perfect alkaline condition that he can eat the most conventional meals if the occasion demands, without ill effects.

Robt. G. Jackson, M.D.

From a photograph of Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., at 75. After eighteen years of increasing devitalization, Dr. Jackson at 50 was given only four months to live by the great Sir W. Osler. By natural living habits and the use of alkaline foods, Dr. Jackson is today, at 75, able to do the work of a younger healthy man in his early thirties can do.

Miss Doris Houston is the guest of Miss Dorothy Sager, Peterborough.

Miss Alice Doyle is leaving this week on a major trip to Syracuse, N.Y., where she will spend a ten day holiday.

Mrs. Annie Fleming has returned after spending the past week visiting relatives and friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kitchen have returned from Smith's Falls where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Pargey of La Riviere, Manitoba, who have been visiting Mr. Pargey's sister, Mrs. M. Aldins and Miss Pargey and other friends in Belleville, are leaving today for their home in Manitoba.

The Sacrament of Confirmation was administered by His Excellency Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston, at Brewer's Mills, yesterday. Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G. and Rev. E. M. Leacy of Deseronto, were present at the ceremony.

The teachers of the Junior Sunday School of Christ Church held an enjoyable afternoon tea yesterday in the Parish Hall, when they were entertained by Hallowe'en decorations. The guests were received by Mrs. G. O. Wright and tea was served by the teachers. The ladies in charge of cooking were in charge of Mrs. Dan Stewart and Mrs. Everett Smith.

At Christ Church Rectory last night, the ministers of the city and their wives were entertained at a delightful social evening, the hostesses being Mrs. G. O. Wright, Mrs. Robert Hall and Mrs. Harold B. Neal. Music and games were enjoyed and Rev. Dr. J. A. Bergey gave a very interesting talk on his experiences in Australia. A dainty supper was served by the hostesses at the close of the evening.

Sponsored by a clear, sunny day, Tuesday's afternoon tea, under auspices of Minerva Chapter, 138, Order of Eastern Star, was in every way a big success. The stately old home of Miss Ella Bleecker (Paul Worth's Manor), was gay with flowers, a glowing grate fire and the happy reunion of friends. Receiving with the hostess were Mrs. M. J. Vanner and Mrs. Chas. Clyde, Mrs. A.-E. Womacott assisted in looking after the guests in a bay window of the drawing-room, the usual well-patronized home-cooking table was in charge of Mrs. Ingrim, Mrs. O. J. Reed and Mrs. Grey. A thoroughly enjoyed number was the sympathetic rendering of Metcalf's "Absent" self accompanied on the piano by Mrs. H. A. Shaver. But the best of a tea, is the tea-room: In the mellow light, of red tapers, a bowl of scarlet salvia, the charm of silver and lace was enhanced as one's glance rested on the "Oracle of the Teacup", tucked in another bay window. Mrs. J. R. Smith presided, a lot of merriment by her readings. Tea was poured from four to five, by Mrs. C. S. Cronk and Mrs. W. O. Morgan. From five to six by Mrs. J. W. Elmsley and Mrs. W. H. Adams. Assisting were Mrs. Hibberd, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Beatie Hart, Mrs. Robt. Gardner and Mrs. White, Mrs. F. Pollard acted as treasurer. Altogether it was one of the happiest gatherings of the season.

Mrs. R. E. Orr and Miss K. Orr were tea hostesses at the Belleville Golf Club this afternoon.

TABERNACLE TRAIL RANGERS ORGANIZE

A meeting of the Trail Rangers of the Tabernacle United Church, was held on Monday night, in the church parlors. Officers were elected for the Fall Term and other business transacted. A story of the life of Josiah Wedgewood was read by Junior McBride which was very interesting showing how a lame boy overcame his handicap and became the world's greatest potter. Various games were enjoyed owing to the time taken up for the election of officers.

The officers elected were:
Chaplain—R. Edmondson.
Mentors—Harry McGuire, Donald Alexander.
Chief Ranger—Junior McBride.
Assistant Ranger—Maxwell Scott.
Tally—Douglas McBride.
Cash—Gerald Dafoe.
Committee—Bob Dickerson, Randle Barry, Arthur Moon.

Hair Beauty Depends on The Health

Lack-Lustre Tresses Usually Indicate a Sub-Par Condition

(By Helen Follett)

Hair is dependent upon health and vitality. Remember that, when you are combing your hair. Strong fellow until his sweetie-mamma shears off his brain thatch.

The cave man is pictured with a long, flat, shaggy coiffure and ferocious whiskers; maybe sunlight grew them. At any rate, beauty specialists find that rim lamps help the winter cost of furs to grow thick and lustrous.

Nervousness, indigestion, loss of sleep can dull the hair's lustre. Nervous crest. Fever wrecks the whole structure, though a new growth pops out in time. If locks are moulting, let up on worry and unnecessary activities. Have a tonic friction once a week, get yourself generally in trim and the old thatch will perk up, look young again.

More and more it is the feminine figure going V shaped. Shoulders are wide, waists trim, hips carry drapories.

There's no such thing as cloching morning exercises nay unless one is as slender as a sapling. Ten minutes of muscle activity, including kicking, twisting and bending work wonders, as many a woman has found to her happiness, and the relief of her dressmaker.

The lazy girl can stretch in bed, night and morning. But expansion of legs, arms and torso must be done with a hard pull on fibers, if exercise is to be effective.

Hair dyeing is an art, it is not easily accomplished by the amateur. Bleaching is easier, but there are right and wrong ways of doing it. If too much ammonia is added to the peroxide the shafts of the hair are weakened. Very strong or dry and harsh, the shampoo agent rolls off as water flows over a duck's back.

The first dyeing and the first bleaching are likely to be unsuccessful. It is that business of touching up the new growth at the roots, that brings trouble. The dyeing agent must go on there and there only; it is not to be brushed on or combed through the whole length of the hair.

WOMAN SERVANT OF QUEEN RETIRES

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Miss Harriet Winn, the oldest woman servant at Buckingham Palace, retired this week, when she reached the age limit of 70.

She was received by the Queen, who presented her with a souvenir of her 50 years' service during three reigns.

After being housemaid at the Palace for many years Miss Winn, ended in charge of the linen room. She holds the Queen Victoria second jubilee brooch, the long service medal given by King George, and the coronation brooches of both King Edward and King George.

Among her cherished possessions is a black brooch studded with pearls which was given to her mother by Queen Victoria in recognition of her service as a housemaid.

One of the two fine romances in "Pilgrimage" the new romantic drama coming to the Belle Ameur-ew is enacted by Norman Foster and Marian Nixon, the other is portrayed by Heather Angel and Maurice Murphy.

Do "Tom-Boy" Girls Make Good Wives?

(By Constance Cameron)

She's grown up now, the little girl who used to step up to bat, swing a meant tennis racket, climb the ladies' tree or beat her big brothers swimming up to the old tannery.

She's engaged to be married, and her mother is worried now. Eileen can cook bacon or steak over a camp fire; she can clean a fish as quickly as her dad; mother is afraid because Eileen takes no interest in teas and "showers" which always precede the marriage of a popular girl.

"I'll have to get all dressed up like a plush horse," sighs the girl who's going into a simple affair—noon gown. And her very tone of martyrdom indicates how much more pleasant it would be if she were sliding into corduroy breeches and a sweat shirt, slinging a rifle over her shoulder and going hunting.

Her mother tries to keep all these scandalous secrets from his mother, but it's too late. With high elation and savory satisfaction he has already boasted about his pal "wife-to-be".

An Understanding Wife

I think he can look forward to many a happy day with "his girl" and to a bond of understanding between him and his young wife which could never have developed had she learned only lady-like graces or to pour tea or stage bridge parties.

I believe happiness in marriage lies not in always doing the same things but in understanding the need or desire of the other fellow to do them.

The girl who is raised with a dad and brothers who go hiking, fishing, camping and roughing it won't rabid boy act injured because her husband wants to return to things primitive every so often. In fact, a great many of the ladies she won't have any excuse for ranting and being disagreeable, because she'll be invited to go along.

Don't discourage your "tom boy" girl. She'll make a game, understanding wife, thoroughly aware that because her husband yearns for the cool satisfy feeling of a gun breech against his cheek, he will return even more anxious for the smooth-ness of her own cheek, her own enthusiasm in hearing of the camping party.

And if she can do the outdoor things as well as her husband can, there are merry trips ahead. Only she mustn't excel in all her husband's attempts at being a sharp shooting, fish-landing caveman, man has his pride and it's best to understand just once in a while.

Pretty Face Is Not Enough For Beauty

To Be Beautiful One Must Have Charm and Amiability Too

(By Helen Follett)

Chocolate-box on external loveliness, pretty one, because it pays. But don't overlook the charm of nice manners, tolerance, amiability and friendliness.

A nagging wife with a handsome elegant rose is every bit as hateful and tiresome as the one with an ugly beak.

A snob is a snob no matter what she looks like. There's many a girl with the face of an angel and the soul of something else again, and everybody is wise to her, she doesn't get anywhere.

There are plain women who are beloved for qualities of charm and fascination that rate higher than carnation cheeks rosebud lips and ambrosial locks. Beauty is made up of many elements. Go get 'em.

Before the eye tissues start to do a flop and take on creases, use an eye-strengthening cream. You'll find them in the shops now. If you would prefer your own cure coconut oil is a good for the purpose of thwarting time's many motives.

In the morning bathe the eyes with hot water then with cold. Dry and pat on cream. Yes, ma'am, it will make the lids shiny and what of it? They're prettier when they're not mosiey-cakey; somehow old fashion puts a pretty glint in soul lanterns.

Graceful carriage is dependent upon a properly poised backbone and comfortable shoes. The back bone a wagon gives scarcely a thought, and you know what she does with her pedals crowds them into shoes that often are not properly designed. There are sensible shoes, to be had. She has but to seek them.

If the body is stretched tall, chest lifted, the backbone straight we assume that nip-in at the waist ine and makes for the charming silhouette.

C. W. L. PENNY SALE A FINE SUCCESS

The Penny Sale, a novel and fascinating method of raising funds was introduced in the city, last evening, by the Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's Church. Over six hundred citizens gathered in the Academy of Immaculate Conception where held and greatly enjoyed the competition for baskets of groceries, nearly two hundred of which were sold.

Under the direction of the President, Miss Kate Dolan and her officers and through the generosity of the storekeepers, who donated the baskets, the Penny Sale provided two hours of fun for the gathering. A number of articles of fancy work were also sold.

The handsome door prize, a special basket of groceries was won by Mr. Joe Raycroft.

KAVANAGH—KELUSKY

St. Michael's Church was the scene of a charming wedding, this morning at eight-thirty this morning, when Erma Noreen, daughter of the late Frank Kelusky, and of Mrs. Kelusky, Bancroft, became the bride of Mr. John Lawrence Kavanagh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dermott L. Kavanagh, Bancroft. Rev. Charles E. Baker officiated at the marriage ceremony which took place in the sanctuary was Rev. T. J. Brady of Maynooth.

The bride, who entered the church as the wedding march was played by Mrs. James Grant, wore a lovely frock of pale blue stiffened chiffon. With hat and shoes to match. She carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Miss Patricia Kirby, Belleville was bridesmaid, and wore a pretty frock of pale green chiffon, with beige hat and shoes. Her bouquet was of Sweetheart roses.

Mr. D. L. Kavanagh, Jr., Bancroft, was groomsman, while Mrs. James Kavanagh and Mr. Michael Burns of Bancroft, acted as ushers.

During the Offertory Mrs. Grant sang an "Ave Maria".

After the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast were held at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. Kelusky, mother of the bride, attired in black satin with corsage of roses, and Mrs. Kavanagh, the groom's mother, wearing maroon crepe and a corsage of roses, received with the bridal couple.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Kavanagh, left on a motor trip to Ottawa, Montreal and through the Adirondacks. They will return via Niagara and the Lake. The bride chose for travelling a smart swagger suit of brown tweed with cocoa collar. For their return they will reside at Bancroft.

The groom's gift to the bride was a substantial cheque, to the bridesmaid a wrist watch bracelet, to the groomsman white gold cuff links and to the ushers, tie pins.

Among those present at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kavanagh, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Thompson, Miss Lillian Haase, Mr. Fred Haase, Miss Vera Kelusky, Mrs. Elvan George, Mrs. Alfred Burns, Miss Olive Kavanagh, Mr. Alfred Burns, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Kavanagh, Mr. James Kavanagh and Mr. Michael Burns of Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kavanagh, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. James Kirby, Miss Helen Kirby, Miss Barbara Kirby, Belleville and Mrs. M. J. Gorman, Toronto.

MARK REBEKAHS' 82ND ANNIVERSARY

After the usual meeting of Quinte Rebekah Lodge in the Odd-Fellows' Hall, last evening a special program was given to commemorate the 82nd anniversary of the founding of the Rebekah Order.

Mrs. W. H. Ketcheson acted as chairman and interesting addresses were given by Mr. J. O. Gerity and Rev. A. L. Green. Community singing was enjoyed and the other numbers on the program included a vocal solo by Mr. Clare Patterson and a recitation by Mrs. Sander-cock.

The Noble Grand, Miss Lena Jackson, graciously thanked all those who assisted in the program and invited the guests to remain for refreshments. Ice cream and cake was then served by the Lodge members.

A sporty idea is to vary a dressy coat of cloth by wearing a sports coat of fur on all but dressed-up occasions. A new model is in black pony. This long coat done on fitted lines has a triple shoulder capelet that makes it exceedingly attractive.

Take time out in the form of a new bag with a cunning little watch embedded in the marcasite clasp. This clasp is detachable, and even without it the black antelope bag with its scalloped top is handsome.

Stocks Lose Spirit of Recovery Seen in late Session Yesterday—Tape at Toronto Idle Half Time—Toronto Stocks Move Down in Sympathy With New York

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Stocks sagged sensibly today, apparently having lost the spirit of recovery which was bounding on security dale yesterday in the wake of rallying gains.

The reversals proved a natural element, as did foreign exchange movements and domestic and industrial news. Stock transactions were extremely dull, and the side-lines appeared to be the favorite position of the more important speculators. Dealings were irregular.

Shares of U.S. Smelting dropped 3 points and losses of around 2 were suffered by Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and National Distillers. Aside from heaviness in Dome and Homestake, other Canadian shares showed small changes. International Nickel and Canadian Pacific averaged about 1-2 point lower while on the curb Aluminum Walker and Hiram Walker fraction Lake Shore Mines steadied. Dominion Government 4 1-8s were unchanged while improvement in the 4s was up by 1-2 point over-session in the 5s. The Canadian dollar was off 1-16 of a cent at 97.18 5-4 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Business was reduced to a mere dribble at the end of the second hour today on the Toronto Stock Exchange and prices were somewhat heavy, yesterday's gains after a fairly strong opening. A few gains were held in the brewery, oil and utility group but the general level was off, the trend moving in conformity with the New York list.

Smelters had a gain of a point as did Nickel was down 3-8 cents and Brazilian and O.P.R. were down 1-4 and 1-8 each. Canada Malting, Distillers stocks lost early gains in the majority of the brewery and Distillers retaining an advance of 10 cents, and Distillers Seagram unchanged at 23. Walker's common weakened 1 1-2, the preferred 1 point and Gooderham A. was down 1-4.

The market played a waiting game all day and engaged in little business. Opening irregularly high-er on overnight buying orders, a downward drift soon set in, the gold following faithfully a sagging trend in World prices.

Metal shares held stubbornly to their early gains until shortly after noon when selling became active in Wall St. Smelters dropped to 121 for a loss of three points.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—The carryover of profitable trading from the Standard Exchange market was weak and lacked only thorough the early transactions. At noon the price range was moderately lower with the bias on the side of the close.

Volume was fair today in Nickel and Noranda and at noon Nickel was off 25 cents and Noranda up by 50. Hargraves was unchanged at 7.00 and McIntyre were off about half a dollar and Lake Shore 25 points lower.

Despite a higher market for gold bars in London the gold shares lost tracked today, leading other groups with them. A new mill in the gold area, together in the New York market depressed the base metal group and Nickel and Lake Shore were leaders registered yesterday.

Lower ranging up to $2.00 appeared in the gold shares, including Dome and McIntyre and Kirkland Lake in the group took losses up to 25 cents.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Early cattle trading on the Toronto Live-stock Market was fairly brisk, prices generally unchanged. Eighteen hundred head were carried over from yesterday's receipts. The calf market was a shade easier. Hogs were unsettled, the lambs market opened strong and sheep steady.

Receipts at yards for the Dominion Livestock Branch were cattle 380, calves 130, hogs 380, sheep and lambs 770.

Common to medium butchers brought $2.00 to $3.50 with cutters at $1.25 to $1.50. A few choice butcher heifers were taken from $4.00 to $4.25. Best cows made $3.25 to $3.50. Bulls were steady at $2.75 to $3.25. Small lots of light stockers sold at $4.50 to $5.00.

The hog market was unsettled at the opening with packers bidding $5.35 to $5.40 for bacons; $4.40 off truck and $5.75 off car. Salesmen were asking 10 cents more.

Lambs were strong with good lambs at $7.00 to $7.25 and a few at $8.00. Culls and bucks brought $4.50 to $5.50. Sheep were steady at $1.00 to $2.50 cwt. according to quality.

WAIVE RIGHT OF APPEAL AT PICTON

Miles Pettit and Percy Gerrit, the two convicted bank robbers, who stole $4,000 from the Belleville branch of the Bank of Commerce one week ago and were sentenced to serve seven years in the Portsmouth penitentiary, signed their waiver of the right of appeal yesterday in Prince Edward county court house. The pair will be taken to the penitentiary shortly. The usual congratulations to officers present at the signing of the waiver.

WON'T SHAVE TILL NOV. 11, AND THEN?

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Members of the Delta Collegiate rugby team, following their defeat last Friday in the local interscholastic group by Cathedral high school, Guelph, have unanimously decided not to shave until they win the Ontario championship.

MEN DRILLING IN AUSTRIA

Nazi Plot Discovered And Military Law May Be Invoked

(By Wade Werner)

Vienna, Oct. 18 (AP)—A nationwide local military organization has been developed in Austria, it was disclosed today, despite the handicap of the Nazi underground in this country.

The widespread movement came to light as government investigations continued into alleged Nazi plots at the Linz garrison and elsewhere to seize arms for use in "further action."

Details of the investigation were only vaguely forthcoming, but enough has been revealed to show a small corner of the Nazi organization. Julius Deutsch, Socialist leader, in fact, that Nazi storm troops now are being drawn from the regular armies, but are in the hands of Austrian army officers—either active or recently retired.

Higher officers, it appeared, either are not taking part in the plots or their policy are being shielded from compromising evidence. Lieutenants and captains make up the membership.

A second fact is that these Nazi storm troops are officered by army men and drill secretly. Ernst Berger Perset, near Linz, for example, has been the scene of such Nazi manoeuvres.

A curious detail of these drills, revealed today, was the use of "Deutsch Reinwehr" sentries surrounding the drill grounds to keep watch of the forest to keep away casual observers. These sentries, of course, are all Nazis disguised in the regular Austrian army uniform

Baseball Situation in City to be Thoroughly Discussed

Meeting at "Y" Called For Thursday Night

With the idea in view of fully and wholly reorganizing baseball in Belleville a special meeting for such purpose has been arranged for Thursday evening of this week. All interested and loyal baseball fans and lovers, of this city, and the surrounding community, are invited to attend, and voice their ideas and opinions towards the betterment of baseball in Belleville.

Many different questions and possible phases of baseball will be thoroughly discussed including the splitting of senior, intermediate and junior baseball in this city. The most important question, and its possibilities, is that of Belleville entering a team in the newly formed Ulster Stadium League, which proposes to include Peterboro, Oshawa and Belleville into its roster for the 1934 season. This loop at present is composed of six high class senior clubs in Toronto. Providee the three C.O.B.L. teams enter the loop, one of the Toronto teams will be dropped, thus assuring the fans of a fine compact eight-teamed loop for next season. A committee of interested citizens have been diligently working on the possibilities of the new project for the past few weeks. The authentic information gathered by these men will be tabled and thoroughly discussed so that all present will have an opportunity to watch the suggestion well and closely all angles.

If those present feel that such a project would entail too much expense whereby a local club could not support the league, then the only possible question of Belleville entering any league would be that of the Bay of Quinte League will be presented. A fine line-up, composed of B.A.A. loop composed of Napanee, Gibbards, Deseronto, Brighton and Belleville could be the outcome with possible fifth team being placed in Trenton. A series of Quinte baseball will also be presented and the baseball fans of Belleville and district are urged to attend this meeting on with three or four junior teams or one senior club a real strong junior club will be presented.

One of the most important questions to be presented at this wide-open meeting will be the question of forming a Belleville Baseball Association. Senior baseball clubs in the city will come under one governing body. At present the majority of the individual clubs in the city are in favor of a governing body being elected by the citizens to guide the destinies of all baseball clubs in this city. It is therefore of vital importance to all concerned be present at Thursday evening's meeting. The gathering is of the wide open nature with all invited. The meeting has been called for 8.00 p.m. Thursday night at the Y.M.C.A.

Recreation Alleys

SINGLE RINK FOR TANKARD

Reduced Owing to Expenses Involved in Sending Two

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—A radical departure in the conditions governing play in the opening play in the Ontario Tankard has been made by the Ontario Curling Association, with the adoption of a motion which provides for the reduction of the Tankard event to single rinks this winter.

For more than 50 years double rink competition had prevailed in this premier event of the provincial curling body but owing to conditions of recent years in which numerous clubs winning Tankard group games were forced to default in the finals because of the expense involved in sending two rinks to Toronto, it was decided at yesterday's annual meeting to give the single rink idea a trial in 1934.

Thomas Rennie, veteran Toronto skip and many times winner of the event, submitted the resolution calling for the reduction and embodied in this motion a clause providing should the idea prove satisfactory that it be continued from year to year until such time as conditions improve.

The reduction now applies to district cup competitions. It was decided at the meeting to cooperate in the formation of rural affiliated with a Hamilton Curling Association, which is in the process of formation.

Dr. J. Sims, O.C., of Kitchener, was elected president. Other officers named were: first vice president, J. Lawrence, Toronto; second vice-president, R. R. H. Travers, Cobalt; secretary-treasurer, C. S. Pearcy, Toronto.

CURRENT SPORT

When the local B.C.I. juniors take the field against the Picton Collegiate at the Wilkie Memorial at the Fair Grounds they will be minus the services of their veteran quarterback, Jack Hayman. Abe Tobe, for nearly two seasons now "Ace" has directed the play of the local junior football squad and was the outstanding man in the collegiate field general. Abe was forced to retire from football owing to business connections. The Laughlin-coached aggregation will miss the brainy Abe as he is counted on to pull "a fast one" every game.

According to reports the local junior squad will be slightly crippled for Friday's game as a number of the squad sustained minor injuries during a practice scrimmage versus the senior B.C.I. eleven. We understand that the colorful "Sidelines" reporter and senior brethren during the workout at that "Hill" have been removed from snap to middle wing with Jim most of the pigskin-kicking. The younger brother, Lionel Blaker has no peer in this part of the province as a punter. Placements, his ability is positively unsurpassed in booting the pigskin over the bar. The two Ellsworth brothers are fast taking their place on the squad also.

The seniors have assumed a more championship complex following their win over the Victorians Collegiate and are now working daily like the proverbial Trojans. Coach Shiels, assisted by Jack Taylor, Argonaut star backfield ace, considers at top speed for their game with the Picton Collegiate. The Shiels are still smarting under that defat handed them by Coach Brereton at the hands of the Trenton City River and sweet revenge over the same end.

With the professional hockey ballyhoo beginning its place on the sport pages of Canada's papers it's confinds that but three small weeks separate the fans from the opening of the N.H.L. The first press-agent come-along is the versatile battler between Charlie Conacher and the Toronto Maple Leafs. Charlie, although he has been at it together adhere to a proposed 24-game set in salary. After the clouds have all cleared maybe the fans will find Charlie lined up on the same club with his brother Lionel. "The Big Train" was recently traded to the Chicago Blackhawks now. It is so secret in the hockey world reputed to be speaking of longing eyes by the Maple Leaf towards Gardiner, the Black Hawk net minder of old.

Lale last evening it was announced by the O.B.A.A. that "Babe" Shepard and Fred Waldo of Picton had been appointed as the referee and umpire respectively for the final game between Picton and Southampton, being played at Guelph. A goodly number of fans from the Bay of Quinte district boarded the special train this morning to witness the battle. Through the efforts of a few interested fans in Picton who could not attend the game in large sum of money was raised the day before yesterday assuring radio station C.F.R.B. of the necessary funds to broadcast the game. The local fans who "listened in" (in's afternoon to the Picton fans to thank for their entertainment

The big basketball meeting we have spoke of repeatedly of late will be held in the auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday evening of this week. It is of vital importance, that all basketball fans and lovers of sport make a special effort to be present at this meeting. The question of senior baseball, intermediate baseball or no baseball will all be presented.

The proper time to reorganize a ball club is in the autumn not next spring when all business has to be done in a hurry with the fatal results, that usually the most important items are left undone. We hope to see at least 200 interested baseball fans, besides the majority of the local players, on hand. The future of Belleville's baseball may come out of this open meeting.

CHAMPION HARD LUCK TEAM FOR 1933

The doubtful honor of being Canada's "hard luck" team is handed without question this year to the Toronto Argonauts, contenders for the Interprovincial Big Four title. Last season, the Argos fielded a well-trained team that possessed plenty of the best football material. But they were outlucked all season, and failed to get anywhere in the race. This year, life was so determined to win the Big Four title, they secured the services of an American coach, Lew Hayman, pal of Warren Stevens in Syracuse; they added a couple of U.S. players to the team; and, along with additional Canadian material of outstanding nature, they set out to the wars. They won their first two exhibition games, which included the Toronto city title, in decisive style. Then came the league season. Their first game was in Toronto, and their opponents Montreal. They were favored to win, and for the first half everything was progressing beautifully. Then the Argo line smeared itself all over the field, and a fumbled ball, a quick touchdown by Montreal, and Argos were beaten. But they not only lost the game. They lost the services of their best kicking half, Ab Box, who was forced out with a fractured skull. Then one of their American stars, left them, through injuries. Added to this, injuries to several other players, and they were a badly riddled team. But they fought on. They went up to Ottawa to meet the sensational Rough Rider team, and pounded Wally Masters' team to a fare-thee-well, only to lose by the toughest kind of luck. Four times they were within a yard of Ottawa's goal, but only once were they able to get it across. But the hardest blow came when Tommy Ottawa half, picked up an Argo fumble right on his own goal line and tore the length of the field for a touchdown, reversing, in a few seconds, the entire game. Argos are not through yet. They are still fighting, and so evenly matched are the teams in the Big Four that they all have a chance to take the title. Above are shown members of the Tough Luck Twelve: Top, left to right — Andy Mullen, star U.S. quarter; Art Upper, backfield; Joe Wright, famous oarsman, snap; Clark Murphy, backfield, who is doing the kicking in Box's absence; Ted Morris, hard-working wingman. Bottom rows shows: Bas McMichol, wingman; Joe Palmer, star wingman and captain. The next panel at top shows: Jimmy Keith, veteran outside wing, and below, Mike Valriote, formerly of Western, now of Providence. The Kicker is Jack Taylor, star running half, who has been forced to retire due to business. At the extreme right is Armour Munro, star backfield man, who has been out of the game so far this season through injuries.

SENSATIONAL OTTAWA TEAM MEETS MONTREAL IN SEASON'S BIG GAME

Will Be Fighting For Leadership of Interprovincial —Argos And Hamilton Each Facing Elimination —Toronto Varsity and Sarnia Almost Certain

TORONTO ARGOS ARE "HARD LUCK" TEAM

By JASON JONES
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Toronto, Oct. 18—All roads lead to Ottawa. For in Canada's capital this Saturday, the rejuvented Ottawa Roughriders take on Clary Evans's powerful team from Montreal in the season's crucial game, as far as eastern Canada football is concerned.

Both these teams in the Big Four Interprovincial have won two victories, over the same teams, Hamilton Tigers, last year's Dominion champions, and Toronto Argonauts, while they have also suffered two defeats.

Both achieved victory only after the toughest of opposition.

What a battle this is going to be. Both these teams have developed each well-versed in forward passing, each possessing outstanding halves and hard-tackling, strong wing lines.

When the sun goes down over Parliament Hill, who will lead the Big Four?

This writer whispers Ottawa. And here's why.

This year, the men in Canada's political centre are doing everything in their power to make football to By-town. They hired Lionel Conacher to coach and four or five good American players were dropped on the team, and gave them every opportunity to come through. And the team itself seems obsessed with the idea that they are going to win the dominion title.

Is Abe Elsworth they have one of the smartest halves in Canadian football, even if he is an amateur player. In Johnson and Tommy they have able assistants. Elsworth and Johnson, as a team, are as great or greater than the ill-supported Masters and Carlsen duo from Ottawa last year.

They have a fair wing line. In Dave Sprague they have a constant threat, although this year he has been no great ground gainer. In Quinn they have a tackler who brings 'em down hard and often.

Their wing line, though perhaps not as strong or well-trained as Montreal's, will be no tissue paper set up. Ellswits can outkick Huck Welch, and can run very nearly as well as Perry. Bun Abel's best bet is his ability to toss a forward pass. This Rough Rider bunch are fools for forward passing, and are very likely to wonder fascinated the same as they did Hamilton and Argonauts.

And while this three-cornered struggle goes on in Ottawa, another battle royal will take place under Hamilton's mountain. There, Toronto Argos and Hamilton Tigers will be battling against elimination. The loser will be out of contention; the winner will still have a chance to tie up or win the league title.

Hamilton will be fighting for their very existence, for the Tigers, last year's Dominion champions, and Toronto Argonauts, this year's Big Four champions

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

"Dummy", who was a powerful man, launched the single life boat from the davits and fastened it by a painter from the stern of the yacht. Then he disappeared into the cabin, came on deck again, a moment later and lowered himself in the life-boat and cast it off. The yacht with the girl lashed to the mast left him behind.

"Shall I run him down?" demanded Captain Caulfield in a matter of fact fashion, stroking his head out of the pilot house.

"No," Vern ordered. "Look! I thought it would be a trick like that. He has set the yacht on fire. Keep after it."

"Dummy" of course had been a good one. He knew well that his pursuers would not pay any attention to him as long as Irene was in the danger which he had framed up for her. With the yacht on fire beneath her it was only a matter of a short time until the flames would reach the gasoline tank and blow her to destruction. He had gambled on the possibility that they would try to save her and had doubtless figured that by the time they returned to look for him he could row ashore and disappear.

CHAPTER 40

The yacht was a rotten hulk and the wind was so strong that anything which once got started burning would be consumed in double quick time. Everybody on the tug knew that the hulk was doomed. There did not even seem to be much chance of reaching it in time to save the girl. Incidentally it was terribly dangerous to approach a craft which might blow up any minute. But he it said to the credit of the captain and crew of the tug they did not even suggest avoiding the attempt.

Without orders the engineer went to his post and crowded on a little more steam and the stormman sharpened his aim not to waste an inch of leeway. The little tug put her pounding heart into the job and plowed along through the clutching waves regardless of everything. The men on deck were drenched to the skin. They were crouched in an agony of tensity as if by leaning forward they could make more speed. The smoke began to pour out of the yacht's companionway in denser volume. There was no way of telling where the fire was. It might be anywhere in the cabin or already in the engine room. Enclosed that way it had a splendid draft and could gnaw at the vitals of the little craft undisturbed. Vern wondered if Irene knew that the vessel beneath her was on fire. He hoped that she did not. The smoke was blowing aft, and perhaps she could not see it. Perhaps the noise of the crackling flames was also screened away from her.

If she knew, what a torture it must be, what an agony of anticipation. They were only half a mile away. If something only go wrong with the engine of the yacht. But Vern hastily dismissed that idea because that would probably mean that the fire had gotten so far forward that the gasoline tank was in danger. The flames might run along the pipe line to the forward bulkhead where the fuel was stored.

They were a quarter of a mile away when the flames began to come out the companionway — orange-colored flames that leaped like unsheathed swords out of the clouds of smoke.

The sixteen-man caught fire and little licking flames climbed to the top like serpents of unlimbedness.

"Faster," Vern yelled over his shoulder to the captain.

The captain shouted: "I am afraid that's all we've got son, but I'll ask the engineer." He disappeared a minute. "One of the boys is hanging on to the safety valve and I'm shoveling in rags soaked in kerosene. We don't know any more tricks than that."

They were closing up but, oh, so slowly. The flames seemed to be leaping forward on the deck as fast as the tug was decreasing the distance between itself and the yacht.

Vern stood at the bow rail, one foot holding a dance there on the planking. They would come forward and then go back, in the crazy leaping of figurines.

It made Sir Hal Irene could feel the heat now.

Vern was praying and cursing out loud by turns. The yacht was boiling clear. They could feel the heat themselves now and the captain had to run a little to windward to keep the flames from endangering his own craft.

Now they were ahead. The helmsman came closer. Gently the bow of the tug touched the spirit of the yacht and pushed it from its course. But Vern was over the rail and on the deck of the latter before either they came together. Irene was unconscious. The recognized that the flames were really at her feet now. If her sinful hair had been hanging around her body they would have already caught fire. Vern had a knife between the ropes, beginning at the top and finishing in a row with the planks at the bottom.

The two vessels were held together by grappling hooks in the hands of the men. Vern carried Irene, who was too cramped to walk, to the rail and passed her over to Dodd.

Captain Caulfield had seized Vern himself by the collar and dragged him aboard. "Cast off," he yelled. "Port your helm. Full speed ahead."

They were about two hundred yards away from Wings when the yacht blew up.

CHAPTER 41

Irene was watching when the crash, plosion occurred and looked on sadly when the wounded "Wings" castly sought the solace of swift submersion. Her hand trembled a little on Vern's arm.

Its quite comprehended. To see any ship go down, even an enemy craft, tears something at the heart of a sailor. And to Irene, who had spent most of her youth on "Wings" the loss seemed like the burial of an old friend.

Vern rather wanted to tell her that there would be a newer and better "Wings" awaiting her some morning when she should stroll down to the river looking of their up-lindeed sedate, but he remembered in time that she did not know that he had a single check book in which one could write 'One Yacht' and soon it would really exist.

She still thought of him as a poor man who would devote his life to her but who had little else besides that to offer. On that basis he had won her trust, her love even, and he wanted to wear it as a decoration as long as he could.

The tug had turned around and was retracing its course to the point where "Dummy" had abandoned the burning yacht.

He had had time to row quite a way before they got back—almost to the shore, perhaps, with the sea running in that direction. So they stood in as close as they dared.

The captain was scanning the sea with his glasses.

"Where the devil can the son of a gun be?" Captain Caulfield demanded.

"Probably he has landed already," suggested Dodd Speed. "If he has we'll have one whoop of a time catching him but I'm in favor of it if it takes all summer."

"Look!" Irene pointed. "What's that just ahead?"

"It's too low in the water for a boat," Vern declared, following the direction of her arm with his eye. "Probably just some driftwood."

The captain had his marine glasses focused on it by this time.

"Looks to me like a submerged dinghy," he decided.

"Daily it—it's our lifeboat," Irene declared positively.

They drew alongside presently. It was the life-boat of the yacht "Wings", gunwale afloat, level with the waves.

Empty!

To Vern's mind came a memory vision of Dodd Speed sticking his finger through the rotten planking of that very boat not a week before when they had stood togetjmes on the deck of the yacht for the first time. No wonder it had gone down with "Dummy".

"He might have hung on until we came back and picked him up," Irene suggested.

"Not if he was wise," corrected Dodd. "The further he can get from us, even if it's straight down, the safer he is."

"I wonder if he swam to shore," Captain Caulfield turned the glasses in that direction and looked long. "Shall we stand in a little closer and see?"

Vern looked inquiringly at Irene.

"No. If he isn't dead already let him go."

Irene wanted to be informed about Drury's rescue and the welfare of her father. She had seen him struck by "Dummy" when he tried to oppose their progress.

Dodd Speed came forward to take a hand in the conversation. "I took the liberty of sending Jerry down to that little town on the mouth of the river, He's waiting there for you to take you back."

"Jerry?" Irene pondered. "Who is Jerry? You never spoke of him."

"Jerry is Vern's ob—"

"Wait a minute, Dodd, I want to ask Irene a couple of questions before we discuss Jerry. Will you answer them, Irene?"

"I will if I can."

"Well, first of all, do you love Vern?"

A slow blush darkened Irene's wind whipped cheeks. "Must I answer in front of everybody?"

"Just this once, yes."

"Then I do."

"And will you marry me no matter whether I've got a cent to my name or not?"

"You know that money doesn't make any difference to me."

"That's what I thought. But I wanted you to admit it before a witness before anybody else said that Jerry is your chauffeur and that I'm a pauper."

They reached the island again just before sunset.

With the curse of "Dummy" relieved and with the departure of the storm Irene's spirits had become a smiling, shy young girl instead of a hysterical jungle thing. Sunset shadows were cool and inviting instead of dark caverns of sinister torment.

When the tug whistled the four old men and Jerry came tumbling down to the wharf.

Irene jumped lightly the brother for whom she had made such a treacherous attack.

"I'm so glad," was all she could say.

They all went up to the house asking questions and giving explanations at every step.

It was not long before a delicious odor of coffee was wafted from the kitchen.

"Supper, sah, is served.". Kreba announced to Ferguson.

The others entered the dining room. Irene and Vern stayed behind a moment in the dim candle light to exchange a silent pledge of faith and devotion.

To recite the litany beginning, "I love you."

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Screaming and pawing the air Sheeta, the leopard, was dragged upward. Blake saw the shadowy form of a man hauling the beast into the trees by a rope cast about its neck the instant it had risen to leap upon him. A mighty hand reached out and grabbed the great cat by the scruff of the neck. Another hand drove a knife blade into the savage heart.

When Sheeta ceased to struggle and hung quiet, the hand released its grasp and the lifeless beast thudded to the ground beside Blake. Then the god-like figure of an almost naked white man dropped lightly to the leafy mold. "Tarzan of the Apes!" cried Blake, in surprise delight. "At last I've found you," said the Ape-Man, "not a moment too soon either." "I'll tell the world it isn't!" exclaimed Blake.

Tarzan cut Blake's bonds as he asked: "Who left you here? where's Lunch or Archer?" he added.

"That villainous Ibn Jad?" Tarzan demanded. "Yes" Tarzan nodded. "I killed him was with me," said Blake. "Then he said: north last, while he went south. "If you find her, follow till I join you. Good luck!" With that, Tarzan set out toward Nimmr.

None of the stolen princess's footprints were visible and a short distance on, the Arabs' spoor divided. Tarzan followed, while party had carried off Gulnadaz! Finally he decided Blake must follow the

"Mounties" Mark Sixtieth Anniversary, Still "Getting Their Man" in Far North

Royal Canadian Mounted Looks Back on Long Record of Romance And Heroism at Diamond Jubilee

Fort Welsh, an outpost of the mounted police in 1878.

A trumpeter.

By WILFRED EGGLESTON
Central Press Canadian Writer

Ottawa, Oct. 18—Those stalwart warriors of law and order, the mounted police, who made Canada safer for civilization, this year celebrate their diamond jubilee.

Sixty years ago the mounties came into existence. In the years that have followed, the lot of these scarlet-clad soldiers has been that of heroes. For them, no task has been too great, and no path too dangerous to tread.

Accomplishing feats which have required endless courage and unvarying endurance, they have established law in all parts of the Dominion; they have conquered the menace of banditry, and averted uprisings of Indians which might have wiped out whole sections of the nation.

"Get Their Man"

The tenacity of the force has been so celebrated in stories and plays, in movies and songs, that it has almost become a theme-worn tradition. Its perseverance has won for the mounted the slogan, known the world over, "They always get their man."

The force, now known as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was established back in 1873 following the acquisition of the western prairies by the Dominion of Canada.

There were 150 members in the original force, its ranks being filled by clerks, tradesmen, soldiers, farmers, telegraph operators, sailors, professors, gardeners, lumbermen and one bartender. All had heard the call of duty and romance and hardship, and they were destined to get plenty of all three — and especially the latter.

Hardships such as those experienced by the mounties in their famous march from Red River, Manitoba, to the Rocky Mountains, in 1874, typify the frequent experiences of these officers in the service of their king.

A Famous Expedition

Indian uprisings and massacres in Minnesota convinced authorities in Ottawa that unless a show of strength was soon made similar incidents would be developing on the Canadian side. It was decided to send two troops through American territory, permission having been granted by officials at Washington.

The story of this march has been retold as an epic of Canadian courage and endurance. Raw recruits submitted with an indomitable spirit to the dangers of the thousand-mile journey through a country smitten with drought and intense heat and a grasshopper plague, where water had been saturated with alkali and where every bush and coulee might hide enough Indians to wipe the tiny force off the map.

There were two clearly marked trails to the mountains. But the leaders of the mounted force took neither of these. A more difficult route in between the other trails was selected for a purpose. That was to impress the Indians of their courage, and by taking the harder and more dangerous way, the better the gesture.

Test of Stamina

The travelling was difficult. First, their carts began to break down, and then prairie fires, thought to have been started by enemies, handicapped them. It took three weeks to move 275 miles, with snow and intense cold drawing closer. Horses began to fall dead from sheer exhaustion, and the men often were forced to cut their blankets in half to cover their steeds at night.

But victory was in sight. The courageous gesture worked. The friendship of the Indians was won, and peace and order was established over the vast empire stretching between the Great Lakes and the Rockies.

When the influx of immigrants gradually filled the prairies, and the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan set up their own police forces, the mounties turned their attention to the last great frontier, the northern wastes, and repeated their triumphs there.

New Duties

The present force of 2,500 officers and men of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is now distributed in the way best suited to perform its many and varied duties.

It is found along the international boundary where it aids in protecting the revenue and preventing the entrance of undesirables into Canada.

It is located on or near Indian reserves to maintain good order and to aid in the enforcement of laws.

Its members occupy many lonely posts in the North West Territories and the Yukon, as well as along the Arctic and Hudson Bay coasts.

And it is found in centres of population where there is an indication of trouble arising likely to affect the peace and well-being of the country.

To-day these officers and men stand for constitutional order and government. Their command a respect that has been built up through daring feats in behalf of law and justice in the past 60 years.

CRISIS PRECIPITATED BY GERMANY'S ACTION

Chancellor Adolf Hitler and President Paul von Hindenburg hold the eyes of the world at the moment, because of Germany's startling withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference because the world refuses to grant equality to the Reich. At the same time President Hindenburg decreed the dissolution of the dormant Reichstag and proclaimed for November 12 a general parliamentary election to test the nation's opinion of the double withdrawal. He statesmen of the world are looking on the situation seriously. They see the situation precipitating the greatest crisis the world has faced since 1914. The world, and Europe particularly expects the greatest arms race that the world has ever experienced.

BELIEVED BOMB MAY HAVE KILLED SEVEN IN AIR CRASH

Chemical tests of bits of wreckage from the air liner which crashed in mysteriously near Chesterton, Ind., lead authorities to believe that a high explosive, not difficulty with the aeroplane, caused the disaster which killed seven persons. The tests were made in the Northwestern University Scientific Crime Detection Laboratory and chemists reported traces of nitro-glycerine. The fact that the aeroplane's tail was blown, a mile from the scene of the wreck adds credence to the theory that a time bomb was cached in the cargo space of the aeroplane with express packages as indicated by circle in the top picture. The lower picture shows authorities examining the wreckage of the tail. Federal men are investigating the suggestion that the bomb was placed by a murderer who wanted to kill one of the seven in the aeroplane, and believed a "perfect crime" could be effected by causing the disaster.

HITLER CLAIMS HOPE OF FRENCH ACCORD

Germany Not Preparing War, Hitler Declares; No Monarchist Object

Chancellor Says Nothing But Misery Seen on All Sides

NO COLONIAL AIM

Government Not Monarchist or Republican is Object

Berlin, Oct. 19 (AP) — Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in an interview today with a British newspaperman denied Germany was preparing for war and re-emphasized a desire to come to an understanding with France.

He also denied Germany desired to forcibly regain the colonies and sidestepped the monarchist issue. Measures for meeting the winter ahead also were discussed.

"The present German government," the Chancellor said, "works neither for a monarchy nor for a republic, but exclusively for the German people.

"Wherever we look we see nothing but privation, misery, unemployment decay and destruction. To remove all this is the mission to which we dedicated ourselves."

Concerning war, Hitler said, "The claim uttered abroad that the German people are preparing enthusiastically for war is misunderstanding, inconceivable to us of the meaning of the German revolution.

"We leaders of the Nazi movement served almost without exception in the trenches. (I would like to see the staff soldier who prepared enthusiastically for a new war.

"We are training our youth primarily for a fight against the danger of Communism. Our training in the labor camps and the system troop formations were not being equipped with military knowledge with which they might feel inspired 'some time to use.

"As to the allegation that the German armies in Sweden, Holland and elsewhere has acquired munition factories, these views are ridiculous.

Factories, Where?

"Where are these factories? Neither in Sweden nor in Holland are the Nazis in charge of the government.

"And are we to bring the munitions manufactured there by night and by fraudulent means? Surely we would France offer letters of safe conduct to our ships?

"All that is too ridiculous for words."

While characterizing the peace conference's decision concerning the Pomeranian corridor as unjust and eternal enmity between Germany and Poland, Hitler emphatically stated that he was convinced that thinking of starting a war with Poland on account of the corridor was

"We would like and hope that such national evil disease and inequitable dispassionately the questions affecting both. In that case, the future can decide whether a satisfactory solution cannot be found for both peoples."

When asked concerning his ideas for territorial expansion, Germany and whether colonies were aimed at, the Chancellor replied.

"Germany is not thinking of that stated. It is in the interests of the world not to deny the necessary possibility for existence to a great nation.

"The question of allocating the colonial regions, no matter where, will, however, not constitute a reason for war so far as we are concerned.

We are convinced that we are quite as able to administer and organize a colony as any other nation. But in this whole question we see no problem that in any way touches the world's peace, since it can be solved only by negotiations."

Hitler made this comment when asked whether he considered the League of Nations as having outlived its usefulness.

"If the League acts as recently, I do not believe in its future."

I.O.D.E. Scholarships Aid 143 Students

Toronto, Oct. 19—Kingston was scored as the meeting place for the next semi-annual conference of the provincial I.O.D.E. by a unanimous vote at the close of the two-day convention of the organization yesterday at the Royal York Hotel.

There have been 143 recipients of the War Memorial scholarships since the plan was inaugurated, Mrs. J. D. Detwiler of London reported. This year there have been 13 bursaries distributed, two to Ontario.

Rudolf Nadolny, chief of German's delegation to the General disarmament conference, was not at the conference when his country decided to withdraw from it, and so he did not hear the speech of Sir John Simon in which he outlined a plan for an eight-year transitional disarmament period that has been virtually accepted by most of the other parties to the conference. Whether or not Nadolny decided the move that took his country out of the deliberations and out of the League of Nations is not known, but it is believed that he concurs in the drastic action of his leaders, because he has stood steadfastly before the conference for complete equality for the Reich with the other nations participating in the conference.

ROYAL SCOT HERE NOV. 10

Belleville District to Visit Famous Train From World's Fair

Montreal, Que., Oct. 19. — The famous Royal Scot, express train of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, will soon return to Canada en route to Britain and will visit various towns and cities where opportunity will be given for Canadians to inspect this famous flyer as it runs over the lines of the Canadian National Railways from Chicago to Montreal. Arriving at Montreal the train will be dismantled for shipment on a steamship and returned to Britain. After its visit to Western Canada and Western United States points, the Royal Scot will proceed from Chicago, where it has attracted great attention as an exhibit at the Century of Progress exhibition, over Grand Trunk Western lines to Port Huron, where it will be handed over to Canadian National Railways. Stops on the Grand Trunk Western will be made at Battle Creek, Lansing, Detroit, Flint and Port Huron.

The famous train will reach London, Ont., on Tuesday, November 7th and will thereafter be on exhibition at the following towns and cities on the following days:

Stratford, Kitchener, Guelph, on November 8, arriving Toronto following run, Toronto, Nov. 9, the train being on display from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m.

The train will be at Scarsmuire Station, Montreal, on Sunday, November 12 and on the following day will be moved to the Railway shops for dismantling preparatory to loading on steamship. At Montreal train will be on display from 9.30 a.m. until 9 p.m.

40 MILLION GALS. LIQUOR TO SELL U. S.

Trade Channels Can Open With Repeal of 18th Amendment

GALLONAGE TAX

Coastal Smuggling Will Disappear With Repeal

Ottawa, Oct. 19—(CP)—Canada has 40,000,000 gallons of matured spirits to sell the United States on repeal of the 18th amendment. But the volume of the liquor export trade depends largely on the action Washington takes with regard to the 35-a-gallon duty.

Canadian distillers anticipate considerably increased business in any event when the United States repeals its prohibition on the importation of liquor. Representations are understood to have been made to the United States government to reduce the $5 import to 50 per cent on liquors imported for blending purposes. Should this be realized, look for a steady unloading of long-held stocks on United States.

As Canadian consumption is only 1,000,000 gallons a year, most of the stocks 40,000,000 gallons will be available for export. It is believed here that only about 4,300,000 gallons of bonded liquor in Sept. 30 last, is matured enough for withdrawal. The expectation here is that with the repeal of the prohibitory statutes by Congress, the problem of the United States in connection with coastal smuggling will disappear. Canada has been shipping of liquor stocks at St. Pierre-Miquelon. Everyone knows the abandonment of he French colony as a base for the illicit United States trade. Revision of liquor traffic and its former status of legitimate international trade.

When repeal becomes effective, exports of Canadian liquor to the United States automatically become legalized no legislative action by the States of this country is necessary for resumption of the traffic. Canada will be ready for shipment of liquor stocks at St. Pierre-Miquelon. Everyone knows the abandonment of he French colony as a base for the illicit United States trade. Revision of liquor traffic and its former status of legitimate international trade.

GIRL'S STORY HARROWING

Charge May Be Laid Against Mother For Cruelty

Montreal, Oct. 19—(CP)—A frail 13 year old girl who told Chief of Detectives Guilfoyle that she was chained to her bed every night and sometimes all day, was found and taken to St. Jerome, Que., near her home, where it was expected a charge would be laid against her mother.

The harrowing tale of beatings was told to provincial detectives, they said, and bears out the story the girl will carry throughout her life.

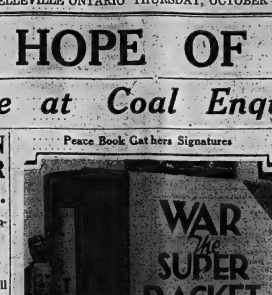
Police learned of the ill-treatment when one of the children died. All members of the family were questioned, but the child's deposition was not taken today taken back to St. Jerome by Detectives Guilfoyle and Lemieux. Detectives took with them a number of heavy chains which they said they found under the child's bed.

The beautiful Yosemite Valley in California was discovered by white men in 1851.

Judge That Married Man Years Ago Now Sentences Same Man for Murder

New York, Oct. 19 (CP)—For the murder of "Dumbie Mike" Malloy—who survived a diet of wood alcohol, poisoned oysters and chopped pins only to die with a shot in the left mouth—four men must pay with their lives.

Frank Pasqua, an undertaker, and three co-defendants turned pale when a jury found them guilty just before dawn today of murder in the first degree. They were accused of killing Malloy, a speakeasy derelict, for collect $200 insurance.



As the state told the story, Pasqua, Anthony Marino, 27, Daniel Kiriakopoulos, 25, and Joseph Murphy, 28, insured Malloy's life in their favor. Then he was fed poisoned oysters and sardines mixed with chopped pins, with wood alcohol to wash the dirt down.

That didn't kill him, so he was taken to a flat in a tough district, staged "accident." After a few days he got up from his hospital cot, walked into a speakeasy conducted by Marino, and said, "Let's have some more of that good liquor."

He finally was stupefied by wood alcohol and then killed with gas, Pasqua buried him in a paupers grave.

A few years ago Pasqua was married by Judge Joseph M. Harrell. Tomorrow the same judge will sentence him and the others to the electric chair.

Peace Book Gathers Signatures

The social futility and economic waste of another war, described as imminent unless the people of the world raise an audible protest, was emphasized by peace leaders at the unveiling of the "World's Largest Book" which is to contain the signature of the opposition. The unveiling was performed by Mr. R. Klein, prominent in the peace organization.

Drowned as Gale Upsets Canoe in Bradley Bay

George Shaw of Dominion Stores at Campbellford Victim

BRADY WITH HIM

Believe Boat Upset And Water Too Cold to Hang on

Campbellford, Oct. 19—A double drowning accident was revealed here Wednesday.

Tuesday evening about five o'clock George Shaw, manager of the Dominion Store here, and Alfred Brady an inspector in the Agricultural Department, started for a duck hunt. Their prolonged absence gave rise to fears for their safety, and at daybreak relatives started out to find them.

Their car was found parked in a lane near the hunting lodge at Bradley Bay, about seven miles south of Campbellford, and further investigation disclosed an upturned canoe caught in the weeds about a hundred yards from shore. An immediate search was started along the shore and river banks for miles, in the hope they might have reached land.

The searchers also proceeded to drag the bay, and after hours of effort the body of George Shaw was located and raised to the surface by his brother, Stanley Shaw, and Henry Locke, George Parker and Frank Earle who had earlier in the day found the other victim of the tragedy.

The position of the bodies, which were found about twenty feet apart indicated that both men had clung to the upturned canoe until forced precipitately by cold and exhaustion to release their hold.

George Shaw, who was about 35 years of age, leaves a wife and two children. Alfred Brady was about 40, an ex-service man and unmarried.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 19 — (AP) —Charles F. Feine, 45, structural steel manufacturer, was found dead in his garage early today by his wife. The motor of the car was running. Feine and a son had returned from the theatre several hours before Mrs. Feine came home. The boy went to bed but the father remained down stairs.

R. TARLINGTON BADLY HURT

Former Belleville Man Driving Car Collides With Transport

A car driven by R. Tarlington of Brockville, who formerly operated an electric bakery in Kingston, and also one in this city, collided with a Motorways Transport on Princess Street just west of Macdonell Street early Wednesday morning with the result that Mr. Tarlington is in the Kingston General Hospital in a very serious condition.

According to the information received the Motorways Transport was proceeding east on Princess Street. The street lights were still on and the pavement was wet. The car driven by Mr. Tarlington was going west. The north side of the transport, travelling 14 feet 4 inches from the south curb at the time of the collision. It is alleged that the Tarlington car swerved in front of the transport. The left front end of the transport was struck and according to the driver of the transport Mr. Ernest Lagendre of Hull, Quebec, the car line, which entered the body was damaged so that it would not operate. The transport, out of control, headed for the north side of the street, went up over the sidewalk, missing a light standard by inches, over a MacAdoo lawn 60 Princess Street, breaking down a small tree and scraping one corner of a verandah post, and crashing into a fence on the northwest side of the house. Then backing towards the rear of the building. The left front end of the transport which had been blown down and the front end of the transport embedded itself in the wreckage of the fence. The heavy motor vehicle came to a stop two feet from the Routley house.

Badly Injured

It was learned this afternoon that the extent of Tarlington's injuries could not be definitely established until later in the day. He was unconscious at times during this morning. His condition is regarded as very serious and it is believed that every injuries injured will be found when a thorough examination has been completed. It is not yet known whether there is a fracture of the base of the skull but Tarlington's jaw is fractured.

It has been figured out that taxation cost American motorists more than $2,000 a minute last year.

THIEVES RACE POLICE AND MAKE ESCAPE

Two Suspects Are Wanted For Attempted Robbery

PAIR SEE POLICE

Returning to Loot They Catch Glimpse of Police And Flee

Stoney Creek, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP) —Outrunning provincial police, service-station robbery suspects made a clear get-away from authorities in a near-by swamp early today, it is believed, they are still in hiding.

The two suspects are wanted in connection with the breaking into Kline's Service Station, Dunnville, last Tuesday, and stealing tires.

Racking the car and trailer on which the tires were loaded police were successful in locating the loot hidden away in an unused building on the property of W. Carmichael, near Tapleytown. They waited until early today when the two suspects returned to the loot. They fighted shots before they could be arrested and fled.

Gold Miners "Making it Back Where They Lost it" by Working Placer Mines

Wall Street, Oct. 19—(AP) and new ones are springing up to handle the large quantities of low grade ore, spurned to a large extent by miners after the high-grade "pay dirt".

Placer mining, revived during the depression, will continue until winter freezes out the hardiest workers.

Albert P. Moore, of Junction City, Ky., has been a placer miner mining near Copper Rock with his son, Alvin Moore, recently struck it rich in a deep vein of gold in the old Orphan Boy mine. While the district has many streaks of gold compounds, a lode of free gold is a rarity.

Coal Dealers Would Have been Better Off Out of Coal Business Entirely

Judge Landis to Quit?

White Flag Hoisted if Dealers Had to Settle in 1932

CONSIDERED MERGER

Secured All Coal From Canadian Import Co. Says One Dealer

Quebec, Oct. 19 (CP)—It would have been a good thing for the coal trade in Montreal if 50 per cent. of the dealers had abandoned the business, according to Alfred Rogers, president of the Kiss Rogers Company of Toronto and Montreal, in his evidence before Mr. Justice Willfrid Lalibert at the hotel continued today of six coal companies on charges of maintaining a combine.

He also expressed the opinion that if the majority of the dealers had been called upon to settle in 1932 they "would have to fly the white flag," and that "the way of the Christian would have been much easier."

It was also brought out in evidence the Rizas Rogers Company were considered the senior Montreal dealer end of the coal business with Parkdale Coal Company, a subsidiary of the Canadian Import Company, in December, 1928, and negotiations, in which Sir Alfred Cope manifested an "interested concealing" were carried on until April, 1932, when Mr. Rogers informed Senator Webster that, under existing conditions," the deal could not be carried through.

Joseph Beauchemin, Secretary of the Quebec Coal Dealers' Association, Limited, Quebec, local dealer, who declared he secured all his coal from the Canadian Import Company, were other Crown witnesses.

Turns Down Offer of $600,000 for Mine and Dies Penniless in North

Sudbury, Oct. 19—(CP)—Edward "Ned" Townsend is dead.

A shaggy prospector who knew Northern Ontario like a book, but who made one big mistake in selling a mine, Townsend died penniless in the Sudbury General Hospital. He refused an offer of $600,000 cash for his Golden Rose mine because he thought it was worth $1,000,000. Now friends are trying to arrange for a fitting burial.

Townsend was still hale and hearty, although 67 years old, when he set out on another prospecting trip. He left Sudbury about a year and two weeks ago. But while in camp on Lake Matagamasi he was struck with an attack of pneumonia. Dr. Herbert Turpan and Herbert Hicks, who knew Townsend's epitaph in the Golden Rose, the mine he never sold up to his experts, were hurried to his camp by dog-sled.

Martin, working in that section, rushed to his aid. They paddled down Lake Sudbury, in Wahnapitae Lake, and from there by launch and motor brought Townsend to the Sudbury hospital. He was 67 years old late, however.

When Townsend came from his own home. He was silent and strong a typical prospector. Always he sought the "big strike" which would make him wealthy. He had it while in his grasp in the Golden Rose but as in the case of so many prospectors, Provided it slipped from the last.

For while he found "color" aplenty in the Golden Rose, the mine never lived up to his expectations, and to-day is deserted.

RALLY AND SUPPER AT TABERNACLE

The annual congregational rally and supper of the Tabernacle United Church was held on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the church, more than 200 sitting down to the sumptuous repast provided. Community singing was enjoyed during the supper and a musical program under the direction of Harry Moorman with Mrs. M. F. Duff as accompanist was given at the conclusion. William Norris and Albert Evans rendered several pleasing solos, while J. O. R. McCurdy, chairman of the Finance Committee of the church, gave an address on "Our Obligations of the Church". Rev. L. B. Naylor, pastor, also gave a short address on "The Tabernacle Church Past and Present," he reviewed the early history of the congregation and the plant for future development. The evening was one of rare enjoyment.

POLICE SEARCH MISSING BOYS

The Provincial Police of this district are hoping a sharp look-out for two boys who have been reported missing recently from the Toronto area. George Johnston, 13, of Toronto, disappeared from his home early this week. He is described as being 5 foot, 2 inches tall weighing 110 pounds and wore a brown windbreaker, when last seen. Maurice J. Quinlan, 16, of York Township, also left home recently and has not been heard of for some time. Quinlan stands about 5 foot, 11 inches, and weighs 170 pounds. He is described as being of fair complexion and wore a dark blue sweater coat.

WOOD PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MART

Seasonable vegetables and apples predominated on Belleville midweek market held on Thursday, the trading was somewhat more brisk than that of Tuesday with eggs selling at 30 cents the dozen. With the advent of autumn-like weather the predominate the chief products offered however, was apples. Northern Spys, MacIntosh Reds, St. Lawrence and Snow Apples were offered at the following prices of bags Saturday. A few loads of cord wood were observed along the southside of the market square, the wood was cut into stove lengths and sold according to the size of the load.

Pay Cheques at Completion of Time

Pay cheques for workers now engaged on the various relief projects in the city will be issued the men the day after they have completed their specified number of days work, it was announced in the city hall today.

"When the men get their money, are they supposed to turn it over to the General Relief Office?" one official was asked.

"When they get it, it's theirs. They can either spend it all at once, or they can use it for food and fuel until they return to work again. At the present rate of allotting work, they will probably have to make that pay last for a month or so", it was explained. "And they needn't apply here for relief if they do spend it all at once" was the final note of warning.

ALBINO SQUIRREL SEEN ON FENCE

A fit mate for the city's platinum robin whose appearance created a furore in naturalistic circles some months ago, an albino black squirrel was seen scampering and frolicking along a fence on the highway east of the city near the County House of Refuge this morning. The black creature, said to have been white as snow, was observed by a local salesman driving out on the highway.

HAILSTONES HIT CITY SMARTLY

Winter's heralds swept down upon Belleville yesterday afternoon when the season's first frosh rain fell in the form of large hail stones. In the down town section of the city the streets became covered with the hard round hailstones that bounced inches high when striking the pavements. Tops of automobiles were literally covered with the small white balls of frozen rain that came unheralded out of the sky.

CITY AUDITOR BREAKFASTS WELL

F. G. Chamberlain, city auditor breakfasted on strawberries and cream this morning, after picking a good sized plate of the fruit today from the frost-tinged strawberry vines in the garden at his home, 237 Foster Avenue. This, however, is no unusual experience at even this late date. Several years ago he distinctly remembers picking some berries from the vines on the fourth day of November. If the winter keeps good he expects to have strawberry shoot cake for Christmas. The plants are of the ever-bearing variety.

How Y.M.C.A. is Appreciated

E. V. Illsley, manager of Belleville branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and President of the Chamber of Commerce:

"In my opinion the Young Men's Christian Association is indispensable in the life of Belleville. One has seen a good deal of the operation of such institutions throughout Canada, and in all sincerity he can say that he believes the supervision of the local association to be the sanest and most efficient he has ever come across.

"The Y. gives leadership in so many activities, especially among boys and young men, that one need not particularize these, but only repeat that he considers such work of the utmost value to the development of a clean and intelligent citizenship in our midst.

"Such work can not be allowed to suffer from lack of adequate financial support even in times of adversity."

Newton Thompson, Secretary Central Ontario Baseball League:—

"Both years I have been actively associated with the local and district baseball, with other lines of sport and with a large group of boys known as the Knot Hole Gang.

"All of the groups and many others find the "Y" a friendly place where every help and cooperation is given. Rooms for meetings, dressing and shower accommodation for visiting teams, both to our own athletes in conditioning, etc.

"When the Knot Hole Gang organized, coached and given leadership and entertainment were later divided into special interest groups and of which the "Boys' Choir" is an outstanding success. Then through the Y. M.-Y. Leagues in Baseball with over 300 boys under 20 years of age and Ex-Y hockey with nearly 300 boys in scheduled games throughout the winter the "Y" not only provides supervised recreation for our youth but develop our future leaders for the higher series. As an evidence of this we had last winter a Junior hockey team all local boys the product of the Ex-Y League. Only once in close touch with the Y.M.C.A. have any idea of the magnitude of its programme and service. It is deserving of the support of every citizen.

NO FEAR OF LOSING HOME

Mayor Answers Plaint of Citizen in Recent Issue of Paper

Mayor Geo. O. Tice, took time out from his official duties at the city hall this morning to review the case of the sixty-five year old veteran citizen who plaint regarding working conditions and the present system of relief in the city appeared in Wednesday's issue of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer.

The old resident claimed that the present system of work and seeking relief, himself and many others who had lived here all their lives, have found themselves reduced to actual poverty, with the added threat of losing their homes for back taxes. The situation was brought to light by the annual rush of outside residents to this city, where they may get on rit lief and given work after a residence of a few months. Regular residents didn't have a show, he claimed.

"Whoever made the complaint forgets that every city in Ontario is facing the same condition," stated the Mayor. They are all working under the same conditions that we are. Possibly some other city is taking care of their residents. Belleville's no solution has yet been found to help those in the present population. They come into this city, and they live here for a while. Then they apply for relief. If conditions are such that they earnestly need relief then we have no other course but to give it to them. They're entirely within the law asking for it. Until the law is changed there aren't many we can do much we can do about it."

"However, no man in this city who has a home need fear losing it on account of taxes just because he can't find work. I note that the man is sixty-five years old. He doesn't say whether he did apply for relief or not. Probably he has been living on his investigation proved that he really needed it, then he'd stand an equal chance with the rest. If the man who made that complaint will come to the city and give his name, I'll do my best to help him."

The Mayor stated that starting today unemployed of the city were being placed on the relief work as fast as possible.

Central Relief Bureau officials have been investigating that the present three month's residence rule should be changed to one year's residence. That might put a stop to some of the "floating around from city to city", commented one.

JAMES PARKHURST 13 WANTED IN OTTAWA

Alleged Passing of Worthless Cheque in Charge

On a warrant issued by the Ottawa police department, James Parkhurst of this city, was arrested by local authorities late yesterday afternoon. Detective MacDonald of Ottawa, came to the city and took the accused man back to the Capital.

Parkhurst is alleged to have issued a worthless cheque in payment for tires received there. He operated the Parkhurst Transport lines and it was for one of his trucks that he purchased the tires at an Ottawa garage.

BOY SCOUTS' APPLE DAY

Ontario has a large apple crop this year, plenty of splendid, large, luscious apples, with prospects of a surplus after the demands of other parts of the world have been met, and ships laden with the apples of all Canada set sail for all parts of the globe. Last fall the Boy Scouts of Canada materially reduced the surplus of apples by putting on "Apple Days" all over Canada—from coast to coast. "Apple Days" were held and the best Canadian fruit sold on the streets at five cents per apple. The apple drive was a great success and is being repeated this fall. Saturday will be "Apple Day" in Belleville and the Boy Scouts will offer fine, big, rosy-cheeked Ontario apples, the pick of the crop, at a nickle each. The Scouts say "We do our part, will you do yours?"

Airport Project Camp Hold Very Successful Concert

Gala Event at Airport Near Trenton on Wednesday Evening

LOCAL TALENT

(By A. H. Byrne)

That the Airport Project Camp at Trenton is one of the best conducted camps in the Dominion was again evidenced on Wednesday evening when, under the able direction of Assistant Engineer Stark and his co-workers, an unusually stirring programme was contributed by various artists from Belleville and other points as well as by members of the personnel of the camp. The programme consisted of selections by the Argyll Light Infantry Pipe Band under the leadership of Pipe Major Johnstone; songs by Mr. R. E. Richardson, Mr. J. Wibberley, Mr. H. Washington, Mr. J. R. Ray, Mr. J. Sandler; a piano and saxaphone duet by Messrs. Hackett and Skuce; instrumental, consisting of banjos, harmonicas and guitar, by Messrs. Barley, Crawford, Benson, Craig and Truin; Highland dances by Mrs. Lennox (nee Mae Johnstone); piano selection by Mr. E. B. Hackett. The concert concluded by heartily singing the National Anthem.

Before concluding Wing Commander Breadner thanked those who had so kindly lent their aid and contributed to this concert and his remarks were greeted with hearty applause by the large audience present. Future concerts and minstrel shows are being prepared. These events should be, and undoubtedly will be, largely attended by residents of Belleville and surrounding district. After the concert the entertainers were furnished with a supper of sandwiches, cake and coffee, in the cook house, arranged for by Mr. Alex. R. Foster, the popular chef.

It is hoped that the recent request for books for the Camp Library will be responded to. Long winter evenings are ahead of the several hundred fellows at the camp and good books will be eagerly read by them. A certain writer has declared that he who reads wisely will develop desirable characteristics that will contribute to the well-being of the reader. Good literature, like good food, is digested by the mentality of individuals. Bad literature is just like so much rotten food taken into the system, leaving ill effects on the minds of all who consume such stuff.

The Unity School of Christianity of Kansas City has very kindly offered to donate free subscriptions of their various publications to the camp, and Canadian publishers might well, if they have not already done so, volunteer to help cheer up these men by sending their publications to the Camp Recreation Room.

QUEENSBORO NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Sager and Jennie, Mrs. Bruce Leslie, and Mrs. Nancy Brook motored to Ottawa on Sunday for the day.

Jennie Sager is spending a month in Ottawa at the home of her uncle, Mr. H. Sager.

The Ladies' Aid held a quilting at the home of Mrs. M. Dyer on Thursday last.

The W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. B. Leslie on Wednesday of last week.

The friends of Mrs. (Rev.) Cafley were glad to see her out to Sunday school again on Sunday, Mrs. Cafley has been confined to her bed for two weeks, the result of a fall.

On Thursday, October 5, the young people of Queensboro met at the church for the purpose of organizing a Young People's Society. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Baxter; vice-president, Mrs. G. Tanner; secretary, Albert Sager; treasurer, Roy Rollins; conveners of committees, Christian and fellowship, Mrs. Cafley; missionary, Nellie Phillips; literary and social, Miss Merrifield; citizenship, Earl Sager. The meeting was closed by singing a hymn followed by prayer by Mr. Cafley.

The Young People's Society of Queensboro held their first meeting in the church on Tuesday evening, October 10, with an attendance of thirty-five. The president, Miss Baxter, was in charge. The meeting was opened by hymn 94 followed with prayer by Mr. Cafley. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Hymn 89 was sung by Miss Baxter. The Scripture Lesson was read by Miss Baxter. Miss Nellie Phillips, missionary convener, then took charge of the meeting and gave the topic. Miss Marion Love gave a reading, "How Missions Are Blessing the World." A duet was rendered by Misses Marion Alexander and Joan Cafley. A poem was also read by Miss Marjorie Delves. Hymn 238 was sung and the meeting was dismissed by Mr. Cafley.

MITE OF BOY USED AS TOOL

Judge Has to Place Wee Lad on Platform to See Him

London, Oct.-19—A wee mite of a boy, so small Judge Quinnin Warne had to get him up on the platform to see him, admitted stealing some chocolate bars and robbery of a bake-shop till, in juvenile court. He said he was seven.

The court did some questioning, and had two other older lads, whom the boy had mentioned, attend.

It was eventually found that the pint-size youngster was merely the tool for the others, who took him places on the handle-bars of a bicycle, and sent him in to do the robbing.

The lad was caught recently by the proprietress of the shop, who entered the place and saw the stranger sight of a pair of feet dangling over one edge of the counter and a hand reaching from behind a post of the store unit. One hand clutched a $2. bill while a $1 bill was in the other hand. That ended the lad's criminal career.

Yesterday with honest appeal the boy admitted also stealing the chocolate bars.

"What did you do with them?" asked the judge.

"I ate some of them."

"What did you do with the rest?"

The boy hung his head a bit, and finally pointed to the other boys. He said he gave them some. After some questioning, it was learned that the other boys sent him in to do the stealing. It was also brought out that the others sent him in to get the money.

The chief probation officer was asked to investigate certain actions of the other two, while the judge gave the seven-year-old some fatherly advice and let him go.

He and some other lads, however, were asked to earn and pay back $1.75 each for a dozen nice windows they had broken in recent months.

Lumbago Made a Cripple of Him

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Soon Made Him Well Again

Toronto Man Banished Lumbago and Sciatica.

Toronto, Oct. 19 (Special)—"Twelve months ago I was crippled from an attack of Lumbago and Sciatica," writes Mr. R. Allan, 30 Glebemount Avenue. "It was agony to get around to work. I took six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am glad to say I have not had a twinge of pain for a year. Dodd's Kidney Pills increase in quantity daily. That is not a matter of chance nor is it because of promises they make, but because of the good they do.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have been on the market for half a century. They have been used with marvellous success by thousands of people suffering from various forms of Kidney trouble such as backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Bladder Trouble.

Ask your friends and neighbours about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

FAST UNLOADING OF VESSEL AT NAPANEE

Napanee, Oct. 19—An event that created a great deal of interest was the arrival in the Canada Steamship Lines boat, Coalhaven, at the Dominion Canal this week, with a cargo of coal for Wilfred A. Wilson of Napanee. This boat is one of the largest coal boats on the Great Lakes and is equipped with a self unloader consisting of a 100-foot boom c., which runs an endless belt con eyor carrying fire to six tons of coke per minute. The boat has a capacity of 7,500 tons of coke and a cargo of 350 tons which was left at Deseronto for Wilson & Co.'s coal yard in Napanee was unloaded in one hour's time.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK NELSON VICKERS

After a short illness, Frederick NelsonVickers, died in the Belleville General Hospital late Wednesday night. Freddy was born in this city ten years ago being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick N. Vickers, 46 North Front Street and was a popular young boy with his schoolmates being a pupil of King George School and attending Sapstet Methodist Sunday School. He was a bright little fellow and had progressed to the junior third book in his studies. Left to mourn his loss are the parents, one brother, Allan Vickers and four sisters, a half brother Robert Turner aged 13.

AARON HARBAND

Deseronto, Oct. 19. — In the passing of Aaron Harband the town of Deseronto has lost one of its best known and highly respected citizens and St. Mark's Anglican Church has lost a prominent member.

His death, due to pneumonia after four weeks illness, came as a shock to the community, whose sympathy is extended to Mrs. Harband in her great loss, Mr. Harband was born in Coventry England, and was 72 years of age. He first made his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harband of North Fredericksburg. Later he came to Deseronto and accepted a position with the Rathbun Co., and was with them many years. After this firm ceased operations, Mr. Harband accepted a position with the Canada Cement Co., at Point Anne, where he remained thirteen years.

Mrs. Harband, before her marriage, was Miss Anna Howell. Mr. Howell was a book-keeper for the Rathbun Co. Besides his widow two cousins, Miss Harband and Mrs. Wm. Rogers; a nephew, Wm. Hands also survive.

Fine Displays of Ontario Farm Products by Local Merchants

Judging Completed by Judges Early Today

Various stores in the city are this week making special displays of Ontario grown produce in connection with the "Ontario Farm Products Week."

A competition for the best arranged and most attractive window display by local merchants had been sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and supervised by Mr. Joseph Wilson of Stirling, its local district representative. Last year a like competition was held and many store windows of Belleville were filled with locally grown products of the gardens and farms. Divided in two classes, one for awards in fruit, vegetable and dairy products, and the other for meats and poultry, the growers and butchers of the city have co-operated in bringing before the citizens' attention what excellent products Ontario can produce.

Judging of the displays took place this (Thursday) morning. Mr. W. S. Fraser or Picton, who has had a wide range of experience in knowledge of vegetables and especially to buyers, with Mr. Wilson and Mr. A. L. Johnson of this city, were judges and their awards were made only after the most careful consideration and selection.

In the meat and poultry display division first award went to J. Livesey, of Bridge Street west, with Clark and Miles second, and W. E. Clark, third.

Harry G. Green won first prize in his display of vegetables, the Ideal Stores second and the 3-week old store of Harry A. Allen, 94 Dundas Street east, third, with Foster Wallbridge and Clark in fourth place.

Outstandingly of merit were the displays in the fancy produce class. There the two fine show windows are a worthy example of what can be done in a classified display to bring home to the minds of local buyers the excellence of Ontario products. In the south window is a beautiful display of fruits and vegetables, the latter the product of the gardens of Fred Mossington of Thurlow. And in the north window is a most attractive display of cut meats, the selection of excellently dressed, five-pound chickens coming from the farm of Jim Robinson of Ameliasburg. Mr. Green was permitted to make entry for both of these displays, but as attractive was his meat window, the judges made him a special award.

All displays were worthy of commendation by the judges, and any competitor had shown artistic ability in striving to co-operate with the Ontario Dept. of Agriculture in bringing before the public the excellence of the Province's agricultural resources.

To Mr. Joseph Wilson of Stirling and the ready co-operation he has received from Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, goes the credit of staging this week's display, and those bringing to public notice what not only Ontario, but the City of Quinte district can furnish in such excellent qualities for the larders of the local housewives.

CANADA GEESE FLYING HIGH

Old Timers Claim This a Sign of Cold Winter

Trenton, Oct. 19 (Special) — Yesterday afternoon farmers west of Trenton saw a large flock of wild geese on their southward trip. The flock, consisting of nearly one hundred birds, were flying very high and their constant honking could be heard for miles.

Old timers claim this is a sign of cold weather when the flock fly high, while others claim warm weather can be assured after thunder and lightning, such as we had yesterday, so late in the fall.

With signs so conflicting we shall just have to wait and see the results.

When Resignation Asked Not Received Council Acts

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 19—(CP) —Dr. T. W. H. Young, medical officer of health here for the past 13 years, has been removed from office by the city council.

Dr. Young had been given one week in which to hand in his resignation. However, he was not received council passed a by-law last night terminating him. The order will not take effect until approved by Hon. Dr. Robt. M. Hobb, Ontario Minister of Health.

In a letter to council, Dr. Young intimated he did not intend to resign and claimed the council owed him $6,314 in back salary as city physician. He urged his salary be increased $1,000 a year.

FEW COCKTAILS NOT WAY TO HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Cleveland, Oct. 19.— (AP)— A few cocktails now and then won't raise your blood pressure they may help it, the Post-Graduate Medical Association was told today by Dr. George A. Brown of the University of Minnesota Graduate School of Medicine, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

"If the people of the United States," he said, "learned to drink on a 200-centipoise basis as the Europeans do and would sip their wine, beer and highballs, I believe that it would reduce the irritability of the sympathetic nervous system, slow the tempo of the heart and probably reduce the incidence of high blood pressure."

BULLET HITS MINER'S CHEST

Protest Demonstration at Springfield Held at a Time

Springfield, O., Oct. 19—Melville Staples, 31, of Taylorville, was fatally shot through the chest a block from the headquarters of the Progressive Union today. The assailant escaped.

Staples and other Taylorville Progressives had been "striking" for union recognition for more than a year. At the time of the shooting several thousand miners were pouring into Springfield for a protest demonstration.

State highway and Springfield police guarded the doors to the State House and delegation after delegation of miners and their wives were turned away.

BAY ROUTE TO THE SEA

That Belleville is shortly to become a link in sea-borne trade is more than a hope, say the exponents of the undertaking known as "The-Bay-of-Quinte-Route-to-the-Sea," it is a certainty, they state. Their grounds for this confidence is, first of all, that the government dock at Belleville and the harbor are magnificent points from which to launch this undertaking. The dock is equipped with C.N.R. and C.P.R. rails for the transfer of cargoes in and out of this port.

When the plan first came under notice, through a group of prominent citizens, we had no hesitation in endorsing it. The Mail and Empire and the Globe have contributed editorially. Another feature of the campaign took the form of many business men appearing in their advertising to boost the cause. Lindsay and Campbellford councils have endorsed this route as the shortest and quickest for their traffic.

British interests closely connected with a transatlantic service writing to Belleville friends, say that ocean ships will be available at the opening of navigation next year and express hopes that the dredging will be completed early.

The government of the United States has authorized an expenditure of seventy million dollars for improving navigation.

That the Liberals in office at Ottawa have spent millions between Montreal and Quebec improving navigation.

Toronto Harbor Board has had a fine vision of water transportation in their colossal development.

We realize Belleville and the Bay of Quinte, when the Narrows are dredged, rivalling the good old grain days but this time with ocean ships.

A LONELY PLACE

The leafless trees, the untidy stack,
Last rainy summer raised in haste,
Watch the sky turn from fair to black
And watch the river fill and waste.

But never a footstep comes to trouble
The nooks among the new-sown corn
Or pigeons rising from late stubble
And flashing lighter as they turn.

Or if a footstep comes, 'tis mine,
Sharp on the road or soft on grass;
Silence prides along my line
And shuns behind me as I pass.

—Edward Shanks in "Poems, 1910-1932."

BLUENOSE, famous Nova Scotian fishing schooner, champion of the fishing fleets, is on her way back from the Century of Progress Exhibition at Chicago, where the craft was one of the big attractions. The Bluenose found adventure and thrills on inland waters, different, however, from the Yo- Heave! Ho! of the ocean wave. Inland adventures of the Bluenose included getting mired in mud, a visit entered by a Yankee millionaire who chartered the schooner for a cruise about the lakes, with a party of guests. The cruise was put off at the last minute and the party was put ashore after a disagreement between the captain of the ship and the captain of the cruise, the captain of his ship naturally winning. It is alleged there was considerable booze mixed up in the dispute—but whatever the outcome, if any, the Lunenburg lassies and lads of the captain are on the way home to Nova Scotia and the fishing banks, richer, perhaps and wiser.

SHOW FAIRS USED TO BE POPULAR before they got frills on and were called exhibitions. Robert L. Sneddon, local author, who spoke in Belleville Monday evening, told a story of a "Show Fair" held in Markham when he was a boy. His mother was invited to act as judge of something or other, but the "Show Fair" officials did not send her a railway ticket to the place where the "Show Fair" was being held. There was no money in the house, for money was scarce in the West those days, business being conducted mostly on a barter basis, trade in your eggs, butter and fowl for groceries. Neighbors were canvassed but there was no money anywhere. Finally the hired man remembered that his brother on a farm at some distance away had a five-dollar bill, so he was sent to borrow the money and the same day with the five-dollar bill which was about all the money there was in circulation in that particularly locality at that time of the year, the mother knew that the money they would gladly have given it, so close was the feeling of neighborliness in those days and the supreme confidence and trust in each other.

HIASCHUCKOLUK, A CAMEL-FACED SEA SERPENT said to have made its shores of British Columbia, has been cruelly slandered, some pseudo-scientist having declared that he is but an oversized Conger eel. Sea Serpents are good for the tourist trade and seaside resort business, but Conger eels are a drug on the market as far as attraction goes. So let's hope old camel-face Hiaschuckoluk is vindicated and the scientists confounded.

"Cheer up, old boy," advised the married man. "You know 'tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."

"Yes," agreed the rejected suitor, jingling a bunch of keys in his pocket, "better for the florist, the confectionery, the dressmaker, the restaurant waiter, the taxicab man, the theatrical magnate and the jeweler."

Jane gave notice. She was going to get married in a week's time, she said.

"But it's so sudden," gasped her mistress. "Of course I'm pleased that you are going to settle down, but I wish you could wait until I am suited with another maid."

Jane fidgeted with her apron. "Well, mum," replied, "I'm sure I'd be willing enough, but I don't feel as 'ow I know Joe well enough to ask 'im to put it orf!"

"That last thing you sent in was good," said the editor. "We all enjoyed reading it very much."

"Well, in that case," said the youthful poet, "I take back what I said in the letter I wrote you yesterday about my determination never to send you any of my work again."

The editor slowly shook his head. "Don't do that," he murmured; "why, that letter is what I referred to!"

PESSIMISM TO BE FOUGHT WITH CHEER

Healthy Minds Invariably Radiate Optimism —And Cheer

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Now is the time when pessimism must be routed wherever it is to be found. With the entire country determined to overcome the stagnation that has throttled business and prosperity everybody, old and young, must do his or her bit in the big push that is to get us all over the top.

Most of our depression difficulties are in our minds anyway. Once we regain the hopeful psychological viewpoint we used to possess—and illustrate—prosperity will be easy.

To be sure, calamity barriers have always existed and no matter what good things may be in store for us for the future, such individuals will continue to sing their hymn of hate in the morning offices on the street corners and even in the theatres.

Many of these men and women have a pessimistic attitude that is revange against the world—or at least they think they have. Others are neurotic and actually feel out of tune with their environment no matter what it may happen. And some, of course, just enjoy complaining; they are like that, poor souls.

Minds that are healthy invariably radiate optimism instead of pessimism.

In fact, the nature of man is to be optimistic. Were such not the case he would eliminate hope from the human being's emotional make-up and thereby cease to be human; he would merely exist like a vegetable.

We all have our knocks and disappointments every so often; it seems as though we simply cannot go on any longer. Yet have you not, yourself, experienced that at the very moment you are "way down in the depths" something within you stirs and bids you fight on!

That is hope; that is optimism. It can be so constantly depended upon to come to our aid in times of great stress and strain that hope may rightly be claimed as an instinct, at least as an important element of the basic urge of self-preservation.

In the language of the printing; we may be knocked down but we rarely take any count.

After all, it isn't reality that matters as much as the way we look at reality.

Pirandello, the famous Italian playwright, made this unique psychological axiom the central theme of all his plays and novels. According to this author we are what we think we are! And he is correct.

Happiness and its opposite, depression, are matters of state of mind. Even when the facts of life are adverse and dark there is still possible for everyone to give them facts a new light in order to appraise them from another angle so to speak, and in such hopefulness nudges its way into our thoughts and we again face the morrow in a brighter mood.

Robert Louis Stevenson once said: "To travel hopefully is a better thing to find than a five-dollar bill." That is true. Hope become a sloan iness days to paste inside our hats.

For right now pessimism must be fought with optimism. Otherwise there is danger lest we sink even deeper into the "Slough of Despond" from which we will be harder to extricate ourselves than it is from the difficulties in which we now find ourselves.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Persons who habitually drink orange juice, lemonade, grape juice and the like are apt to tire of the taste. Especially is this true of the sick and convalescent. In fact, who require fresh fruit juices daily even more than the healthy folks. Dislike because of sameness may readily be overcome by mixing one or more different juices together as, for instance, adding pineapple to an orangeade.

IN COUNTRY CAUSE HARM

Paris, Oct. 13 (CP)—The "Streets of Paris" exhibit in the Bois de Vincennes Pair—which was criticized in the French Press as misrepresenting France—officially was brought to the government's attention today by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

The Rev. Edmund Mueller, a Protestant pastor and acting chairman during Edouard Herriot's illness, was instructed to confer with government officials on "the serious harm thus caused to our country."

The committee expressed "indignant regret" that the organizers of the exposition had not submitted the exhibit for approval of French representatives "still possessed of some of our country, its tastes and public spirit."

Some newspapers deplored the "booths where for a dime can be seen undressed women in low surroundings," criticizing the government's failure to send an official

The work on the new government building is now fairly completion and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by the end of this month. Work on the building was commenced in November, 1881. Messrs. Northcott and Alford are the contractors. Mr. John Bell has had the work of putting up the interior of the post office and has the floors laid. Cost of fitting up the revenue and customs departments. The total cost of the ground and building will be about $50,000.

The wagon and carriage shops have suspended operations on account of the dull times, however are now giving their attention to the delight work and they expect a good season with plenty of snow this year and are conducting business accordingly.

Be on the watch for bogus twenty-five cent pieces, there are some in circulation in the city.

MAIN STREET
Ramblings.....

A well known resident who is generally up and away with his trusty gun to the marshes there for duck shooting at the rear of the solid citizens have turned over for their second season hasn't been having much luck lately. He says the fall ducks haven't put in their appearance yet, and won't for some time. It's pretty tough sitting out there in the cold, damp evenings with only a few decoys for company. He's tough about getting for a while until shooting really starts.

But now he's back at it again. Every day he comes home to find that some of the others have had better luck than he when that morning. Somebody had given the wife a pair of nice fat ducks and a goose. The wife didn't just know who it was that left them. One of the boys she guessed. She had quite a time cooking them. Two or three times she had to open all the windows. You could smell them all over the house. But they were finally done to a turn and served for dinner that night. It didn't turn out to be much fun eating them, though. They tasted like stewed bark or sawdust generally. Only boot heels couldn't have been so fishy. After a few bites they threw them out in the yard, but even the dog wouldn't go near them. Pretty bad. A friend or his told him they'd probably been shot on fish ducks. Some of the boys, after hearing that he has been hunting for a long time, had a lot of fun each year making presents of them to other friends.

What with rains in the city burning a lot more wood these days than they used to, there has been a strong demand for well fashioned woodbox. Naturally the amount of after school work that has been done by little boys has been chopped down considerably, and there's been a lot of grousing about the scarcity of element about it. Lately they have been reading their heads to find some way of getting out of this chore or filling the old wood-box up. Up on the east hill one little lad seems to be getting around it all right. He was plainly sold by way he had asked Tom Sawyer's permit for whitewashing fences, but it didn't seem to fit in with the wood-box problem. Seated on the wood pile the other day he gave the matter considerable thought. Pete, the family collie, sat nearby with an expression that plainly said he was ready to help. The solution was at hand. Each afternoon now Roy puts Pete on the head and says: "Let's go get the wood." Roy sits out the woodpile and places the sticks in Pete's mouth. Pete trots back and forth from the pile to the side keeping his tail foolishly until the woodbox is full. Roy is thinking of charging all the other jealous kids of the neighborhood admission before they can come in and see the performance. Roy's father suspects that his boy is going to be an amateur lawyer when he gets big enough to snap a whip.

"The women" smiled the clerk in a downtown news store as he wrapped up a big magazine and slid it across the glass-topped counter in the direction of a seedy, genteel feminine customer, "have a new weapon. While the men have used the hair pin entirely, being less adaptable for the many uses to which that article has been put since the days of Lady Godiva, the safety razor blade has become a feminine necessity. A woman these days doesn't use scissors or a knife for ripping. The safety razor blade does it quicker. A spot of paint in left on the wall or a window pane by the painter; again the razor blade is pressed into service. Sir, you'd be surprised at the number of packages of blades I sell a week to the women."

Southampton Fishermen Wins Intermediate B Championship Defeating Picton by 8-2

Deciding Game Played in Guelph in Wretched Weather

PHILLIPS BATTED OUT

Goldsmith Aided By Heavy Hitting of Team Mates

Guelph, Oct. 19. — Southampton Fishermen got behind "Letty" Goldsmith with their bats and made it easy for the great southpaw from Bruce County, to whip Picton 8-2 and retain the Intermediate "B" baseball championship of Ontario. It was the third and deciding game of the final series.

Goldsmith, who pitched no-hit, no-run, one-hit and lots of shutout games to lift the Fishermen to the finals for the second time in two years, was never called on to bear down as his mates batted Picton pitching for two runs in the first innings and kept accumulating tallies as they went along.

"Warpy" Phillips, youthful Picton southpaw who clipped the Fish game 1-0 when Goldsmith turned in a one-hit performance, and was beaten second 2-0, fell the full force of the Southampton attack. He was taken from the mound during a three-run rally in the sixth that climaxed the champions' scoring.

Goldsmith Hurls Well.

When he went to work on the eastern team, Goldsmith was invincible. He was master of the situation, scattered hits and his warm-weather control missed the wet heat in the chilly breeze. But when he had to slip them past the opposition, Goldy did it. He struck out 11. In addition he cracked a sharp single in the fourth that drove a run in.

The Fishermen used two hits and an error to score their first in the first inning, added another in the fourth on Goldsmith's single in the second and 5-0 in the fifth. With the bases full Phillips forced in a run by hitting Indoe and another came in on an infield out. The end was not far away for the Picton lefty.

In the sixth, with two out, Schilling singled and Goldsmith followed on Akenhead's hit to right. Warpy was taken out and Church faced the Southampton batters. Aiken stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Wain walked and he and Aiken scored on Indoe's triple to the centre field fence.

From the Hockey Training Camps

(By the Canadian Press)

Bill Beveridge, youthful puck-stopper, who jumped into a regular job in the middle of last season when the veteran Alec Connell was forced by illness to take a rest, has the Ottawa nets to himself this season. Connell, however, will be "on call" in case of emergency.

As the Senator squad rounded into shape at Ottawa and fans would-cred why Connell had not put in an appearance, the Senator management announced yesterday that the goal tender had proposed an arrangement whereby he would not take part in any games this season, but would be "glad to step into the breach should the Senator regular goalie be unable to play.

The arrangement was satisfactory with both sides. With the exception of the 1931-32 season, when Ottawa was not represented in the National Hockey League, Connell's professional career started and ended in a Senator uniform. He played with Detroit in 1931-32.

Under Coach George Boucher, Ottawa candidates were put through two stiff workouts yesterday. Century Welland, brilliant little centre player, was the only absentee at both. He was teamed with Frank Finnigan and Alex Smith, who will soon become the Senator No. 1 forward line.

One of the most promising youngsters developed in Winnipeg in recent years, lanky Norman Yellowlees, is on his way to Quebec to join Boston Bruins. Yellowlees played with Elmwood Millionaires when they won the Memorial Cup in 1931 and with the Winnipeg Monarch team that was runner-up in 1932 junior finals by Sudbury Wolves.

Art Ross hopes to be able to find a brand new front line from his newcomers that include Yellowlees, a centre, Bob Gracie and Johnny Sheppard. The Boston coach hasn't found anyone yet to fill the shoes of Defenceman Owen Crowe, the Harvard nine-letter man, who has retired.

Owen, one of the first United States-bred hockeyists to make the grade in the N.H.L., played in the last two Bruin campaigns under a contract that called for him to perform only in home games. He played on the road, however, when Ross needed him badly and was a mainstay in the gruelling five game league title series last spring against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Will Cude, who formerly had the unique distinction of being employed by the National League as spare goalie for any team that might require his services in case of injury to a regular net-minder, has been purchased by Canadiens from Philadelphia Arrows of the Canadian-American League. Leo Dandurand announced he would be loaned to Syracuse of the International league.

Dandurand, like most other managers at this stage, expects no consistent difficulties. The Maritimer, Morenz, Gagnon, Raymond, Leduc and the newly-acquired Lorne Chabot have signed. Joliat will sign "30 seconds after I see him," Dandurand said, that would be this week-end when the Canadiens' head visits Kingston training camp of the club.

Dave Trottier and Teddy Graham were the only Maroons absent from the Montreal team's first workout yesterday. It will be Saturday before the return of Joe Lamb is expected and both Trottier and Graham are expected to arrive before then.

CURRENT SPORT

Apparently it wasn't "Warpy" Phillips' day, and the cause was just for Picton. From the outset, when Hector "Letty" Goldsmith's team mates gave him a two run lead in the first innings only to have the "Fishermen" surmount 3 runs to Picton's 2 at Guelph yesterday.

Foolish base running and wildness afield spelled defeat for the Hanover-managed crew. Whether it was the nefarious weather conditions or the hostile crowd we'll never know but, Phillips developed a wilder streak than he ever put before known to cut loose with. When his control was gone, so was the ball game.

Goldsmith, despite the fact that he was pitched for plenty of hits managed to bear down in the pinches and once again demonstrated his prowess on the mound. According to pros and radio reports the belief lean was on the day's play. What more is there to say?

Thanks to the business and professional men of Prince Edward County the baseball fans in Oshawa were able to listen in on a rousing account of the game given impartially by Jack Wright of radio station C.F.R.B. fame. Over fifteen Oshawa baseball fans took advantage of the special radio set, and the Picton team did their level best, the lower of strength it enjoyed at previous games.

One of the features of the game was the fine way in which Ken Church carried out the relief pitching duties after Phillips' star was shortlived in the sixth. The Fishermen's only real hit off the Picton ace was a single in the fifth. Church allowed but 4 to 1st, fooled baseball, without a single error, and struck out 4 in his relief. The weather conditions were decidedly favorable for ball play. After all it is said and done it is apparent that the stuck was the best team in the series after the calibre of Phillips, who was pitching his first game since he joined the company. Maybe next season will have a different tale to tell, who knows?

Defeated but in no way disgraced is the lot of the Picton baseball crew. They came from nowhere to defeat the champions twice in three games and win the provincial title. As Andrew B. Brown would say, "that's baseball, sonny." To show their appreciation of their crew's showing hang up by their team the citizens of Picton are undecided their team a monster banquet Friday night Oct. 27 at which many baseball notables will be present.

All of which reminds us of Belleville's big baseball conclave slated for this evening, when the fabric of baseball in this city will be thoroughly discussed at the Y.M.C.A. The gathering is purely informative and all are invited to attend and voice their opinions on the baseball situation before the meeting. All are welcomed, and none will be refused admission, so climb aboard the bean wagon and let's hear your personal views at the "Y" this evening.

Tomorrow the B.C.L. senior football squad journey to Lindsay where they expect to reverse the score of two weeks ago on the Bronco-coached crew from along the Scugog. A win for the Shiels-coached crew will elevate them into a fine position in the league standing, while a loss will practically eliminate them. Most of the squad are in ship-shape condition and ready for the fray.

Incidentally we understand that the local Kiwanis Club are contemplating a series of boxing bouts to be staged in the Belleville Arena this fall. The boys in "service club" are planning on bringing in some real high calibre mit artists together for a bout some time before the end of the month. More authentic information will be handed down on the subject as soon as possible.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby—the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel —drives out the thick impure blood —shrinks and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when HEM-ROID invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles no matter how stubborn the case?

Queens May Hold Deciding Hand in Intercollegiate Loop

Game With Varsity in Toronto May Upset Dope

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—A Queen's team that showed great promise before the season opened and still, for some reason, is regarded as the most dangerous opposition University of Toronto had to face in the Intercollegiate Football Union, comes to Toronto Saturday for a contest, that will decide the real strength of the league.

If you accept at face value the closeness of the score when Queen's held Ottawa Rough-riders to a 9-8 count in a pre-schedule game, then the Kingston eleven would rate about as high as Argos and Hamilton Tigers. But you have to count to beating they took from Western and the half-line 2-2 victory they were lucky to get over McGill.

The result is Queen's is the unknown quantity. Reeve's outfit, capable of giving Varsity a battle when the wind lines and well outfitted in kicking with Jim Davis, may come through clean Saturday. A victory over the Blues would leave the team tied for the lead. Western could make it a three-cornered affair in that event by beating Sir Gill at Montreal.

A decisive triumph for Varsity over Queen's would leave the intercollegiate in a one-sided state similar to the O.R.F.U. with its Sarnia Imperials.

Among Jack Sinclair retains his health, Varsity will be heavy favorites to romp through the stiff game schedule without defeat. For that matter they lost once game last season after long John was cold out of action with a dislocated shoulder.

Johnny Copp and Harold Arnup, Sinclair's backfield partners have greatly improved, perhaps sufficiently so to draw on if the former ast player in college ranks is injured.

Toronto football fans have a three-way choice Saturday as Colonel Conacher puts the professional game to the first real test. On Thanksgiving Day a crowd of more than 10,000 watched the big train's Rough Riders check plays Rochester Alpeakos. An O.R.F.U. game here on the same day should draw 2,500.

There will be the Queen's-Varsity feature and a straight-for-title between Balmy Beach and St. Michael's College to "take away your customer's breath" when they play Saturday as "Doggie" pits his team against Frankie Wall's outfit at Maple Leaf Stadium.

THREE DIVIDED HEAT RECORD IS BROKEN

Half Mile "Stampede" Turn It On At Starbridge.

Sturbridge, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP)— The world's three-heat race record for divided heats, and the New England half-mile track record had been shattered today as the result of a thrilling race here yesterday in which Chief Medoak, driven by Charles Mallory won the first and second miles in 2.03½ and 2.02 with the Grand Circuit stallion Cold Cash winning the third heat in 2.05¼.

The New England pacing record for a half mile track was 2.02¾ made by the great stallion Single G at Springfield. Single G holds the world's three heat race over a half mile track of 2.06, 2.01¾ and 2.01 made in 1919.

DEAD HEAT AT WOOLER FAIR

Racing Formful and Best Seen at Fair in Years

Supashing new in racing was witnessed by harness racing in this district, when two horses, starting in the green race at Wooler Fair on Wednesday raced to a dead heat and an extra heat was required before the winner was decided. The horses passed under the wire exactly together and the judges in their wisdom decided on a dead heat. The racing was quite formful and the best seen at this fall fair in many years. The attendance was not as large as in other years but the orchards were up to the usual high standard. Dominion Grattan, who won second money in the futurity at Toronto was much the best in the fast class with five heats being required to decide the 2.35 class, the Nadine horse, Peter K. W. Winnipeg Strengthened by U. S. Stars Favored to Win Western Canada Title

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS
Central Press Canadian Writer

Winnipeg, Oct. 19—Amalgamation of Winnipeg's best two rugby teams, the impressive return of three star American player-coaches and the threatened collapse of the Regina Rough Riders as perpetual threats for Western Canada honors, has given Winnipeg rugby supporters hope that laurels of the gridiron may come back to the prairie capital after an absence of seven years.

The Winnipeg rugby team already has clinched Manitoba honors and the right to play in the Western Canada playoffs. Their hopes of supplanting Al Ritchie's famous squad in the case for the Canadian title will be determined as the playdowns progress.

The Winnipeg rugby team is a wedding of the former Winnipeg and St. John's teams with the best players of each team buttressed by some new material which is highly regarded by the coaching triumvirate. Their biggest handicap is lack of opposition in the Winnipeg rugby league consists of only three city teams. This handicap has been partly offset by exhibition games with North Dakota teams, an experiment which appears to have injected new fighting blood into the team.

The trio of American coaches is centering its instruction on one team for the first time. Last year Russ Rebholz, former quarterback of Wisconsin player, was the coach of Rebholz winners of the Manitoba title. Carl Cronin, a former star at Notre Dame, under the late Knute Rockne, coached a Winnipeg club. This year the two are lined up with Winnipeg's own Gregory Kabat, a former running mate of Rebholz at Wisconsin. Cronin is head coach. Rebholz looks after the back field, while Kabat takes care of the line.

All three are playing coaches. Rebholz and Kabat are flashy backfield running, kicking and heaving forward passes, while Kabat is a weasel at the line. He is the only Manitoba track athlete among other things—and he has high jumped over the bar.

The new defunct St. John's team contributed the Mokelby brothers, Tom and Herb, Alf McLaughlin and Eddie Kushner, a young backfield cruiser at middle weight.

Cronin has with him again this year Cecil Isbell, Western Canada centres—"Rocy" Adelman, a natural rugby player, and ever ready Cronin has gazed on many centres in his time, but he regards Adelman as one of the brightest prospects he has ever seen. "Rocy" has human dynamite on the offensive, while on a rearguard play he leaves nothing to be desired. He is the most consistent gainer of loose balls Winnipeg ever has seen.

In Cronin, Rebholz, McLaughlin, and Sierz Olander, who broke from the home ranks to St. John's last year, Winnipegs have half-backs who are great kickers, forward pass exponents and ball carriers. Working behind a line that gives them plenty of protection, this quartet offers an offensive threat that no team can afford to discount.

If there is a weak spot in the team it appears to be on the ends of the line. The trio of coaches has bolstered this weak spot to some extent and in the running-up tential Dominion finalists. Inset below is threat half. Inset at top is Adelman, outstanding centre.

games for the western playdowns they will endeavor to plug these gaps effectively.

Cronin, Rebholz and Kabat have a fine team to work with this year and the team will be in the thick of the Western Canada playdowns, although it has been impossible to break in the finals. Saskatchewan champions play here on the first Saturday in November, while British Columbia is playing in Alberta. If the Reds are successful against Saskatchewan they will play hosts to the victors of the British Columbia-Alberta fracas. The psychological advantage of playing on their home grounds may be just the slight leverage needed to keep Winnipeg in the Western Canada championship and a crack at the eastern finalists.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Warren Brown of Montreal, spent the week end with Mr. Brown's mother, Mrs. Geo. H. Brown, Elmer street.

Mr. C. A. Abraham of Montreal is visiting his sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Brown, Elmer street.

Mrs. Wilmot and her daughters, Mrs. Jack Coates and Mrs. D'Arcy Rutherford, are leaving the latter part of the week to spend a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wilmot, Branford, Mrs. Coates and Mrs. Rutherford are leaving for New York on Monday evening and are sailing a few days later for their home in London, England.

A successful card party and dance was held in the Belleville Auditorium last evening. Winners at euchre were Mrs. Clark, ladies' first, Mrs. Bush second; Mrs. Osborne, third; Mr. Floyd Clare, men's first; Mr. Bush, second, and Mr. Tyers, third. Refreshments were served, after which the Commodores played for dancing.

Mr. Charles Gaizon, Donald St., is confined to the Hospital, suffering from a War Service. Mr. Gaizon was a first contingent man, having been with the 15th Battery and only recently a fragment of shrapnel emerged from one of his many serious wounds and it is anticipated he will now have a speedy recovery.

The members of the local Federation of Retail Teachers entertained at a delightful afternoon tea at Dickens' Coffee Shop, Bridge day in honour of the new teachers in the city. The tea was attended in fascinating appearance with its Hallowe'en decorations and guests were delayed no longer in its friendly atmosphere. Mrs. Ella Bell M. Anderson, president of the Federation and Miss Myrtle Peck, District Representative, were the chief visitors. The tea table with its tall orange tapers and silver basket of orange and pomegranateums was most attractive. Miss McKellar and Miss Sullivan poured and those who assisted in serving were: Miss Bertram, Miss McPherson, Miss Merkley, John and Miss Thompson. Among the guests of honour were the following: Mrs. H. J. Clarke, and Mrs. A' H. Schryver.

A charmingly-arranged bridge and afternoon tea was the first social function of the season for the Ar-gyll Chapter, I.O.D.E., the affair being held yesterday in the Officers' Mess at the Armouries, Front street, and chapter members welcomed the guests who found the hospitable committee an ideal retreat from the chill outdoors. Colourful Autumn garden flowers in profusion and a cheery grate fire made a brilliant background for the bridge party of nine-teen tables. Mrs. Tyrrell, regent of the first prize and Miss Amy Wallbridge the second. Many guests dropped in for the tea hour, the tea table, lovely with its centrepiece of red and yellow, presided over by Mrs. R. B. Chadwick and Mrs. H. W. Vermilyea. Mrs. Hoyes, a past regent of the chapter. Tea was served by Mrs. Lorne Gibson, Mrs. Vermilyea, Caldwell, Mrs. Gordon Miller, Mrs. Kingsmill, Mrs. Shelia Carr-Harman and Miss Shielah Burrows. The table decorations and bridge prizes were the gifts of Miss Dorothy Quick. The Argyll Chapter is beginning another season of activity and is planning to continue its splendid programme of philanthropic work. Members will soon resume serving for the Red Cross and the Children's Shelter. Last year donations were made to the Children's Shelter, Red Cross, Relief, Orenfell Mission, Collegiate Institute, Navy League and to the Stewart Endowment Fund.

PHELAN—O'CONNOR

Blessed Sacrament Church was the scene of an interesting wedding ceremony Monday, when Miss Mary O'Connor was united in marriage to Mr. Percy Phelan.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. T. A. O'Connor, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Annie O'Connor, Mr. V. C. Phelan was groomsman. The bride was accompanied to the altar by the organist of the Sodality of the Children of Mary. She wore a dainty dress of floral blue crepe and lace with hat and spdes in tones to match. The bridesmaid was attired in a golden brown costume with hat and shoes in harmonizing tones.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Phelan left on a motor trip to Western Ontario and on their return to Ottawa will reside at 1 Bronson Avenue, Ottawa Hull.

The groom is a nephew of the Misses Lynch, George street.

NICHOLSON—BRADY

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Anthony's Church, Centreville, at 8.30 o'clock, on Monday morning October 16th, when the Right Reverend J. F. Nicholson, V.G., brother of the groom, assisted by Rev. Father J. Ryan, Centreville, and Rev. Father E. M. Leacy, Deseronto, united in marriage Beatrice Veronica Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brady, Newburgh, and Victor Thomas Nicholson, son of Mr. Thomas Nicholson and the late Mrs. Nicholson, Kingston.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of the 'Bridal Rose' played by Miss Nicholson. She wore a picture of loveliness in her wedding gown of Nassau blue transparent velvet, with smart blue velvet turban and shoes of a matching colour. She carried an arm bouquet of Premier Supreme roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Mildred McAvoy, Newburgh, was bridesmaid, and wore a frock of rust coquelico crepe, with bodice and sleeve trimmings of brown velvet, a velvet toque and shoes of brown. A bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums completed her costume. Mr. Walter Nicholson, Kingston, was best man for Mr. Nicholson.

During the nuptial mass the choir rendered appropriate selections. The sanctuary was lovely with flowers.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at the Bridal Room, Napanee, for the immediate relatives. Present also at the breakfast were Rev. Father Feeney, rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston; Rev. Father Corrigan, Picton; Rev. Father Leacy, Deseronto and Rev. Father Le Sage, Kingston.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson left by motor for New York City, the bride travelling in a beyrer trimmed swagger suit of rabbit's hair cloth, small brown hat to match and accessories of brown.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's Training School for Nurses, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, and the groom is a popular young Kingston business man.

A colorful road should be trodden by some of the new evening shoes especially those which are made of from five to seven different colors of satin joined together in sections with gold or silver stitching. The heels are always one solid color.

Variations on a theme are always interesting, especially when the theme is the negligee and a new variation is the house coat. A lovely model done on fine fitted sheerness is in white transparent velvet lined with white chiffon. The wide sleeves are bordered with diagonal shirring and the girdle is of shirred velvet in rose pink.

Keep warm—and the shouldn't be difficult when one is wearing one of the new Wrinley coats. A charming model done in a brown mixture tweed has an enormous collar of beaver that extends as an inset into the entire back of the coat. In front it is pulled over.

The set coat is fast growing in importance—hats shoes and bags all being co-ordinated. One model has a small bag set in in green suede with a band of leopard for trimming. Mrs. Edward Hone McAvoy, Newburgh, was bridesmaid, and wore a frock of rust coquelico crepe, with bodice and sleeve trimmings of brown velvet, a velvet toque and shoes of brown. A bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums completed her costume. Mr. Walter Nicholson, Kingston, was best man for Mr. Nicholson.

Yards and yards of satin are used for a lovely new hostess frock. The fine, supple blue satin is ruffle-pleated into a tunic of matching skirt. The edge of the tunic is bordered and edged with tiny silver bells, and the girdle is of silver cloth.

Advice to the Lovelorn

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"I'm afraid you will tell me that promises I've made my mother are absolutely sacred," writes Miss S., who describes herself as a business girl.

"I shall have to explain her case to you. Six months ago she came from a small island city to live in New York. She has a secretarial job secured for her by a relative, and at first she thought herself a very lucky girl. But now, it seems, there are complications.

"Before I left home she tells me, my mother, who is a semi-invalid, and who really worships me, asked me to make her all sorts of promises that at the time seemed to me quite natural. You see, I had been very strictly brought up. So I promised never to smoke, drink, pet or dance and so on.

At first I spoke openly of these promises, to explain why I couldn't do things. Then I began to see that people looked queerly at me, as if I were a freak. Finally, I discovered that young people nowadays haven't much use for a thorough-going Puritan, and that from now on I'm going to be pretty human.

"That is, unless I break some of these promises.

"What harm would it do for me to learn to dance modern dances? Or why shouldn't I ride in a motor with a terribly nice boy whom I like awfully? And what harm is there in my darling mother if she doesn't know?

"And don't you honestly think a modern daughter is perfectly innocent? Everybody dances.

"I can't bring the subject up by letter. First, because my mother would never give way. Second, because she would send for me to come straight home.

"Advise me, Miss Fairfax. Is it my duty to deprive myself of all natural happiness just because my mother doesn't understand?

"It is true that I think promises are sacred, once they're made. But I don't believe in exacting such promises. Lela's request not to speak to fetter her as she did. A girl who has been properly brought up and who can be trusted to keep home ought to be capable of meeting her own problems.

But although an honorable girl must keep the promises she has made, I cannot believe that this mother could ask them ever to greater liberality. The New York relative who got her the job might accomplish wonders, or the girl herself, in vacation time.

Meanwhile, although I feel that utmost sympathy for her, hasn't my young correspondent herself grasped her plight a little?

I know many young people who do not drink or smoke, who are thought none the less of on that account. Not, indeed, if abstinence can be made for young girls drinking or smoking, unwholesome, distasteful and unnecessary as these things are.

Other restrictions are, of course, less reasonable; but a girl of character should be able to survive them for a little while, without forfeiting all joy in life.

A girl who isn't free to go out in a car with a boy alone, even the exceptionally nice boy she has in mind, could surely contrive a movie party of four. Or she could give simple supper-parties of her own, with alcohol eschewed. Such a girl is liked for her own qualities; certainly not because she smokes or drinks.

I believe that at this moment Lola B.'s acquaintances are respecting her for keeping faith with her mother, even though she must be jealous of them may feel somewhat uncomfortable in her presence; and I am certain, that if she continues to stand firm until this ban is lifted she will not regret it.

A shining success is a lovely cola of shimmering lame in very bright silver, covered with countless rows of stitching and lined with black velvet. The enormous dolman sleeves have a very wide fastening with a bow with the velvet. It is worn over a black velvet gown.

Interior decorators must be doing dress designing as well, judging by the arty looking frocks being shown just now. Most artistic is a slinky frock of black lacquered satin, its high neckline banded with white satin at each pompon of which, front and back, there has been placed a white velvet sram lily. Velvet fins mark the hipline.

A good afternoon frock is most useful in any wardrobe, especially if it is colorful and not too elaborate. Such a frock is developed in rust pebble crepe. The skirt has ruffled lines lined with rose-colorette and the cap sleeves have the same lining. A rose-colored velvet flower is posed at the neckline.

The waffle is featured in the form of waffle fabrics for afternoon and evening things. A lovely new ensemble uses gray waffle taffeta and its low decolletage is covered by a fitted jacket that fastens with a flower made of mink. The hem of the frock has a thin border also of mink.

BROADER—BRIMMED HATS

The wide brimmed hat worn straight or tilted, and with shallow moulded crown or one manipulated for irregular height, is getting recognition in fashion circles. When it is worn with the cloth trotteur, it may be of felt or imperial velour, the crown Tyrolean. For the velvet afternoon costume, it assumes shallow crown proportions with flattering brimline frequently enhanced by a gyrrelined ostrich plume or a diminutive tip, which emphasizes the forward movement. In felt, they are particularly interesting as a rather new type, so different from the cloche genre which has predominated in tailored felts. The broader brim, found flattering by so many women this summer, attempts to continue in fall and winter versions.

Mining And Industrial Stocks Take Bumps With Selling in Heavy Volume For a Time—Substantial Recovery Sets in Around Noon but Issues Still Below Opening Prices — Some New York Stocks Display Resistance to Selling Pressure

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 19—(CP)—Selling by anxious holders became active on the Toronto market at the opening day and prices weakened, quotations moving down with a rush early to early trend in the New York market. Before the morning session was completed, a feeling of tendency developed on a buying pickup. Losses however were general for the early operations.

Selling of the distillery stocks resulted mainly from a New York press story that the U.S. government would impose an embargo on liquor imports. Walkers Common dropped 10 3-4, nearly 5 points, Industrial Alcohol to 16, off 1 3-4 and Distillers Seagrams 28, off 2 points.

In the metals Smelters was a weak spot, receding to 134 for a loss of 6 points. Nickel worked back to 31 and recovered to 31.75 where it showed a net drop of 38 cents. Mining issues reflected technically unchanged, C.P.R. lost 1-2 and Ford A 3-8.

TORONTO MINES

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—(CP) Mining shares were in the bumps today on the Standard Exchange, moving lower with the Industrial Market with selling in heavy volume for a time, but after the first hour prices began to firm and soon found a substantial recovery underway but the majority of issues closed below the previous close.

Dome shed down to $21.35 and McIntyre had recovered to $58.50 for a net loss of 81, and Dome got back to $32.25, where it was down 35 cents.

Nickel held its position stubbornly and showed a loss of 38 cents at $31.75 as the majority of other issues receded to $31.

On generally bearish news and international embargo developments, the market slipped back generally in the early transactions and although a firmer undertone developed in the early afternoon trading it slowed down on the rise.

The price of gold was again off in London and this situation together with weakness in New York, caused considerable selling of the gold issues. McIntyre moved to $58 and was little better than that figure at mid-afternoon, down 3 3-4. Domeh it 21.25 and recovered somewhat.

Base Metal Shares slipped back with the golds, Noranda touching $30.75 and showed life on the mild recovery.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Financial markets were afflicted with a fit of nervousness today, and despite intermittent rallies, recovery of initial losses was incomplete.

Several stocks displayed resistance to selling pressure, but the majority were inclined to slip to levels that, in some instances, tested the support figures of the chartists. The Rails and a few Industrials held up well.

United States Government Securities were firm, but other bonds were hesitant.

Canadian securities dipped with the General Markets in the early selling. Dome and McIntyre reduced their major fractions after having declined more than a point each. Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel were slightly lower. On the curb Brian Wahler was marked down about 3 points at one time while Lake Shore Mines sold 1 3-8 points lower. Dominion Government 4s and 4 1-2s were unchanged. The 5s moved 1-2 point lower. The Canadian dollar gained 1-8 of a cent at 96.68 3-4 cents.

Ontario Cobbler Potatoes per bag 85 cents.

Dealer's nominal price on hand-picked white beans in carlots, f.o.b. at point of shipment 80 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Winnipeg, Oct. 19.—(CP) — Despite unexpected weakness at Chicago, which on Tuesday made prices down for losses of more than a cent near the opening, values made a fair recovery on the grain exchange today and at noon rested at levels only 1-2 to 5-8 cent lower.

Though offerings were not particularly heavy, buying was not aggressive enough to do more than partially erase the early declines.

Active on the start operations thinned later.

OXFORD GROUP WORK IS TOLD

Rev. Dr. Bishop of Albert College Speaks at Peterborough

Peterboro, Oct. 19—Vividly and forcefully, but with some simplicity, Rev. Dr. Bishop, principal of Albert College, Belleville, outlined the great possibilities of fellowship and offered brief personal testimony of his experiences with the Oxford Group Movement at the first of a series of three meetings to be held throughout the day under the term of "An Adventure in Christian Fellowship."

Rev. Canon Greene, who urged, would open up "untouched resources of God's power," and would usher in a new God to work "forcefully through us for the betterment of conditions around us and for the ultimate establishment of His kingdom on earth."

The meetings held under the auspices of Peterboro deanery of the United Church in Canada, were opened by Rev. A. S. Kemp of Havelock.

Adventure in Fellowship

Dr. Bishop felt that the gathering "here today has properly been called an adventure in Christian fellowship."

Explaining the nature of the service, he said, "It is not a preaching service." Rather, it is a time apart for the purpose of preaching a sermon, but to present "to you as a group of men and women some definite points in regard to the possibility of Christian fellowship as I have had personal testing.

"I want to approach the matter in a spirit of "daring and humility."

Believe in Fellowship

He first asked his audience "to believe in fellowship."

It seemed to the speaker, that this great unexplored region of Christian fellowship was the crying of today, he said, quoting from a passage of the Epistle to which Christ had said "bring it to Me."

He said that just as it is true of the Christian life that power and resources abound in the most unexpected places, so it is true of life as an example the harnessing of the atom, which has created such terrific power, so also there were undreamed-of resources to be tapped in the spiritual and social realms.

Study Conditions

"The conditions you and I will have to study are far more complex under two headings. One is negative with the elimination of certain things that are not desirable in our lives while Jesus Christ stands unabandoned, among numerous other things and the hand of fellowship must be extended. I would like to say said, open up untouched resources of God's power. Resources that are totally unsuspected.

A Positive Condition

The other condition was a positive one, a discovery of all the finer, higher things of life.

"All we have to do is to open our hearts to God and He will."

He will talk very forcefully through us for the betterment of conditions around us and for the ultimate establishment of the Kingdom of God."

Daily Opportunity

The speaker confessed he had harbored a longing for fellowship for years, but had always dreamed of the distant fields as being the brightest. "We have got to realize," he said, "that the opportunities of fellowship are all around us in our daily life." The possibilities of fellowship were there at all, he urged.

Dr. Bishop said he had become more convinced than ever there was a devil. He was convinced, he said, because whenever he had decided to do anything in an endeavour to uplift himself he was confronted first with innumerable reasons why he should not have the ambition of his higher nature.

He suggested that no one should ever neglect, even at personal sacrifice, the opportunity of extending the hand of fellowship for aid of helping others.

Personal Experience

Dr. Bishop related a brief chapter of his own personal experience through which he said, he had discovered the wonderful resources of God's power.

Speaking of the Oxford Group at Belleville, Dr. Bishop related "how we have come to know each other. That same group of people, he said had lived in the same area years of years, but not one of them had previously realized the possibilities of other's personality and the resources of Christian fellowship.

A Dare

"We are here on that adventure in fellowship," Dr. Bishop stated in closing. He asked "are you going to let reluctance or pride or differences of opinion stand in your way or are you going to come out and touch some of the life wires of fellowship, helping others and giving God a chance to do the rest."

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—Lambs were the only class o flivestock to sell at the opening of te Livestock Market today. Eleven hundred each of cattle were carried over from yesterday's market, and it is apparent that most of these will have to be carried over till Monday. Early trading was at a standstill. Hogs numbered 400 on the first day of the calf supply. No early rail sales were recorded. Hogs opened unchanged. Sheep were slow.

LATEST WIRE BULLETINS

New York, Oct. 19.—After an absence of 17 years, Sascha Heifetz, violinist, will return to Russia this fall, his native land, the authority today that he had accepted the invitation of the Soviet government to give a series of concerts in Moscow and Leningrad beginning the middle of next April. Heifetz left Russia in the throes of its first revolution in 1917.

Hollywood, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn, veteran film producers, took up the battle for the actors and writers of the film colony today with the statement that "every man" in negotiating on behalf of that company "for peace with the labor unions is an enemy of the industry."

"I'd rather pay an artist $250,000 if he earned it than $2,000 if he did not," said Goldwyn.

o—o—o

Hollywood, Oct. 19.—(CP)—Joseph M. Schenck, head of the recently organized Twentieth Century Pictures, has said last night he is negotiating on behalf of that company for peace with the labor unions, an interest in United Artists Studio Corporation, owned by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Samuel Goldwyn, Schenck and Joseph Hazen.

Negotiation involves approximately $750,000.

o—o—o

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP)—Lincoln County Council has decided they will not pay the cost of secondary education beyond the six year term and instructed the clerk to notify county pupils of the decision. The action was taken as a result of recent statutes concerning statutory grants and requires pupils to care for their own tuition after six years.

Guelph, Oct. 19—Premium on race tracks in Ontario for several years, Ray Peters, valuable pacer owned by a syndicate in this city, died Wednesday. The horse, one of the best known in the stable in this province, which at the age of eight years set a new mile record on the half mile track and established a mark of 2.09 at Strathroy last season, was the victim of tetanus. Operated on for ring bone a week ago the animal was below form on the road to recovery when the complications developed which proved fatal.

o—o—o

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, fast recovering from a severe throat infection which since Sunday has confined him to his hotel room, was hopeful today of leaving for Richmond with his south polar expedition.

o—o—o

New York, Oct. 19.—The New York Times says today it has been established that General Gerardo Machado, deposed President of Cuba, visited New York within the past week.

The settled dictator, the Times says, accompanied by a servant, slipped into and out of the country by train and visited an apartment where his wife, his two daughters and his husband and his five grandchildren have been staying for some time.

o—o—o

Bismarck, N.D., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A showdown apparently was approaching today in the wheat war of North Dakota.

Guardsmen stood ready to prevent the movement of wheat from Dakota wheat out of the State, Governor William A. Langer said. The four Canadas announced they would accept it for interstate shipment only.

o—o—o

Shelleybury, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP)—Citizens of Hallebury district had paid homage today to Bishop Lucien Rheaume, of the far-flung diocese of Haileybury in a day-long celebration of the 25th anniversary of his consecration. A banquet attended by 300 persons this evening concluded the festivities. Leaders in faiths other than the Roman Catholic joined in tribute to the church dignitary.

IN MEMORIAM

HAMMER—In memory of Frederick Charles Hammer, died Oct. 19th, 1920.

God called him home, it was His will
But in our hearts we love him still.
His memory is as dear to-day
As in the hour he passed away.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is a fond thing
That grief can call its own.

—sadly missed.

PHIL WRIGLEY MAY TAKE PRESIDENCY

Son of Former Owner Wants in Re Closer to Affairs.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP)—Out of a maze of conflicting rumors and denials emerged tonight definite information today that owner Philip Wrigley would succeed his late father William L. Veeck as president of the Chicago Cubs and later name a business manager to run the club's affairs.

Wrigley has been merely an interested observer since the death of his father and has announced that all the best money-making clubs in baseball, but he is understood today was evinced a desire to get closer to the team and take a greater interest in it's affairs than merely viewing and rebuilding process that seems inevitable.

IDENTIFIES FINN AS MAN SEEN AT HOME

Cavan Township Farmer Positive About The Identity

HAD MONEY LATER

Inspector E. C. Gurnet in Charge of The Investigation

Cobourg, Oct. 18—Thomas Roy Ayres, Cavan Township, farmer, testified he saw Tim Laurila, accused of murdering Fred McLaren, in McLaren's shack a few days before he was last seen alive.

Ayres, McLaren's landlord, positively identified the Finnish transient as the mysterious "Jake" to whom McLaren introduced him. He had seen Laurila on January 30th, Ayres declared, and had found McLaren's body, the skull battered in, on February 5. Several weeks later he picked Laurila from a line-up at Peterboro police station.

Ayres said on January 29 he went over to McLaren's house, where the old man lived in one room.

"There was a stranger there, who wore a blue suit, and leather topped boots. Mr. McLaren called him "Jake"

"Is he here in court?" asked the Crown prosecutor.

"There he is over there," replied Ayres, pointing to Laurila.

"Are you sure?"

"Positive," replied Ayres.

Witness related he next saw McLaren when he visited the place on February 5th.

Found Body

"The cattle had not been fed when I went to the barn. So I went inside the house. I saw McLaren lying on the floor in a pool of blood, I backed out and went home and phoned the coroner," replied Ayres.

Mr. Hopkins asked witness when he sent saw the prisoner. Witness replied that it was several weeks later when he saw the prisoner. On this occasion he picked the Finn out from a line-up at Peterborough police station.

Dead 24 Hours

McLaren had been dead from the night before, almost 36 hours, and his face was frozen to the floor in a pool of blood, stated Coroner H. A. Turner, of Millbrook, who was called to McLaren's house on the evening of Ayres' discovery of the body.

"He was a quiet, very inoffensive man," the doctor described him. He said he found the dead man dressed in street clothes.

To Coroner counsel, Dr. Turner stated that it was not until the undertaker had cleaned the body that the scalp injuries were noted. He would have taken the body 12 to 14 hours to freeze.

More than 40 witnesses have been assembled by the Crown. George Lindola, Toronto, will act as interpreter. R. Brydon Smith, Peterboro, assisted by Col. P. D. Roger, K.C., is conducting the prosecution. The investigation has been in charge of Inspector E. C. Gurnet of the Provincial Police, Toronto, assisted by Provincial Constable W. J. Carey, A. J. Strauss, Cobourg, is defence counsel.

Seek Two Witnesses

Defence counsel asking that two witnesses, called at the preliminary, be subpoenaed for the defence, Mr. Hopkins said their whereabouts was unknown.

"I feel that the defendant should be given every fair consideration and I would like the Crown to facilitate the attendance of these witnesses here," stated Mr. Justice McEvoy, presiding.

Reviewing the facts of the case in addressing the jury at the beginning of the trial, W. B. Hopkins said the dead man, Fred McLaren, was more than 50 years of age, defined as a crippled with rheumatism. His shack on the farm of Roy Ayres, Cavan township, was situated near a railway track. Late in the month of January, Ayres visited McLaren's shack where the latter introduced him to a stranger, carrying to him as "Jake." Jake told Ayres he was a Finn and that he had been working at the mines up North. A week later he again visited the McLaren house and found the old man dead in a frozen pool of blood.

Skull Fractured

An examination showed several fractures of the skull. Blood stains on nearby bed clothing and stains on a piece of wood nearby were later analysed as blood.

Late in January McLaren withdrew $50 from a Millbrook bank and was last seen alive on February 3. When the body was found, McLaren's watch and money was missing.

Evidence would be produced stated Mr. Hopkins, to the effect that the Finn, although penniless in January, while with friends in Toronto, returned to that city in February, provided with funds. A watch said to be similar to that owned by McLaren, was pawned by the Finn in Toronto.

GREEN WINTER PREDICTED BY INDIAN GUIDE

Sutions' Bay, Mich., Oct. 19 (CP) —It's going to be a "green" winter, says Chippewa descendant of old Chief Wa-Son-Ning, of the Ojibways, whose name has been cast on the low houses built by the muskrats, indicating little ice, the small quantity of nuts stored by squirrels; light moss on the trees; a yellow tint to evergreen and the gullness of deer's bowels.

Confidentially, Jake said that he has to predict an open winter each year as his wife won't have that he cut up more fire wood.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

Stage and Screen Tonight

Tonight is the grand opening of the Capitol Theatre Super Entertainment season when the initial stage and screen attraction will be presented nightly at 7.00 and 8.15 p.m. The stage show will commence at 7.30 and 8.45 and at 2 p.m. on Saturday afternoon. The screen performance only will be shown at the matinee on Thursday and Friday each week.

The feature of the stage presentation is Bettie La Forrest, formerly of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," and she, assisted by five delectables, is worth the admission alone. Miss La Forrest will appear in "A Cycle of Songs and Dances," which will be voted, to use the vernacular, as "cute."

Knowles and Hurst in "Monkey Shine" will create a host of uproarious laughter with their comic antics and brilliant repartee, while the amazing feats of Louis and Cherie, the "Parisienne Acrialists" will enthral you.

The Capitolians, under the direction of Al Adams will exhibit their presentation one hundred fold, so let's all go to the Capitol tonight!

The screen attraction tonight, Friday and Saturday is "F.P.1", the first British film to gain four stars in "Liberty". The picture is reported as one of the most unusual ever depicted, and the biggest of the strangest.

The story concerns the building of a "floating platform" in mid-Atlantic for the use of trans-ocean fliers. Mysterious acts of spying effect the project is completed, and looms on the horizon as man's greatest adventure. From that moment "Floating Platform 1" becomes the centre of the developing plot.

The inventor is a young officer whose plans for the floating platform is to light by a friend of his, an aviator. This friend has failed to love with the daughter of the project's backer, but he finds that she is attracted to the young inventor. The aviator, riding the crest of world popularity through his feats in the air, sees the futility in all his efforts, if he cannot get the love of the girl he wants more than anything else. He retires to obscurity to observe the completion of "F.P.1" and the development of the love that he feels belong to him.

Going steadily downward, he learns that there is another island in the "floating platform" and suddenly is roused to action. Accompanied by the girl, he goes to the platform and after a series of hair-raising experiences, effects the rescue of his friend and rival.

The cast of "F.P.1" is headed by Conrad Veidt, Jill Esmond and Leslie Fenton have the romantic leads, with a supporting cast that includes George Merritt, Donald Calthrop, Alexander Field, Percival Stallwan, Warwick Ward, Nicholas Hannen and William Freshman.

It is an Erich Pommer production, directed by Karl Hartl from the story by Walter Reisch and Franz Slodmak. The musical direction is by Allan Gray and lyrics by Desmond Leigh and Donovan Parsons.

Will parents please note that children's admission Friday and Saturday nights is 15c, but all children of public school age (up to 14) will be admitted for 10c at the Saturday afternoon matinee at 2.45 p.m.

All children must be paid for.

AT THE BELLE

Handsome star of a dozen Broadway musical comedy hits, yet Alexander Gray has never played a more romantic role in his brilliant career than he did recently in real life.

Gray, appearing in one of the featured leads in "Moonlight and Pretzels," the Universal production recently in New York and coming to the Belle Theatre, Saturday, Gray slipped away from the studio one evening and eloped with Miss Peggy Dow, lovely leading lady of the picture.

With Miss McCrary it was a case of love at first sight. She first saw Gray as the dashing hero of "The Love Song" and fell for him almost immediately. Then only 14 years of age, she began writing "fan" letters to the star, and Gray, finding the letters intelligent and interesting, struck up a correspondence with the romance which continued for three years. Then they met. Sowie! It was a case of love at first sight with Gray, not later than an hour after they were introduced. They decided to get married, but their first attempt to elope was foiled by relatives who didn't believe such a romance could last. The second attempt, however, was rewarded with success, and the happy bride and groom honeymooned in Canada.

"Moonlight and Pretzels" marks Gray's return to the screen after an absence of three years during which he has devoted his entire time to stage and radio work. Previously he was co-featured with Marilyn Miller in "Sally". Bernice Claire in "No, No Nanette," and Mitzi Green in "Hit the Deck" and "Viennese Nights."

Gray is one of the many stage, screen, and radio stars who appear prominently in "Moonlight and Pretzels." Roger Pryor, Leo Carrillo, Mary Brian, Herbert Gleason, and Lillian Miles have the featured leads, with Bernice Claire, Skeets Gallagher, Ben Bernie, Doris Carson, John Rundey, Frank Mitchell, Ben Bernie's Band, Wilson Frawley, and The Four Ellen Boys in supporting roles. The ensemble is composed of New York's fifty most beautiful show girls.

SOUTHERN MOB LYNCH NEGRO

Taken From Jail After Alleged Attack on 81 Year-old Woman

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 19 (AP) —Responsibility for the lynching of George Armwood, Negro, who was dragged from the jail here last night and hanged from a tree near the town limits, was placed today by Governor Albert C. Ritchie squarely on the shoulders of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Princess Anne.

Governor Ritchie directed Judge Duer, a member of the Bench of the First Judicial District, and State's Attorney Robins "to take immediate action to set in motion the necessary legal machinery for the appearance of those who were responsible for or who participated in the lynching."

Armwood, brought back here from Baltimore less than 17 hours earlier to face accusations of attacking an aged white woman, was wrenched from the protection of 23 state policemen last night, and his body was finally left in a gasoline-soaked pyre on the main business corner.

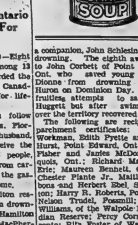
The mob or more than 1,000 men, women and youths, stopped temporarily by a tear gas attack from the state police, stormed the jail, battered down the heavy steel doors and after ripping most of the clothes from his body and fastening a rope around his neck, dragged the negro out into the street.

Eight Policemen Relieved

Eight defenders of the jail fell during the attack, cut by flying stones and bricks. Among them was Captain McK. Jackson, head of the State Police, who was "knocked unconscious. Several members of the mob were seen being carried away but their number and injuries were not revealed.

Armwood was captured Monday night near Pocomoke City as the negro, who earlier in the day, grabbed Mrs. Mary Denston, 81 year old wife of a Somerset farmer, as she was walking home after spending the night with her daughter.

State police rushed the negro to Baltimore for safe keeping, when mobs began to collect in eastern shore communities. Early yesterday, over protests of the state police, he was returned to Princess Anne in preparation for the convening of the Grand Jury next week.



State police said Armwood had signed a confession in Baltimore admitting the attack on the woman.

STIRLING CHURCH OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Special Program at St. Paul's Marks Occasion

Stirling—St. Paul's United Church observed the Fiftieth Anniversary of its erection and the Ninth Anniversary of its re-election with the United Church of Canada, on Sunday last, when fifteenth with Rev. R. L. McTavish, D.D., pastor of King Street United Church, Oshawa, in charge of the special anniversary services. Mr. David Tucker of Rawdon, the only surviving member of the original committee of over fifty years ago, along with Mrs. Tucker was present as the guest of honor.

Elgin congregations truly representative of the village and the surrounding rural community thronged to the church for both the morning and evening services. The Musical Services were opened with the anthem, "Daughter of Zion" by Mark in which Mrs. J. O. Bailey took the solo part. A beautiful welcome was extended to Mr. and Mrs. David Tucker who, while not present, as extended age of ninety years, expressed their delight in being able to attend the ceremonies and their appreciation of the invitation to be present as guests of honor. Rev. McTavish took as the topic of his sermon "As Jesus Saw Life" in which he contrasted Christ's treatment of the nonconformists whom he turned out of the Temple with the state of affairs in wealthy circles today. Reference was made to the recent Stratford strike and, in continuing his address, the speaker intimated that some of the world would be well concerned to follow Christ's daily lives the example of their Saviour who were able to pray that He in glory, give His inspiration that He in glory, give His inspiration from His God. The services closed with the Anthem "Hail to the Lord's Anoint."

The evening worship was held at 7 o'clock and was opened with the Anthem "Who Are These in Bright Array" in which Miss Ella Bessie Conley took the solo part. Rev. McTavish chose for his sermon, the topic "Romance in Basketschwan." This embodied the life and missionary works of Dr. Hoffman, a Hungarian by birth who is now engaged as Missionary at Large to the Hungarians in Canadian West which position he has filled since 1924 with remarkable efficiency, his speech. Rev. McTavish spoke of Dr. Hoffman's war experiences and his meeting with his future wife in the mission fields of the West wherein she labored. He recounted how when much as Dr. Hoffman the speaker stated, the Church is finding her opposite of the Gospel of the present day, the service closed with the Anthem "Holy, Holy, Not Mine, O Lord". The special anniversary offering was taken and amounted to over a thousand dollars.

On Monday evening the anniversary dinner was held in the basement of the church when the ladies of St. Paul's served a bountiful repast to over three hundred and sixty persons. During the dinner, a program was put on at 8.15 p.m. by the young people of the church in the auditorium. This consisted of the following numbers:

Anthem by The Choir.

Violin selection by Miss Alice Colwell accompanied on the piano by Miss Jean McCubbin.

Humorous recitation by Miss Vera Smiryea of Sidney.

Vocal solo "Wings", by Miss Bessie Conley.

Recitation by Miss Vermilyea.

Vocal solo "Vale" by Mrs. J. O. Bailey.

Organ selection by Mr. Charles Allen.

Recitation by Miss Vermilyea.

Anthem by St. Paul's Choir.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to approximately $130.

St. Thomas Anglican Church of Elgin, Eighth Line of Rawdon observed the Fiftieth Anniversary of its erection on Sunday, October 8th, at which time the usual services with which were observed Harvest Services when Bishop Lyons of Kingston confirmed a class of eleven.

The morning services were held at ten-thirty and were largely attended by approximately five hundred people of Rawdon, Stirling and neighboring towns. In the evening the Harvest, Thanksgiving Festival was held when over three hundred again attended Divine Worship with over one hundred receiving communion.

In regard to the church itself, it was given by the late Phillip Brown Jr. of Rawdon and the contractor was the late Mr. Bellshaw of Stirling. The building committee of 1883 was composed of Messrs J. T. Bellshaw, Sec. Treasurer of Stirling, John Tanner of Stirling, Jas. Cooke, Nicholas Stout and Hagerty of Rawdon, from whom the latter is the only surviving member.

On Monday evening the Anniversary Dinner and a social evening was held in Foresters Hall. Hall when over four hundred sat down to a delicious dinner for which the St. Thomas ladies catered. There was a congregation of over four hundred and the guests appreciation were more than appeased.

Speeches were delivered by Bishop Lyons of Kingston, Rev. Foley of Springbrook, Rev. R. Swayne of Tweed, Rev. W. G. Swayne of Rawdon, Rev. A. J. McConnell of Stirling, Rev. F. C. Beaser of Hollin, Rev. Dr. Blagray of Peterboro, Rev. Hurd Dean Caldwell of Marmora, and Hon. J. S. Cooke, M.P.P. Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission whose speech was "Reminiscences of the Building of the Church." Rev. W. G. Swayne, pastor, read the following letter from Mrs. Mary Bellshaw of Stirling and widow of the late J. T. Belshaw of the Building Committee who was unable due to her advanced age to be present.

Rev. W. G. Swayne and Congregation of St. Thomas Church,

My Dear Friends:

I received your kind invitation to the celebration of the 50th Anniversary of St. Thomas Church and I regret very much not being able to attend the services on October 15 and this social evening on account of my advanced age.

My thoughts travel back to the many happy girlhood days I have spent in the vicinity of St. Thomas Church and wishing you success in the labor of God's Kingdom. I hope that your church may stand for many years as a monument to those who undertook the task of its erection.

Yours, sincerely,

Rev. Caldwell, in his remarks, disclosed the fact that only four persons namely, Mrs. Chas. Mumby and Messrs Alex. Martin, S. Tanner and J. S. Bellshaw of Stirling who were present at the dedication 50 years ago, were also in attendance on Sunday.

At the conclusion of the speeches Bishop Lyons, one of the Fiftieth Anniversary Birthday cake, a huge structure of three layers bearing fifty candles and surmounted by a cross. Portions of this were distributed among the people as souvenirs of the 50th Anniversary Services.

Among those present as members at St. John's Church, Stirling on Sunday, October fourteenth, when James Charles John of Belleville was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Ruby Wise also of Belleville, with Rev. A. S. McConnell of Stirling officiating. The bride who was attired in a brown ensemble was attended by her sister, Mrs. Harry Smith of Stirling while the groom was ably supported by Mr. Harry Smith of Stirling. Mr. and Mrs. Johns will take up their residence in Belleville. The bride formerly resided in Stirling while the groom has a host of friends who wish her every happiness in her wedded life.

Rev. Smith and Mr. Crowe of Trenton were Friday callers of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bellshaw.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Williams were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wait, of Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McGuire of Belleville were guests on Sunday of Mrs. A. E. Dobbie.

Rev. A. E. McConnell, Misses Alice Calow, Marguerite Polk and Messrs Jerry Cearns, Arthur Bateman and William Simmons are attending the Provincial Convention of the Anglican Young Peoples Association which is being held in St. Paul's Church, Toronto, beginning on Thursday, October Nineteenth and continuing to Sunday, October Twenty-second. At the conference Rev. A. E. McConnell is being Honored by being presented with a life membership of the Anglican Young People's Association at the Convention of Canada.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cole (nee Francis Cooke) of Corbyville gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole at Corbyville on Monday evening and presented the newlyweds with a shower. Over two hundred persons assembled and the gathering was called to order by Rev. Merrick of Bethany who gave the opening address. Following this, an address was read by Miss Beatrice Cole and a presentation made of a cabinet of silver and a beautiful silver wardrobe. Besides these, the newlyweds were the recipients of many fine and useful gifts. The address was addressed to Mr. and Dear Grand and Francis:

Tonight we have come to your home to rejoice with you on this the happiest occasion of your lives when your fondest desires and hopes have been realized in the happy union of your lives. In our fondest earnest wish that your joy and happiness may grow with the years and, in the passing of time as you walk the way of life together under the direction and protection of a gracious Providence, may you have the joy of rearing your sons and let ideals in Christian living and the satisfaction of reaching the goal of your ambitions in life.

Grant—this has been your home, your interests, your associations and your memories have always been with this neighborhood. You have many memories of schooldays and of the companionships we have spent together. Francis—You are a stranger to many most of us, but we sincerely hope that we shall soon know you better and to you we extend a most cordial welcome to our homes, and hope that we will not be left out in the cold, but that you will be active workers in our Young People's League.

We trust that your future will always be bright,

May the joy of wedding bliss and your troubles be light.

Now if shadows should come, just whistle and sing,

It will make the clouds vanish and much happiness bring.

Grant—be a good sport, don't get cranky or cut,

Then your wife will be happy and you will be glad.

Francis—be to your husband a kind, loving wife,

And he will love you the rest of his life.

Now as this great occasion we have brought you tonight,

A wardrobe and silver to bring and bright.

Just accept these gifts as a slight token we pray

Of the love and esteem we shall always display.

Please kindly unwrap it and we will gladly see.

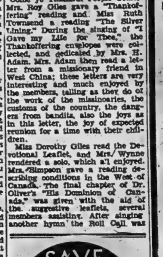
And watch with delight as each piece you unfold.

Signed on behalf of he Bethany friends, Bessie Hay, Helena Brackenbury, Clayton Peck, Harry McPherson.

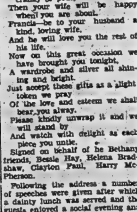
Following the address a number of speeches were given after which a dainty lunch was served and the guests enjoyed a social evening and dancing until an early hour.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cooke, Harry and Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wallace of Stirling and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Clarke of Trenton were among the guests at the shower on Monday night.

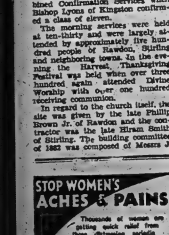
Among those from Stirling who attended the Fiftieth Anniversary Services at St. Thomas Church, Rawdon, on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Belshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wickett, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Wickett, Mr. George Wickett, Mrs. Mrs. Walter Wright; and Rev. and Mrs. A. S. McConnell.



A brief meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held in the church Belleville on Monday evening, commencing at 7.30. Mrs. J. Whitehead the Vice-President in the chair presided over the meeting. After the opening exercise, Miss Eva Smith played a piano solo and Miss solo "L'Avalanche." The Topic was by Mrs. Nelson on "Personality (Knowing Christ as our Friend). It we study the lives of the prominent men and comrades of Jesus it would help us our daily lives to be a friend and example to others. Those friends of Jesus shared not only in His joys but His burdens. Let us try and follow Christ's example as a friend. Then if we will become a friend of Christ's we will become a friend to Man. Mr. Ray Mumby then favored the audience with a guitar selection. The meeting closed by repeating the Mispah Benediction.



CENTRE AND VICTORIA W.M.S.



The W.M.S. of Centre and Victoria held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Giles with 15 members and 4 visitors present. The meeting opened by singing the Doxology followed by prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. A letter was read asking of the need for contributions of food and clothing for the West, and it was decided to unite with the church in helping. Suggestions were made regarding the raising of funds to help meet the allowance; it was agreed upon that each member lay aside one cent per week to be used as a love offering to the Christmas meeting. The leader of Group 2 was in charge of the programme. After singing, "Over ye Thankful People Come" Mrs. Roy Giles gave a "Thanksgiving" reading and Miss Ruth Townsend a reading "The Silver Lining." During the singing of "I Gave my Life for Thee" the Thanksoffering envelopes were collected and gathered by Miss E. Adam. Mrs. Adam then read a letter from a missionary friend in West China; these letters are very interesting and are enjoyed by the members, calling as they do of the work of the missionaries, the customs of the country, the changes from bandits, also the joys as in this letter. It was read calling reunion for a time with their children.

Miss Dorothy Giles read the Devotional Leaflet, and Mrs. Wynne rendered a solo, which a enjoyed. Mrs. Simpson gave a reading describing conditions in the North of Canada. The final chapter of Dr. Oliver's "Romance of Medicine Hat" was given with the aid of the suggestive leaflet, several members assisting. After singing another hymn the Roll Call was

Approval Under U.S. College of Surgeons Plan Discussed

Doctor and Governor of Local Hospital Explain Situation

APPROVED LIST

Hospital board members questioned regarding the new list of approved hospitals indicated today that they also are grateful whether the American College of Surgeons approved the local institution or not. "It doesn't disturb us at all" stated one member of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital.

"Efficiency of any hospital is not determined by the rating given by the American College of Surgeons," stated a prominent doctor of the city, also questioned. "I often wonder if that approved list and each year is really worth the effort. It seems to us to be very misleading in many ways, not only to the uninformed citizens on the whole, but to the patients who may be in the hospital themselves. I doubt the 'wisdom' of the inclusion of all the list."

"Does the non-approval of that body mean that the system used in the local hospital could be improved?" he was asked.

"The whole thing is merely a matter of records. If the Bellevile General Hospital was able to afford a larger clerical staff and install the latest and most up-to-date record system so that the representative of the College could gather all the material he needed of the hospital in a minute or two when he made the rounds, then, no doubt, we would be put in the approved class. However, to do that we'd need a larger staff, with more expense. It seems to me this thing is a bit exaggerated."

When questioned, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, president of the local Hospital Board, succinctly commented that "the Board is not greatly concerned over whether the local institution is on the American College of Surgeons' approved list or not. We are getting along all right."

Approved Hospitals.

The list of hospitals in Ontario approved by the College follows:

Brantford — Brantford General Hospital, 200 beds.

Brockville — Brockville General Hospital (Provisionally approved), 110; St. Vincent de Paul Hospital (Provisionally approved), 90.

Byron—Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, 600.

Chatham—Public General Hospital, 197; St. Joseph's Hospital, 67.

Cornwall—Cornwall General Hospital (Provisionally), 75; Hotel Dieu Hospital (Prov. approved), 100.

Fort William—McKellar General Hospital, 226.

Galt—Galt General Hospital, 75.

Gravenhurst — Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, 306.

Guelph—St. Joseph's Hospital, 104.

Hamilton—Hamilton General Hospital, 870; Memorial Sanatorium, 200; St. Joseph's Hospital, 185.

Kingston—Hotel Dieu Hospital, 185; Kingston General Hospital, 231.

Kitchener—St. Mary's Hospital, 137.

London—St. Joseph's Hospital, 300; Victoria Hospital, 436; Westminster Hospital, 94a.

Niagara Falls—Niagara Falls General Hospital (Provisionally), 138.

Oshawa—Oshawa General Hospital, 94.

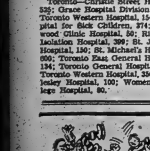
Ottawa—Ottawa Civic Hospital, 660; Ottawa General Hospital, 200; Owen Sound—General and Marine Hospital, 108.

Peterboro—Nicholls Hospital, 90; St. Joseph's Hospital, 102.

Port Arthur—St. Joseph's General Hospital, 162.

St. Catharines—Niagara Peninsula Sanitarium, 85; St. Catharines General Hospital, 166.

St. Thomas—Memorial Hospital, 110.



Sault Ste. Marie—General Hospital, 90.

Smith's Falls—St. Francis General Hospital (Provisionally) 50; Smith's Falls Public Hospital (Provisionally) 50.

Stratford—Stratford General Hospital, 126.

Sudbury—St. Joseph's Hospital, 137.

Toronto—Christie Street Hospital, 525; Grace Hospital Division of the Toronto Western Hospital, 154; Hospital for Sick Children, 374; Lockwood Clinic Hospital, 50; Riverdale Isolation Hospital, 399; St. Joseph's Hospital, 126; St. Michael's Hospital, 650; Toronto East General Hospital, 134; Toronto General Hospital, 958; Toronto Western Hospital, 350; Wellesley Hospital, 100; Women's College Hospital, 60.

GROWING UP

It seems only like yesterday since we regarded Jackie Cooper as a precocious infant. So it is rather surprising to find him grown up until he is almost as tall as Mary Pickford, his veteran fellow star they are shown at a film premiere in Hollywood.

Wallerville—Metropolitan General Hospital, 173.

Welland—Welland County General Hospital (Provisionally) 62.

Weston—Toronto Hospital for Consumptives, 461.

Windsor—Hotel Dieu of St. Joseph, 125; Ouellette Ave. Grace Hospital, 124.

Woodstock — Woodstock General Hospital, 63.

Hospitals and Revival

"The most vital force necessary for the carrying out of any program of national recovery is the health of our people," declares Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director-general of the American College of Surgeons.

"If we want recovery we must have health," says Dr. Martin. "There can be no recovery if our people are sick. To be healthier they are the speedier our recovery. Therefore, it is absolutely necessary that the health of the public be protected. In this connection there is no more effectual fortress than the modern, approved hospital, which has demonstrated its fine humanitarian qualities during the past four years of the depression by providing competent care for all classes whether they could pay for it or not."

"Just as the economic recovery of our nation is dependent upon health so is health dependent upon the medical profession and the hospital. It is, therefore, very gratifying to know that so many hospitals in this country are meeting the requirements of the American College of Surgeons which gives them a good and adequate care for the patient."

For sixteen years the American College of Surgeons has conducted annual surveys of hospitals in the United States and Canada in an effort to improve these institutions in the best interests of the public. The surveys have been carried on through the Hospital Standardization movement or the College which has as its basis the Minimum Standard which all hospitals desiring approval must meet. In 1918 only 89 hospitals in the United States and Canada could meet the requirements of the College for approval. This year of 3,554 institutions approved, 2,384 have been approved, or 67 per cent.

OBSERVE 95TH ANNIVERSARY OF ROSLIN CHURCH

Roslin—The ninty-fifth anniversary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Roslin was observed on Sunday, Oct. 15th. Rev. R. M. Scott of Picton, Moderator of the Kingston Presbytery was in charge of both morning and evening services which were largely attended. The church was decorated with flowers and plants for the occasion. At the morning service the choir with Mrs. Henry Morton as soloist furnished special music.

Rev. Scott based his sermon on the 1st and 2nd verse of the 84 Psalm "Walk about Zion and go round about her, tell the towers thereof. Mark well her bulwarks, consider her palaces, that ye may tell it to the generation following." In the evening the minister chose as his text part of the 46th verse of the first chapter of St. John's Gospel "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" The choir of the Presbyterian Church as Psalmody with Mrs. Ross Burr, as musical part of the service.

Rev. Beazor in the Anglican Church on Sunday was a special service for children in accordance with "Children's Sunday" which is observed annually in the Anglican Churches on the 2nd Sunday in October.

The following hymns for children were sung: "Once in Royal David's City." "We are but little children, weak". "There's a friend for little children." "When Mothers of Salem their children brought to Jesus".

Rev. Beazor chose as a text for his sermon Luke 2-40 "and the child grew and waxed strong in spirit filled with wisdom", stressing the importance of the Sunday School and the family circle in the religious life of the community, and urging parents to send their children to Sunday School The collection from the morning goes to the credit of the General Board of Religious Education.

GOV'T POUND NETS PLACED IN BAY

Burnished tanks and equipment of the local Dominion fish hatchery just east of the city await the food of millions of white fish eggs, which will soon be received for the winter's culture. This week employees of the hatchery have placed the pound nets in their annual location in the Bay of Quinte just east and south of the government docks. Flocks of gulls congregating from throughout the district also herald the arrival of the white fish which are already making their appearance in the inland lake from the cold waters of the lakes in order to spawn. Spawn of the fish will be received at the local hatchery within the next week or two, when culture of the eggs will be commenced in the tanks.

SCHOLARS MARCH OUT AS ROOF FALLS IN

Teacher's Foresight at Roaring Creek Reward-ed

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP) Pupils at Sproul's School, Brock Township, had narrow escape from possible death when the ceiling of the classroom crashed down on their desks a few minutes after the children had left the room.

It became known that when Miss Gladys Cox, the teacher, noticed a cracking sound a few days ago and saw the ceiling hanging down in one corner, she dismissed the pupils a few minutes before the regular hour.

They had just reached the outdoors when the entire ceiling fell, badly damaging desks and overturning a stove.

IT'S WONDERFUL HOW BUCKLEY'S CAN FIX A COLD SO QUICKLY

That's what surprises everyone who takes BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE for the first time. Accustomed to ordinary cough remedies they don't expect any benefit for days, and often don't get relief then. And it's astonished to find that the very first dose of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE gives unmistakable relief. Take Miss Mary Bysary, Glenside, Sask., for instance—She writes: "Last Winter I caught a very severe cold. I tried several remedies without deriving any benefit. At a friend's suggestion I tried BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. It is wonderful how it can help a cold so quickly.

Whether your cold is merely in the sneezing, sniffing stage, or away deep down, Buckley's will bring you prompt, amazing, safe relief.

It acts like a flash—A single sip proves it.

Dr. CHASE'S K. & L. PILLS

For the LOVE of Eve

By Lucy Walling

CHAPTER ONE

It was a brief and hurried marriage ceremony, but at all the imposing affairs Eve Bayless had dreamed her wedding would be.

Just she and Dick, at the Little Stone Church, with the parson's housekeeper and a young civil engineer whom Dick knew for witnesses. Monday noon—and the hastily performed ceremony was Dick's ad-additional to the passionate scene of parting Thursday night when Eve had decided she wanted to be Dick's wife with as little loss of time as possible.

And now, even while she was being married to Dick, there was the menacing ghost of the morning hovering between her and her happiness.

To Eve her wedding was like a disturbing dream. Would she get back to the store before Mr. Barnes sent for her? Would Dick be angry and storm when she told him what had happened that morning? Or would he be hurt and cold until Well, she wouldn't tell him until she had learned for sure—that evening after dinner. No use to spoil the afternoon for him. She tried to force her attention on the words that were binding her to Dick, but there were so many thoughts that kept interfering.

Now the pastor, young rector was giving them his blessing. Dick's ring was on her finger, Dick's arms were around her. Dick's lips, possessive, yet very tender, pressed to hers. Eve's heart melted. In that moment she was almost ready to give up everything—Barnes, her work, the coveted goal almost within reach, the career she had dreamed of through her girlhood—these she would forget to be Dick's wife as a sacrifice.

It was Dick who broke the spell. He dropped his arms released her. It was he who suggested, almost brusquely, that they'd have to hurry or they would be late to work.

But by the time his roadster had nosed its way through the noonday traffic to the side entrance of Bixby's department store, where Eve was employed as a copy writer in the advertising office, Dick's mood had changed again. His hand closed over hers. "Eve, sweetheart, don't look so glum. I don't want my wife out earning her living. Let me take care of you, darling. You know—the kind of marriage we talked about last night—that's what I want. A little home with a fireplace and a garden and—a boy—"

"Dick," she pleaded, "let me go! We can't thrash that out again. At least not here. Not now. Wait for me here this evening. I'll try not to be late, but I don't know. Something came up in the office this morning—something unexpected and terribly important. I'll tell you about it this evening. 'Bye dearest".

Eve consulted her watch when she reached the third floor. She had just five minutes to change from the brown ensemble which was her working costume into her smart but simple black office dress. The change was accomplished in the allotted time and the brown costume and the corsage of creamy, fragrant rosebuds with tawny orchids that Dick had sent, put away in her locker. Thank goodness none of the girls whom she knew at Bixby's had spied that corsage! They could scent a wedding months away.

She slipped off her wedding ring, the little circlet of pale yellow gold engraved with roses blossoms which she had chosen instead of platinum because it matched the old golden lights in her amber eyes and honey-colored hair, and interviewed with the October browns and yellows that were her favorite colors. She put the ring in the chamois envelope which guarded her more costly trinkets. Later, it held no one to Bixby's that she was to be married today. By noon she had told them for a while—not until she was certain she wished them to know.

Oh, she should have waited until June to be married, she thought, as she sniffed unhappily as she went into the office. If only they could have been married in June—and gone away—then it would have helped the situation some. But how had Dick changed and a three-day notice was required before a marriage license would be issued. She knew she should not be thinking about all this now. But she must keep her mind steady and her mind clear for that conference with Mr. Barnes at two o'clock. She hoped, yet feared, the outcome of that conference.

Eve was relieved to find there was no one in the advertising office except Mary Blad, the fashion artist, who was sitting at her drawing board in a corner by the window. Perhaps Mary was not as assiduous as what went on around her as she seemed. Perhaps her cardid blue eyes were sometimes shaded when fellow workers realized, but at any rate she was too industrious and considerate to ask questions that might have been answered she merely looked up and smiled as Eve entered.

"Did anyone ask for me?" Mary's knew of the conference with Mr. Barnes and was curious, of course.

"No one. How lovely you look today, Eve."

"Oh, I'm glad you think so! I have a special reason for wanting to look well today."

"Is that so?" echoed a voice in gay raillery and Eve turned to find Mr. Barnes' stenographer, entered the office, only a few steps behind her.

"Don't tell us you are turning to such tactics to land a millionaire, Miss Arlene went on. "Not after the way I've been bragging to my family about the highmindedness and and all-around superiority of this office force!"

"Goodness, no!" laughed Eve. The princess was going to do nothing to do with my wish. I just have to look pretty when I have special men." He's the marrying variety of his fatal charm—not Mr. Barnes, nor yet Mr. Bixby."

"Oh, I know," said Arlene. "The strong, silent one who parks that yellow roadster at the side entrance as quitting time about five evenings a week. Listen, dearie, say things you yet a chance to pass up the madhouse in exchange for a permanent seat in that roadster and the privilege of operating a kitchenette and can-opener for that young man you'd better grab off the pronto.

"Sometimes I really believe you prefer domesticity to a business career," Eve said.

"Just watch me help myself to the first chance at sweet domesticity that comes my way," was Arlene's fervent reply. "I'm fully as domestic as Marya Bens, and I'm very domestic as you, Eve. But do the men see that? They do not! I'm all right to play around with but when they begin to shop around for an engagement ring they want some sweet young thing like you or Marya to wind."

Eve laughed uneasily and slipped a fresh sheet of paper into her typewriter. The conversation was on dangerous ground. It had been on the tip of her tongue a moment ago to tell Arlene and Marya about her wedding that noon in the Little Stone Church, but she was not ready for that disclosure. Too many things were crowding themselves into this day.

The second of the most important events of Eve's life was to take place within two hours after the wedding. Two sharp sounds of the buzzer summoned her to the office of Earle Barnes, advertising manager of Bixby's. Although her work took her to Barnes' office many times each day, Eve felt half-sick with trepidation this time. She trembled involuntarily, and her head throbbed with a dull ache. Yet she strove to maintain an appearance of outward calm. A swift glance in the way old mirror hanging over the washstand in the corner reassured her, and the group gathered about Barnes' desk little suspected that the lovely, flushed face and eager, bright eyes on the girl joining them masked real fear. Eve's calm was held high, however, and she managed a smile as she acknowledged the salutatory nod of while-dashing Mr. Bixby, founder and owner of the store. So much depended upon the outcome of this conference.

Barnes drew up a chair for Eve. next to Alice Marshall who was first assistant advertising manager. Mr. Bixby brought from his vest pocket a pair of Oxford glasses which, he unfolded and adjusted on his dignified nose. "I've come to see you, my dear," thought Eve, and she felt that with the aid of those powerful lenses he could pierce through to her innermost thoughts and discover her secret.

"Miss Bayless," he began with customary dignity, "you are undoubtedly aware that it is the policy of Mr. Bixby and myself to watch carefully the progress of each of its employees. From the time you joined us we have noted with satisfaction your spirit toward your work, your cooperation and your initiative." Mr. Bixby smoothed the narrow black ribbon attached to his glasses before he went on.

"Miss Marshall is leaving us, as you, of course, know. And it becomes necessary for us to choose a successor to fill her position. Mr. Barnes and I discussed the matter. Some of the New York trip also met with you this morning. Miss Bayless has been highly recommended to us that you are to go."

"Thank you!" Eve managed to articulate.

"It will give added interest and importance to the launching of your special column and ought to give you infinite pleasure to be entrusted with the opening assignment for the purpose of learning of bargains and values obtainable in New York city.

"Small, shabby room at 97 that she had occupied these last busy happy months of her girlhood already seemed a little strange, a little deserted. Eve had stayed so here even after she could have afforded more attractive and comfortable quarters. This decision was prompted entirely by economy. The building was conveniently near her work and provided room and board at a very reasonable rate. Eve preferred to economize than to put the money saved into pretty clothes, and educational advancement. Eve was careful; thrifty. She did nothing without a definite purpose.

From the little table that served as a writing desk the picture of Eve's mother smiled at her from its sheap frame—the warm, steady mother-smile that had been beaming all through Eve's life. Now she pushed carelessly before that picture of Kate Bayless. It was wrong, of course, not to have written to her mother that she was marrying Dick today. It was the first time she had ever kept her mother out from any important event in her life. True, she and Dick had decided hastily. Any of course that was certain to approve of Dick. Eve reflected proudly. Her father, too. Dick was exactly the sort of dependable, industrious young man to please the most conservative parents. Nothing to worry about on that score.

Suddenly Eve was conscious of that cheap, undistinguished frame that held her mother's picture. Always she had planned to buy a better one. Always there was to be time for something she had wanted for herself. Now she had married, and Dick should see her mother's picture in this frame. In almost unconscious haste she thrust the picture face down in the drawer. If only Dick would see her mother's picture in a better frame. She would buy one in New York—a lovely, silver one.

As she packed for the trip Eve reconsidered regretfully that she already seemed a little strange, a little deserted. Eve had stayed so here even after she could have afforded more attractive and comfortable quarters. This decision was prompted entirely by economy. The building was conveniently near her work and provided room and board at a very reasonable rate. Eve preferred to economize than to put the money saved into pretty clothes, and educational advancement. Eve was careful; thrifty. She did nothing without a definite purpose.

By forced marches Sheik Ibn Jad succeeded in crossing the ragged mountains and several days later reached the village of Ja-Ha-Ha-Ha. The heavy weight of the stolen treasure had been safely carried by the least mistrusted of his followers, while the girl captive was placed in the custody of Fahd, whose evil eyes filled the princess with fear and loathing.

So Fahd made his plans and when the evening meal was served, he crept into the dim lighted tent of the Sheik. What it was that Atefa said to Fahd drop something into the bowl of food she had prepared for her father. Later, as the Sheik reached for the receptacle, Atefa stepped from the women's quarters and struck it from his hands. Before she could explain Fahd leaped jo his feet and vanished.

Seizing the girl, Fahd dragged her through the rear entrance of the tent and his own tent. Here the muskad of Ibn Jad was in an uproar. The Sheik was demanding an explanation from the muskad. "Where is my food," cried Atefa's name screaming; "this hellcat has put poison in it!" Then Hirfa came screaming; "this hellcat has put poison in it!" Then Hirfa came screaming; "this hellcat has put poison in it!" Then Hirfa came

150 BACK IN ONE FACTORY

Strike at Stratford Seems Definitely at an End

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP)—Smiling cheerfully, employees of the Preston-Noelling Furniture Company turned back to work today, and for the first time in six weeks machinery whirred inside the plant. More than 150 employees had walked out seeking union recognition and higher wages.

Few other plants were still closed in Stratford. Three of them were closed indefinitely.

What arrangements were made to bring about the re-opening of the Preston-Noelling Plant was not known today. In a brief statement yesterday, it was simply announced a satisfactory agreement had been reached and the plant would re-open.

Whether the opening of the Preston-Noelling factory presages an early end to the strike is unknown.

RAWDON—A drive through the country at this time reveals a great deal of beautiful scenery as the trees are gorgeous with their autumn colorings.

Chicken thieves are busy in the country again and last week one of the victims was one who lost thirteen lovely fowl. The daughter of the loser found the fowl in a nearby drive in and a little later 11 drove out of the yard and the last thing the owner of the fowl were missing.

On Sunday morning Mr. David Tucker of Rawdon was given an ovation at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, he was then only one in attendance that was instrumental in building the church in 1881. The church was dedicated in July 1882 and Mr. Tucker has been a large tees meeting was held on Christmas night, 1881. Mr. Tucker's wife and part and wife were also in attendance on Sunday morning when Dr. G. P. Wall, recording secretary, fittingly paid tribute to the work of Mr. Tucker over fifty years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffs are in Toronto this week as Mr. Jeffs is having an operation on his hip.

PREPARES TO WARD ATTACK BY THE AIR

By Treaty, Germany Not Allowed to Set up Defence

MUCH INCENSED

Bomb Proof Cellars And Drills Against Attacks Started

(By Louis P. Lochner)

Berlin, Oct. 19 (AP)—An unusual decree by Finance Minister Von Schwerin Krosick, indicated today, that Germany is getting ready in earnest to ward off any attacks from the air.

All money expended by private individuals or firms for advance warning Germany's protection from air attacks can under the decree be deducted 100 percent from the income in making income and corporation tax returns.

"By the treaty of Versailles," it reads, "Germany was prohibited to maintain military planes and hence we were denied the most effective weapon against air attacks."

"All the greater is the protection attaches to civil air protection measures calculated to insure the population against dangers arising from the air," it continued, adding:

"In the interests of the population as well as the National defense such measures must be most widely encouraged, also by tax remission."

The defence decree observes that air protection generally concerns industrial undertakings, businesses with a large number of employees and house owners—all of whom should take measures of protection for their employees,' plants, houses, and families.

Measures suggested include the building of bomb-proof cellars, the installing of alarm installing alarm arrangements, and drilling squads in the use of gas masks and fire fighting.

Even for substituting concrete floors instead of wooden ones in strengthening foundation by girders, the tax reductions will be granted.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED

Last Ten Per Cent Cut Likely to Be Re-turned

Ottawa, Oct. 19—Virtual agreement has been reached between representatives of the ten transcontinental railways and their employees, according to advices reaching the government.

In a message received here from one of the labor representatives it was stated that at meeting in Montreal yesterday last two sides agreed on everything but the date on which the last ten per cent. cut would be restored to the men. The telegram, however, gave the details as to the terms on any agreement reached.

Ottawa was inclined to doubt that any announcement of a settlement would be held until Premier Bennett returns to Ottawa at the beginning of next week. Credit is being taken about the reported settlement and thereby averting a strike is given, although official reservation but it is held here that the agreement, when it is definitely reached, should properly be announced by either the railway or the men.

Mr. Bennett all along has been at pains to make it clear that the Government was not interfering in what he regards as a matter for the interested parties and they alone, to settle. For this reason, it is considered he would prefer that Montreal make any announcement.

The impression here is that a large share of the credit for bringing about any settlement which is reached. When negotiations between the railways and the men broke down two months ago, and it seeming that a strike was quite possible he called upon Mr. Robert Fair to prevailed upon them to renew their discussions. Mr. Fair, out of these renewed discussions that the present reported measure of agreement has come.

GERMAN WAR ACE RECALLED TO GERMANY

Will Superintend Building of Aeroplanes

Berlin, Oct. 19 (AP)—Carl Bucker, German war ace who for more than a decade conducted an aircraft factory in Sweden, has been recalled to Germany where he has founded a new plant at Johannisthal, near Berlin.

Bucker is regarded as one of the greatest experts on steel plane construction. It is recalled that before and during the war military fliers were trained at Johannisthal.

World Marks 100th Birthday of Nobel, Who Stimulated War and Sought Peace

Inventor of Dynamite Was One of World's Greatest Pacifists

By MARIKA HELLSTROM

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Stockholm, Oct. 19—One hundred years after the birth of Alfred Emanuel Nobel, the world today finds its people divided into distinctly contradictory groups in sympathy with the contrasting ideals he expounded.

The man who did as much as any other individual, if not more, to make war more horrible and destructive, Nobel, curiously enough, likewise is hailed as one of the world's greatest pacifists of all time.

Nobel was the inventor of dynamite and high explosives, the type of ammunition which made possible the mass killings of the world war. Contradicting the purpose of his own inventions, Nobel later turned against warfare and established a fund for an annual prize in the promotion of world peace.

Father an Engineer

Nobel was born in Stockholm on Oct. 21, 1833. He was known as a "quiet, extremely modest bachelor, belonged to the type of Nordic holding a feeling akin to hatred for crowds. He always had a difficult time in expressing himself, and was happiest when left alone with his work.

It was from his father, Immanuel Nobel a brilliant though somewhat impractical engineer and inventor, that Alfred inherited his great gift for inventing.

When Alfred was born the family was bankrupt. But in a few years Immanuel had become the chief engineer of the Russian government. He had a large laboratory in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) for experiments with mines and other ammunition. The military-minded Czar, Nicholas I, was delighted with his work.

His father's interest in ammunition was extremely important in the development of young Alfred's genius. He and his three brothers virtually were brought up in the laboratory. Instead of going to school they had a tutor who concentrated on mathematics and chemistry.

Sent to America

Immanuel soon recognized Alfred's superior talent. All the brothers went abroad for study. Alfred was sent to the United States to study under the chief engineer of the age—John Ericsson, constructor of the first armored steamship, the Monitor, which played such an important part in the American civil war.

Alfred stayed in America two years then return to Russia. His Russian years gave him his taste for inventing. In 1863 he succeeded, for the first time in the history of chemistry, in causing nitroglycerine to explode.

Nitroglycerine was discovered by Sobrero, an Italian, in 1846. Nobel received his patent for this product a year later.

The first victory on the road to dynamite was won. But this road was a dangerous one.

In 1864 the factory in which Nobel had been manufacturing the new nitroglycerine substance, exploded and killed a younger brother, Emil, and four workmen. This was the first of the terrible accidents which caus.d Nobel's experiments to be forbidden in the vicinity of towns and made the public look upon the new blasting material as a work of the devil.

Discovers Dynamite

Before the experimenters learned how to store and transport nitroglycerine, explosions occurred all over the world. Warehouses, steamers and railroad cars exploded with considerable loss of life.

It was the danger of transporting liquid nitroglycerine which led Nobel to discover dynamite. In 1868 he succeeded in getting nitroglycerine to become absorbed by a type of clay called kieselguhr. The new product was dynamite. It seemed as if a veritable revolution in blasting methods had been about.

Nobel's next invention, blasting gelatine, 10 years later, was even more of a change, for this product combined a greater explosive power with a safety in transportation.

Italy Buys Explosive

Nobel's real interest, lay, however not in solving the problem of a more efficient military explosive. He accomplished this in 1887 when he patented a powder of an entirely new type, smokeless ballistite, which immediately positive a better firing range and automatic explosion.

As soon as the discovery was made known, the European governments began to fear there were laying behind other countries in their military preparedness. In their scramble to get the new powder or a good substitute it is curious to note that Nobel was not the one to benefit. It was, as a matter of fact the Italian who made the fortunes for him.

Italy was the first country to introduce ballistite, paying Nobel large royalties. As a result, France took the opportunity of closing Nobel's laboratory outside of Paris, and confiscating some of his experimental powder for their own scientists. Nobel moved to San Remo, Italy, but the worst affair was yet to come.

The British government had kept in touch with Nobel's experiments through one of his friends. Later the British war office claimed the invention, calling it cordite, in the name of an English physicist.

A "friendly" lawsuit followed, during which Nobel got a lot of unpleasant publicity, lost the right to manufacture ballistite in England, and had to pay the costs of the case according to the extraordinary sum of $140,000.

Turns To Peace

Nobel never survived these bitter experiences. He retired, and two years later, in 1896, died of a heart disease. By an irony of fate the doctors had to prescribe nitroglycerine for him to take internally. (Medically, the substance is called trinitrin to avoid frightening the public.)

The last two years he devoted himself completely to world peace problems. After spending most of his life in the laboratory working out new methods of destruction, he began to attend peace congresses and write pamphlets on peace. He urged nations from fighting each other with the very instrument of death he had put in their hands.

His crowning achievement was the creation of a fund for a series of prizes, chief among them being the one for the promotion of world peace. The other prizes, which he established, to reward research workers and idealists, are in physics, chemistry, medicine and literature. They form a lasting monument to the memory of a great inventor and a great idealist.

COAL PRICES FIXED NOT ALWAYS KEPT

Practices of Quebec Association of Dealers Investigated

Quebec, Oct. 18—Coal prices established by the Quebec Association of coal merchants of the association, according to testimony of Jean Edouard Beauchemin, president and secretary of the association, at the continued hearing of six coal companies charged with forming a combine to maintain the price of coal.

"Were the prices established at your meetings followed by your members?" asked Lucien Normand, counsel for one of the accused companies.

"According to what I was told, they never were," replied Mr. Beauchemin.

"How did you establish those prices?"

"They were figured on the wholesale price. We made allowances for transportation and profit."

Mr. Justice Wilfrid Laliberte intervened to ask witness if "your association did anything but establish a scale of prices?" Mr. Beauchemin replied that the association had been in correspondence with Quebec City officials and that as a result F. X. Galibois was appointed coal inspector.

TENTH OF AUSTRIAN ARMY IN GERMANY?

Public School System in Ontario Under Attack by London Professor

FIRE TO KILL NAZI RIOTERS ORDERS GIVEN

Police at Dornbirn, Austria Will Impress Populace

RAILS AND GOVT.

Immediate Dismissal of Workmen Opposing Government

Vienna, Oct. 20 (AP)—The secretly circulated Socialist organ "Wahrheit" said today that approximately one-tenth of Austria's army—more than seven battalions—has deserted and gone to Germany.

These soldiers which it asserted actually are on German soil do not include the Nazi army within this side of the border and the troops between them in the so-called "bazbod-wire border."

The latter line stretches as harmless as any pasture fence with an average of twelve men, mostly auxiliary guards recruited from the Heimwehr (home guard), protecting each twenty kilometre stretch (about 12½ miles).

The paper cites recent instances of Austrian government officials under duty immediately seizing the opportunity to cross into Germany.

If the Wahrheit's figures are correct, this means that 20,000 men have been "invaded" by seven battalions of Austrian soldiers and at least 30,000 civilian adherents Nazi.

This figure does not include Chancellor Adolf Hitler, who himself crossed into Germany some years ago.

Serious Situation.

Orders to shoot to kill Nazi demonstrators were issued today to the police of Dornbirn in the Vorarberg district to impress the populace with the seriousness of the situation.

The federal government yesterday warned the Dornbirn populace that henceforth any one refusing to halt when ordered to do so by the police will be fired on.

In the recent revival of Nazi activity there has been a tendency shown by the populace of certain towns in Styria, Vorarlberg and Carinthia to impress the demonstrations rather than prevent them.

Swastika Signs.

In the Styrian town of Weiz, where streets, houses and billboards suddenly blossomed with Wreath-cross (Nazi) emblems overnight, former Burgomaster Reithofer and his wife were forced by gendarmes to scrape them off.

Nevertheless the hoisting of Nazi flags from factory chimneys and decorating whole trains with swastika has continued.

Dismissal of Railway Men.

The government today made public a decree authorizing the immediate dismissal of railroad employees and the immediate withdrawal of all the pensions of inactive workers "who further the anti-government movements."

It is not apparent yet whether the railroad decree would be applied first against the Nazi workers or the members of the Socialist railway unions.

Instructions were circulated among the Socialist railway workers to be prepared to strike if their orders are touched. The federal railways have 65,000 active employees and 72,000 pensioners.

Cincinnati, Oct. 19 (AP) — A man with a moustache robbed Frank Smith, Harry Anglin, 24, was taken into custody. During a night in jail pulled out his moustache, using his fingers for tweezers. The relatory victim failed yet to attempt to identify him.

Will Crisis By Germany's Stand Again Bring Change in Map of Europe?

With political observers regarding the crisis created by the withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference as the most serious in Europe since the months preceding the world war, some fear has been expressed that the European nations may be thrown into another conflict which again may change geography of the continent. The layout shows, left, map of Europe in 1914; right, Europe today, and world leaders who are central figures in the current crisis.

Premier MacDonald of England; President Roosevelt of the United States; Premier Daladier of France Premier Mussolini of Italy; Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria; Dictator Stalin of Russia and Chancellor Hitler of Germany. The U.S. announces it will take no part.

SCORES HUNT BABY OF TWO LOST IN WOOD

Fears Felt Child May Have Succumbed to Cold

LOST THURSDAY

Lindsay District Farmers Comb Woods For Trace of Babe

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Lost in the woods since yesterday, the two year old son of Ellsworth Jackson, of Kwan, 13 miles east of Kinmount, was sought today by scores of men from Kinmount and the surrounding district. Grave fears are held for his safety as it is doubtful he could survive the cold, stormy weather of last night.

The child wandered from his home yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and when his absence was noted an immediate search was started. When he could not be located more searchers were called in and the woods surrounding his home thoroughly scoured.

Volunteers lined the woods throughout the night in vain hope of locating the boy and returned this morning to join the other workers in the district are been drowned.

HOTEL BURNS AT MUSKOKA

Forty Thousand Dollar Loss of Milford Bay House

Bracebridge, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Loss estimated at $40,000 was caused by fire which destroyed the Milford Bay House, Muskoka summer resort, late last night. Heavy rain prevented destruction of adjacent buildings, including the general store and post office.

The hotel was closed for the season and unoccupied. Otherwise the fire, rapid and fierce, would surely have taken lives. Fire Chief A. E. Ecclestone, of the Bracebridge department said. His apparatus was called to Milford Haven to cope with the outbreak and succeeded in confining it to the hotel.

A short-circuit in an electric switch box is believed to have been the cause. The hotel was a three-storey building, containing rooms for 50 guests. So fierce was the blaze that nearby residents were unable to enter the building to save furniture. In an hour the whole structure was a smoldering mass.

BURIED AT COBOURG

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—A. D. Miles, president of the Central Manitoba Mines, who died suddenly on Wednesday on a train to Winnipeg, was buried today in St. Peter's Anglican cemetery here. A brief funeral service was held in the Chapel of the cemetery with a few friends present.

ROBBINS TO FACE FOUR CHARGES IN ONE COURT

Charge Laid at Paris is Transferred to Brantford Court

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Harry M. Robbins will be tried before Magistrate J. R. Blake on all four charges he faces, it was decided today. Bail was set at $5,000.

Adjournment until October 30th, was made Robbins pleaded not guilty to the charge of drunken driving last Wednesday when he was found at the wheel of his ditched car near Paris. The case was transferred here at the request of Magistrate Thomson, of Paris, made in a letter to Magistrate Blake.

OFFICIAL VISIT PAID STIRLING

D.D.G.M. Cooper of Picton And Masonic Brethren in Attendance

Stirling Village, which has for years held the distinction of being able to attract a record attendance of the Masonic brethren on their regular fraternal meetings, added host last evening to brethren from all parts of Hastings 19th district on the occasion of the official visit of the District Deputy Grand Master J. C. Cooper of Picton.

Following the exemplification of the Second Degree, the banquet, held in the Orange Hall, Grand Master Ronald Hall, was presided over by Bro. W. Fielding Lodge, P. M. McGuire, toastmaster. The toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed with an able address by V. Wor. Bro. Dr. J. F. Wills, of Stirling, with responses by Rt. Wor. Bro. Cooper and Chas. Bullard, Immediate Past D.D.G.M.

An eloquent address, following that of the Rt. Wor. Bro. Bullard, was delivered by Bro. Fox, Picton, who gave an interesting address on the workings of the present M.R.A. and who gathered first hand knowledge of the subject. Bro. Cole, he explained had been brought into effect in the United States, while he had been attending this summer the Summer School at Harvard University, Boston, Mass.

The toast to the visitors was proposed by Wor. Bro. F. A. Carlaw, secretary of the Stirling Lodge in humorous address, brief responses were given by Bros. Maidens, H. B. Petterly, J. W. Barlow and by Wor. Bros. Arthur Hill, of the Belleville Lodge, W. J. Perrin, Purnela Lodge, Sidney Crew, Tweed Lodge, William Pollard, Master of Franck Lodge, Frankford and others.

Community singing which was enjoyed during the evening was led by Bro. R. R. Patterson.

GIVEN FIREST READING

Wellington, New Zealand, Oct. 20 (CP) Cable)—A bill to establish a central bank for New Zealand, one of the main features of the legislation forecast in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of parliament last month, was today given first reading in the House of Representatives.

Legislation to establish a reserve fund, another chief feature through the Dian legislature.

Overture to Moscow by Roosevelt is Rumored

Washington, Oct. 20.—(AP)—An important announcement regarding the long closed diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia appears in Prospect, but whether it would come first from Washington or Moscow was not clear this afternoon.

Reports from Moscow that an exchange of correspondence between the two governments would be released last today brought the denial from the White House.

Secretary Hull smiled when asked about the reports and replied:

"I will have to wait until I have checked over the latest reports."

It was known that President Roosevelt has an important declaration in mind for later today, but his subject remained undisclosed.

Moscow, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports circulated here today that President Roosevelt had made a direct overture to Michael Kalinin, President of the U.S.S.R., looking toward recognition.

The reports said the Russian government is awaiting the Soviet Government's willingness to consider the question.

According to this unverified information, Kalinin had responded in cordial terms, leaving Washington to get the time and the place for the negotiations.

COVENANT IS STILL BINDING

League Officials Says Return of Germany Not Difficult

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)

Geneva, Oct. 20 (AP)—League of Nations officials emphasized today that Germany is bound by the covenant of the League despite its resignation, since the covenant is a part of the Treaty of Versailles.

The point was emphasized in this the official view that the withdrawal of the German notification, which was regarded in international circles here as more permanently serious than the departure of the Reich from the Disarmament Conference.

Simultaneously, the League officials declared that the withdrawal of Germany and Japan from the League assembly condemned her Manchurian policy. Geneva announced her intention as a protest that the League has not done enough for her. Hence, League quarters believe it will be easier for the Reich to return to Geneva than for Japan, but they admit this hinges on whether concessions are made to Germany.

WOMAN IS SENTENCED

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)—Pleading guilty to three charges of fraud and one of uttering, all involving worthless cheques, Betty Davenport today was sentenced to six months on each of the fraud charges and remanded for sentence on the uttering charge. Her sentence runs concurrently with a one year definite and two and one half year indeterminate sentence given in various Ontario cities and towns on similar charges.

RETICENT AS TO RANSOM RECOVERY

Washington, Oct. 20—(AP)—Justice Department officials today declined to comment on reports that a note, author of the Lindbergh ransom money had been discovered.

Such reticence is customary in cases of the kind, officials feeling that to give out details as they develop hinders them in their efforts to apprehend the criminals for whom they are searching.

STOCKS RALLY ON ALL MARTS

Wheat at One Time up Five Cents Per Bushel

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—Commodities and stocks rallied briskly this afternoon coincident with reports of progressive recognition of Russia by the United States.

Wheat at one time was up the limit of five cents a bushel while cotton climbed $1 a pound $5, though gains in both markets were only partially held.

Gananoque Doctor Honored For Research

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP) Success in attempts to alleviate the cough of diphtheria patients and cases sufferer has earned Dr. W. Basil Thompson, young Canadian scientist an opportunity to further his studies and researches in New York where he will study at the Rendle Mussolini Institute under a scholarship awarded him by the International Union Against Tuberculosis.

Says He's "Guilty of Finding Goods in Ditch"

London, Oct., Oct. 20—Held by police for three weeks for allegedly stealing a bicycle from a Canadian Pacific Railway freight as it was travelling from Woodstock to London, August 25, Edgar Bedegood, London, was today charged with theft. Bedegood announced he had the information against the prisoner was withdrawn and he was discharged until next Thursday for trial.

Asked to plead on the new charge the accused said "I am guilty of finding them in the ditch."

CONSTABLE'S STORY IS NOT ADMITTED

Cobourg, Oct. 20.—In the Lourila murder trial today Judge McEvoy, ruled against crown evidence when he refused to allow Constable Carey's testimony, and the jury was returned to the courtroom.

Counsel has set through his trial so far in apparent indifference to proceedings. Occasionally he leans forward to hear evidence but slumps back in his seat within a few moments.

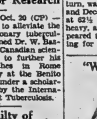
DOPING RACEHORSES ON INCREASE SAYS OFFICIAL

Drive Launched to Ban This Torture on Animals

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—The doping of racehorses has increased to an alarming rate in the past few years, John McVah Wilson, managing director, declared at a meeting of the Toronto Humane Society here.

Mr. Wilson said help had been promised from the department of the Provincial Attorney General in launching a "vigorous offensive against this agonizing torture of horses."

BAPTISTS AGAINST BEER-WINE POLICY



Brantford, Oct. 20—A resolution was presented to the Baptist convention would protest any beer and wine policy for Ontario. "We do not want to bludgeon governments, but we do want to see our young people are not led into temptation. We do not want to bow our knee to compromise as a system which would lead thousands of young people into temptation every day. That is justification for social service work."

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET

Winnipeg, Oct. 20 (CP)— Wheat prices, influenced by a 5-cent decline at Chicago and early easiness at Liverpool, slipped off about ½ cents about a cent. At noon quotations were ½ to ¾ cent lower than previous close.

October wheat, leading the upturn, was trading at 57¾, November and December both at 57¾ and May at 60¾ cents. Offerings were not heavy, and most of the support appeared to be in the nature of buying for continental account.

"WAR?—"BUNK!"

Ralph D. Blumenfeld, chairman of the London Daily Express and its editor for 20 years, pictured as he arrived at New York for a visit. Commenting on the European crisis, Blumenfeld said the talk of war being imminent was "bunk." He said that in the United States and Britain mood shoulder to shoulder they could make any war impossible.

EDUCATION OF CHILD FAILS TO HIT MARK?

Prof. Liddy Says Child Not Taught to Think For Self

ART ELEMENT

Music, Astronomy, Civics And Politics Are Suggested

London, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP) Ontario's public school system is missing its spark, is suffering up children's minds with material they will never use and at the same time is failing in its purpose of teaching the child to think, Dr. R. H. Liddy, professor of philosophy and psychology at University of Western Ontario, told the London Teachers' Institute in convention here today.

He listened four principles he believed would improve the system.

1—Studies should be in place of a prefer emphasis on self-reliance, encouraging the child for themselves.

2—The elements of descriptive astronomy would give the child a greater insight into the world in which he lives and make him feel more at home in it.

3—A greater emphasis should be placed on music and politics.

4—Teaching of music should be made compulsory and its appreciation and the elements of reading music taught. It would prove a great factor in awakening in the child the desire for fine artistic tastes. Hitler is sadly lacking in many children.

FRUIT PRICES UNCHANGED

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—Wholesale prices on fruit and vegetables as supplied by Wnille and Co. were reported unchanged today.

FINED FOR BLACKJACK

London, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP) — Fined $20 and costs, Norman Brant County, was fined $20 in police court today for carrying a blackjack. His companion, Willard Issac, of the same place was allowed his liberty with a $5, fine.

DRUG PEDDLER GIVEN LONG TERM, LASHES

Must Put Pestilential Vultures of Class Beyond Drug

FINE IMPOSED

Recommends Extradition of New Yorker For Trial

Montreal, Oct. 20 (CP)—Harry Davis, 30, convicted two weeks ago of conspiring to smuggle into Canada drugs valued at $300,000, was today sentenced by Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields to 14 years in the penitentiary and ten lashes. In addition a fine of $3,000 was imposed.

The traffic in drugs must be stopped, his Lordship said.

One way to do it is to "put you and the pestilential vultures of your class beyond the drug—to put you where the helpless people cannot be corrupted or even dumped by your nefarious trade and traffic."

Davis, a former night club proprietor here, was charged with conspiring with Nicola Brecher, New York City, and Jake Polaklewitz, Philadelphia, to import the illicit narcotic. Polaklewitz has been brought back from Paris and is awaiting trial in New York on narcotic charges.

Brecher was also charged in New York but a Grand Jury there refused a true bill on the grounds the alleged drug offences were committed in Canada. The Chief Justice recommended efforts be made to extradite Brecher so he could be put on trial here.

CAR TO BE SHIPPED WEST NOW IN CITY

Farmers and Urban Dwellers Contribute Generously.

A generous response from the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church in respect to the carload of vegetables, commodities and clothing, that is being shipped to Western Canada has been received and by Saturday night will be loaded and shipped. The car was at Shannonville on Wednesday, where it was half filled and then moved over to Madoc, where some more was added. The car was then brought to Belleville and will be in this city on Friday and Saturday. The thanks of the Presbytery of the C.G.I.T. and its officials for the arrangements made for the handling of the commodities and the taking of the car to the west free of charge. There is a great need in the drought-stricken areas for clothing, vegetables and other accessories and there is still plenty of room in the car. It has been spotted at the Bridge sheds and there will be some one in charge during its stay in the city. All are asked to contribute and make this a thank offering from the United Churches in this area in those in the west.

BELIEVE FURTHER DREDGING PROBABLE

Government men, who are working but saying nothing, are again on the job of sounding in the flood waters Friday morning, with the same apparatus for the work that was done when they were in the location of Cooper's coal docks on the west side of the bridge. It is believed that further dredging will be done in the harbor. When questioned, members of the local Harbor Commission stated that they had not been consulted about further sounding or dredging. "It looks as if the government intends to do some more work around here," though," stated one member.

RE-BALLAST PART OF ROADBED

Maintenance men of the Canadian National Railway are at work south of the city re-ballasting sections of the track and right of way near the South Station. The gravel is being delivered to the workers on large flat cars. Repairs are also being made to the ties and worn sections of the rail.

LAND PURCHASE IS SUGGESTED

Following receipt of a letter despatched to Ottawa by Mayor Geo. O. Tice of this city, calling attention of the Department of National Defence to the desirability of the government's owning the entire block of land on the location of the old Griffin's Opera House, as an extension of the drill grounds, a representative of the Department was said to have been in Belleville this week surveying the probabilities of the location. It is believed, unofficially, that some disposition of the entire land east of the present Armouries will be made by the Department. No reply has yet been received by Mayor Tice.

MOOSE FROLIC IS WELL ATTENDED

Swelled by the attendance of visitors from Port Hope, Peterboro, Oshawa and other points outside points, the Moose frolic held in their Front street club rooms last evening, was a complete success for the local officers. One of the largest crowds in some time graced the event, Mr. Geo. Cornish was the lucky winner of the door prize.

MYSTERY MEN SEEN IN BOAT

Fisherman Puzzled at Strange Query Made of Him

One could probe deeper into the casual story told by Dave Lucas, transient angler from the north of this city, of a man in a boat which glided noiselessly into the commercial dock late last night and died for an instant at the dock while one of the crew, startled, came to disguise, asked in broken, stuttering English their errand, and then, when they had, he said, then untied and with a steady, powerful stroke swung down the bay into the gloom.

It rained steadily last night, but Lucas, sitting in his tent-mouth, angled from the pier. His quarry was small and he had caught several. Then he saw it.

He described the boat as being long, sleek low-hulled and powerful. It was deep gray in color and appeared, to be of steel construction. It carried no name and no lights. Its engines were quiet. The boat, he said, then untied and with a steady, powerful stroke swung down the bay into the gloom.

It rained steadily last night, but Lucas, sitting in his tent-mouth, angled from the pier. His quarry was small and he had caught several. Then he saw it.

He described the boat as being long, sleek low-hulled and powerful. It was deep gray in color and appeared, to be of steel construction. It carried no name and no lights. Its engines were quiet. The boat, he said, then untied and with a steady, powerful stroke swung down the bay into the gloom.

Skilful manoeuvring placed the craft broadside to the west side of the pier. Two men, both dark-haired and a man scrambled after it. He was equal, heavily booted in clothing, and wore a dark mackinaw pulled upward his chin. He approached the fisherman astounded in the pier lights. The boat motor hummed softly behind him while he began spoke.

"Is the city a-dark" requested the stranger in guttural accent. Then: "And Kingston, is how far? You are fishing, yes?"

Satisfied with the directions given, the stranger cast off the line and withdrew. Lucas followed a short distance, saw the boat swing in line of the strange boat. For an instant as the cabin door was thrown open, there was a feeble glow of a kerosene oil light through the door he saw three men sitting around a table. One was bearded. The door slammed shut; the pulsing motor deepened in tone and the propeller throbbed. In a swirl of white water the long, lean boat moved down the dock and cleaved into the darkness. In a few seconds even the heavy throbbing of the underwater exhaust was inaudible.

Lucas wound the fish line around the pole, picked up four mackinaw and set and went home. On his way he casually mentioned to a friend that a strange boat was running around the harbor without running lights.

Bay bridge tenders were unaware of the passage of the mysterious craft last night.

"Maybe bootleggers," summed up Harbormaster Robert Grady, who was also acquainted with the story.

Holloway Street Congregation Prepares for Diamond Jubilee

West Belleville Church Will Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary on Sunday —in "Seventies" Foundation of Present Large Congregation Laid as Methodism in Belleville Grew — Historical Sketches Showing Highlight Events in Sixty Years of Service

PLANS have been carefully made for the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the organization of Holloway Street United Church, which is to be held on Sunday, October 22nd and on Tuesday, October 24th. This congregation, which has served the religious needs of a large section of the city from the south side of the bay, is now a thriving, completely organized in all departments of activity, and is showing steady progress.

Of course the city has grown in that time but the advance of Holloway Street congregation in membership and in service to the city has outstripped the growth in population of the city. From a small nucleus who first gathered in the early seventies, there has come out to form the congregation a very large number of members with 446 personnel.

Neal, who has impressed not only the congregation but also the city and district with his earnestness and his unusual qualifications for the great task he is accomplishing. Back of him stands a line of devoted ministers whose names are remembered by Belleville for the splendid work they have done in local history. These men were appointed as pastors by the Bay Street Methodist Church, Belleville, as follows:

Rev. J. H. Locke, 1878-81; Rev. J. S. Shorey, 1881-83; Rev. Jeffers, D. D., 1883-84; Rev. J. J. Rice, 1884-87; Rev. R. M. Pope, 1887-90; Rev. T. J. Edmiston, 1890-93; Rev. J. A. McClelland, 1893-95; Rev. R. Cade, 1895-98; Rev. C. W. Watch, 1898-1901; Rev. J. R. Real, 1901-04; Rev. R. H. Leitch, 1904-07; Rev. B. Greatrix, 1907-11; Rev. A. R. Sanderson, 1911-15; Rev. J. N. Clary, 1915-19; Rev. A. H. Foster, 1919-22; Rev. A. Brown, D.D., 1922-25; Rev. L. S. Wight, B. A., 1925-30; Rev. Harold B. Neal, 1930.

The present official board is composed of: Chairman, Rev. Harold B. Neal; recording steward, A. C. Bryer; financial secretary, H. W. Quincy (served more than 40 years as class leader); assistant, Rev. H. B. Neal; J. N. Hudgins, secretary; T. Ketcheson; Rev. J. D. P. Knox; D. Poole; G. T. Woodley; A. Beairsto; W. Thorne; J. Cordes; H. Ward; G. Hall; A. Campbell; B. Langdon. Stewards—C. McGuire, chairman; S. Pinkle, secretary; G. Moore, envelope steward; G. Dobbs, treasurer; C. Wilson; R. McMurray; O. Stover; C. Peterson; G. Lloyd; E. Hubbs; C. Ostrom; F. McMasters; A. Sills. Sunday school superintendent since 1874—James Ross, F. Plevlyn, Walter Osborne, Prof. G. A. Dvalid, Holloway Street Church as it was up to 1913 when these additions and improvements were made, including the construction of a new entrance.

But recently two new members have been added on profession of faith. Always as one of the most successful guides of a church is development in the progress of its Sunday School and herein Holloway Street is particularly happy. Loyal teachers and officers with a devoted pastor serve an enrolment of 304 boys and girls and young people and adults. The young people's work is steadily growing at a sure foundation and has carried on and is carrying on a splendid program for the development and enrichment of the young life of the church. One of the hopeful signs of vitality is of course the missionary department, and in this branch of service Holloway and W.M.S. plays no small part in the field with a large and active membership.

The Women's Association of Holloway Street has always been noted. It has always been its aim to be among the leading organizations. One evidence to its credit is, it has about fourteen hundred dollars in its treasury for contemplated church renovation.

Men who sometimes seem to play a less important part in church life in some centres than seems good for their spiritual life, here are served in a way which makes this charge inapplicable to the men of Holloway Street. The Men's Club meets regularly in the fall and winter season, bringing outstanding speakers to their assemblies and developing a splendid spirit of service and fellowship among the men of the congregation.

The musical portion of worship has never been neglected in Holloway Street. The choir has recently been reorganized under the direction of Mr. Clifford Temple, organist and choirmaster. At present choir is in process of development, holding regular practices. From this body important contributions to the musical service are confidently anticipated.

With such a well-organized religious body, the members of the congregation are looking forward to the diamond Jubilee of Sunday with a great deal of interest and to the Tuesday night gathering. Rev. Dr. Jesse Arms, secretary of the United Church Board of Foreign Missions an outstanding minister and missionary in the church, has been chosen to deliver the sermons on the anniversary. In order to reach as many as possible of the former members of the congregation an historical sketch has been prepared and sent out to members residing outside the city in the hope that a number of them may be able to come back for the jubilee.

Devoted Ministers.

For three years Holloway congregation has been under the pastorate and ministry of the Rev. Harold B. Neal, who has impressed not only the congregation but also the city and district with his earnestness and his unusual qualifications for the great task he is accomplishing. Back of him stands a line of devoted ministers whose names are remembered by Belleville for the splendid work they have done in local history. These men were appointed as pastors by the Bay Street Methodist Church, Belleville, as follows:

Rev. J. H. Locke, 1878-81; Rev. J. S. Shorey, 1881-83; Rev. Jeffers, D. D., 1883-84; Rev. J. J. Rice, 1884-87; Rev. R. M. Pope, 1887-90; Rev. T. J. Edmiston, 1890-93; Rev. J. A. McClelland, 1893-95; Rev. R. Cade, 1895-98; Rev. C. W. Watch, 1898-1901; Rev. J. R. Real, 1901-04; Rev. R. H. Leitch, 1904-07; Rev. B. Greatrix, 1907-11; Rev. A. R. Sanderson, 1911-15; Rev. J. N. Clary, 1915-19; Rev. A. H. Foster, 1919-22; Rev. A. Brown, D.D., 1922-25; Rev. L. S. Wight, B. A., 1925-30; Rev. Harold B. Neal, 1930.

The present official board is composed of: Chairman, Rev. Harold B. Neal; recording steward, A. C. Bryer; financial secretary, H. W. Quincy (served more than 40 years as class leader); assistant, Rev. H. B. Neal; J. N. Hudgins, secretary; T. Ketcheson; Rev. J. D. P. Knox; D. Poole; G. T. Woodley; A. Beairsto; W. Thorne; J. History.

The past history of Holloway Street Church is inevitably linked up with the whole religious movement in Belleville, so that no history of the church is complete without a good deal of the early history of Methodism in the city. The west side of Bay Mills river. The following facts stand out as landmarks in the religious history of Belleville and of the following Street congregation:

1790—The year 1790 was made memorable by the coming of William Losee, a Methodist Methodist preacher in this district, which he named the next year Upper Canada. He was a probationer of the New York Conference authorized to visit the north country. He crossed the St. Lawrence in January 1790 and preached as he journeyed through Maitida, Kingston, and on through to Adolphustown where he found some of his former U.E.L. friends and preached in their homes.

1791—In February, 1791, William Losee came on his new field, taking up appointments in Kingston, Ernestown, Fredericksburg, Adolphustown and Prince Edward. In the house of Paul Ruff, Adolphustown, on the 22nd of May that year, he preached his first class.

1792—Early in 1792 the congregation at Hay Bay (beginning in Paul Ruff's house) prepared for the building of a church. The present Hay Bay Church was the first Methodist Church in Upper Canada. The first quarterly meeting was held on Saturday, August 15, 1792, in Paroty's barn, Ernestown. On the following day, Sunday, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed. This was the first administration of the Methodist Church in Upper Canada.

1795—The first Methodist Minister visited Myers' Creek, as Belleville was then known. He was the Rev. Purvis Dunbarr.

1802—First church formed called Smith's Creek, which extended from Smith's Creek, as Port Hope was then called, to Belleville. The Minister was Rev. Thomas Madden, and the second was Seward, Mr. Samuel Reid, Mr. Thurlow.

1816—First class in Belleville organized. The members were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Abel Gilbert, Mrs. Asa Meacham, Mr. Conrad Mills, Miss Phoebe Fields and Mr. Wood. The preacher was Mr. John Reynolds.

1817 — Belleville circuit formed with Rev. Israel Chamberlain as its first minister.

1818—First Methodist Church was built on Pinnacle street.

1824 — Extension of present Bridge Street Church laid on May 24th by Rev. Wm. Ryerson.

1825—Bridge Street Church was dedicated.

1872—February 2, committee appointed by the Bridge Street officials met to consider the question of church extension in West Belleville and to report suitable site for building purposes. November 3, the following trustees were elected by the Bridge Street Board for the new property: Messrs. Wm. Bleecker, Holloway and Dunbar streets: Thos. McIntosh, J. Vandusen, R. Richardson, J. Diamond, W. Bleecker, J. G. Yeomans, L. W. Yeomans, James Reid, Thos. Cook. The first building erected was a small frame structure and services were conducted the same year as an appointment of Bridge Church, now Bridge Street United Church.

1874—Sunday School organized in the new church.

1876—August 18, cornerstone laid by Mr. Jas. H. Meacham, Belleville.

1878—On the present brick structure was erected at a cost of $30,000. James Wicket and Sons were the contractors for the brick work and plastering. The carpenter work was done by Mr. Lewis Ross. The work was done by day labor. Architect, W. Jarrett.

1878—On May 31 at a meeting of the Bridge Street Official Board the following resolution was adopted, "That in the judgment of this board it would be wise to have a site in readiness for this circuit to be divided that Holloway Street Church be the head of a new circuit. Bridge Street Church to supply the new circuit for three years."

1882—That year were many alterations were made and interior decorated.

1926—On June 10th, Holloway St. Methodist Church, by the consummation of Union, became a part of the United Church of Canada.

150 MEN NOW ARE WORKING

Considerable Progress is Made on Sewer Operation

A new system of allotment of work for those on the relief projects in the city went into effect this morning and will continue until further orders. Each morning at seven-thirty o'clock, from the lists that have been previously posted, the relief office will call the names of the men who will replace others on the work. On Friday morning thirteen men were called from the grey paths waited in front of the hall.

At present one hundred and fifty four men are employed on the sewer

Future of Senior Baseball in City Not Decided Until Annual Meeting of C.O.B.L.

Meeting However Unanimous For Senior Ball to Be Played

PRES. RE-ELECTED

Ulster Stadium Project Fully Discussed by Gathering

Chas. Meagher, who so successfully guided the destinies of the Belleville National Baseball Club as President in 1933 was re-elected to that office at the annual meeting of that organization held at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The meeting proved a success from every angle with the majority of last year's directors re-elected to office unanimously. Fully 40 enthusiastic baseball lovers of this city were present to assure the officers of the whole-hearted support of the fans in 1934.

The first item of business completed was the decision of the meeting regarding the future success of senior baseball in Belleville and, after some controversy on the subject, Raymond Carr moved, that the organization definitely operate in senior baseball club in Belleville during the season of 1934. The motion met with the hearty approval of all. Following this decision the officers were elected and are as follows: President, Chas. Meagher; 1st Vice President—Arthur Young; 2nd Vice President—Raymond Carr; Secretary Treasurer—Harry Drew; Chairman of Finance and Advertising—H. G. Woodley; Chairman of games—Jack Carter; Chairman of Transportation—Clarence Clapp. Other executive officers will be added to the above list by the officers now holding office. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Meagher and his 1933 executive for the capable way they handled the club's affairs in 1933. Retiring secretary-treasurer Gerald Lynch viewed the meeting that the club had finished the past season in a good financial condition and enjoyed a small bank balance.

New Project Explained

The chief item of business discussed was the question of what league the National would participate in during the coming season. Mr. Raymond Carr was called on and candidly explained the situation heralded Ulster Stadium project, that has been the talk in Eastern Ontario baseball circles of late. Mr. Carr produced facts and figures obtained from the Financial Secretary of the Toronto Ulster loop, regarding their affairs as to stadium rentals, their league, It was proposed, that the Ulster loop, composed of five teams in Toronto—namely: Beaches, Native Sons; Valleyview; Danforths and Broadviews, should combine with Oshawa, Peterboro and Belleville forming a strong eight-teamed senior loop. Mr. Carr assured the meeting that this baseball, under flood lights at Ulster Stadium would be played in Toronto while the local games would be played to suit the wishes of the fans. Later the club was apprised that the winner of such a proposed league would enter into play-off with the St. Lawrence League and the Northern Ontario League, of which Belleville joined the ranks of the new organization. Eligibilities were also present as to attendances in Toronto financial returns, etc.

Should Await Decision

Although the project was received favorably the meeting felt that owing to the fact that the O.B.L. had not yet disbanded the National's await that body's final decision in the matter. It was pointed out that if Oshawa and Peterboro decided to join the Ulster loop then the Nationals would be forced to follow suit. But, if the C.O.B.L. again functions in 1934 the meeting decided to stay with the old organization, that has served baseball so long and well in this district. Those present were not in favor of operating a three teamed Central loop as here-to-fore, however. Committees were appointed to get into immediate communication with President Max Swanston and executive to ascertain the possibilities of a five or six teamed C.O.B.L. for 1934. It was felt that Belleville could field a team suitable for competition in either of the above mentioned leagues but, the newly elected executive with no have definite and authentic information relating to the intentions of the O.B.L. moguls before they make any definite move in regards to senior baseball for 1934 in Belleville.

The question of electing a civic governing body to guide the destinies of junior, intermediate and senior baseball for the coming year was left in abeyance for the time being. All teams present were highly impressed with the idea advocating their opinion as being in favor of such a body being elected or chosen, as the case may be. At present, however, the project could not be dealt with owing to the two propositions on hand regarding senior baseball. At the close of the meeting a feeling of optimism towards the future of Belleville baseball was quite evident.

Recreation Alleys

The Junior C. League opened their season at the Recreation Alleys when four teams got away at o'clock.

The Rovers took all four points from the Bankers. For the Rovers, H. Salsbury was high with 644, and for the Bankers, S. Redden was high with 556.

The Lab. took three points from the Chain Store Manager with Mr. James high for the Lab with 565. R. J. Hennessy was high man for the Chain Store Managers with 477.

The Senior League opened their season at 9.15 with six teams facing the starting line.

The Bank of Commerce took all four points from the Belleville Fruit with C. Hawkins, H. Meen was high with 610 and for the Belleville Fruit, R. Miles was high man with 600.

The Belleville Golf Club and Recreation broke even with two points each. For the Belleville Golf, C. Davison was high with 677, and for the Recreation F. Domenico had a nice three string of 704.

The S.E.A.C. took three points from the Ontario Intelligencer. For the South End Aces and Bowden shared the honors with 653 each and C. Tye with 596 was high for the Printers.

MANY ATTEND FOWL SUPPER

Allan's Mills—Miss Foley of Springbrook, spent Wednesday evening with Miss Margaret McKeown.

Mr. Tom Prest is busy threshing in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mr. and Mrs. R. Reid visited Mr. and Mrs. Cy. Anderson of Heath Falls on Sunday.

Several from here attended the fowl supper or St. Thomas Church. It being the 50th. anniversary of that church.

Mrs. C. Reid, Mrs. D. Brown and Mrs. Charles Hoehs were confirmed last Saturday, McGill would have been present but unfortunately

It is Hamilton Cubs at Sarnia and St. Michael's Majors at Toronto Bobby Beach here in the O.B.F.U. Only an unlooked-for victory by the Cubs over Imperials on Thanksgiving interest in this race which Barrie is favored to win.

The drama will be packed into the Roughrider-Westerns tilt where the best of the imported United States players lead the way. Here, the throwing will be done mostly by American-bred, notably Johnson from Temple College and Perina. Elsewhere will have a Canadian, Welch, to dial with in the kicking exchanges.

The Roughrider wingline, experienced in many quarters to crimshe where the tanks of Capers and Arpot struck it, is still standing. The worst is apparently over in this quarter as Montreal's throng line is being warned to dig the cleats a little deeper and lick.

The hefty, Perina and Pete Jostus may blast some holes in the Ottawa flank but there is no reason to believe Sprague and Bushby won't get that to Montreal's line-too, in the long run it may depend on the ballcarrying in the early days. One sensational Ottawa backfielder and Perry, retained Wheeler.

Both Tommy and Jack Taylor, Argonaut ace have established anything Perry has done this season but the Wheeler star is as dangerous as ever.

It will be a crippled McGill team that faces Western at Montreal. Don Young, all-eastern flying wing last season and McGill captain, has a sprained ankle and Tom Richert, first-string halfback, has a leg tendon in the Queen's game last Saturday. McGill could also be taken by Larry Byrne, former Loyola back-

BASEBALL SEASON OVER AT LAST

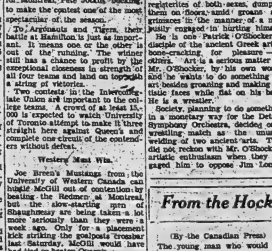
They had to wait until the snowstorm was over before they could play, but Sidney managed to put on a great exhibition of baseball. The last game of the amateur baseball season, as far as Canada is concerned, took place at Guelph on Wednesday afternoon when Southampton defeating Picton to win the Ontario title. They won by an 8-2 score. The teams had played two games before, each winning one game. Two famous southpaws, "Lefty" Goldsmith for Southampton and "Lefty" Phillips for Picton, battled it out in the first two games with sensational performances. In the third game Goldsmith was the better in a cold, weather. Above is a scene from the game, showing a close play at the plate. The Baker of Southampton being forced out. Ralph Frederick is catcher shown.

Big Four Leadership at Stake When Teams Meet

Montreal or Ottawa Will Be on Top When Sun Sets.

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—For the first time in a half-dozen years, a period of extreme and unrelieved anguish in capital football circles, Ottawa has a "big game" tomorrow. It is the most important game of the day in the east, a conflict from which will emerge a favorite for the interprovincial union championship.

The Big Four leadership will be at stake when the Roughriders line up against Montreal, also unbeaten. Each team has been Hamilton and Argos, and each accomplished the twin-triumph by grim fighting. The unhappy prospect faces both that they may not be so fortunate in the second half of the schedule.



But tomorrow Ottawa throws her Abe Elowits from Michigan State against Montreal's Carl Perina from Pennsylvania, her own Andy Tommy against Montreal's own Ootie Perry and the Elowits punts against those of Hock Welch. There are other angles, such as Lorne Johnson's throwing arm on the Ottawa side, Dave, Sprague's plunging, and, for Montreal, Jack Bushby booking to make the contest one of the most spectacular of the season.

The Argonauts and Tigers, their battle at Hamilton is just as important. It means one or the other's fall of the running. Toronto still has a chance to profit by the exceptional clemency in strength of all four teams and land on top with a string of victories.

Two contests in the Intercollegiate Union are important in the college teams. A crowd of at least 12,000 is expected to watch University of Toronto attempt to make it three straight here against Queen's and complete one circuit of the contenders without defeat.

Western Must Win.

Joe Breen's Mustangs from the University of Western Canada can topple McGill out of contention by beating Montreal at Montreal, but the slow-starting sons of Shaughnessy are being taken a lot more seriously than they were a week ago. Only for a placement kick striking the goalposts Tuesday last Saturday, McGill would have been beaten by Montreal.

EVIDENCE OF CHIEF IS NOT ALLOWED

Cobourg, Oct. 20 (CP)—Mr. Justice J. E. McKay today ruled out evidence of Chief Harry Newhall, of the Northumberland County trial of Yep Lauria, Finnish transient, charged with the murder last February, of Fred McLaren, Cavan township farmer. The testimony was in regard to a statement Lauria to have been made by Laurila on his arrest.

Chief Newhall gave his evidence yesterday before the jury was ordered from the court room. Judge McEvoy said he was not satisfied the statement had been voluntary and free from fear or expectation of advantage. He was not convinced, he said, that the required circumstances surrounding the taking of such a statement had existed.

The jury was then recalled and the trial proceeded.

Hammerlocking Social Leaders Great Build-Up for Coming Match

(By W-H. Beatty)

Detroit, Oct. 20 (AP)—All for art's sake, a bulky gentleman with an arty-is-me pedi is going about this town twisting the arms of social registerites of both sexes, dumping them on floors and grinning at their grimaces in the manner of a man who is trying to hurting himself.

He is one Patrick O'Shocker, a disciple of the ancient Grecian art of hammerlocking for pleasure or of others. Art is a serious matter for Mr. O'Shocker, for his wife says so and he waits to do something for her besides growling and making artistic faces while flat on his back. He is a wrestler.

Society, planning to do something in a monetary way for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, decided on wrestling match as the unusual thing to draw a crowd. Even then it did not reckon with Mr. O'Shocker's artistic enthusiasm when they engaged him to oppose Jim Londos

"For the title and the $10,000 diamond studded belt" owned by Londos, he is a cinch," he says.

"In my Hun," he said, proudly, "I do an arty artist. See, let me show you my art!" Whereupon he twisted the neck of a pretty dowager, threw her down suddenly on the floor, and stood back, smiling. After her first astonishment the dowager was thrilled. She told her friends, and Mr. O'Shocker's art was depositing other dowagers, a few bold males and a sprinkling of debutantes on a mounting room floors, amid much grimacing, posturing and exercising.

In a brief time Mr. O'Shocker has become practically indispensable at private social gatherings. Grunts and groans resound from gay parties as the gay social society hammerlocking excited social leaders. Even the Detroit Symphony Orchestra is behind, browns and greys. Whatever you like, you can have it tailored to your personal measurement —every Tip Top Tailors garment is hand-cut and custom-tailored. ENJOYS VISIT TO HOME TOWN

George Wilder of Milwaukee With Same Firm a Half Century

After a four months' visit to this city and district, Mr. George D. Wilder left for his home in Milwaukee, Thursday evening. On his homeward journey he is to spend several days at Chicago visiting the Century of Progress Exhibition.

Mr. Wilder is a native son of Belleville, but has been long away from the city. He left here in 1880, and has been a valued employee of the Aits Chalmers firm for over a half century and is still enrolled in that company's service. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Wilder and when resident here lived in the north station district. His attended the old Queen's station school, then presided over by the late Professor Macoun, who a short time ago passed away in Ottawa.

Mr. Wilder has spent much of his vacation in Tweed and vicinity, where he has been the guest of Mrs. Way, whose husband previous to his demise, 8 years ago, was proprietor of the Tweed Advocate. Mr. Wilder also visited a number of the younger generation of his family hereabouts.

Reminiscent of bygone days, Thursday, he stated there were only about twelve of his old time friends left in the district, amongst whom are members of Anson Adair Lodge, Jones Harris and King Rogers. He is one of the oldest members of Bellevue Lodge No. 31, I.O.O.F., and still, though far removed, takes an active interest in the lodge's benevolent accomplishments.

Notwithstanding his years, Mr. Wilder is young in spirits and stated he is looking forward to again visiting the fine city and his friends in this district next year. "To fish, hunt and talk Tweed fair and see some more of King Rogers' punt races as well as visit friends." It is trusted that his aims and objects may be attained and that Mr. Wilder will see his native city in the summer of 1934.

CURRENT SPORT

One thing certain was decided at last night's baseball committee: Belleville baseball fans are to have bigger and better senior baseball in 1934. Whether anything was put the hearing success it promises to be a most interesting and interesting baseball contestants from most every walk of life.

Congratulations are due Charlie Sheedy, who has been re-elected to the office of President of the Belleville Baseball Club for 1934. The question of a civic governing body to take charge of baseball was debated for the time, but will come in due time, we believe, however.

We understand, that the Picton special train to Gosipe on Wednesday proved a financial failure. It is too bad for those who took such pains to arrange such adequate transportation. We hear, that the total number of passengers that were aboard the train. Numbered nineteen at the last moment, following a wheat thought it advisable to avail further developments.

As was pointed out the C.O.B.L. baseball fair of Picton has not discussed as yet, and it should be one of the orderly present, that Belleville should remain in the Central loop, something it has been a member of. At best, five teams must be definitely in order before the C.O.B.L. meeting the Nationals will undoubtedly abandon ship as has so recently passed.

It was regrettable to see so few active ball players present. There are there were several, while the other was a member of the Vics. Not a single player on hand to voice the participants of the game to be. Take an interest in the promotion of baseball, then why should others waste their valuable time? Charlie Sheedy is the sport? 10,000 OFF ROAD

Not many persons realize that almost ten thousand automobile drivers have been driven off the roads of Ontario, not through poverty or physical inability to drive but for infractions of the law in causing damage to property or injury to others. How long they were deprived of their permits to drive is not known, but they have been made to hand over their licences for the time being.

Peterborough Examiner says that in Britain is a still better plan at work. There the deprivation of the right to drive may be made permanent by the courts, the paper cites the case of a drunken driver who slightly injured a pedestrian and ran off, only to lose his licence for life.

The principle at work in Ontario may ultimately drive off the road most of those who do not carry indemnity insurance. There have been many wrecks of automobiles driven up and down the highways scarcely worth the load of gas they carry but these will at length disappear and it scarcely looks as if such creeping conditions can be duplicated even when the present days cars become old, though very rapid advances are made in constructive factors in manufacturing.

HUNTING DANGERS

The other day in the United States a hunter was shot at a distance of thirty-five feet by his companion. So much did this impress the state attorney that he ordered a charge of second degree manslaughter laid against the man handling the weapon.

Accidents in the hunting field are too plentiful, but few charges are ever laid. The laying of such charges in U. S. courts may lead hunters to exercise more care, though even with infinite precautions accidents will doubtless happen in the very nature of human beings and the quality of explosives to explode.

AN OBLIGATION

Belleville audiences have been fortunate of late in meeting face to face two men who have enrolled themselves in the literary constellation of Canada. Wilson MacDonald, poet, and Robert T. Stead, who works in fiction.

To have met them adds responsibility. Their works are here for their friends to look upon and to see in these documents how the artistic instinct works upon the facts of life as lived in the new world of Canada.

COMMENTS

An off-the-street campaign has been organized in Toronto to save the lives of children. Even the best record for children are often fascinated by the lure of the street to their undoing and death under the juggernaut of modern traffic. Such a campaign might be launched in other cities through school clubs and kindred organizations.

SIDELIGHTS — GRAVE and GAY

ECLIPSE

The shadows wore a wan and spectral look
A sallow tint touched all the glowing earth;
Was it in fear the waving willows shook?
Was it in dread the song-birds ceased their mirth?
A silence crept along the noonday land,
A silence swallowing each happy sound
As a great wave may swallow from the sand
Each shining shell, each sea-flower strewn around.

The startled chickens sought their roosts, pell-mell,
The watch-dog slunk beside his master's heels;
(How orderly are nature's ways, how well
And fully kept such ill-timed night -re vels!)
The beasts were frank; man felt, but hid the awe
Of sudden change in her familiar law.

APPLE DAY IS SATURDAY, so be sure to have handy a nickle, a dime or a quarter and meet the Boy Scouts of Belleville with a smile when they offer you this fine Canadian fruit on Saturday. From coast to coast the Boy Scouts will put on an apple drive and endeavour to materially reduce the surplus of Canadian apples. Proud of this fine Canadian fruit, proud of the Boy Scouts and their loyalty to Canadian institutions and products Canadians generally should heartily support the Boy Scouts' Apple Day—so prepare to lay in a supply of fine, rosy-cheeked Ontario apples Saturday.

FOLKS NOWADAYS HAVE FORGOTTEN HOW TO LAUGH, said a grizzled old veteran of the early days of settlement in Manitoba, as told by Robert T. Stead, Canadian author, in an address before the Rotary Club of Belleville, "in the old days the pioneers did not have much to laugh at, judged from the standpoint of moderns, but they did enjoy a good laugh, and had a right frequent one. They worked hard, had good appetites, ate plenty of good plain food, and were not afflicted with nervous indigestion, or any of the modern fashionable ailments. They had a sense of humor, were not bored to death with radio, movies and all the frantic rush to provide entertainment different and better than anything produced before. When you come to think of it you seldom hear people laugh nowadays. . . . Why, it would probably seem rude and boorish to produce a real hearty belly laugh, carrying its own guarantee of health, but more complete and complex life becomes the less folks seem to enjoy it. Happiness depends so largely upon health, and health depends so largely on regular habits, exercise and plain food that the pioneers really had it over us as regards real happiness and full enjoyment of life. If it weren't for golf in the summer some tired and retired business men would not know how to use their legs—as it is the fine art of walking for pleasure and exercise seems to have gone out of fashion. Anyway let's learn to laugh again, if only to give the laugh lines of old-time faces think the art of hearty laughter has been lost.

Jones bought a new shirt, and on a slip pinned to the inside found the name and address of a girl, with the words: "Please write, and send photograph."

"Ah!" said Jones. "Here's romance."

He wrote to the girl, and sent her a picture of himself. In due course an answer came, and with heart aflutter Jones opened it. It was only a note.

"I was just curious to see," it read, "what sort of fellow would wear such a funny shirt."

MAIN STREET

Ramblings . . . . . .

Any lingering doubts a certain hairdresser had regarding the improvement of business conditions have been dispelled. Along about two o'clock in the afternoon yesterday the telephone on the operative's desk stuttered into a healthy ring. A certain decisive voice came over the wire: "This is the ——— Bank calling. That last cheque you sent us calls for a little more than you have on account just at present. Shall we cover it for you?" "Boy," breathed the executive as he hung up. "That's the first time in four years the banks have been doing that!"

From your barber, as well as your valet, you withhold no secrets, unconmunicative though you may be when you consult Dop into the latter's chair for the usual shave or, the weekly hair cut, can," said one veteran barber as he polished an old-time razor on an old-fashioning strop in an uptown shop the other day. "I can tell the minute I start to shave a customer whether or not he is used to shaving himself. If he does shave himself, he'll pull out the little wrinkles around the side of his mouth when I come to them with the razor. Generally the ones who shave themselves make a lot of faces when the barber works over them; the other class merely sits still and lets you do it your own way." The same barber can also tell on what side the customer usually sleeps, just by looking at his head when he sits down for a haircut. He says he can tell by the way the hair on your head will be thicker on that side. If the hair is wiry, vice versa. Barbers are also psychologists.

There's millions waiting for the inventor who will apply his clever mind and skill to the sawdust pile and bring therefrom a fortune. Consider the case of Andre Gagnon, "father of the modern sawmill" who invented the Gagnon band gang saw, the steam carrier and ball retainer and practically all the rest of the machinery used by sawmills the world over. He is known from Norway to Mexico. At the age of ninety he is still as spry and healthy as a youth. A thick shock of black hair surmounts an unwrinkled face and frames a pair of shining bright eyes. The remarkable physical condition of the sawmill wizard, he says, is due solely to the waste products of the mill. "You never see a bald-headed sawmill man," he declares. "It's all due to the saw dust. It's a wonderful preservative for hair and body." Consider the case of Gagnon and then ponder the case of Samson and Delilah.

Automobile paint shop owners are getting ready to lay in a supply of black and white paint which they declare will be needed during the coming season with the advent of the jaw car license plate. This year the new plates will have black figures on a white background. The design and figures will be the same, with only the year—1934—being changed. You'd be surprised, say the paint shop men, at the number of car owners, who, wishing to have their car repainted will instruct the painter to match the tone or color of the license plates. Women are generally fussy about this part of it.

Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon the Mystick 3 being me and Puds Simkins and Lucky Leroy Shooter, wanted to have a private meeting without a lot of other fellows trying to butt in on the saying. Let's have it in somebody's house, that's the only way, I'd have it in my house only there's some ladies playing bridge there, I said.

I dont want to be say around my house for a while because my mother's mad at me and I want to give her time, that's the only thing about your house, Puds Simkins said. How about your house Lucky? he said.

Well, I tell you, they just been house cleaning there with the carpets up and the pictures down and the furniture around and my ma she is still exhausted, so I better not try it, Leroy Shooter said.

Well, then let's try our house and maybe we can sneek passed without being saw, I said, and Puds said, Sure, we cant be any more than kicked out.

And we went to the house and I opened the front door easy and we all started to sneek in on our tip toes, and ma and 3 ladies was playing bridge in the front room and as fellows, was sneeking passed perfect when all of a sudden Puds Simkins had to sneeze, him being the champeen loud sneezer and this one being even worse than usual on account of Puds holding his face together to try to keep it in, as saying, Bless! is that you?

Yes mam, I said, and she said, And who else? and I said, Only Puds and Leroy, we want make say golos.

I suppose not, judging by the simple I have heard, ma said sourcastic, and I said, Well O, ma, that was a mistake.

I want you all to go rite out and stay out, and that's no mistake, ma said.

With we did, ma saying, What do you say we adjern the meeting?

I 2nd the motion, Puds' said, and Leroy said, I 3rd it.

And we got up a game of cops and robbers.

GRANDSON OF FORMER KAISER, NOW AN AUTOMOBILE SALESMAN, DOES NOT WANT GERMAN THRONE

Prince Louis Ferdinand, Who Has Found Simple Mode of Living to His Liking in Detroit is Popular at Motor Car Plant Where He Now Has Been Employed For Three Years

Flying and playing the piano are hobbies of the prince.

PRINCE LOUIS KERDINAND

The prince's up-town apartment in Detroit.

By HAVILAND REVES
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Detroit, Oct. 20—His enemies once, but friends now, have found Prince Louis Ferdinand of Germany's Hohenzollerns a prince of a good fellow.

Leaving his native land to strike out on his own, this young grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm has located a new home to his liking in Detroit, where he has found a residing—and working—for the past three years.

Rapidly he has become accustomed to his new surroundings. And so much does he like his new surroundings that he has confided to his friends that he would like to settle in this country, permanently.

Germany May Call

This, despite the fact that he may yet be forced to return to Germany as its ruler. Reports emanating from Germany state that a move is under way to re-establish the Hohenzollern family in power, with Louis Ferdinand on the throne.

Prince Louis, now 27, is the second son of former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm. His elder brother, Prince Wilhelm sacrificed his right to the throne last year when he married a commoner.

But one would never suspect that Louis Ferdinand, or Dr. Ferdinand (he is a doctor of philosophy) or "Prince" as he is affectionately known here, is a man destined to become an emperor. At least, such an impression could be gained from his manner of living in a country, where democracy reigns.

Lives Simply

A youth of simple tastes the prince lives a life devoid of pomp and glamor. Whereas he might have boasted himself in an elaborate mansion in keeping with his royal standing, he has chosen, instead, to reside in a modest uptown apartment.

ROMANCE ENDED

Countess Marjorie De Aguirre, the former Miss Marjorie Skinner of New Orleans and New York who is in Hot Springs, Ark., to seek a divorce from Count Louis De Aguirre. When she receives her freedom under the 90-day law operative in Arkansas she will announce plans for her marriage to Prince Paolo Borghese of Italy.

By the same token the prince is entitled to his share of society, and he does have friends among the wealth and exclusive Grosse Pointe residents. For his intimates, however, he prefers associates of modest circumstances.

Among his close friends is Fred Hoffman, whom he knew in old Germany. Hoffman once served as riding master for the prince's uncle, Prince August Wilhelm, and gave Prince Ferdinand his first riding lessons.

Hoffman came to the United States several years before the Prince decided to seek his fortune here. By a strange coincidence both became employed by the Ford Motor Co. and renewed their friendship when the prince arrived.

Regular Visitor

Instead of attending social functions in town, Louis Ferdinand prefers to visit the Hoffman home at Northville, near here. He may be found at the Hoffman cottage nearly every week-end with a party of friends. Hoffman follows his old calling at home by conducting a riding stable.

The Hoffmans are delighted with their young visitor. They described him as a modest and pleasant young man without the least trace of arrogance, popularly associated with royalty.

During his service with the automobile concern, the prince has worked in practically every department, studying all angles in the construction of an auto. At the present time he is touring throughout the country as a salesman.

Workers Like Him

Associating daily with his fellow workers, he has become a popular figure in the factory. He has learned their ideas and habits, and tries to follow them instead of his continental ways.

The Prince possesses a perfect knowledge of English, which he speaks with a pleasant accent, but sometimes is stumped by slang.

Once, his friends relate, a fellow workman left him with a remark of "I'll see you in church."

Bitterly perplexed, the Prince went in one of his friends for advice, remarking that he had forgotten to ask at which church he was supposed to meet the worker!

Like any normal person, the Prince has hobbies—two of which he has developed since his arrival here. These are flying and piano playing, and he is making good in both.

Admires Roosevelt

Friends of the Prince recite that he is a great admirer of President Roosevelt, but declines to discuss politics in any extent.

Girls don't happen to be one of the Prince's hobbies. But he is not bashful and is often friendly with members of the opposite sex at Detroit parties, both among his socially prominent friends, and those whom he has met more modestly, like the Hoffmans.

Besides his ambition to make good as a business man in the United States, Prince Louis has another ambition which is almost a secret with him. That is to sell his grandfather the ex-Kaiser an automobile.

NEW CRISIS FACES CUBA

Radical Society May Break Support Given to President

Havana, Oct. 20 (AP)— Threats of a new crisis facing the troubled regime of President Ramon Grau San Martin today.

They loomed in the prospect of an impending breakaway by the militant and powerful ABC radical society—one of Grau's strongest supporting arms when he took up the reins after the overthrow of Carlos Manzal De Cespedes.

They were intensified by reports of unrest bred of labor difficulties throughout the island, the arrest of 34 of makaria cases in the city of Havana, and trouble concerning the imprisonment of officers captured in the National Hotel battle.

"The ABCRS (not to be confused with the ABC, student organization of which it is an offshoot) is disgusted with the government's proceedings," said Armada Rodas, the leader. "It lent its support disinterestedly and got nothing from the participation. Now it is withdrawing."

PREMIER BENNETT ON WAY TO OTTAWA

"Road to Recovery Long and Painful," Says Bennett

Winnipeg, Oct. 20 (CP)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett returned to Winnipeg today and tonight will continue his journey to Ottawa arriving in the Capital early Sunday morning.

His Western speaking tour concluded at Regina yesterday, the Premier today was occupied with private interviews here. During his tour, Mr. Bennett addressed audiences in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Regina, expounding the policies of his government, and both domestic and international problems of the day.

In his final message to a Western audience, in a broadcast at Regina yesterday, the Premier said:

"The road back to recovery is now being travelled by the great nations of the world, but progress will be slow and painful. And we will yet be called upon to endure hardship and anxiety."

He paid tribute to the courage and confidence of Canada's people, and said that brought the Dominion through the depression in better condition than any other country.

SALVATION ARMY FLAG FLIES OVER ISLAND

Many Seeking Redemption and Unable to Find It

Le Havre, France, Oct. 20 (CP) A Salvation Army flag now flies over what is known as "Devil's Island"—lonely exile for French convict prisoners.

Commissioner General Paul Albin, who hoisted the flag, returned today on the liner Colombie Paydat.

"The most awful tragedy of Devil's Island," Albin said, "is the fate of those who having expiated their crime and are seeking redemption are unable to find it."

For them, he added, the army has installed a farm colony, a workshop and other like institutions.

66 DROWNED IN TYPHOON

Coastwise Steamer is Believed to Have Foundered

KOBE, Japan, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Sixty-six persons, including an English woman, were feared to have perished today when the coastwise Steamer Yashimamaru foundered in a typhoon off Suma near here.

Owners of the vessel said their figures showed this of the crew of 28 and 38 passengers, 31 survivors had been reported. She was enroute here from Beppu, Japan.

The Yashimamaru, formerly the British mine sweeper, Sunflower, at first was reported to have burned but later it was learned she had foundered in the storm, almost within sight of her destination, according to survivors.

The typhoon also carried death by falling trees. Several ports reported that craft had foundered or were missing.

SQUIRREL'S DEATH LEAP CREATES 2 WEEKS JOB

Fond Du Lac, Wis., Oct. 19—Electrical experts have started a three weeks' task of repairing damage done by a squirrel in less than a second. The squirrel climbed to the top of a transformer on a Wisconsin Power & Light Co. power line. It tried to leap across a six-inch gap between two 11,000-volt transformers and in an instant was electrocuted. The are caused by the squirrel's body severed feet melting porcelain insulators and steel and iron supports.

Common sense will do for more for you than any so-called panacea for losing of unhealthy adipose tissue. Eat less, exercise more, and be sure to ensure yourself against constipation by eating the proper kind of food. Don't eat pastry, fatty meats, potatoes, cereals, sweets, cream, oil, butter, rich gravies, fat meats, etc. And above all, don't drink alcoholic beverages.

There's just one thing to be careful about there's nothing harmful in Kruschen Salts—they contain those same salts as are present in human blood and which are absolutely necessary for perfect health and proper functioning.

Just one of Kruschen Salts taken in a cup of hot water every morning before breakfast helps to flush away poisons, and thus prevents constipation, and so will help your body to get rid of unwanted fat. Then a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of water or Lemon Juice will purify and invigorate your whole system and help to keep you fit and well. Get a bottle of Kruschen from any of hardly any chemists in the world at 2/6 per bottle, and it will last a month. And it will help Nature bring you down to your normal weight.

Try this and you will be delighted with the results, both as regards health and appearance, and you will be a healthier, happier woman.

Kruschen Salts are manufactured by the well-known firm of Andrews Liver Salts. Advertisement of Andrews Liver Salts, Limited, 1 Ann A. Hunter Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Correct Manners

Bridge Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please tell me the correct way to answer an invitation to a bridge tea, to be given at a hotel?

2. Is it proper to use calling cards for this purpose? If so, how should this be done?

3. If the calling card is used, should it be mailed in a small envelope?

M.

1. Now we answer a bridge invitation depends on the kind of invitation that we receive. If it is a formal one, we answer it formally, and if it is informal for instance a note we answer in "in kind," that is, in the form of a note.

However, I judge from your second question that the invitation you refer to is one written on a visiting card. And this should be answered formally. Like this:

Mrs. George Williams accepts with pleasure
Mrs. Edward Worthington's kind invitation for bridge
on Tuesday, the 21st of November, at three o'clock

2. No. It is not correct to answer an invitation on your visiting card. Use note-paper, and write the acknowledgment on the first page, spacing carefully, and as I have indicated in my first answer.

3. When a visiting card is used for an invitation or for any similar use, it is mailed in a small envelope.

Announcement Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to marry a man who has been married before. Will you please tell me how the announcement cards should read? Neither of us, live in the towns in which our parents live.

2. Should we send the announcement cards or should the cards be sent by my parents?

Josephine

1. The best form is for your parents to announce the marriage like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Brooks have the honour of announcing the marriage of their daughter
Ruth
to
Mr. Nicholas Grant
on Tuesday, the fifth of November
Nineteen hundred and thirty-three Chicago, Illinois.

2. Your parents send them. The fact that you do not live in the town in which they live does not make any difference.

"Thank You"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When spending an evening at a friend's home and the friend's husband holds your coat when leaving, should you thank him?

2. When a man calls for you and holds your coat when going to the family, should you thank him?

3. Should you thank a man who holds a door open for you?

4. When a gentleman steps aside to allow a lady to pass in a railway, or from an elevator, should he be thanked?

5. Should a clerk in a store be thanked for opening the door?

I have always been taught "You" but perhaps I am wrong, as I notice every girl do. I like to be a many privilege to do these things for a lady without thanks.

Eighteen

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. Yes.
4. Yes.
5. Yes.

In other words, we always thank for a courtesy that is done for us. Always. If we do not, we are not well-bred. If we do say thank you we show that we are sensitive to courtesy and appreciate it.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers).

"Selling" the New Baby to Other Children in Family

(By Constance Cameron)

We have discussed previously, the jealousy that usually creeps in when a new baby enters the family. But this usually strikes with which the father of a boy of six and a young lady of two and a half years, to hold her gently, but with safety.

Mrs. Jay of Canadian

Sister wanted to do the same thing, and with daddy and the nurse squabbling in front of her in case of a quick tumble, she held the new baby. Daddy and also, that that evening they would hold a conference regarding her name and submit their suggestions to mother next day.

Hand in hand that daddy and his two children left the hospital all excited and glowing. The children spoke in glowing terms of their sister, and she has always been their little sister, each child competing with the other for the privilege of playing with her or wheeling her down the street. To hear them discuss her one would think she was daddy and mother didn't have a word to say. Instead they were all sister's affairs.

Let the older children in on the joy of possessing the new baby and your jealousy problems will never arise.

Advice to the Lovelorn

She's Had Many Affairs, Yet Has Not Told All

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going regularly with a girl for the past three months. We are much in love with each other and decided to marry and announced our engagement. She's 22 and I'm 25.

Oh her own accord she told me all about herself; how she had been engaged before for four years. And being in love with her, I told her things from my past and briefly told her her past love affairs, as I suppose every girl has some affair in her life before she is married.

But here's what makes me hesitate. Every once in a while she tells me about an affair that she had with other men that she cared nothing whatsoever about. Natural. Is that hurts. I'm a man of the world, and she said a girl liked to keep a few secrets.

Does she feel that because we are going to get married she has to tell me all these things, and in doing so is showing me how much she loves me? This is the first time I've really been in love, and I don't know what to make of it, but I think it's a heck of a way to tell me she loves me. What do you think?

Ted

Better "pause and reflect", before you say "I do" with this girl. While frankness between people expecting to be married is admirable, a continued confession of affairs; with the statement that some are to be kept secret, defies the very genuine doubt if that girl will ever make a good wife for any man!

She seems unable to grasp the fact that marriage is not just one more affair, and that for you it means a lifetime of companionship and woman of such different standards. It seems to me, could not be happy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

A group of young girls have asked my opinion on these questions that they have often debated among themselves:

Is vanity a fault?

Should a pretty girl pretend that she doesn't suspect her own good looks?

Or is it plain common sense to find out where your best points are and make the most of them, even if this must be called vanity?

"To be honest with you, Miss Fairfax," my correspondents confess, "we are interested in these questions for our own use only. Which way will get us farther with men? We'll take that one, please. Thank you."

I'm surprised to hear that there are girls left in the world who are unaware of this own beauty, if any. Where in the name of sense shall damsels to be found?

Since the fashion came in of "shaking off one's publicity," I suppose a pretty girl existed who wasn't thoroughly intimate with her own face.

You don't misunderstand me. I'm all for a girl's knowing just where she stands in this matter of good looks, as in other things. It can give a clear and definite answer to the girl who comes to her to me, and here it is:

It's not vanity to know the truth about oneself. The vain girl is the one who simplicitly overestimates her charms, her complexion, and trades on them too heavily.

The girl who knows her appetence at all, takes stock of all her good attributes and frankly tries to make herself as pretty and as charming as she can, is the girl who is headed for a success in life.

In saying which, I have answered, you see, your question also much.

No man is interested in the girl who "doesn't care" what she's pretending to be something less than she is. She wants to do, or does do, to be attractive to men, makes the most of your looks, just as you make the most of your intelligence and your ability in sports.

Sensible mothers and great grandmothers used always to be heard to say: "modesty" which often then women's leading virtue."

But if I had an eighteen-year-old daughter, I'd like to have her quality in some other way.

Modesty is all right, but to see her eyes always cast down, or to hear her always agreeing with her elders, or to know that she was simple-minded enough to believe that she had handsome eyes.

There is no doubt that the former, ideal of beautifying girlhood is pretty insipid.

I'm for an girl that the girl of the moment is free to be something more than a doormat. I'm glad that she can be realistic and practical about her appearance. I'm sure her intelligent, well-dressed mother perhaps, was merely vain.

In Love With An Engaged Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am madly in love with a young man, but the trouble is he is engaged. He was going with her when I always quarrelling, which he cannot endure. He told me that he loved me better than his engagement, but can't for the following reason:

When he first became engaged he and this girl began saving money together, intending to get married. Then he left the town without the other's knowledge, and she has been saving his share to avoid break with her. Also he is out of work.

Should I tell him or not? I don't exactly go steady", but I do go out with him. I am willing to fight for him, because I love him and we really do get along swell.

Worried

Once it was considered almost impossible to break an engagement without a scandal. Now days they get their chains almost to the altar before they find out the truth is that foolish. When people cease to love, they break their engagements.

It would only be fair to the girl to tell his fiancee that he had ceased to love her and to tell her that she had better release him and have a settlement of their joint savings. Then you would have your influence to bring this about, in the hope that young man is seriously in love with you.

For if you go around, when I open my mail, you would see, also, that engagements are not proof against flirtations.

For Him Breaking With Her Would Be Hard

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Sometime ago I met a girl and almost immediately grew to care for her. Finding I had made a hit, I made things as pleasant for her that I could, with small means at my disposal, but made up again. Perhaps she still has some interest in me, but now it seems as though it is merely that old college friendship.

She has a college boy, having taken it with the understanding that we were just "steady" now she insists that "we aren't, which is true, and add that all the beginning I pulled the rush act, then slowly cooled off, as she did also. I don't care for anyone, though I know some girl would be glad to go out with me.

When I call I don't know whether she's lonely or busy, but from me or not we've quarrelled, hated and made up so often. My deadly rival is a car and plenty of money, which I lack. What can I do to regain the old standing which once I had?

Breaking off with her would be hard for me for I do care about her in what could be termed my own "dinny" way. And'it is dumb, I am a goof, but I am attempting to correct that shortcoming.

Southerner

After reading your letter several times, (it was far too long to print) it seems to me that you become reconciled with this girl only to quarrel again. Misunderstandings, spats, quarrels, reconciliations —then disagreements all over again.

Why don't you cut them altogether, likewise the pitched battles? What about leaving her much care-free? Why,

One New High For Year Registered Despite Selling Drive in New York—Weakened Holdings In Mining Issues Dumped But Leaders Recovered Before Noon—Bonds Spotty in New York

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 20 (AP) — Some support came into the securities markets today, but restless traders apparently were still in the grip of indecision. Prices dipped, rallied and oalliied contluuedly.

Stocks were irregular at a fast pace in the first hour, with minor declines and advances about even.

There was a later sagging movement and a fairly substantial recovery with many of the leaders getting up a point or more. The activity diminished noticeably after the luncheon rural rush. Bonds were spotty.

Shares of Case, Chrysler, U. S. Smelting, American Commercial Alcohol, American Rolling, Pittsburgh Pacific, Du Pont, Celanese and Johns-Manville came back 2 to 5 points.

Canadian shares showed some improvement. Noranda and McIntyre Porcupine were up around a point each while Consolidated Mining and International Nickel were steady. On the curb Hudson Bay suffered a drop of more than 2 points before the meeting support. Dominion government 4½s moved up 2 points and changed to 4 layer. The Canadian dollar improved 7/8 of a cent at 96.81 1-4 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange managed to take up a few more stocks, even one new high for the year in a session tendered to relieve many the continuance of the selling drive in the Wall Street market. Distillery shares were depressed by the temporary embargo announced by Washington on foreign liquors and loosed of to 2½ points were registered but the group was a little more cheerful by noon at which time the losses had been reduced by fractions.

The general list held up well, dealers showing the only definite weakness. Smelters dropped five points to 105 but had halved the loss by noon. Nickel opened around $16 and worked up to show a fair-way gain at $17.45. Brazilian and C.P.R. changed not and Ford 10 fully recovered an early set-back.

The unloading of money markets itself out around noon and the third hour of the session found trading in the list all round, but particularly the distillery shares which had been depressed for several days. Walkers Common gained around four points in the point of the morning by early afternoon and other members of the group were proportionately strong.

All the interlisted shares wiped out their early losses and a few had chalked up net gains.

TORONTO MINING

Toronto, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Mining shares had about the same trend in the face of heavy selling today on the New York markets. Some weakness in the holdings were dumped and early prices were off narrowly but most of the losses were recovered by noon and in others recessions at the start were small and not important.

A list of 55 cents in Lake Shore was about the severest damage inflicted on the senior issues. Practically all of this loss recovered in early loss and was holding at $22 at noon, up 45 cents. Hollinger eased of a loss of 20 cents and McIntyre of 10 by noon.

Nickel at noon was down only 15 cents, not enough to show in the tals. Corporations 5, Falconbridge 10, Hudson Bay 50 cents, Sherritt 5 cents and International Nickel 15 cents.

The whole list had stood up well while Industrial markets were selling down in the morning session when even the idea turned at noon good. Base Metal and silver shares all responded readily as buying occurred in.

Base Metal shares were less buoyant than the golds and Noranda and Mining Corporation of Canada were also steady afternoon gains of 50 to 75 cents.

How Y.M.C.A. Is Assisting Unemployed

J. G. Hardy, Manager Chamber of Commerce, Belleville—

The Young Men's Christian Association of Belleville has become so much a part of our civic life that we sort of take it for granted, as we do the schools and other features of our social organization for which the taxpayer is directly responsible. The history of the Y.M.C.A. is purely voluntary. Its financial needs are gradually pressed to contribute.

Because of the extra difficulties through which we are passing those organizations dependent upon free will offerings are suffering far more than others. Those who are usually willing to contribute to generous amounts now unfortunately are called upon to divide up for other obligations that must be met. The necessity is therefore all the greater for more liberal contributions from those in a position to assist them.

There is no need for any shortage of funds if each one will think of the "Y" to the community, all our citizens are familiar with the effort that is being so earnestly put forth to make this worthy work a reality influence in the lives of boys and young men. Such work is worthy of the financial support and unlimited it is none the less and beyond estimate in its wonderful abuse.

The Belleville Y.M.C.A. has never had a more loyal and capable staff than at the present moment. Support them with the utmost generosity in the appeal about to be made.

Allan R. Schryver, Chairman Board of Education:

"It is a far cry from the crowded, cramped and wholly inadequate quarters of the old Y.M.C.A. that was located over Adams' the Shoe Man, present store to the spacious up-to-date premises on Campbell Street wherein is displayed some of the best accommodation not tendered by any other organization. And we are getting it for a song—a few dollars and perhaps a little time would seem to be all that is required of anybody. I am sure our citizens are sensible of the wonderful work being done by institution alive and increasingly active in the good work carried on and in the upbuilding of our youth, physically, mentally and spiritually. Not forgetting that centre is often graciously at all times to the entertainment of the people of our fair city. Long may it continue as an outstanding meeting centre for all worthwhile endeavour.

DISPLAYS OF ONTARIO PRODUCTS SPLENDID

Merchants Congratulated on Their Window Displays

The window displays of the local merchants featuring Ontario grown products are starting for most favorable comment in many parts of Belleville. The showings will continue for the three days this week. On Thursday night till 11 o'clock the Belleville and District Retail Merchants' Bureau will distribute the prizes.

Although weather conditions will not permit the keeping of the original displays in the windows, the butchers will continue to feature Ontario products, and the artistic displays will remain intact for several days.

Mr. Joseph Wilson, district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has caused a real competition this year amongst local merchants and if the department again features the event next year undoubtedly there will be an abundant display of the products of the province in a confinasing for in this community.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)—Under a heavy supply of plain quality killers and steers, the prices broke on the Toronto Livestock Market this week and dropped 25 cents on all grades. Trade was dragging with $20 head still unsold when the market closed on Thursday.

Hog receipts were a little heavier than last week and prices dropped 15 cents on Thursday after holding steady throughout the first part of the week. Lambs gained 25 cents on Monday and held the gain under active selling. Calf trade was steady for veiiers of good quality and over on plain grades as well as thin grassers.

PARKED CAR ROLLING DOWN HILL, HITS CAR

A few years ago a runaway horse would cause some little excitement but proved no great news value, but when automobile dashes down the thoroughfares at breakneck speed they are in the public eye of course and crashes into another car, that is news value.

In a small measure the about relates the end of such an accident ending of a runaway motor car that was seen dashi madly down Bridge St. E. hill about noon Wednesday 7.30 pm. and crash into a parked car near the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Sts.

The car that was seen racing down Bridge St. hill was owned by Mr. John Stekelser of this city and had been parked near St.—Thomas parish house on the south side of the street facing west. Afterwards it started to roll down the hill gaining speed as it travelled. Mr. Wood ann Beaty, of Toronto had a car parked at the foot of the hill and the runaway car crashed headon into the parked car. The parked car was badly damaged. Police made an investigation.

MIX BUCKLEY'S WITH HONEY FOR THE KIDDIES' COUGHS OR COLDS

When kiddies need it most is the very time they "just won't take medicine" but they will take BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE eagerly if mixed with equal parts of honey.

How lucky this is for you because there's nothing half so good for children's coughs or colds as this old Canadian remedy. At the first sign of a cold, give the children Buckley's with honey, and you'll be amazed and delighted to see the immediate relief. You can give BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE with perfect confidence to the youngest child. It's as safe—so sure. With their colds as with yours It Acts Like a Flash—A single sip proves it. Sold in three sizes at druggists. Buckley's Mixture is sold everywhere.

AFTER ACCIDENT SHE PUT ON WEIGHT

Kruschen Took It Off Again!

A woman sends the following account of the consequences of an auto accident in which she was involved—

"A year ago I had a very bad automobile accident, which left me more or less a cripple, forcing to lie in bed so long, and being unable to move, I began to put on flesh. When I was able to walk a little again, I found I was 146 lbs. and being just under 5 feet you may guess how I was placed. So I thought I would try Kruschen Salts, and I must say they have done me a lot of good in every way—but chiefly in keeping my weight down. In three months I lost 6 lbs. Then I left off taking the Kruschen, and I gained 2 lbs. to 142 lbs. again. So at once I purchased more Kruschen, and am again steadily reducing. My weight last month was 134 lbs."—(Mrs.) W. H. M.

Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—so they don't each day leave waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate will be converted into the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

LUMBAGO

In a case of lumbago, we have a condition where the excretory organs are not functioning as they should and as a result there is a damming back into the body of waste matter.

Of all the excretory organs the kidneys are considered the most in this eliminating process and in the making of urine. It will be noted that they are at fault.

A chiropractor, by scientific adjustments, restores the life element to the organs that are at fault and the pain subsides and health is the result.

48 HOURS ARE CUT OFF TIME

Flying Time Between England and Australia Reduced

LONDON, Oct. 20—(CP Cable): —The battle-ground of seasons after air records, has turned to the British as early winter gales whirled across the North Atlantic—and within ten days more than 46 hours have been sliced from the flying time between England and Australia. The 10,000 mile journey across Europe and Asia, had been cut to less than a week.

Five years ago it took the late Bert Hinkler 15 1-3 days to fly from England to the Asian Commonwealth. Today Charles P. C. Uhm finished the journey in a little more than six and one-half.

Flying over the approximate route Imperial Airways plan to use next year for a projected air mail service. Uhm and three companions landed at Derby West Australia, six days, 17 hours, 45 minutes out of Feltham, England. Seven times wheels of Uhm's plane touched the ground at Derby—11 hours fell from the white-clad record of air commodore Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, and Sir Charles already had knocked 40 hours from the 1932 mark set by C. A. Scott, a British pilot.

The three marks were trimmings for Sir Charles and Uhm, co-pilots on the famous Southern Cross when that plane made the first and only flight across the Pacific.

JAIL TERM FOR OPERATING STILL

Coe Hill Residents Serve Three Months Not Paying Fine

William Marshall and William McGinn, both of Coe Hill, pleaded guilty to charges of operating an illicit still when arraigned before Magistrate Casement in County Police Court, Bridge St. Madoc yesterday. A fine of $200.80 and costs was imposed in each case and a three months sentence being meted out in default of payment. The fine not being forthcoming the accused men were lodged in the county jail.

Marshall and Mcginn were arrested by the R.C.M.P. when caught in the act of operating a still suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor. The R.C.M.P. had previously received complaint relating to the manufacture and sale of illicit liquor in the Coe Hill section of the county and it was only following some lengthy probing of the northern part of the county that Marshall and McGinn were arrested and later committed. The still was being operated in Marshall's private house near Coe Hill.

Swallows Screwdriver But Baby is Happy

Doctors Hope Special Diet Will Dislodge Piece of Metal.

Ottawa, Oct. 20 (CP)—Twenty-four hours after swallowing a three-inch screwdriver, Donald Cundell, a 14-months old baby, sat in a hospital bed today shaking a celluloid rattle while doctors and nurses fluttered about him in endless procession. Already he has set up two hospital records—the first baby to swallow a screwdriver of any length and that of being the most cheerful patient in the institution.

Following X-ray examination, doctors have decided not to operate immediately in the hope a special diet may dislodge the long piece of metal. Anyway, the baby has suffered no pain and is eating and sleeping normally.

The baby swallowed the screwdriver while playing in his home.

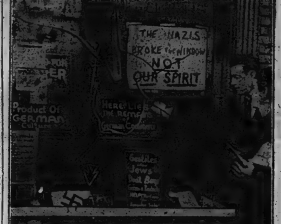
FRENCH CABINET IS FACING DEFEAT RUMOR

Opposed to Daladier's Budget Balancing Plan

Paris Oct. 20.—(AP)—The position of the French cabinet admittedly was precarious last night because of serious opposition in the Chamber of Deputies to Premier Daladier's budget balancing program.

The government was notified by the Chamber of Finance committee that it would not support the proposals the measures within the week specified by the premier.

This and publicly expressed nervousness over the situation precipitated the feeling among friends of the government that the situation was "serious."



Government officials frankly admitted the chance that the cabinet might be overthrown.

Worry on the Bourse was reflected by the erratic course of the franc and an upward movement of the American dollar was no longer call. Gold dollar strength fell from 4 cents.

M. Daladier when he appeared at the opening of the chamber this week told the deputies that the budget must be balanced completely or the country must find a new government.

He urged quick action on a bill designed to safeguard the franc and ward off inflation by raising a total of $1,000,000,000 francs—about $440,000,000 by new revenue measures and economies.

That Mother of Yours

(Contributed)

While in the lobby of the local Y.M.C.A. the writer was impressed with the following moral message regarding MOTHER. It reads:

"There is no love like your mother's love; no friendship can compare to hers: How often her own special way she proved her great affection for you: remember how she cooked, cleaned, patched; nine or the nights she was up and down visiting drinks for thirsty lips and covering restless little sleepers while they slept; how she never seemed to weary—to you; She always had time to listen to your joys and sorrows; time to love; time to say the things that spurred you on to ambition; she denied herself so that you might have; she never tired to cool little disputes you liked; she taught you to walk in paths of righteousness and you feared no evil that was near; Remember all these things NOW—while she is living, and begin NOW to pay her back in love and tenderness some of the debt you owe her. You can never pay it all, but you can pay something on account before God calls her home. As I read that message I recalled to mind the times in my life when I disregarded the good advice offered by my now deceased mother; the times when I said and did things, quite unintentionally, that brought tears to her eyes. The time when she gave me a Bible, with this message written on the fly leaf: "In all thy ways acknowledge Him." Recently I read across that Bible given me in January 1900, when I left home. Had I only followed her teachings what a different story I would have to relate. Here I am the victim of the results of the depression, numbered among others in the same boat. Here I am having to start life all over again, at an age when I should have enough to tide me over. Here I am, had I listened more carefully to her warnings, instead of thinking I knew it all, I would not be in the sad position I am today. But we all have to go through life to experience and learn our lesson. There is no reason why the boys and girls, now in their teens, with all the opportunities afforded them for bettering themselves, such as the Y.M. C.A.—their Church and other institutions, should ever have to say, in years to come, "I regret that I never followed the wise and kind counsel of my mother." Respect for mother, nowadays, is often seen "old fashioned" and "out of date" but God help the boy who fails to heed the good counsel of the men of today heeded the counsel and advice of the 'old school' type of mother. The selfishness, greed, of selfishness, on the part of countless individuals, in every walk of life, and until individuals realize that prosperity is largely an individual problem, and that the cure is in their hands and not "passing the buck" to others—and put their trust in Almighty God, the source of health and healing—there will be depressions, probably wars, suffering, sickness, sadness, and all the negative things, that would never occur, if individuals would accept their responsibility as individuals and try to live up to the ideals of the old fashioned Christian mother.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Composed by four of America's leading writers, the tuneful melodies in "Moonlight and Pretzels," the Universal musical romance coming to the Belle tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday, matinee daily, reflects the spirit of the times in a manner unique for screen musical comedy. At least three of the numbers in the score may truly be said to be descriptive of the present.

In "Moonlight and Pretzels," more than in any other of the recent musicals, the composers have followed the precept of the fellow who said "Let me but write the songs on a nation and I care not who makes the laws."

"Dusty Shoes," by Jay Gorney and E. Y. Harburg, who turned out the highly successful "Brother Can You Spare a Dime," is a dramatic cavalcade of American life from 1928 to 1933. The highlights depicted in song and action are the boom days of 1928, the stock market crash of 1929, the depression years of 1930-32 inclusive, the election of Roosevelt and the inspiring leadership of the President since his inauguration with the wheels of industry set in motion by his rallying cry of a "New Deal for the People."

"Moonlight and Pretzels," the title song of the picture and also a Gorney-Harburg number, tells a lyrical story of peace and contentment during the gallant days of beer. It is the 1933 model drinking-song.

Herman Hupfeld, composer of "Let's Turn Out the Lights and Go to Sleep," one of the outstanding hits of last season, has written a sequel to that song, dramatizing the new spirit of the people in regard to work. It is called "I Gotta Get Up and Go to Work," and depicts various types rising in the morning and preparing for their jobs in offices, factories and stores, a cheer on their lips and new hope in their hearts.

Other numbers in the picture which are being featured throughout the country are: "Ah, But Is It Love?" "There's a Little Bit of You in Every Love Song," "You're Making Any Money," and "Baby, in Your Arms."

"Moonlight and Pretzels" features a cast of stage, screen and radio celebrities, with Roy Rogers and Leo Carrillo, Mary Brian, Alexander Carr, Lillian Roth, Charlotte Greenwood, the Frank and Milt Britton Band, the Four Mills Brothers, Herbert Rawlinson, Jack Denny and His Orchestra, Doris Dudley, and fifty of New York's most beautiful showgirls.

Varied Short Gems

"Slippery Pearls," a funny comedy with a host of funmakers, "Mother Goosebumps," a clever cartoon, and "Throttle Pushers," a novel and refreshingly different screen offering will be presented on the same program.

"Pilgrimage" Scores

"Pilgrimage" is one of the finest films of all time. It had its premiere yesterday before a large audience and today stands high in the annals of screen achievement. Adapted from the story by J. A. R. Wylie, "it combines all the best elements of drama, romance, and cinematic beauty.

The cast portraying the leading roles is a splendid one. It includes Henrietta Crosman, Heather Angel, Norman Foster, Marion Nixon, Leslie Vernon Vernay. Each of them give a sterling performance entirely in keeping with the unusual tenor of the story. "Pilgrimage" will be presented again tonight for the last times and is well worth seeing.

POLLING DAY NEAR AT HAND

C.C.F. Making Concerted Effort to Win By-Election

PRESCOTT, Sask., Oct. 20.—(CP)—In a final drive for the election of a co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate in the Macdonald by-election J. S. Woodsworth M.P., leader of the Dominion's new political party has entered the campaign. He is in the constituency supporting Miss Lorna Stubbs, former Winnipeg County Court Judge and C.C.F. nominee opposed by Conservative, Liberal and Unified front party candidates. Polling Day is Monday, Oct. 23, and a heavy week-end, programme has been prepared for all candidates and speakers. Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who addressed the electors at Watrous earlier in the week, will return to the constituency Saturday, speaking here in the evening. Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan, also is expected here during the week-end.

Mr. Stubbs is back in the riding and is accompanying his party leader in the speaking tour. Both spoke here last night. In his address, Mr. Woodsworth charged Eastern Financial interests, controlled both Liberal and Conservative parties.

Eventually he said, Canada would have to adopt the C.C.F. platform and he saw in his party the only solution for present difficulties.

COL. HARBOTTLE DIES SUDDENLY

Prominent Military Man Stricken in Muskoka While Hunting

Toronto, Oct. 20.—Colonel Colin Clark Harbottle, C.M.G., D.S.O. with bars, outstanding figure in the annals of the Canadian forces overseas during the Great War and in military activities in this district since the close of hostilities, died suddenly from heart failure yesterday afternoon, while hunting partridge in the woods near Beaumaris, Muskoka.

He commanded the famous 75th battalion from 1915 to 1918 in France during the last two years of the war, brought the unit back to Toronto after the Armistice, and remained in command for seven years after it returned to the Canadian Forces overseas during the Great War add in military activities in this district since the close of hostilities, died suddenly from heart failure yesterday afternoon, while hunting partridge in the woods near Beaumaris, Muskoka.

He commanded the famous 75th battalion from 1915 to 1918 in France during the last two years of the war, brought the unit back to Toronto after the Armistice, and remained in command for seven years after it returned to the Canadian Forces. In addition to the position of the last of many objectives he held at this time of his death, and placed in command of the 14th Infantry Brigade.

One of his outstanding achievements was the pushing to a successful fruition of plans for erection of the new 14th Regimental Armouries on Fleet street, work on which was only started a few days before his appointment of the last of many objectives he held at this time of his death, and placed in command of the 14th Infantry Brigade.

One of his outstanding achievements was the pushing to a successful fruition of plans for erection of the new 14th Regimental Armouries on Fleet street, work on which was only started a few days before his appointment to the command of the 14th Infantry Brigade.

Colonel Harbottle, affectionately known as "Bollies" to those with whom he fought in France and worked in the years since the war, had been visiting at the Beaumaris summer home of C. H. Bonnisteger of Pittsburg. Together with Mr. Bonnisteger and other friends, he had motored to a point eight miles from Beaumaris by motor yesterday and had been engaged for some time in the bush when he was suddenly stricken with a fatal attack of the heart condition from which he had suffered for some years past. He was a full disability pensioner, having been invalided home from overseas after effects on his health from the gassing he received.

The colonel died almost instantly from the effects of the attack and died en to Gravenhurst, where it was released to friends after a brief coroner's inquiry which returned the sudden death. It was brought to Toronto late last night, and will rest today at the funeral parlors of A. W. Mills on St. Clair avenue west.

Arrangements were being made last night by officers of his old regiment and military authorities to honor Colonel Harbottle with one of the last military funerals that probably will be held here in recent years. The service will be held at the Church

FIVE CASES AT ASSIZES

One Criminal Charge of Serious Nature to be Heard

Five cases have been entered for trial at the Fall Assizes to be held at the City of Belleville, before The Honorable Mr. Justice Wright, commencing Monday, October 23rd, next. Only one criminal case has been registered, that being a serious charge laid by the Crown against one Bruce Coopey of Tmlyow.

E. C. Donnan, K.C., local Crown Attorney, received information to the effect that Mr. Austin O'Connor, K.C., of Ottawa, would conduct the prosecution in the criminal case presented on the docket.

Two jury cases, of a civil nature, are also listed both beingactions for damages alleged. In the Lewis vs. Durabik Ltd. case, Messrs. Porter, Payne and Aylesworth appear for the plaintiff, while Mr. Graham appears for the defendant. In the McMaster vs. The Trenton Cold Storage Company, the firm of Porter, Payne and Aylesworth for the plaintiff, while Mr. H. J. Smith is the defendant's solicitor.

A motion for a decree of divorce one non-jury civil action is also listed to be heard.

TURKEY SITS ON APPLES TO HATCH YOUNG

Elmira, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)— A turkey that attempts to hatch out a batch of apples and a hen that nests on a rabbit to keep it warm were reported here today.

John Jacobs is the of a persistent gobbler on his farm. He has made the bird off is nest of apples several times but she insists on gathering more fruit and attempting to make little gobblers of it. The hen that is chummy with the rabbit is owned by Hilbert Reist of West Montrose. He rented the bird from a neighbor and was surprised to see the rabbit coming out too. The hen followed the bunny into the woods and, a few minutes later it was there and crept again under her wings.

MOTHER-IN-LAW AND THE BRIDE

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP)—For the bride who wishes to get along with her mother-in-law and be happy, advice has come forth with a few suggestions. Among them are:

Don't criticize her "old-fashioned" ideas.

Don't try to reform her methods of household management.

Don't confound recent dealings she has with her son.

Don't begrudge walling on her.

Don't belittle her real or fancied ailments.

Don't criticize her personal habits.

Don't forget to practice tolerance, always.

If the bride will just do these things all will be well with her relations with her mother-in-law, said Dr. R. W. Burgess, Professor of Sociology at the University of Chicago. He arrived at his solution by sifting and studying the answers to 6,000 questionnaires sent to married couples to find out how persons can be happy and married.

AIRPLANE WILL TRAVEL ON ROADS

Toronto, Oct. 19—An automobile that can fly or an airplane that can utilize roads, was the vehicle of the future prophesied by Frank Spring, engineering stylist of the Hudson Motors, Detroit, before the Canadian section of the Society of Automotive Engineers at the Royal York Hotel last night.

His progress towards the mythical vehicle, Mr. Spring drew attention to the closer relationship now existing in the design and construction of automobiles and airplanes. The airplane, he said, had long borrowed fundamental principles from the automobile. Today the automobile was claiming its own advantage developments which had originated in the airplane field.

Religious Education Council Has Meeting at Springbrook

Rawdon—The annual convention of the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Township Religious Education Council was held in Springbrook United Church on Tuesday, October 17th with a good attendance of interested Sunday School workers. Two lovely baskets of gladioli adorned the church and made a pleasing picture. At this late season, when the frost has blackened most of the flowers.

The council is composed of the following fifteen Sunday Schools with their Superintendents.

Wellman's, United—Mr. Carl Clancy.

St. Paul's, Stirling, United—Mr. Fred Hulin.

Salem, United—Mr. Wm. Johnston.

Rylestone, United—Mr. Roger Lain.

Mount Pleasant, United— Mr. James Sharp.

Carmel, United — Mr. George Carlisle.

St. Marks, Bonarlow, Anglican— Mr. J. F. Baker.

Springbrook, United—Mr. George Bailey.

St. John's, Stirling, Anglican— Mr. J. Q. Craven.

Bethel, United—Mr. John Farrell.

St. Andrews, Stirling, Presbyterian—Mrs. Robt. Eggleton.

St. Thomas, Harold—Anglican— Mr. Adam Cooper.

St. Paul's, Marmora, Anglican— Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

St. Andrew's, Marmora, United— Mr. F. S. Thomas.

Trinity, Marmora, Anglican — Mr. Geo. Gordon.

Mr. George Carlisle, President of the Council presided over the sessions and the afternoon period was opened with "Come Thou Almighty King", Rev. R. W. Foley, pastor of Springbrook Church took charge of the worship period and offered prayer for diving guidance and all sang "True Hearts, Whole Hearted" with Miss Evelyn Bailey presiding at the organ.

Mr. George Bailey, Supt. of Springbrook Sunday School welcomed the delegates and friends in attendance and said all S. S. workers met with the council in order that the work be successful.

Mr. George Carlisle in his presidents address also extended a hearty welcome and hoped some good might come out of the gathering.

Rev. H. A. Mallow of Ivanhoe Circuit delighted with a lovely solo accompanied by Mrs. Carman Silks.

Mrs. R. Mundy of Springbrook Sec.-Treas., presented her statistical report of the various schools.

The roll call revealed 77 from Springbrook, 18 from Salem, 11, Mount Pleasant; 10, Bethel; 6, Carmel; 8, Wellman's; 4, St. Mark's; 2, Rylestone; 2, St. Paul's, Stirling; 2, St. Andrew's, "Iamora and none from St. John's, or St. Andrew's Stirling. St. Thomas, Harold; St. Paul's or Trinity, Marmora. Four clergymen were in attendance, Rev's. Joblin Mellow, Foley and Hollingsworth.

Mr. Fred Hulin gave a report of the Library Committee and urged all to read the books at the disposal of all who cared to procure them.

The Dept. Supts. then reported their various activities.

Children's Division—Miss Kathleen McComb.

Boy's Work—Rev. H. W. Foley.

Girl's Work—Mrs. H. A. Mallow.

Young People—Mrs. Thomas McMullen.

Dept. of Home Religion— Mrs. Clifford Clancy.

Teacher's Training was reported by Rev. F. G. Johns in the absence of Mrs. H. Rollins who was unable to attend. The year just passed was the most successful in teacher training as more took the course and more received diplomas. To look the course, 32 secured certificates.

Temperance—Mr. Ernest Sayles.

This report called forth some discussion on what was meant by temperance instruction, touching the lesson or a special program.

The adult Division and Missionary Dept. was not reported.

The chair for the banner was then outlined and the standing of the various Sunday Schools showed several nearly to the top.

The Provincial Representative, Miss Nellie M. Lewis of Toronto conducted the Round Table Conference.

The speaker said the chart is a way to link up these aims she had just set forth. The personality of the teacher is a driving force in S.S. work. She advocated a Saturday afternoon rally for all young people in the district.

The splendid tables then served a most delicious and appetizing supper in the passage to a large number of delegates.

Miss Lewis then conducted a day hour in the church, where old and young enjoyed themselves in various games and intelligence tests which all thoroughly enjoyed.

The evening session opened at 7 p.m. with Fa'r, Canon Swaine in charge of Devotional exercises, all sang "Stand up for Jesus" and "Fight the good fight" and prayer.

The church was well filled with delegates and S.S. workers.

The following officers were declared elected by the nominating committee following which Rev. Fred G. Johns took charge of the impressive installation service.

President—Mr. Gerald Craven, Stirling.

1st Vice Pres—Mr. Wm. Johnson, Salem.

2nd Vice Pres—Mr. W. J. Cottrell, Marmora.

Sec.-Treasurer—Mrs. H. Mumby, Springbrook.

Children's Work—Miss Kathleen McComb, Bonarlaw.

Girl's Work—Mrs. Clifford Lansing, Stirling.

Boy's Work—Rev. H. W. Foley, Springbrook.

Young Peoples—Mrs. Thomas McMullen, Bethel.

Adult Division—Mr. Garth Sabine, Marmora.

Home Religion—Mrs. G. W. Swayne, Bonarlaw.

Teacher's Training—Mrs. Harper Rollins, Stirling.

Missionary—Mrs. James Sharp, Mount Pleasant.

Temperance—Mr. Ernest Sayles, Salem.

At this juncture the electric current went off and the meeting was held up a few minutes till lamps were procured.

An invitation to meet at Carmel United Church in 1934 was accepted.

Rev. A. S. McConnell pastor of St.—John's Anglican Church, Stirling gave a wonderful address full of inspiration to the young people in attendance.

The choir rendered a pleasing anthem "Be strong and of good courage" was gathered with suitable prayer music rendered by Miss E. Bailey.

The County President, Mr. Arthur Wellman of West Huntingdon fittingly presented the banner to Bethel Sunday School as they made 205 points and congratulated them on being the best school out of fifteen. He also had nine boys and girls receive in Sunday School this term for perfect attendance for years to come.

Mr. John Farrell, Supt. of Bethel received the banner.

Rev. Foley reported for Leadership Training and advised that a class be held at Bethel in November. All were asked to attend the county convention at Bethesda Church, White Lake on November 3rd.

Rev. Johns conveyed thanks to church officials, choir, choir, speakers, soloists and to retiring president.

Mr. W. F. Baker of St. Mark's sang a beautiful solo "Life Railway to Heaven".

The closing address was given by Miss Lewis, based on "The Devotional side of our lives" and she told the narrative of Peter and his catch of fish, and later how he followed Jesus.

Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth of Marmora closed the session with prayer and all the delegates wended their way homewards with a wealth of material for young people's work as they go about their daily duties.

TRIPS, FALLS INTO WATER

Ottawa Resident Drowns in Accident at Haileybury

Haileybury, Ont., Oct. 19—Miner S. Ritchie, 44, superintendent of the Upper Ottawa Improvement Company, is dead here today, victim of a drowning accident.

Ritchie was walking on the wharf here last night when he tripped, stumbled and fell into the dark water. Captain W. H. Riley, with him at the time, was on the opposite side of the wharf when he heard the splash. He rushed to the pier-side and could see Ritchie struggling but could not reach him. He summoned help from a nearby hotel and within a few minutes the body was recovered.

Mr. Ritchie had come to Haileybury from Timiskaming several days before the fatality on a regular trip of inspection. He was preparing to leave today.

He is survived by his widow, mother, and two children at Temiskaming, Que.

MAY DRINK TEA FROM 1860 CUP

Fort Erie, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP) — Should the Earl of Beaconsfield desire a cup of tea when he visits the ruins of Old Fort Erie next Tuesday Charles Wall, 62, can offer it in an unique way. He has carefully preserved the cup and saucer, dinner set and candlesticks used by the last official representative of the crown to visit this district, King Edward, then Prince of Wales, in 1860.

Yellowed with age the set is still serviceable despite the fact that it has not been used since 1860 when Mr. Wall's mother and father personally served the royal visitors.

NATIVE OF PEMBROKE CHARGED WITH MURDER

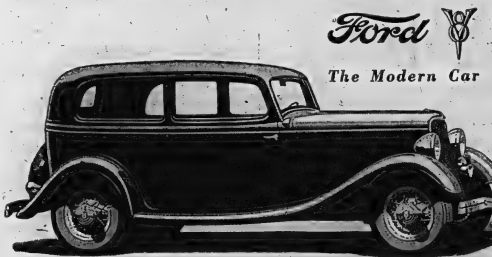
Alleged he Made Man Help Stage Holdup, Then Shot Him

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Detroit police today prepared a warrant formally charging Albert Viggers, native of Pembroke, with the murder of Andrew Sable of Detroit. Viggers is held in jail here by Windsor police for questioning in connection with the slaying.

Sable was killed after an armed man had walked into the beer parlor where he was drinking and ordered him outside. The pair went to another beer parlor, where there was an altercation between the armed man and the proprietor regarding drinks "on the house," and later went to a grocery store, which the gun-carrying man held up while Sable waited outside. Then the man came out he shot Sable.

HERE'S SOME INTERESTING AND ENCOURAGING NEWS

Exports of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, in the first nine months of this year have already exceeded the entire 12 months of 1932, with the heaviest quarter yet to come. A total increase of 85% for 1933 export business over 1932 is expected.



We are quite sure both gooverelves and your readers will be heartened at this concrete evidence of improved world economic conditions.

THE TREND IS TOWARD THE V-8

BUY TOMORROW'S CAR...TODAY

Ford

The Modern Car

THE eight has always been a great car to drive. But it was costly to buy and expensive to operate. Then along came Ford with a new kind of eight-cylinder car. An eight-cylinder car in the price class of the "4" and as economical to run.

The success of the 1933 Ford V-8 has set all motor manufacturers thinking and the trend is definitely toward the V-8. In the words of Henry Ford — "The V-8 is the coming car for the majority of drivers. It will be only a short time until motor manufacturing practice will follow the trail we have blazed."

Carefully kept cost records show remarkable gasoline mileage in the 1933 Ford V-8. In Toronto, L. G. Donald reports 23.44 miles per gallon and adds — "I know that for certain periods I was getting 26½ miles to the gallon."

O. A. Gerrow, of Oshawa, Ontario, writes: "The economy of operation is far above my expectations. My average gas consumption is 22 miles per gallon in city and country driving." Hundreds of other owners of the 1933 Ford V-8 report 22 to 25 miles per gallon.

Here's something else to remember when you're thinking about cost of operation and up-keep —

Genuine Ford parts cost less and the Ford flat labor rates are more than 30% less. You can buy a lot of gasoline on what you save there.

All we ask is this—see and drive the New Ford V-8. It's the greatest all-round value ever offered by a motor car and you ought to know about it. The trend is toward eight cylinders and there's no need for you to be satisfied with less. Get tomorrow's car — TODAY!

TORONTO POLICE COMMISSION MAKES PROMOTION IN DEPT.

Mayor Stewart Dissents And Gives His Reasons

TORONTO, Oct. 20—With Mayor Stewart dissenting, the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon approved the recommendation of Chief Constable D. C. Draper that Assistant Inspector of Detectives John Chisholm be promoted inspector of detectives to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Inspector Chisholm. Both men have been acting in their respective positions since the resignation of former Inspector Murray, following the Dorland case investigation.

Voted on Agreed Basis

Asked his reasons for voting in opposition to the recommendations of the Provincial Government, Mayor Stewart said that under the Board of Police Commissioners, having respect to unanimously decided upon in certain basis whereon promotions were to be made, I voted in accordance with that decision and upon that agreed upon basis.

"To what basis do you refer?" he was asked.

"With my fellow commissioners I adopted the basis of seniority, clean record and ability," he said.

"That is what you do you care to state why, in your opinion, your fellow-commissioners departed from that basis?" his worship was asked.

"That is a question which should be address to them, if you want it answered. I am not explaining the actions of anybody but myself," was the answer.

In Conformity, Belief

Judge James Parker, spoken to in connection with the mayor's statement, said:

"I feel that our action has conformed with the basis previously adopted, and will result in harmony and the appointment for the position."

J. R. Starr, K.C., third and latest member of the commission, said:

"We took a great deal of trouble about making the appointment, and do not feel we departed from the basis adopted in a resolution at a recent meeting."

Both Judge Parker and Mr. Starr expressed certainty that the appointments would result in harmony and the highest efficiency in the detective department. They were reluctant to discuss at length the reasons for their votes because of the obviously personal nature of the subject.

A third promotion which has been earned by hard work on behalf of the department was made when the board appointed Patrol-Sergeant Richard Pountney to sergeantcy and him to the full charge of the local signal system throughout the city. Sergt. Pountney succeeds Sergeant Alex. McMillan, who retired from the force a year ago.

THREE WITNESSES IDENTIFY "JAKE"

Finn on Trial for Murder in Cobourg Court

Cobourg, Oct., Oct. 20,—(CP)—Trial of Yrgo Laurila, charged with the murder of Fred McLaren, Cavan Township, his friend and benefactor, continued today. Three witnesses yesterday identified Laurila as the "Jake who for a time mixed with McLaren, although the Finn himself testified he had told Peterborough police after his arrest he had been in Toronto all last winter.

McLaren was found in his shanty, his body frozen and head battered, last January. Search was instituted for "Jake," but for some months no trace of the man was found. Finally farmers in the vicinity notified police of his presence and he was arrested.

RECORD CUT FOR QUEBEC

About 25,000 Lumbermen Will be Employed in Bush

Quebec, Oct. 20 (CP)—Province of Quebec lumbermen were jubilant today following the announcement between 22,000 and 25,000 men would invade the forests of Quebec this winter and cut more than 736,000,000 board feet of wood.

The season will be the best since 1926-27 and the men will be paid higher wages than last year. Arthur Bedard, Assistant Chief of the Provincial Forestry Service, announced. The cut is expected to be 875,000,000 feet more, than last year's cut when 525,000,000 feet were taken out of the forests. 75,000,000 feet more than final estimate. This year's employment figure is the nearest approach to the 1926-27 when about 41,000 found employment.

1. Police got a call from the Green home. Tabby had turned up again and Mrs. Green and the maid had locked themselves in the room for safety.
2. Police arrived at the Green home, but Tabby had disappeared once more.
3. The seventh act is going forward today. A half-dozen Tabby policemen are guarding Glaca Bay, armed with rifles, in search of Tabby, who is believed to be mad.

FINGERPRINTING BEFORE INJUNCTION

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)—Toronto Police Commission was asked by the Board of Control today to report whether it is necessary to fingerprint and photograph a prisoner before it is released.

Tabby Goes on Rampage, Returning Home after Being Escorted to Station

Glace Bay, N.S., Oct. 20 (CP) — Nathan Green's cat went on the rampage and here's what happened:

1. Tabby attacked Mrs. Green and the maid, who repulsed her with a broomstick and sent for the police.
2. Green rushed home from the office, corralled Tabby after a battle, threw her into the rumble seat of his car and drove for the police station.
3. A cop, slated to execute Tabby, found a spitting, scratching mass of fur on his shoulders when he opened the rumble. He retreated.
4. Tabby disappeared.

Plunger Who Brought on Grain Crash Rumored Ready to Attempt Comeback

Napoleonic Figure of Chicago Grain Pit Said to Be Out to Recoup Fortune and Repay His Debts

The Chicago wheat pit where the spectacular crash in July brought on the closing of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Edward A. (Doc) Crawford.

BY BRUCE GRANT
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Chicago, Oct. 20—La Salle Street is in a flurry over information that the lucky-strike—no rumor about Edward A. "Doc" Crawford, whose spectacular crash in July brought on the closing of the Chicago Board of Trade, is attempting a come-back here, either in person or by proxy.

And "Doc" Crawford, by virtue of these rumors, has become even more the mystery man in local trading circles as worried brokers are scurrying about, watching the buying and selling closely and trying to verify the report for their own return. For although Crawford was apparently "exposed" and his fallacious statements concerning him leave "street men" without doubt as to whether he actually is insolvent or whether his recent holdings was but a smoke screen set up by a few frightened traders.

Makes No Secret

This Napoleonic figure of the grain pit apparently makes Napoleon who said, "I'll fight all the armies of the world, but not public opinion," is not even afraid of what people say. He has made no attempt to conceal the fact, local brokers say, that he will attempt to recoup his fortunes—and in the grain market here.

Last July wasn't the first, but the third time Crawford has been wiped out, and he let it be known then that he was far from licked. Through his attorney he expressed himself as completely confident that he would not only reach the financial heights again, but would settle all debts incurred in the last debacle.

And so, in spite of the fact that this most spectacular plunger of recent years has been suspended from the Chicago Board of Trade, the rumor implies up and down "the street" that the "Doc" has opened operations once more. None of the 17 brokers who made neat little profits in the boom days of the Crawford regime, and who just managed to get out from under at the big upset, is able to verify the story.

Known to Few

Indeed, if the mysterious "Doc" were to walk into my office which handled his gigantic accounts before, it is doubtful whether he would be recognized. There are very few who know the man—and that makes this latest rumor all the more disturbing.

Crawford has been described as a frail little fellow of 48, with gray hair and a stature which barely reaches the five-foot mark. He hails from New Orleans, where he got up a reputation which had something to do with teeth or tonsils, no one is quite sure. But it was in New Orleans where he began manipulating his savings on the market.

He did so well that he established offices in New York immediately after the war. Then, in 1929, he was "wiped out" as the report went. Still many others were wiped out then and little attention was paid to Crawford.

Anyway, Crawford obtained a $25,000 loan then upon which he proceeded to graft cipher after cipher. He branched out into the cotton market in New Orleans; sugar in Havana; rubber in Amsterdam and silk in Japan.

JAPAN ADDS HER PROTEST

Highly Indignant at Germany's Branding Japan as Inferior

Tokyo, Oct. 20—(AP)—Japan has added her voice to those raised in protest against Nazi racial discrimination.

The government and people of Japan, through foreign office spokesman Hirosi Amau, yesterday characterized in the strongest terms the Nazi attitude and legislation by the German government have specified discriminatory treatment of the Japanese and other colored races banning mixtures thereof with the German blood.

Even in the United States, the spokesman said, the Japanese are not subjected to the same treatment as Negroes, yet Germany has included them in the same category.

The spokesman said the Vice-Minister of the German foreign office had promised careful consideration of the Japanese protest.

Misery across Kidneys

FOR those who suffer from pains across kidneys, heavy dull feelings and sometimes swollen ankles or feet, Dr. Pierce's newest medicine, called "Anuric," brings relief. Read what Ronald Spooner of 3 Drummond St., Brantford, Ont., says: "I would get it catch across my kidneys every time I got up or stooped over. I would be so stiff and sore in the small knife sweep in my kidneys. Again the kidneys passed very often, the secretions passed very often and had burned in passage. Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets drove away every sign of the kidney complaint." Sold by all druggists.

New Aid in Preventing Colds Leads to Plan For Better Control of Colds

PLAN EASY TO FOLLOW

Years ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern method of treating colds. Now, Vicks Chemists have developed a new way of preventing it. VapoRub — Vicks Nose & Throat Drops — the new aid in preventing colds.

These two preparations, together with a few simple rules of Health form the new Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. Tested results of clinical tests under medical supervision, Vicks Plan for Colds has produced the number and duration of colds, has made dangers and expense. (The Plan is fully explained in each package of Vicks Nose Drops and Vicks VapoRub.)

Here, briefly, is how Vicks Plan works:

To Prevent Many Colds

Watch yourself and children after exposure to any condition apt to be followed by a cold—such as: Contact with others having active colds —crowds, public places, stuffy ill-ventilated rooms—sudden changes in temperature, wet or cold, or unaccustomed expenses—overwork—living which lower resistance, such as over-eating, smoking, or drinking—after a hard day when you are overtired.

Then—if you have that stuffy, uneasy irritation of the nasal passages, Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops at once—just a few drops up each nostril—and many annoying colds will be avoided altogether.

To End a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, Vicks Plan measures are necessary. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub, its poultice-vapor action works all night long. Through the skin, VapoRub "draws out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, its soothing medicated vapors, released by body heat, are carried direct to irritated air-passages. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

If there is a cough, you will like another new Vicks product—Vicks Cough Drops — actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.

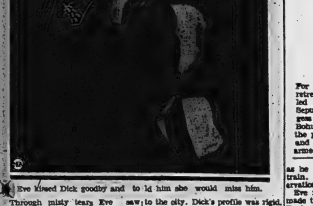
OCT. 20 MR. AND MRS. A SHORT-LIVED RESOLUTION

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs



For hours Jihnny Blake followed the trail of the ravishing Arabs but he was unable to find the one that led to the outer world beyond the Valley of the Forbidden Mists. All about him, though he could not guess it, lay concealed the men-at-arms of King Bohun who had been watching the slow ascent of the car he dashed into the storm. In a few moments he was back and hurrying her under the canopy to the changing roadster. They could see the lights of the Terminal Tower as they sped over the Heights

And so Sir James of Nimmr was seized, and brought before King Bohun. When he was questioned and Bohun found that he was the same black knight that had thwarted his plan to abduct the Princess Gulnaida, the King could scarce contain himself. Sir James was speedily placed in chains and hurled into a dungeon to await his fate. His guards departed, leaving him a damp, stone wall beside two emaciated wretches.

Upon the plain near Nimmr Tarzan of the Apes had overtaken his section of the Arabs and found the girl was not with them. Turning back, the Ape-Man came upon the battle in which where there was little likelihood of the heavy leopards of Nimmr disturbing his slumbers. Early next morning he set out upon Ibn Jad's trail. When he overtook the Arabs he saw no evidence of the Princess. Slimbol, too, was missing.

Moving silently through the trees paralleling their course, Tarzan followed the Arabs. He knew the Sheik through him dead. Indeed, Ibn Jad was now confident that he and his loot were safely out of danger, spent the night in a high-limb tree with what Five men carried the heavy bags of jewels and gold. Of a sudden, with only the sounds of its flights through the air as warning, an arrow passed through the neck of the Bedrin who trudged beside the Sheik.

Eve kissed Dick goodby and to id him she would miss him.

"Through misty tears Eve saw Dick's firm mormon mouth, now a thin, straight streak across his white face. He asked, "For—how long?"

And she answered, 'A week—nearly. I'll be home Sunday morning.

Dick raised the ruby goblet to his lips. The harpist changed her melody to Victor Herbert's "Gypsy Sweetheart." Eve afterward at the sound of that air Eve was to relieve that sorrow.

Dick was waiting for her to go on.

Eve said, "Can't you come along with me, darling?"

"Then you have decided to go?" Dick wasn't making it easy for her. "I must, Dick! It's my big opportunity." This a trifle defiantly.

Then, regretting her manner to hit, she added, "If you'd come along, Dick, we could announce our marriage immediately. Come on, darling! We'd spend our honeymoon in New York. All I have to do there is look about—visit the smart shops and restaurants and the theatres. It will be fun!"

But Dick had his work too and slowly he shook his head. "No, it's impossible for me to get away before the job is finished in June. Just now we're pouring concrete and if there is a slip-up I'm responsible. People have been forced to dynamite whole foundation walls because they were laid out a few inches out of line. No Eve. When a bunch of blueprints are handed to me I don't leave until the completed building is turned over to the owner and I know what he will find out later—that everything is o.k. I'm staying on the job."

Eve's lips quivered. He was willing for her to go. His didn't even quarrel over it as unreasonably, she half hoped he would do. Was it possible that she did not mean as much to him as his work? Well, then, she would just show him! She delivered the next blow.

"My train leaves at eight o'clock," Eve announced. "I rushed out into this afternoon and packed a bag and sent it to the station."

"WHAT!" he cried. Hastily he laid the cheese and bundled Eve into her wraps. The telling her he walk inside until she brought the car, he dashed into the storm. In a few moments he was back and hurrying her under the canopy to the changing roadster. They could see the lights of the Terminal Tower as they sped over the Heights

For the LOVE of EVE

CHAPTER 3

Dick looked puzzled. "Leave me?" he repeated. "I don't understand. What in the world are you trying to tell me, sweetheart?"

"Wel—," Eve hesitated. "You know I told you that Alice Marshall is starting Shop to open an office of her own and that I might have a chance to take her place? Well you know how hard I've worked for a promotion—"

"Yes. Well?" Dick's voice didn't seem quite natural. It sounded a little grim. His gray eyes were sober, waiting.

"Well, Alice is going why soon. Sooner than Mr. Barnes expected. He called me into his office early this morning and told me I had a chance for the position. He said he and Mr. Slaby would decide about it this afternoon. And," Eve nervously took a sip of hot coffee, "he said this morning that if they decided I could have the job I was to leave for New York tonight. I was afraid to tell them this is our wedding day. I never would have got the promotion then."

Dick, white-faced, nailed. She looked at him pleadingly but he did not help her. She must hurry on. Time pressed.

"Well, darling, I hoped against hope. I wanted the position and I wanted you. And as long as we had planned to be married this soon I couldn't bear to spoil our wedding. And I didn't know for sure until the middle of the afternoon that the job is mine and that I'm to leave tonight for New York."

"Bixby's made the reservation for me, and Freda Carter will be there the first two days." Eve smiled. She knew why he asked flowers, telegrams, letters.

"But you'll be there alone for the rest of the time? I don't like it, Eve. It isn't safe."

"Oh, darling, don't be quaint. Of course I'll be safe! I'll look up Irene Prentiss. Will she do for a chaperon?"

She kissed Dick goodby and told him she would miss him.

He alighting and stood outside looking up at her through the car window. Tears dimmed her eyes, and there was a hurt, stunned look on Dick's face—a little-boy look. A pain that was fiercely maternal twisted Eve's heart.

Of course Dick would go to a telegraph office immediately and send her a telegram to be waiting for her at the hotel in New York in the morning. Eve could almost guess the words he would use.

"Missing you, darling. Hurry back. Love from Dick."

A gay group including a young man and two girls brushed past Dick. Then the man turned in sudden recognition. He left the girls clinging to his arm, swung about with him. Apparently they were being introduced, although Eve could hear no part of the conversation through the double windows. Then with a warning and a jerk, the long train glided out of the station. Dick was lost to Eve and her last glimpse of him included a pair of laughing girls and an irresponsible looking young man. Suddenly Eve wanted to leap from the moving train to be with Dick.

"I'll be only your wedding night, Eve Barnes," she told herself, "but it's also your first business trip to New York— and you know the importance of that."

As the train gathered momentum and plunged into the night Eve tried to read the evening paper but was unable to fasten her attention on anything but the department store advertisements, which were merely forms of habit.

She rang for the porter and asked to have her berth made up early. Later she lay on her side for a long time, resting her head on her arm and watching the storm as the train sped through the countryside.

This was Eve's wedding night and she was alone, headed for New York on business for Bixby's store. What a situation! How had she found strength to tear herself away? How could she leave Dick like that without hurting him needlessly, and, worse, herself, and who was that man with the two girls? Could they be friends of a foursome for an impromptu party? Could Dick be blamed if he joined them?

Suppose he should never forgive her? Suppose she never saw Dick again? Suppose something terrible happened to punish her for leaving him this way?

Eve slipped down under the covers and pulled the sheet close so that only her face peeped out for air. Still she dozed when she was a little girl and became frightened in the night at imaginary figures and sounds. And so she prayed as she had prayed when she was a little girl—her very own prayer addressed to a Divinity as real, as friendly, as familiar as was her own parents: "Oh God, please have Dick forgive me; and take care of him and of him!"

Would there be a telegram in the morning?

CHAPTER 3

Eve awoke with dawn and lay for a long while watching the wintry Hudson River as the train sped by. She wondered about Dick—what he was doing at this hour, whether he was asleep and dreaming of her or on his way to work. She reached under her pillow for the chamois bag. It was there and the little gold wedding ring was safe. She tried the ring on and decided to wear it until she arrived at the hotel.

Over her black pajamas she slipped a black silk robe with a great golden dragon heavily embroidered on the back. A pair of golden mules completed her Pullman ensemble and she picked up her dressing case and made for the dressing room.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion
Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.
Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of all cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sour-ness, gas, pain, nausea, heartburn, etc., are caused by excess acid. Undigested food collects acid in the stomach. The resulting chemical disturbance irritates, digestion is delayed and food sours, gas forms, you belch, have a sensation which many stomach sufferer knows all too well.
Most stomach troubles are not need-ed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead buy from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia (ask for it in powder or tablet form) and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas, pain. It is harmless, inexpensive, and is used by thousands of people who say it makes meals with no fear of indigestion.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile . . . Without Calomel, And Feel Like a Million Dollars.

Nobody ever feels like taking out of bilious attacks more quickly than your liver. All it has to do is to pour into your bowels two pounds of bile juice each day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach and you have that sick, headachy, constipated feeling. Your stomach acts up, your breath is foul, your head aches, you feel sour, sunk and the whole world looks punk. Your head aches. All you need is to get your liver working and your system cleaned out.

Most bowel movers like salts, oil, mineral waters, roughage, laxative candy or chewing gum are not going to correct this condition. They are only makeshifts. What you need is your liver pills to be in proper action.

Your liver should normally turn into your bowels a full pint of Carter's Little Liver Pills every day. If they are not doing this, they are the cause of your constipation. Don't you want your money on substitutes. Be sure you get Carter's Little Liver Pills. Ask for them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c, at all druggists.

SLIM CHANCE TO WIN TITLE

Uxcudum To Fight Carnera in Rome on Sunday

Rome, Oct. 20 (AP)—Paulino Uzcudun is conceded little or no chance of beating Primo Carnera in their heavyweight title fight here Sunday but the Basque and his managers outwardly at least, are unperturbed.

Paulino and his handlers insist that Uzcudun is a good financial risk and state their opinion that the veteran Spaniard will wear "da primo" down to his own size in the first ten rounds and then wallop him over the last five, perhaps even knock him out.

The wish seems father to the thought in this connection and Primo faces the issue confidently. He boxed ten rounds with Harold Mays and Arthur Sisilick at Sequals yesterday and did some road work as well. Paulino, at Sequals, went six rounds against a pair of sparring mates and wound up with rope skipping, bag punching and calisthenics.

Carnera was to wind up training today and make the trip to Rome by aeroplane Saturday.

A number from here attended the W.M.S. pageant "Thanksgiving Dishes" at Selkirk church on Friday evening.

Those from here who attended the fowl supper at Empey Hill Church on Monday night report the usual good supper and a most excellent program.

VAUDEVILLE ACTS PLEASING

Excellent Stage Performance And Great Film "F.P. 1" at Capitol

As critics of the stage the people of Belleville are by no means susceptible, so that the genuine appause given by last night's audience to the Capitol Theatre stage presentation of Jupiter Entertainers is pleased, and big fair to seeing capacity crowds for the remainder of the engagement, tonight and tomorrow (Saturday).

Louis and Cherie, the "Parisienne Acrobatics" were excellent, and their feats on the trapeze started the reception of the delighted onlookers. Poise, balance, muscular strength and perfect timing were features of this act which resulted in a tremendously well performed display.

Knowles and Hines were amusing in their clean and clever back-chat and melody interlude "Monkey Shines". The lady partner was particularly pleasing in appearance and her happy knack of enjoying her side of the repartee did much to emphasize the discomfiture of her companion, who decidedly got the worst of the argument, rousing the audience to a pitch of rooting for her.

The cleanliness of this act was marked and the jokes were both clever and well received.

The star turn, Miss Bettie La Percel and her five accompanists, was indeed a most unusual "Cycle of Songs and Dances".

The cycle opened with Miss Percel performing a delightful toe dance, and indulging in some extremely attractive acrobatics.

One of her partners followed with a Russian dance and then a charming performer danced to her way through the overture to "Rose and Pessani" (Suppe).

The male member of this group amazed his audience with a lightning-like leg dance which was the finale established the presentation as excellent.

The orchestra greatly enhanced the performance and the initial rendering of the triple-header which they receive at almost a moment's notice says much for the talent of the musicians.

The whole show was indeed pure value for money and is finely recommended for the entire family.

"F.P.1." A Great Film

A huge floating platform in mid-Atlantic to be used as a fueling base for trans-Atlantic planes has been for years the conception of men for many years but the idea never left the public has gathered an idea of the vastness of such a scheme is in the film "F.P.1." which was given its premier at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday. The huge device is in itself an attraction to the public but with it is bound up the inevitable story so necessary for entertainment. It is the story of a great engineering feat and the perils encountered in the erection of the platform and the subsequent attempt to strangle the advance of science by the destruction of the floating platform in mid-Atlantic. The plot abound, its discovery, the heroic resolve of the world-famous aviator for the sake of his love for the girl who tackles the F.P.1. project as a member of the firm, the revelation of her artistry for the commander of the platform - as she discovers that the platform is in danger from a trans-Atlantic liner aboard, the flight of the plane to the platform where a surprising discovery waits the aviator and the girl, the entanglements, of love, the flight of the crew in motor-boats, the sweeping decision of the flier to keep the lovers and not the sinking mid-ocean platform, are all brought forward in a way never to be forgotten. The film is as full of thrills as it can be, but the course of love ends as lovers would have it end.

Conrad Veidt is impressive in his acting. Jill Esmond is most important as the greatest scientist of the play and his scenes and her gestures are in complete control of a mind that thoroughly understands her part. Leslie Fenton as the lead is an admirable foil to Veidt.

Tom Sopwith, Noted English Sportsman, And Mrs. Sopwith

These two have their eyes on the meeting between his boat the Endeavor and a boat selected by the Club, to contest for the possession of the mug. Charles Nicholson, famous boat designer and builder, who drew the designs for two of Sir Thomas Lipton's challengers, designed the Endeavor. It is understood that the Endeavor is of a all-steel construction.

Litvinoff Invited to Sit in With Roosevelt; Trade Looms With Soviet

Treaty Would Increase Trade For U. S. by $100,000,000

CREDITS NEEDED

(By Corporation Recognition of Soviet is Anticipated

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP) — A speedy recognition of Soviet Russia, with a resultant increase in Russo-American trade, was forecast authoritatively today close upon the receipt of word that the communist state intends literally to rush its representative to the White House.

In an informed but unofficial quarter it was stated that Maxim Litvinoff, the stocky, out-spoken Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, probably would sit down with President Roosevelt in about two weeks.

Litvinoff, by employing fast boats and trains, could make the lengthy trip from Moscow in around ten days.

The whirl of preparation set off by the President when he read to newsmen his letter to Mikhail Kalinin, President of the Soviet Central Executive Committee, that the time had come to "end the present abnormal relations" between the two countries, today brought a generally favorable reaction at Washington.

Some officials expressed the opinion privately that should the Soviet-Polish boundary negotiations solve the difficulties in the path of recognition, the President's memorandum of the $100,000,000 mark could be expected.

The President himself warned that his letter to Kalinin did not in itself constitute recognition, but that within his administration was the authoritative indication that this result could be expected in little more than a month if not earlier.

Talk progressed so far that there was speculation today that Henry Morgenthau, Jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, would be prominent among those considered as an ambassador to the Soviet state, if and when relations between the two countries were solved.

Opposition May Come.

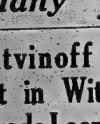
It appeared certain today that opposition to the President's move toward recognition would arise when Congress convenes. The American Federation of Labor and the American Legion already have expressed their opposition.

Behind the president's decision that exports of beyond $100,000,000 to Russia might be expected should recognition be granted, lies the sound foundation of negotiations already far advanced between the Amtorg Russian trading company, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a huge credit organization. Their talks of more than $50,000,000.

The credits, which almost assuredly would be involved in the event of recognition, would account for the purchase of Russian goods in addition to addition to sizeable purchase of the machinery of various sorts.

Officials have seen in Russia a ready market for rail equipment as well as mill machinery. Farm implements of exports are known to believe that Russia would take 2,000,000 bales of cotton annually if conditions were propitious.

President Roosevelt's warning that his invitation did not automatically signify recognition, the surveillance of some stat. department officials that results could hardly be expected within a month, all based upon the complexity of the questions to be discussed by Messrs. Roosevelt and M. Litvinoff.



Among the obstacles observed against Russia by the United States are a $187,000,000 war-time loan to the Kerensky Government, which was overthrown by the forces which formed the present Soviet state, and $60,000,000 in private flotations to the Czarist regime.

In addition the forces overthrown by the present conficated property estimated roughly at $300,000,000 in principle.

Morrison has called an inquest for tonight.

WHITE PAPER TO BE ISSUED

Britain Will Close Controversy of Simon And Neurath

London, Oct. 20.—(AP) — The government has decided to issue a White Paper, knotty which officials hope will close the controversy between Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs, and Konstantin Von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister.

(Following Germany's withdrawal from the Disarmament Conference, Baron Von Neurath charged Sir John and Premier Ramsay MacDonald with bad faith. Sir John denied it and offered to produce documents to prove it. It also was understood the German government is desirous of ending the controversy.

The White Paper mainly will deal with the proceedings of the Bureau (steering committee) of the Arms Parley without important new documents.

Earl of Bessborough Drives Locomotive on St. Thomas Visit

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP) — The Earl of Bessborough, Governor General of Canada, became a locomotive engineer for a short time here today when, accompanied by the Countess of Bessborough he paid his first visit to Canada's railway city.

Attired in a blue denim smock, gloves and engineer's cap, and under the direction of Mayor John A. Logue, a locomotive driver, His Excellency piloted the New York Central Railway locomotive from the Michigan Central Railway shops through the yards to the station.

The locomotive is one of the largest on the continent and is operated between New York and Windsor.

(The engine ran over the automatic stop device to show His Excellency the safety appliance and how it operates.

Their Excellencies spent a busy day here. On arrival at the station they were greeted by civic officials and others following which the Governor General inspected a guard of honor of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides.

A brief visit was paid to the Vocational School where half the city's school children were lined up to greet Their Excellencies with cheers. Thereafter the city hall for the official welcome and reading of addresses by the civic presidents of the Legion and Local Council of Women.

NEW GERMANY IS RULED BY MASS APPEAL

Hitler Has Centralized All Power, Never Done Before

NO ALTERNATIVE

Retirement Preliminary to Armament is Talk in Europe

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, Oct. 21 (C.P. Cable)—The new Germany is ruled by mass appeal. Chancellor Adolf Hitler has centralized all power as no German chancellor has ever done before. The old political lines have disappeared. Generally speaking, south is all for Hitler; the men of the middle-age is for enthusiastic nether way but are willing to give the Nazis a trial. Hitler's strength lies in the fact that present-day Germany offers no effective alternative. For the time being that mass appeal is turned to peace. The German people, Hitler constantly says, "only want peace and nothing else." Party tributes to the battlefields' redeeming virtues are disappearing from the Nazi publicity.

Pendulum May Swing

Set travelling about one wonders whether the pendulum may not swing again. The common talk around Geneva was that Germany's retirement from the League of Nations is the preliminary to rearmament, when the domestic problems are cleared away. With no opposition, it is argued, the mass appeal could just as easily be swung for big armaments. Two years is mentioned as the probable interval before Germany could be effectively armed.

And Hitlerism retains control with an unbridled hand. The local Nazi paper yesterday recorded how the head of a firm refused to raise his right arm in salute when the first verse of "Horst-Wessel-Lied" (Horst Wessel's song) was being sung. "I don't do it," he replied when a Nazi leader chastised him. So to custody he went.

Dr. Goebbels' employes near Berlin took refuge in jail to escape a mob crowd of Nazis determined to murder him. He had been dismissed from his job and was trying to eke out a living for his wife and child on a small allowance. Unfounded he had admitted being a Pacifist.

No Chance for Non-Members

On the concentration camps the work of "communism" proceeds apace. Barbed wire, machine guns, sun guards and high-tension wires checking any attempt at escape, under the shadowy eyes of members who have stumbled on the road to Damascus and now are in the party.

Non-members of the Nazi party have small chance of holding any public office. And the Nazis are closing their own ranks. Within the first three months of the Hitler regime 1½ Nazis received 2,000,000 applications for membership. Now active membership trebled. "We had not the machinery to handle so rapid an increase," the Canadian Press was told, "so we are now submitting applications to a test temporary. When our organization is built up I shall be then we shall admit them again."

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 21 (AP) —Soviet Russia has sent five military aeroplanes as a gift to Turkey on the occasion of the republic's 10th. anniversary.

Seven Miles on Route 7 to be Conducted Under Relief Plan

1000 Men in Northern Part of County Will be Employed

Upwards of one thousand men recruited from the northern section of this district are expected to be given work this winter on a road construction project along the new route of No. 7 highway from Actinolite to a point some seven miles east of Havelock.

Tenders are now being called for the work by the Department of Highways, and it is expected that work will commence on the new road some time early in November. Decision of the department to carry on the work was reached only after months of indecision, and extensive surveys of the road and the route.

The route as outlined, starts at the eastern end of the present section recently constructed by the MacNamara Construction Company seven miles east of Havelock, and runs easterly, but not on the old road except in a few places, directly to the town of Actinolite, and through the big rock hill at that point. Instead of turning north on Marmora's main street, the road will go straight ahead to the Public School and the cemetery, practically following the old Madoc road past the C.N.R. station, leaving in distance of about three miles between the two towns.

From Madoc the road goes on in a present route, cutting out the right-angle turn just east of Madoc, and continues on the old road to the point where it meets the old railway right-of-way about one mile east of Madoc, and where it joins up with the recently completed No. 7 east of Actinolite.

2 KILLED BY GRAVEL BANK

Third Man is Injured Near Sherbrooke, Nova Scotia

Sherbrooke, N.S. Oct. 21 (CP) — Two men were killed and a third seriously injured when a gravel bank caved in on the Sonora Road.

Details of the accident were not immediately available here, but the dead were identified as Charles Smith and Edward Cross. William Archibald was said to be in a critical condition.

The three were taking gravel from the bank when it collapsed, burying them. Archibald was pinned under a heavy stone and it is believed Gale and Cross were buried and suffocated by the gravel.

Edward Cross, one of the dead men, is survived by a wife and seven children. He was about 50 years of age.

The other victim is Osborne Gale, 22, single. Bill Archibald, the injured man, was taken to his home in Sonora and a short time later was reported as recovering.

Cross and Gale were working in the pit when the accident occurred, Archibald was working on a road broke and crashed downward.

Cross and Gale were completely buried and several minutes of shoveling were required to dig them out. Death was quick.

Archibald was only partly covered by the gravel and he was released very soon after the cave in.

PHYSICIANS TO ADVERTISE

Cook County Medical Society Gives Stamp of Approval

Chicago, Oct. 21.—(AP)— The use of advertising, long frowned upon by physicians as a mark of their trustworthiness and abilities, bore its first official sanction today from the Cook County Medical Society.

Action permitting advertising, urging a reduction, in costs of medical care and recommending that association-wide programmes of the organization be planned to answer the criticisms of the practitioner rather than the specialist, was taken at a meeting of the society.

"The society has a membership of several hundred doctors who broke away from the Chicago Medical Society a few months ago.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 21—An apple a day didn't keep the doctor away from Lyman Dye, 50, escaped convict from the State Penitentiary. Living on apples alone all the week he was at work, by his own admission, by Deputy Sheriff Ernest Cunningham, Marshall County, yesterday.

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 21 (CP) —After an absence of three days, Mrs. Ethel Le Baron, who ran away because of a dispute over a candy allowance, was returned by a policeman. Then, while the officer stood talking with the parents at the front door, Dora and Vivian Le Baron, 4 and 6, fled and vanished again.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 21—(CP)—The Benjamin family will have lots of specialists to talk about this winter. Five of its members have undergone appendectomies in the last few weeks. Nine-year-old Robert is convalescing now. He was preceded to the hospital by his mother, two sisters and a brother.

Los Angeles, Oct. 21 (CP)— The fact that her mother-in-law didn't like her cooking, evidently was the reason for a clothes line being used to drive one auto, Hoboken to the other one last night. When pleased under arrest on charges of having no license, Kenneth Lawson, 22, was operating a 35 auto by steering and using the clothes line in his left leg, on the clutch. Brooks Nemser, 21, held on the same charges, was cooperating by driving the machine only with leg, on the foot pedal.

Woodward, Okla., Oct. 21 (CP) —"Fix, Ike," laughed Henry Schmidt, a farmer, as he saw a pedestrian wearing two hats. When Schmidt reached home his daughter vanished for most of his clothes had been stolen. She rescued the two-batted man and found him also wearing a four pair of the Schmidt trousers and two Schmidt leather jackets.

An inquest into the death of De Witt was ordered for today.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 21—Showers have occurred in Western and Northern Ontario and in the Maritime Provinces.

Northern Ontario: Strong southerly winds with occasional rain today and part of Sunday, followed by northwest winds, colder.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Rain or thunderstorms and strong winds; mostly cloudy; probably some rain this afternoon or tonight; colder tonight and Sunday; partly cloudy, probably showers.

Lake Superior—Strong winds or moderate gales; cloudy, with occasional rain.

Kenora and Rainy River—Strong winds; cloudy, with some rain or snow.

Alberta—Partly cloudy and cold.

Chicago, Oct. 21 (AP)—Policemen being discussed by three sergeants at the headquarters assigned to the city's gangland detail, and suspect was being questioned.

"Let me tell you a story," said a sergeant, "when I saw this cannon putlin the eye on a sucker. I knew he was only a stall. He never put the clips on a poke in his life. But oneness him."

"There's smart coppers and there's chump coppers," said the suspect, "and this fuzz is no chump."

BLAZE RAGES

Students And Priests in Chapel at Time of Outbreak

St. Joseph, N.B., Oct. 21 (CP)—As dawn broke to-day firemen still struggled desperately to slem the spread of a fire which licked its way through five buildings of St. Joseph's University here during the night, wiped out six farms on college property and destroyed a business building, three private residences and two barns outside the college boundaries, damages were estimated at well above $1,000,000.

While the last embers were dying out that remained of the university buildings was a gymnasium, skating rink and new wing containing the chapel. Early today the chapel roof caught fire but apparently this was confined to the lay-out part. Although the new wing was of fire-proof construction, it suffered damage from smoke and water. At one time St. Thomas Church, on the other side of the street, appeared threatened but it escaped the fate of St. Joseph's.

Destroyed Property.

The following property was destroyed: Main university building, a three-story stone structure; the old college building, a three-story wooden structure housing the university of the Basins of the Holy Family, the infirmary and the laundry; the Bakery, boiler shop, power house and six barns containing valuable equipment and crops; the Rectory L'Assomption Society building housing the printing plant of the Canada branch; the residences of Denai Gaudet and Alderic Gaudet; a barn owned by Denis Claudet and another by Eric T. Richard, the latter property located more than a mile from the university.

In Chapel.

The three hundred students at the institution, operated by the Holy Cross Order, and the 75 Brothers and 15 Priests were in the new chapel when the blaze broke out. Fire officials here were informed by the students' quarters, quoting a loan company officials as saying that certain persons in the east is 8½ to 7 per cent. and 8 to 12 per cent. in parts of Western Canada. In recent months, it was pointed out, a limited amount of funds has been available for mutual home builders, but very little for speculative builders.

BUILDERS ARE MORE HOPEFUL

Loosening of Money And Lower Interest Rates Bright Spots

(By Alex. Pringle, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 21—Loosening of money for home building mortgages, a reduced mortgage interest rate and more funds for lending available from England as sterling holds close to par in Canada are held by contractors and builders here as bright spots of the near future that may help to lift the industry from four years of depression.

As families in nearly every large city have "doubled up" and available money for speculative and private home building has tightened, the building industry has been in the dumps. In 1929 Canadian construction contracts totalled about $377,000,000 while it is estimated the total outlay in 1933 will not exceed $60,000,000.

Builders look forward confidently to several factors to improve the situation. They believe a loosening of money for home building is imminent now that the Federal government's conversion loan is out of the way. W. J. Fugler, a prominent Toronto architect and director of the Toronto Home Builders' Association told the Canadian Press:

He also suggested the possibility of a cut in the mortgage interest rate in the near future to 6 per cent., quoting a loan company officials as that certain persons in the east is 8½ to 7 per cent. and 8 to 12 per cent. in parts of Western Canada. In recent months, it was pointed out, a limited amount of funds has been available for mutual home builders, but very little for speculative builders.

SHOCK OF HAVING HIS HORSE EXECUTED FATAL

George Murray Gets Neighbor to Kill His Horse

HALIFAX, Oct. 21.—(CP)— George W. Murray's horse had "served him well," as they used to say. But the faithful old servant was growing old and apparently ill with the 66-year-old farmer decided Dobbin would be better out of this world. George called Neighbor Ross Murray to shoot the animal.

Ross did so, but Dobbin did not fall. He never put the clips on a poke in his life. But sneezes him."

"There's smart coppers and there's chump coppers," said the suspect, "and this fuzz is no chump."

CANADIANS DRAW TICKETS IN THE SWEEP

Cambridgeshire Stakes to be Competed For On Wednesday

FAMOUS RACE

17 Units With Each First Winner Receiving $140,100

Dublin, Oct. 21 (CP)—With a total of subscription of $2,732,826—just under $13,000,000 in Canadian funds on the day for the Irish Free State Hospitals' giant sweepstake on the Cambridgeshire stakes started today. The big race will be run at Newmarket next Wednesday.

The draw is to continue on Monday and Tuesday. An excited crowd of spectators was on hand when the tickets were drawn from the great revolving drums. The total subscribed, roughly $4,500,000 will be distributed to the winners.

As in former sweeps, the total is divided into units of about $467,000 each, there being seventeen of these. First prize in each unit, making seventeen first prizes, totals $140,100 at the present rate of exchange. Second prizes in each is $70,000 and third prize is $46,700.

Drawers of the other horses, on the basis of those left in, receive $2,802. In addition there are ten consolation prizes of $467 each and a third is distributed.

Canadians successful today in getting a ticket on a horse in the Irish Free State Hospitals' great sweepstakes on next week's Cambridgeshire, were as follows:

City and District News

PROGRESS MADE ON O. S. D. BLDG.

Workmen employed on the construction of the new dormitory buildings at the Ontario School for the Deaf were engaged today in pouring concrete on the outside walls around the buildings. Considerable progress has been made on the buildings this week with the top floors now about finished. Concrete for the top flat floors was poured a few days ago. Bricklayers at present are at the work of erecting outside partitions in the building; steamfitters are installing the heating system and electricians have already commenced the work of wiring the buildings. Slate for the roof, which is being shipped from Wales, England, has not yet arrived, but is expected to be on the job within a week or so.

MACHINE GUNNERS TO HOLD RE-UNION

Former members of the Fourth Canadian Machine Gun Battalion (C.E.F.) are to hold a reunion dinner in the Hotel La Salle, Montreal, on the evening of the celebration of Armistice Day, Remembrance Day, November 11th next. The call to the former machine-gunners has issued forth over the signature of Lt. Col. George C. Machum, and information regarding the event may be obtained from H. C. Norman, 215 St. James-street, Montreal.

CLINIC RECORD BROKEN FRIDAY

With a total registration yesterday afternoon of eighty-three antiwhip, healthy babies, all records for attendance on Friday afternoon at the regular weekly Well Baby Clinic held by the Victorian Order of Nurses was broken. Previous registration one week ago of over seventy was believed to have set an all time high mark for attendance. Increasing popularity of the clinic, conducted by Miss Dorothea Brandon and Miss Mary Webster, has been evident throughout the year. On Friday even on the outside walks around the city hall, parties waiting for baby carriages was at a premium.

PACKED CAR READY TO GO

Loaded With Provisions For Stricken Areas of West

A solidly packed refrigerator car filled with the products of farms and fields of this central section, and containing also clothing and other necessities will pull out from the north track of the Canadian National Railway in the city today on its trip to the stricken areas of Western Canada where its contents will be distributed to the poor of that district. Through the untiring efforts of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church and the immediate response of residents through the district the shipment is made possible.

The car which has been on the local siding since Friday had been in Stirling on Wednesday and Madoc on Thursday, where residents of that section loaded their generous donations. It is believed the remaining space in the car was packed. Meanwhile the same generous response is being received by members of the Presbytery from local residents. Throughout Ontario, in other municipalities the same generous response has been met. The C.N.R. is transporting the car free of charge.

MOIRA COUPLE 50 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. D. Thompson Enjoy Dinner And Reception in Honor

Mr. and Mrs. David R. Thompson, well-known and popular residents of Moira, observed the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Monday, October 16, the occasion being marked by delightful social events at which they were guests of honor. Residents of Moira community since their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson by their friendliness and outstanding qualities have made hosts of friends, whose good wishes and messages of congratulation made the anniversary a very happy day.

Mr. Thompson was born in Thurlow and his wife, formerly Miss Mary Rollings is a native of Hoard's. They are both enjoying splendid health and enjoyed to the utmost the entertainments held for them. Their children, Mrs. C. V. Bigelow of Tweed and Mr. T. N. Thompson of Toronto, were home for a visit with their parents on this happy occasion.

On Monday, a dinner party was held at the Thompson home, Moira, when the guests of honor were those of the brothers and sisters of the bride and groom of fifty years ago. The honoured couple's floral tributes and around it the lofty maple trees, their leaves just turned to gold, made a perfect setting for the golden anniversary. The floral decorations throughout the home carried out the same color tone in Autumn golden-flowered chrysanthemums at the dinner were Mrs. M. J. Halleti, Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. George Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rollings of Moira, Thompson; and Mrs. Sarah Vandervater, Mrs. Alice Foster of Mr. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Merriam were also present to offer their congratulations on the happy occasion.

On Wednesday evening a reception was held at which the nieces and nephews were specially invited guests. About thirty guests were present and spent a delightful evening with Mr. and Mrs. Thompson. Tea was served by Mrs. T. N. Thompson, assisted by Miss Vivian Elliott and Miss Mabel Gray.

The many beautiful gifts were in with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Thompson continued health and happiness.

APPLE DAY IS REAL SUCCESS

Boy Scouts Have Brisk Sales For Their Products

Doctors of the city went into hiding today as local Boy Scouts made their annual call with filled baskets of apples on their annual "Apple Day" held by them to raise funds to further the work of the local town organization, and to assist in the future training of Scouts. On every corner of the city, the smiling, redcheeked scouts took up their stations, dispensing the home-grown products to hurrying citizens. The scouts started out early and by noon empty and half empty baskets held by the boys showed the result of the brisk sales in their annual effort. Long before the rest of the city was astir, the scouts had their days campaign well organized and underway, using the empty downtown buildings as their headquarters and store rooms.

OBITUARY

LATE WILLIAM S. WEESE

Many former friends and neighbors were, Friday afternoon, in attendance at the funeral of the late William Smith Weese to accord their last tribute of respect to the memory of an old and esteemed resident of this city and adjoining county. Following a brief service in the home the funeral took place from his late residence, 118 Kingsmount Road, Toronto, passed away Thursday last in the Western Hospital, Toronto. Mrs. Moore was born in Kingston. Much sympathy is felt locally for the bereaved daughter, Mrs. Moore, youngest son of Mr. S. S. Moore, Ann street, and the other members of the family left to mourn the loss of a loved one.

Besides the husband, a daughter Barbara, and a son, Donald, remain. Mrs. Moore is survived by one sister, mother in Kingston, and a sister in the United States.

Service is to be held Sunday evening in Toronto and the remains taken to arrive at the Belleville Cemetery for interment about two o'clock, Monday afternoon.

LIFE SAVINGS ARE SWINDLED

Gray-Haired Old Woman Tells Court How Fortune Was Stolen

New York, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Mary E. Callahan, a gray-haired old lady, who, with her husband, looked forward to untroubled years and happy old age, told from the witness stand in federal court how her plans had gone astray and her fortune had been wiped out.

She testified at the trial of Patrick E. Sullivan, also known as Roy Colleton of Seattle, and John J. Eggleston, alias Dennis Leahy, Wenatchee, Mass., who are charged with having used the mails in swindling John H. Callahan, retired Rochester, N.Y., broker, out of $140,000. It was $141,000. It was all but $4,000 of the couple's life savings.

Mrs. Callahan told of their 39th wedding anniversary in 1930 and of her plans of leaving Rochester to "see some of the country".

In Los Angeles, she said, they met "Mr. Corbett"—identified by police as Noble John Morey of Vancouver, B.C., arrested some months ago, but who forfeited a $10,000 bond and fled—and they had dinner together.

"Corbett," she said, "discovered a pocket book under the table. It was returned, with $100 bills and a supposedly $10,000 note—a worthless certificate bond to "Dennis Lahey" at an hotel."

"Lahey" was grateful, so grateful, the woman continued, that he offered to let the Callahans in on a $500,000 winning, giving them half. Mrs. Callahan testified, they would have to show they could afford to pay $10,000 for their share. The Callahans eagerly turned the money over to the man in Reno.

Lahey said, and their life savings were gone.

He is also giving valuable previously at Schools of Instruction for Battalion Machine Officer and company commanders. Major Johnson is a specialist in instruction the other ranks are making marked advance in this training over which he is specialist.

FURTHER STEP IN SETTLEMENT

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP) — Another rift in the trouble-clouded industrial situation here was healed today in the announcement by D. Logan Furniture Company, that a lengthy dispute with the union here had resulted in a settlement of minor differences.

None of the more important issues which led employes of the Motor Specialties, Kroehler, Kay-Lan, other plants, to go on strike five months ago, were discussed upon in conference, Mr. Wright said. The number of minor problems which had been settled, however, was taken as an indication that a further step towards ultimate solution of the strike problem had been taken. Coupled with the decision to work of one hundred employes of the Preston Rattan Company Wednesday, negotiations proceeding between workers and executives of the Motor Manufacturing Company which announced last week-end it would close down for an indefinite period. Frames and spring construction will be moved to keep the Montreal and Winnipeg plants supplied, will be made outside the city, it was announced.

J. W. Wright, vice-president and general manager for the company in Canada, left for the Montreal plant at the end of last week and that of Patterson, works manager, went to the Winnipeg factory.

RELIEF WORKERS GIVEN WARNING

City relief officials have decided upon a novel method of warning those workers whose on relief projects in the city to conserve their pay received. Attached to their pay envelops, which contain cash for their hours of labor will be the following:

"The amount enclosed is what you have earned on your shift, and you and your family are now entitled to no relief. You will be given your shift again next month as close as possible to the time you started last. It will be necessary for you to spend your money as wisely and economically as absolutely no relief will be granted you after you have received this pay."

STIRLING RUGBY TEAM DEFEATS TWEED

Interesting Game Ended in Score of 11-6

Stirling, Oct. 21—On Wednesday afternoon the local High School rugby squad invaded Tweed High School campus and administered a defeat to the hometowners by the score of 11-6 over their own back yard. The final score was 11-6 over Stirling holding the lead throughout the game. The game was very evenly matched and no score was recorded until the third down in the first quarter when Stirling kicked for the first point.

In the second quarter each team took the field with a firm resolve to come home for a win for its school. However the visitors clicked the game in the first down on a tricky fake extension run by Brooks, Wright took the honor for the first touch of the game.

The next score was made in the third quarter which began by Stirling making a gain of 40 yards due to a fumble by Tweed. Stirling kicked out the ladies' man was tackled by Tweed. On the second down the locals again made yards with Wright rolling away again for a second touch and bringing the second touch and Tweed with their backs to the wall fought a real battle and held Stirling down for a point in the third quarter and in the last two minutes of the game pushed Arber of Tweed over the line to score a touchdown for the hometowners. The local lads are greatly encouraged by their showing and feel sure that on visiting Marmora for the return game on Thursday next that they may be able to reverse the score.

Reduction of Board to Ten Members Asked by Decision of Electorate

By-law If Legal Will Be Submitted to Coming Election

NO PRECEDENTS

Members Agree Board is Too Unwieldy at Present

Whether or not the Board of Education of this city will be reduced to ten members instead of the twenty-one, which at present comprise that body will hinge on the decision of voters of the city at the coming municipal election when a bylaw to that effect will, if legal, be submitted to them. This was decided by a motion made by R. D. Row, and seconded by Chas. L. Hyde at the regular meeting held by the Board last evening.

The motion, which was adopted by the Board requests the city to prepare a bylaw asking for a reduction of members, and was prompted by a report of the Special Committee of the Board, headed by Reg. Mconcrief and submitted to the members asking, that the Special Committee appointed by the Board at a previous meeting be given permission to take the necessary steps in conjunction with the city council to place before the electors of the city at the first possible date the advisability of reducing the Board to the new constituted Board of Education for the City of Belleville, consisting of nine members elected by the city as a whole, to take the representative of the Separate School Board. In the meantime, members of the committee will peruse legislations and the advice of solicitors to see if this bylaw can be submitted, or if the Board can be reduced in that manner legally.

In the matter of the reduction of the Board, there is no precedent to guide them. On past occasions the Board has been asked to, but never reduced. At the present date in spite of diligent search of old records and minutes for years back, according to Mr. J. W. Bartlow, on the of the bylaw, which originally sanctioned and constituted the Board has been obtained. Members, a few of them, are willing to members their deeds as to whether the reduction can be made legally. According to Mr. Barlow, the Board as its now stands is a merged Board of the Public and High School Boards.

Given Opinion

In the opinion of Mr. E. J. Butler, there would be little difficulty in making the reduction. "The original two Boards merely merged and worked together," he said, "and I think that if this Board passed a resolution to reduce the number of members and got ratification from the Minister of Education it could cover everything perfectly."

Mr. Barlow: "That's just what we want to find out, but we can't find anything to help us in the old minutes or the records."

Chairman of the Board A. H. Schryver stated his opposition to any move to reorganize the Boards as they were originally. Public School and Collegiate Board as two distinct units, with a Board to control the present Board, however, is a move in the right direction. Mr. Toronto, with many times the amount to handle, they have only twenty-one members to control. That proves this present Board is not unwieldy. With the present Board every member would be on a committee. This could expedite legislation and they would be no loss of effort or movement in the work."

The unwieldiness and bulkiness of the Board was the objection outlined by Reg. Mconcrief, original mover and member of the Board's templated reduction.

Whether or not the Board had authority to say just how many members it should have was doubtful, he said. Mr. A. McFee, "We can only recommend the reduction."

Mr. Mconcrief: "That's hardly. We'll have to make sure before we can actually draw up the bylaw."

"Wouldn't it be in order to write the Minister of Education and find out about this?" queried Mr. H. J. Allin. "We want to know what we can do before we start."

Disposal of the subject was made with the motion made by Mr. H. D. Row that the city be requested to prepare a bylaw asking for reduction. It was seconded by Chas. L. Hyde and adopted by the Board.

WILLIAM H. HARVEY TO RUN FOR COUNCIL

With Tender Resignation as Member of Board

A statement that he would be in the contest for aldermanic honors this coming election was given today by Mr. William Harvey, well known member of the Board of Education and former chairman of the Board.

The decision to offer himself for election this year was reached only after considerable urging by friends, he said, who had approached him to represent them as a ward candidate.

"I am definitely in the running," he stated when directly queried.

CHAIRMAN INTIMATES THREE WILL RESIGN

Urge Others to Offer Selves for Civic Work

Intimation that himself, Mr. J. W. Barlow, and Mr. Wm. Harvey would resign their term from the strenuous duties of membership of the Board of Education was given last evening at the regular meeting by Chairman of the Board, Mr. A. B. Schryver.

"Probably there will be others now on the Board who have also made up their minds to finish this term," stated the chairman. "There will probably be vacancies on the Board. As good citizens it is up to you to get behind other men, well qualified for the position and urge them to offer themselves in the service of their city. Those vacancies should be filled by those competent to handle the affairs they are in charge of," he said.

CLOCKS SOON ON THE JOB

Car Batteries Used in Place of Expensive Ones For Economy

When the regular batteries which governed the turning of the many wheels in the electrical clocks in Belleville's classrooms weakened and finally died last week, and the time system was upset, the building commenced to hop-skip-and-jump around, it didn't faze the inventive genius of Mr. J. W. Barlow, chairman of the Public Building and Repairs Committee of the Board of Education a Mt.

Examination disclosed the fact that the regular batteries had taken their last count, and that the only alternative of paying nearly one hundred and fifty dollars for new ones, or else—

So out went the chairman and returned with three regulation car storage batteries. They were hooked up into a circuit and the hands turned on. Scholars have again been getting into classes on time, while teachers have discarded their watches and the family alarm clocks that had been pressed into service in the classrooms as forty-two clocks in the building again returned to split second accuracy.

When the right button is pushed the new batteries will agitate the fire alarm gong as well as turn the clock wheels.

NEED WALK AT KING GEORGE

Council Will Be Asked to Put Through This Scheme

Department of public works of the city will be asked to erect several safety traffic islands within the intersections near the school grounds of the city's public school and will also be requested to lay a concrete walk on the west side of North Front Street, from past the King George School, following a motion made by Reg. Mconcrief at the meeting of the Board of Education last evening.

Mr. H. J. Allin had previously recommended that signs be placed on Pine Street at North Front Streets, and made a motion to that effect. It was seconded by Mr. J. W. Barlow.

"What about Queen Mary School?" asked Mr. E. A. Geen.

"Well, Queen Mary too," stated Mr. Harvey. "Put them near all the schools."

"We don't need warning signs as badly as we need a sidewalk at King George School," replied Mr. Geen, Harvey. "I'll make a motion that a walk on the west side of North Front Street along there be constructed.

That brought that matter up works age," stated Mr. George Sprackett, seconder of the motion.

SCHOOL NURSE REPORT

Routine examinations conducted on the return of the children to their classrooming disclosed two cases of scabies fever in one school and one case of typhoid fever in another school during September, it was revealed by the report of the school nurse presented to the Board of Education on Friday evening. During the past month six dental clinics were held, with an examination being conducted in each school. 371 pupils were examined and of this number 446 were found to have defective teeth. 133 teeth were marked "perfect." Enrolment during the month were listed as: Four for skin conditions, one for eyes, and fifteen for head. During vacation and September 31 tonsil and adenoid operations were performed and six appendicitis operations.

Mr. PICOBAC Chats with Alberta Range Riders

In Calgary, after Mr. Picobac had finished his investigation into local smoking conditions, his enthusiastic friends and admirers insisted on running him out to see the High River Ranch of the Prince of Wales.

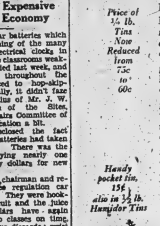
Here a group of jolly cowboys, surrounded him on their cow ponies and offered him the Freedom of the West.

"We represent the Range Riders of the great free Province of Alberta," they told him. "You can go as far as you like."

"Thanks, boys," said Mr. Picobac. "I'm going through to the Coast. Tell me... what does Alberta think of Picobac tobacco?"

"It's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke," replied the cowboys in chorus.

"And it's good for making cigarettes, too," Mr. Picobac reminded them.



"You bet!" agreed the bunch. "That's what we use it for."

Cost of Operation of Fee System to be Given Board

Trustee Moncrief States Fee is Too High

In a firm stand taken by himself at the meeting of the Board of Education last evening, Mr. Reg. Mconcrief, member of the Special School Book Committee won his request that the committee have an auditor turn in a report of the exact cost of school books and the cost of operation of the fee system in the public schools up to December.

"We don't want to give the parents a break when that system was installed," he stated, "but so far we haven't done so. We could easily afford to cut off every-five per cent. of the present fee now being asked for books. The Board's not making more money on the proposition than the merchants ever did!" challenged Mr. Mconcrief.

His claim that over one thousand dollars profit was made last year by the system was refuted by Mr. E. A. Geen. "The profit shown last year was $459.60 and that with a shortage of books."

"Yes, but consider this. We bought all the books and materials necessary, and started the system. You show me any business man anywhere who can start up anything and do so well the first year and I'll show you a good business," stated Mr. Moncrief. "I intend to stick behind this matter even if I don't get any support from any of the members. The fee's too high."

Trustee Geen: "Well, it's certainly proper that we should," stated Mr. Wm. Harvey.

Mr. W. H. Allin read the auditor's report. "The schools still owe the Board. The auditor recommends that we leave the fee at the same price until the third year, then we can make a reduction. As it is now I believe that everyone is satisfied except one member. Parents of the children have welcomed it. I haven't heard a single kick about it. I'd hate to see the fee reduced, and then have a deficit at the end of the year."

Mr. Harvey: "Do I understand that the schools owe the Board something like $400.00?"

Mr. Allin: "Over $600.00."

Mr. Moncrief: "There shouldn't be any kick or objection about having an auditor to show the actual cost of operation. I still stick to my motion that an auditor be requested to do this work."

Mr. J. W. Barlow: "I'll second that. Have the auditor bring in the actual cost of operation of the Free System up to December."

The motion was carried by a show of hands.

MONTREAL DAIRY MARKET

Montreal, Oct. 21—There was a steady tone on the local cheese market yesterday. Prices during the week up to Thursday, had dropped 1 1-4c. per lb. becoming 2c. for Ontarios and 8 1-2c. for Quebecs. Yesterday's quotations were mostly 9 1-2c. to 1 1-4c. per lb. for Ontarios and 8 3-4c. to 8 3-4c per lb. for Quebecs. Higher levels at Delta Country Board stimulated the slight recovery here. Receipts were 800 boxes.

The butter market held about the same, being mostly quoted 18 3-4c. per lb. for cariots or 1.c.l. lots of No. 1. Receipts 390 boxes.

The egg market was firm at the week's gains, graded Ontarios being quoted 23-24c. for extras, 22-23c. for firsts, and 17c. for seconds. Receipts, 317 cases; week ago, 778.

Butter gradings for September are announced by the federal Government as 137,683 boxes against 139,908 boxes in the same month last year. Butter production from November 28, 1932, to September 30, 1933, totalled 1,227,717 boxes against 1,174,464 boxes a year ago. Cheese gradings were in September, 174,454 boxes, against 183,248 boxes a year ago; from November 28, 1932, to September 30, 1933, they totalled 938,113 boxes against 1,-020,915 boxes a year ago.

OUTSIDE CAPITAL

Financial Times contains a very thoughtful and inspiring article on "Outside Capital." The Adopted Child," citing the instance of British capital's importance in the Canadian economic situation. The article in question reads:

"The entry, through the Bowater interests, of British capital into an important Canadian pulp and paper enterprise may easily prove to be the turning point in the rehabilitation of Canada's most important manufacturing industry. It follows the successful flotation of the Canadian Government's £16,000,000 issue of some weeks ago, and directs attention to the fact that British capital has played a very important part in Canada's development. Ever more important, however, because of the trend of financial events since 1914; has been the investment of American capital. The Canada Year Book for 1933 shows that as at January 1st, 1931, outside capital invested in this country totalled nearly $6,500,000,000. Of this amount more than $2,200,000,000 was shown as British-capital, more than $4,100,000,000 as United States capital, with $165,000,000 from other countries.

"In directing attention to this situation, it may be well to again emphasize that the part which outside capital has played in the country's development should not be forgotten—as there is a tendency at times to forget—in the treatment accorded to the enterprises which have been built up with its aid. There is for frequently a disposition shown to discriminate against such concerns in matters of taxation and in competition for business with other more purely Canadian concerns.

"The desirability of inducing outside capital to come into the country is widely recognized, as in the case of trade, there should be nothing but encouragement and co-operation in making the enterprises so located successful from a financial standpoint. Sentiment plays little if any part in the decision as to where capital is to be invested. What is more important is assurance of security, protection from interfering and confiscatory legislation, intelligent and not too burdensome taxation, and, generally speaking, an opportunity to make a fair and reasonable profit on the investment.

"Outside capital is an adopted child which should be treated as our own."

SOUND AND FURY SPEECHES

Why do radio news commentators make their utterances sound like so much sound and fury, signifying nothing, especially when they are dealing with important items of national or international import? This form of wild utterance seems not to be confined to any country today for even Mussolini and Hitler use it on occasion. Fortunately no English statesman has yet degenerated into this style of oratory if such it be called.

One would think it is much more effective to speak quietly, utter fewer words and leave more room in understanding of what they have heard.

It may be the modern democratic way of exciting an audience as Hitler and Mussolini do it. Cicero, Pericles, yet Demosthenes, Cicero, Burke, or Lincoln could not have spoken in this odd style and been effective.

Radio has developed all kinds of fads. Let these new commentators start all over again. Fortunately some never caught the sound and fury disease.

WILL AFFECT EDUCATION

Scholars of this time who are in the secondary schools and in the universities must realize perhaps more than students ever did the real importance of international events. The world has become one as a matter of news and knowledge of nations, whereas a generation ago there were not the close knowledge and the ties of this day and age.

In time this is going to modify the educational system which will, no doubt, include not only civics but also political science and world history.

Facts that are not frankly faced have a habit of stabbing us in the back.—Sir Harold Bawden.

Truth is beautiful and divine no matter how humble its origin.—Michael Idvorsky Bupin.

There is no virtue of any kind unless one feels temptation.—Dr. Richard C. Cabot.

Weeping is an aid to beauty. Repressing tears is destructive to good looks. —London Physician.

A new variety of temptation is, as we grow older, unusual.—E. V. Lucas.

To swallow and follow, whether old doctrine or new propaganda, is a weakness still dominating the human mind.—Charlotte Perkins Gilman.

Science and religion are no more contradict each other than do light and electricity.—Rev. William Hiram Stokes.

SIDELIGHTS

GRAVE and GAY

(Supervised by The Lamplighter)

"ENCIVILIZED"

An ancient age, once on a time,
Disliked exceedingly to climb,
And so he picked him out a tree
And said "Now this belongs to me.
I have a hunch that monks are mutts
And I can make them gather nuts
And bring the bulk of them to me,
By claiming title to this tree."

He took a green leaf and a reed
And wrote himself a title deed
Proclaiming pompously and slow:
"All monkeys by these presents know."
Next morning when the monkeys came
To gather nuts he made his claim:
"All monkeys climbing on this tree
Must bring their gathered nuts to me.
Cracking the same on equal shares;
The meats are mine, the shells are theirs."

"By what right?" they cried amazed.
Thinking the age was surely crazed.
"By this," he answered, "if you'll read
Your's fing it is a title deed.
Made in precise and formal shape
And sworn before a fellow ape
Exactly on the legal plan
Used by the wondrous creature, man.
In London, Tokio, New York,
Glengarry, Kalamazoo and Cork,
Unless my nose is frozen stiff,
It proves you quite uncivilized."

"But," said one monkey, "you'll agree
It was not you who planted the tree."
"Nor," said the ape, serene and bland
"Does any owner make his land;
Yet it and all its appurtenances
Are his and figure in his rents."

The puzzled monkeys sat aboût;
They could not make the question out.
Plainly by precedent and law,
The ape's procedure showed no flaw;
And yet, no matter what he said,
The stomach still denied the head.

Up spoke one sprightly monkey then:
"Monkeys are monkeys; men are men.
The ape should by his legal power
On matters who may respect his papers.
We don't know deeds, we do know nuts
And spite or "ands" and "ifs" and "buts"
We know no apples and un-deeds 'em.
By monkery practice also eats 'em.
So tell the ape, and all his flunkeys
No matter-tricks can keep monkeys."
Thus apes still climb to get their food,
Since monkeys' minds are crass and crude.
And monkeys all, as ill-advised,
Still eat their nuts unencumbered.

FRANCE PROPOSES to nationalize the arms industry, which would seem to be a wise move for all nations to consider. The making of materials of warfare for private profit seems to be putting a premium on sabre rattling. Making a private war material industry profitable would seem to depend largely upon how many wars could be stirred up and kept going. Shrewd businessmen who manufacture goods must give particular thought to the problem of creating a demand for their goods.

BODY, MIND ARE REALLY A UNIT ONLY

Well-Being of One Depends Upon The Health of Others

By Lewie E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

We refer to the lady, as well as to the mind, as much, and so often, that we tend to think of them as separate and distinct, and not as dependent upon each other. As a matter of fact, body and mind are a single unit, and one influences the other. The well-being of one is dependent upon the other.

Yet even doctors and psychologists use these terms as if relating to separate entities, but for convenience only. They know full well that although the brain, which produces thinking, or mind, is situated in the skull, it sends nerves down the spinal column and to every part of the body and tissue of the body. Indeed, as complicated is the nervous system that you cannot touch the skin with a point of a pin without affecting a nerve-ending. We can not scratch a finger, a toe or a knee without affecting the nerves that run to it.

If follows, therefore, that if the mind is upset it may have a disastrous effect upon the complicated structure, in the chest or abdomen or elsewhere; while on the other hand, if some organ isn't functioning the way it should with the rest of the body proper, it may have a deleterious effect upon that thinking.

I use the word "may" advisedly, because there are many contradictions of one type or another both in body and mind. Sometimes a man's mind goes to pieces when his body is in perfect health, and yet, no matter what he said, the stomach still denied the head.

Nevertheless there are many classical examples to show that the body and mind are closely allied and that they depend upon each other in the most intimate relationship. We all know, for instance, that many cases of nervous exhaustion. Therefore in many cases, especially chronic ones, where the stomach is constantly upset, one must look to the mind rather than in directing attention to the stomach itself. Constipation, peevish, fretful and irritable are proverbially fearful and hated. Here we have a case where a sick organic structure exerting its damaging effect upon mental processes.

Nerve energy is very much like electricity. It flows from one nerve to the other in the same manner that electrical energy flows from one wire to another. Apparently the nerve force is generated by the nerve cells themselves, is shunted to another nerve cell, and then reinforced by the second nerve cell, and so on throughout the mind and body. And this nerve energy travels through the various association centers in the brain, it seems to light up, as it were. Hundreds of years of experiences which in some mysterious way lie buried in the brain cells come.

In other words, the function of the brain nerves is thought. When they are activated by nerve force, active thinking results. The same may be said when nerve energy stimulates any other organ itself—the liver, let us say —is no consolation to the man of concrete bile. Without stimulation from the nervous system nerves, it would be unable to accomplish this, and it has been experimentally proved that when we sever the nerve connection to any organ or tissue in our body organ promptly degenerates and dies.

The wise physician, therefore, treats the human being as a whole. He never forgets the mind, even when it is a question of a diseased body organ is malfunctioning, nor does he forget the body when the mind does not seem to be working at its best.

The individual affected can do a great deal along these lines by learning thift often he wouldn't get so sick if he paid attention to how his thoughts affected his body, that he would have no reason to complain of his body's efficiency to his mind if he paid strict heed to the conditions of his body. Others tried to keep it in the very best of health.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

In all cases of chronic illness, where the patient is confined to bed for months, the problem of possible bed sores must be considered. To avoid these do not allow the patient to lie on the same side all the time; also keep the skin clean and massage gently with rubbing alcohol twice daily.

A Mediterranean Pilgrimage
or
Sights and Scenes About the Great Middle Sea
By F. T. GRAFTON
Letter 6—Over the Grand Cornishe Monaco and Monte Carlo

We set off in last week's letter on the French Riviera, at the point where, in the great city of Nice, we were seated in the open observation auto bus preparatory to the climb over the lower Alps; the route known as the Grand Cornishe Drive.

Leaving the business centre at the C.P.R. offices on the Grand Central Square we were whisked along busy streets, through the residential sections and out on to the fine, open eastern slopes before the driver slackened pace and, halting around a broad curve, drew attention to the living panorama below. Its most extensive railway yards and surrounding factory chimneys gave evidence of transportation and industrial activity. Beyond these lay the broad Mediterranean, pathless, pure blue and glittering church spires. Most outstanding of its many Roman Catholic edifices is the old Gothic Church of Notre Dame, but the church of England, of Scotland, and of the American Episcopal are dear to the hearts of the old home land for Sundays, for tourists so inclined.

"Though sundered far apart, we meet

Beneath a common mercy-seat."

But the point most of the conductor's eager French remarks were bent on centred on Nice itself, on the beauty of the scenery as we gained the heights and sped westward, and on the old and the new. To our left still higher peaks, somewhat barren, pathless, bare and majestically into the blue or were lost in the winding mists of early morn cloud. We edged declivities to our right or were led in groves of pine and cedar, or passed rose embowered cottages or peasant homes. Now and then there were monuments to great men or events of history, for here the long trail of Hannibal reach far into a remote but living past. Here Caesar stretched the Eagle wings and blazed a trail for her legions and soared over these mighty heights.

When Horace Greely in the nineteenth century of Rome, uttered the slogan, "Go west, young man, go west", he post-dated by twenty centuries a similar challenge of Rome to her youth. Finding her own westward trails barred where the mountains left no plain or pass between the Alps and the cliffs of the rock ribbed shore, she bade them climb these mountains. From these soldier-fighting, mountain-conquering road builders, engineers, sprang the men which we moderns blithely sped.

ON PISGAH'S PEAK

Pulling into a cleared space on a lofty mount that commanded a more leisurely survey one of the most handsome views of Europe, we found ourselves on the towering tree clad Alps still climbed, and were soon gazing down on villas and cottages, around some dismantled Roman outworks. Below, Nice, with its curving, indigo chasma, stopped by still lower hills, and the blue Mediterranean, rock clinging road, the Middle Cornishe Drive, linking Nice with Monte Carlo, a run of some 1200 feet below, the rippling Mediterranean. The many breakwaters (artificial inlets) sought to check the pressure of the waves, forming spacious sparkling waters, stretching for miles, was the threat of a storm. Far beyond, and what would have looked like children's white walled, red roofed, green shuttered toy villages. But we knew they were not. Rather, they were the fashionable villas of the permanent or transient people. Silently and majestically the Mediterranean, the marvellous—watched the myriad sail boats like flecks of foam on their bosom of blue. Far back on the trail around a great ledge—the route of Hannibal of Rome. And, standing like the toy boat of a school boy, in the harbor, the great Empress Liner, the S. S. Roma, her 850 feet and 33,000 tons apparently dwarfed and diminished.

Time fleets by on days like this and we continue our celestial way with many a fleeting or distant glimpse of the Mediterranean again upon us as we skirted the rock chiselled way.

LA TURBIA

At La Turbia village we again dismounted. Here we wandered along the ancient Roman highway, where the stone ruins amid its fallen pillars of a one time mighty Roman fortress, and bound long forgotten legions held the pass, or turned back the tide of invasion from distant lands anew. Beyond this on a stone wall-crimsoned with the fall of the year, we had a view that can perhaps be seen nowhere else on earth. Below, the city of Monaco, Monte Carlo, the city of Monaco, and the whole blue expanse of Mediterranean, the casino and all, a whole principality kingdom to all intents, a princely kingdom to all intents, a princely kingdom to all intents. Here seemed to be the celestial city of the gods, and the sun-perched casino, the arch fiend of the underworld, ever in triumph on his deluded victims' in this Palace of Pleasure, the greatest and most profitable gambling hell of Europe and perhaps of the world.

Here we gradually descended as we covered the remaining long miles (seven miles) till we drove to Monte-sano, a tourist hotel ridden quaint old French city with its ancient battle ing reaches, the farthest bounds of southern France. The bus stops at the foot of a grade. We walk up the narrow way and as we do now we find ourselves at the portals between France and Italy. The perpendicular rock soars hundreds of feet on one side, the other drops into the sea. No chance to either jump the fence like thieves and robbers nor yet to dodge under like the small boy into the circus tent—nor yet to crash the gates like the happy pack. These custodians of two great nations handle them as easy as smile a speechless smile and walk a few paces beyond them and over a little bridge that spans a mountain torrent and plant our feet on Italian soil. We have entered Ventimiglia, a hungry lunch, to a quiet shop shuttered sleeping Sherconn town and then along the lower drive to Monte Carlo and Monaco for a couple of days more, then again board the Home Seat in St. Jean's Cove and have our sailing decided and watch the moonlight as the great ship goes by the lands and cities. So now regarding where we bide-a-wee. This city, situated on the Cornishe Drive, but with beautiful grounds and magnificent gardens well supplied with a wonderful variety of flowers, shrubs and flowers. All varieties of the palm, including the date, in addition to both the natural and artificial beauty, and the fine music, which is a feature of the place, the brilliant throngs from all over the world add to the fascination.

A few years ago there was talk of suppressing gambling in Monaco, but many years a company has leased the casino from the Prince of Monaco, who rules over this smallest world monarchy. The profits go to the maintenance of the Prince, however, been so vast that the people of Monaco have not been taxed. Education, all public works and welfare are maintained from the profits of the casino. They have their own postal system and issue stamps of their own. Gambling has, however, controlled the customs duties and has a certain part in the revenues of the principality within her confines. Besides the gambling rooms within the casino and some other rights by a special treaty, Monaco extends to all members of the Royal House and descendants in perpetuity, and to cases in which General France will be a long time in suppressing the gambling of Monte Carlo. However, as a resort, it would not suffer if this feature were abolished. Everything, except a fee to the gambling tables, is free. Besides including the reading room (well supplied with European and American papers) and the concert hall, in which an eighty piece orchestra, one of Europe's finest, gives daily performances.

MONACO

Besides the fact that Monaco is the name of the smallest monarchial kingdom it is also the name of the city and harbor itself which principality is made up of together they form the state over which Prince Louis II. reigns. Monaco has a population of 22,000. The harbor which is a beautiful breakwater protected is the second to two civic centres.

Monaco, built upon a high and conspicuous promontory projected into the sea.

"The chief attraction is the Place du Palais, approached by long rambling flights of steps, and commands the whole width of the tableland. From the terrace in front of the palace a fine view of the sea as well as the cities and environs of Monaco and Monte Carlo is obtained. The Royal Palace itself was first constructed in the fifteenth century, but has been enlarged and improved. If the Prince is absent the palace is open to visitors. We were fortunate to arrive on such an occasion. We were conducted through the various rooms, where paintings and tapestries of considerable interest were exhibited in magnificent rooms gorgeously furnished; many of the paintings are historical and statuary being gifts of long past Sovereigns and distinguished persons known now only in history.

"The Prince's cathedral near the palace is of only last century.

More famous is the oceanographic museum—the work of the recent princes, of Monaco and existing now, also, as a memorial to the late Prince especially in its exhibition of the deep sea life, as well as its rare and valuable specimens from the world's seven seas.

THE END OF A PERIOD

As the afternoon sun began to dip its golden rays towards the shimmering sea, we again boarded our auto bus and once more traversed the Corniche Drive back to Nice, thus completing the circuit. Then we again boarded the landed on back the little dock of St. Jean. As our steamer moved out from the quaint Cosmeristan who, by agreement, commands by mute and gesture, by height and depth, has—for many "made all things good."

New York, Oct. 20 (AP) —Private advices received here today said Thomas Hunt Morgan of Pasadena, Calif., has been named the 1933 Nobel prize winner for medicine.

Quinte Stables Start in 49 Races and Never Out of Money

Wilmar Hillock Teams And Trains Horses For This Record

To compete in forty-nine races over the half dozen of this province and never be outside of the prize money and only once fourth is the proud record of Wilmar Hillock, trainer and driver for the Quinte Stables of this city, which has completed the season's activities. The record was made with 3 three horse stable consisting of Catherine Grattan and W. J. Grattan owned by the Orr estate, and Vernon McKinney Jr., owned by Mr. Hillock. Before the season was completed the Orr estate sold to Mrs. Grattan to C. B. Lawrence of Dunham for a tidy sum. The other two horses also eligible to start next year before they are taken to the Dufferin Park are Bill Grattan and Catherine Grattan will start in the 2.18 stake and Vernon McKinney in the 2.17 stake.

When the season opened Catherine Grattan and W. J. Grattan were eligible to all the slow classes but the mixed purposes. It was then that Catherine Grattan is now eligible to the 2.18 class and W. J. Grattan to the 2.22 class. The latter was not raced as extensively as his sister Catherine and the black horse, neither was his competitors, but by the improvement record hung up by this stable, Vernon McKinney Jr. won eleven races in second place money and seven and third four times. W. J. Grattan was started twice and that winning five races, being second six times and third once. Last season Catherine Grattan faced the starter nineteen times and the number winning, in the way first on five occasions, being second seven times and third the same.

Much Work Involved.

In looking over this record, one can judge if interested in horse racing, the amount of work that is involved, countless hours on the jogging strip, the numerous miles walking around in circles cooling them out, time on week days and then the actual day of racing besides cleaning harness, rubbing down and feeding and many other work connected with the sport. It can be said of these horses that they received excellent care during the season, were always in form and never got a million dollar drive in every heat they contested. One who likes to juggle with figures could figure out the actual miles travelled by these horses in a season but space will not permit.

Mr. Hillock, teamster and trainer of this stable, came unheralded to this city early last fall, though on numerous occasions had he raced over this track. Picking up the horses in the fall, they were jogged carefully, and well legged up and then the more serious part of the work came in the spring and when the horses appeared for their first race day, they were in prime condition, sound and "looking for parts". The campaign they went through would tire any horse, no matter how strong, for they were trucked many miles, slept in strange stables and raced good and bad tracks. Wilmar always knew the shortest route home, he reserved the strength of his charges for the final drive and displayed sportsmanship of a true type on and off the track. He never took an unfair advantage of another driver and asked only the same consideration for himself but could protect himself in any kind of going. A word must also be said for those who were responsible for the well being of the horses. The stable hands worked long and hard to have them in shape under direction from the trainer and it was always a fit horse that went to the wire.

Campaign Given.

A short resume of the campaign of each horse would be fitting and to add that the fans of this city are delighted with the fine record made and hoping that Mr. Hillock will continue to make Belleville his training base and that he will add to his stable for the next year's campaign. Catherine Grattan finished the season with a mark of 2.13¾ but she was several times second, timed in 2.08¾. W. J. Grattan had a 2 heat record of 2.09¾, while Vernon McKinney finished with a mark of 2.20¼. Both W. J. Grattan and Vernon McKinney Jr. equalled the track records in lower where they raced, the black horse at Athens and the Grattan colt at Cornwall. In fairness to the checkout mare, she was raced practically out of her class all summer and met the best pacers in the province.

Catherine Grattan started at Port Hope, twice at Kingston, Cornwall and Athens, twice at Kemptville, Brockville, Ottawa, Picton, Kingston, Lansdowne and Lindsay, and twice at Kingston, twice at Belleville, Arthur, Trenton and Lindsay. W. J. Grattan was first at Arthur, Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston and Kemptville, second at Belleville, Port Hope, Athens, Ottawa, Lansdowne and third at Kingston, and fourth at Lindsay, Vernon McKinney was first at Kingston and Ottawa, Cornwall twice, Orangeville, Athens, Picton, Trenton, Plainfield, Rosemount, second at Kemptville and Madoc, and third at Belleville, Arthur and twice at Lindsay.

CURRENT SPORT

We understand that the Kingston City Hockey League is to meet this week-end in Hockey night. The local champion Cities Service team are called upon to play the opening night versus the Kingston Red Club. Manager Walter Patterson's charges will be handicapped to a certain degree through lack of pre-league practice. The "oilmen" were recently informed that the ice in the Jock Harty arena was not available for practice hours at present.

How hockey players can be expected to step out without even having donned their skates for over eight months, and play sixty minutes of hockey is a hard to be comprehend but, if the other clubs are denied practice hours perhaps it is as fair to one as the other. We'll wager all the nuts in Brazil that the remaining teams will manage to squeeze in a practice some time before the Wire Rod and Belleville clash, however.

The "oilmen" will use practically the same roster that the league honors last season. Roy Covert and possibly one other will be added. A tentative line up as follows for Monday night: Cool, Covert; defence, Bergin and Mac-McDonald; centres, "Red" Macdonald and Wool; left wing, Covert and McGuire; right wing, the Morgan brothers, Pete and Harry. Two others will be added to the team's roster later. Jerry Bradd is a newcomer.

Following our recent announcement regarding the possibility of the local National hockey club with the Ulster Stadium League considerable interest was shown in Peterboro and Oshawa. The Oshawa sport scribe openly admitted that the Motor City crew were seriously contemplating the move, while the Peterboro sport scribe said, "Nay, nay, Oshawa will not consider O.C.H.L. baseball if Kingston is included in the league roster, but might come "home" if a suitable Central League could be organized. Time alone will decide that issue, however.

As for our Peterboro contemporary, he seriously contemplates us for even suggesting that Peterboro were even thinking of quitting the O.H.A. for they were might state, however, that the first inkling regarding the proposed idea of the central loops clube battling forces with the Ulster Stadium League was conveyed to us by a prominent Peterboro executive. Not only that but when Mr. Carr of the Peterboro Examiner met Pat Canon, president of the Queen City organization, he (Canon) informed Mr. Carr that Peterboro had received the identical same information on the project as had Belleville.

It practically simmered down to this: "If Oshawa and Peterboro were about to join forces with the Ulster Stadium, then the Hallers were not going to be left holding the wall known "bag". The idea may be far-fetched and rather problematic at present but Charlie Meagher and his able executive are going to see that Belleville fans are provided with good fast senior ball in 1934. As for Kingston, we understand that the Ponies are to be looked after in the St. Lawrence League even if their application was turned down last spring by that organization. Of course if the O.H.A. does operate in 1934 then Kingston may have something to say in the matter. "Who knows?"

Early this morning the B.C.I. senior football squad left for Lindsay where they will engage in an important game this afternoon with Coach Brown's pets today. At the same time the Gahaven C. I. squad are scheduled to play on Peterboro. The latter game has a real bearing on the league standing as a win for the Peies and Belleville will elevate the local isle a tie for first place with the motor city aggregation. Individual reports have not yet been received but their star punter, Doug Conant, who sustained a shoulder injury in practice the other afternoon. The loss of Conant may prove the difference between victory and defeat for Gahaven. Coach Legge of the Peies announced today that his charges were ready to go and predicted a Peterboro win.

The B.C.I. juniors experienced much difficulty in downing the Picton Junior gridders 32 to 1 yesterday. The visitors scored the lone point in the second half via the picture from then on. For over 75 per cent. of the fracas ball was in Picton's territory. Inclement weather conditions undoubtedly tied three seniors and announced their retirement from the local football scene. Results group following yesterday's till.

Ray Vaughan, who blanked the Leafs twice last fall for the senior O.B.A.A. finals at Kingston remarked that was really the best able player in the Inter-county Intermediate O.R.F.U. circuit in Kingston are any indication of his ability, well he deserves it. Incidentally Manager Leo Dean of the St. Thomas Elks and a team-mate of Vaughan, was the leading backer of the same boy. Both men are a credit to senior baseball.

GOLF FACTS
NOT THEORIES.
By ALEX. J. MORRISON

ALEX MORRISON says:

Pinching your swing so that you send the ball to the left of the intended line is a terrible fault to get into.

Many players fall into this pinching on the putting green. And even on a short putt they will close the clubface enough to send the ball inches off line to the left.

It all amounts to nothing more than a premature closing of the clubface.

The clubface should not close until after the ball has been hit and the surest way of curing for this is by striking the ball off the heel of the clubface.

This method is not only certain but also affords immediate relief from pinching.

Agreement with N.Z.

Ottawa, Oct. 21 (CP)—The Canada-New Zealand trade agreement which would have terminated on November 24th will be extended for another six months it was learned here today. The agreement the summer Premier G. W. Forbes of New Zealand visited Ottawa and at that time the provisions of the pact were under review by the visiting Prime Minister. Hon. H. H. Stevens, and Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister.

FIVE TOUCHES

Winners Showed Better Form in Every Department

Outplaying their Prince Edward County rivals in every department, the Belleville Collegiate junior football squad defeated the Picton C. I. juniors by the score of 32 to 1 at the local Fair grounds yesterday afternoon. Despite the fact that the visitors fired the play for the first five minutes and scored their lone point on a field goal kicked to the dead line by Palmateer, they faded practically into oblivion as the ball and the play remained the Picton territory for over 80 per cent of the playing time.

The Laughlin-coached juniors from the B.C.I. demonstrated a fine superior method of attack and scored home for less than one half dozen touchdowns, two of which were converted for the extra points. The latter of the offensive play for the winners was carried by Bill and Norris L'Heureux and Captain Eddie Shrieder. The end runs and forward passes completed by this trio completely baffled the Picton squad throughout. Of the linemen, Jeffery, Smith and McCreary stood out with their rear snap-back Crouch, also playing well. After a series of deadlocks had started the visitors up considerably McCreary was forced out due to injuries to the left shoulder, which Laughlin introduced a new punter to the fans in the person of Don Lewis. After ridding himself of the stage-fright that first startled a young kicker, Lewis more than held his own against the combined efforts of Palmateer and Wallers, who booted

B.C.I. CAGERS WIN 2 GAMES

Defeat Napanee Senior And Junior Squads in Napanee

The Belleville Collegiate fembine cagers scored a dual victory in the opening games in the girls' group play day of Quinte District C.I. League at Napanee on Friday evening, when the local senior team downed the Napanee cagers 28 to 6; while the junior team eked out a 26 to 25 win over their Napanee rivals. The local teams showed the advantage of superior coaching throughout.

In the junior or opening game, the home team forced the issue from the out-set and over the Napanee's combined squad from the B.C.I. assumed the lead they never relinquished it despite the fact that the "yellow and black" pulled up to within a point of tying the game just before the final whistle. L. Cruji looked the best of the junior players on the floor, her entire team improved as the game progressed. The popularity of the local players are playing their first season in organized basketball but much is expected of them before the season ends.

The senior team ran away with the junior team's play, scoring 28 to 6 points to the homesters four. The senior squad of the locals had previously competed in the league as juniors and took to their table of victories, by the defeat of the forwards out-played and completely out-generalled the Napanee seniors. Marion MacLean's long pass from one end of the floor to the other proved the feature play. E. May and A. Cruji also starred for the forward line to score many points.

The local line-ups—B.C.I. seniors —Defence, M. Juby, R. Symons; centre, M. MacLean, M. Fairburn; forwards, E. May, A. Cruji; subs, E. Elliott, B.C.I. juniors—Defence, M. Chapman, M. Scott; centres B. Thomas, D. Smith; forwards F. Hurta, I. Jubb, F. Wright, A. Adams and M. Forster.

Local Boys Make Good in Moose Jaw As Millers Threaten Regina's Reign

No Imported Players on New Western Sensations—Teams Entere d at Last Minute Without Money or Uniforms

By WM. H. DUMSDAY
Central Press Canadian Writer

Moose Jaw, Oct. 21—Hamilton's delight in the Jack Jaw Millers' importations in Canadian rugby football, is no more so than the West's new threat for gridiron supremacy—the Moose Jaw Millers.

With a team of home-brews, the Millers have finally battered down the Regina Rough Riders' monopoly of the West, the Regina Rough Riders' monopoly of the West, the Regina Rough Riders' recent 13-10 victory over the 'Riders has spurred the Moose Jaw boys on to greater hope will lead them to at least a place in the provincial playoffs. Perhaps it is as far as the Millers at the other. We'll wager all the nuts in Brazil that the remaining teams will manage to squeeze in a practice some time before the Wire Rod and Belleville clash, however.

Five years ago, a young man named Jim Thomas began coaching the Moose Jaw Maroons to their first Western Canada rugby championship. In 1931, many of his proteges graduated from the ranks up with them and took over the reins of the senior squad then also known as the Maroons.

For two years he had only fair success but this season has improved steadily. Strength has been added each game. Now the rasher boys of Moose Jaw's great junior squads.

Finally Gilbooa has got a team. Finally Gilbooa has got a team. Finally Gilbooa has got a team.

Colonel W. N. Ponton, K.C., attended the monthly meeting of the Benchers of the Law Society at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and presided at the memorial to the late S. F. Washington, K.C., which was approved.

The demise of the late Miss Mary O'Rourke of Toronto, was deeply regretted by many former friends in Belleville and district. She was borne here a widow at the age of 82 years and contributed to her demise.

Mr. R. L. Brown has been called to Little Falls, N.Y., owing to the serious illness of his mother.

Under the auspices of a group of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Church, a musicale was held last evening in the large drawing room at the rectory. Attractive instrumental numbers and vocal solos were enjoyed. Among those contributing to the program were Mr. Patterson and Mr. Alfred Brock, vocalists, who gave two numbers, Mrs. Ross Hunter Mr. Hunter and Mr. Glenn Bell. About fifty guests were present at the interesting affair.

NEW YORK CITY IS CALLED CLEAN

New York, Oct. 21.—New York City, said David S. Levine, commissioner of licenses, today is "100 per cent pure."

HOLD ANNUAL PARTY FOR GRANDMOTHER

At Central Butte, Sask., on Wednesday, August 16th, the United Church hall was the scene of a very happy gathering when Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Faulkner entertained the grandmothers of the district, this being the tenth anniversary.

Seven years ago the happy thought of Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner to give pleasure to often grand mothers and each year, only one being missed, have they provided this gracious entertainment. The day was fine and the church hall was beautifully decorated with sweet peas, gladioli and other flowers and plants, tall candles completing a decoration which created a very happy and restful atmosphere which was appreciated by the guests.

There were forty-four grandmothers present. The guests were received by Mrs. Faulkner, after which an interesting programme was given, during which greetings to the grandmothers was given by Mrs. Faulkner in which she expressed her pleasure at meeting them all again and congratulated them on their good health and happiness.

Greetings from absent grandmothers who had been "guests in former years were read by Mrs. W. A. Tenny. Those were from Mrs. Clarence Vermilyea, Belleville, Ont., and others.

During the eleven years sixteen of the grandmothers have passed on, three during the past year, Mrs. Petty, Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Jackson, all of Lawson. These were kindly remembered by a beautiful floral token of nature and white sweet peas in which stood a memorial scroll containing names.

Mrs. Faulkner presented the oldest grandmother, who is eighty-three, with a gift. The youngest grandmother with the largest family by the most recent grandmother, the grandmother who had travelled the greatest distance, also received gifts.

Later the hall was transformed into an attractive tea room where the guests seated themselves at small tables for refreshments. The floral decorations were sweet peas. A beauty cake of flowers was composed by Mrs. Gauss and replied to by Mrs. Jackson, who extended a cordial invitation to all for the 3rd Wednesday of August in 1934. So far what many of the grandmothers expressed as a "Perfect Day."

Not Shkkespears But Houdini Popular to Prison Inmates

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The works of Houdini, not Shakespeare, are more than love's labor lost, so far as the modern American convict is concerned.

A mention of his name gets nothing but a yawn from the Illinois prison inmate of 1933, Miss E. Kathleen Jones of the Massachusetts Division of Public Libraries, said. She spoke before the Prison Libraries section of the American Library Association last night.

But Houdini's "Book of Escapes" is most popular with the country's incarcerated wrong-doers. So is a symposium entitled "Five Hundred Criminal Careers".

LIBRARY CORNER

Oct. 21, 1933.

The turbulent life of the man "whose sneer was a prelude to the French revolution" is told by Victor Thaddeus in his book, "Voltaire: Genius of Mockery". The sickly son of an obscure Parisian notary, Francois Marie Arouet became, at twenty-one years of age, under the pseudonym "Voltaire" a dynamic force whose bitter blasts against Church and State made him a rebel and an outcast in French society. Mr. Thaddeus draws a full length portrait of Voltaire from the time of his birth in 1694 in the days of Louis XIV, the Sun King, till his death in 1778, eleven years before the outbreak of the French Revolution. For sixty years, Voltaire attacked the corruptions of the period, through his philosophy, poetry and drama, being alternately in and out of favour with the French court. In attempting to right the wrongs of the age, he was carrying out his philosophy "One day, all will be well—this is our hope. All is well today, this is our illusion!"

Four of the comic little volumes in the American Library Association's series "Reading with a Purpose" have been added to the library for those borrowers who want to accomplish a definite end rather than read aimlessly. For those who like history the book "English History" by Dr. George H. Locke, Librarian of the Toronto Public Library, comprises a brief introduction to the subject and a guide to a few books. An opportunity is given to choose one of several approaches to English history—through period history, biography, historical fiction or poetry. William Lyon Phelps, teacher of English literature at Yale has contributed a course of "Twentieth Century Literature Criteria" to the series. Samuel McChord Crothers has written "The Modern Essay" introducing to the reader the essayists of our own time, Shaw Chesterton, W. H. Hudson, Virginia Woolf, Lytton Strachey. "Masters of History" is the course outlined by Ambrose Vernon of Dartmouth College. The ten figures which he has chosen are Socrates of Greece, Alexander the Great of Macedon, Caesar of Rome, St. Paul the Apostle, Luther of Germany, Lord Bacon of England, Rousseau of France, and Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt of the United States.

Humor as a balm for hard times is offered in "Comic Relief", an anthology of modern American humour. Comprising selections from all the American humourists of note, the book will cause the reader many chuckles. Beginning with Irvin S. Cobb's description of the overpowering effect of the banking system on the average person "My Financial Career", the reader will follow through with the nonsense of Corey Ford, Ogden Nash, Ring Lardner, Frank Sullivan, Dorothy Parker, Will Cuppy, Don Marquis, not overlooking Robert Benchley and his well-known "Treasurer's Report". Here is humour of every type, from the painful antics of new members of a bridge club as revealed in Ruth McKenney's "Three Without, Doubled", to Dorothy Parker's all too realistic impressions of modern mannerisms.

MUSIC

(Toronto Telegram October 19)

The Lyric Singers of Oshawa, under Reginald G. Geen, were heard in recital last evening in Yonge St. United Church. The occasion was part celebration of the diamond jubilee of the church and there was a large audience. Program included: Schobis Jubilate, with organ; Robertson's "Magnificat"; Wm. Boyd Vokes' Pie," and the same composer's Celtic Lullaby; William Lyon Tyrie's "Vyet's Indian Lullaby; Del Riego's "Happy Song"—all unaccompanied; Elgar's "The Snow," with piano-forte accompaniment; Mr. Geen conducted and contributed a group of organ numbers, including the Guilmant "Lamentation" and Fugue in "On Distant Justitiam"—the singers in each of these rendering a Latin chant arranged by Mr. Geen. Other organ numbers were Wolf-Ferrari's "Dance of the Angels" (from "The New Life") and Mousorgsky's Elect Processional. Mr. Geen also played Bach's Fugue F. Major Nocturne and the Schubert-Liszt "Soiree de Vienne" on the piano.

The Singers

Oshawa's Lyric Singers number 22 ladies who sing with the unity and expression usually of an octet. Their tone is singularly sweet and sympathetic something of the Guild-Curzi quality of insinuation in it. Balance is excellent—percolant second contraltos and second sopranos who never tire and never leave the harmonic path. Diction is clear and precise and too little diaphragm. First soprano bright and flexible and fault, the best features of the singing of this ensemble are the pianissimi effects. Their technique is excellent—shading done delicately, climaxes achieved without effort. Their beautiful work Mr. Geen did in Guelph with the Lyric Singers, with here and with the Guelph Vogt Choir, has faithful relief in the work of Dunbar Oshawa Lyric Singers. They sang last night with an ecstasy that was the highest musical technique, leaving memories that will linger long in the hearts of listening music lovers.

Program

The Schobis Jubilate had lovely colorature phrases and contrasts of light and shade that kept the listener delightfully alert. And a new must be interpolated regarding the organ accompaniment. Mr. Geen was an obligato in faultless taste, delicate as strings and flutes, with here and there glorious phrases of rich colored power. Mr. Geen made good use of our large concert organ—its this beautiful art of organ accompaniment of which he is undoubted master. Of the unaccompanied choral numbers, Vogt's Indian Lullaby was the best. Chromatic (and a little wearying) harmonies were exploited. Apparently each part knew where it was going and why. Then came the number on Celtic Lullaby. Soprano percussion, lovely in this, and contraltos really noble. Exquisite shading and a close as gentle as Celtic twilight. The choral entry in the Guilmant Organ "Lamentation" and again in the organ fugue, was most effective. A mystical bit of melody which crept and voice-bleid produced a set of tone values quite new and wonderfully effective. Very harmonic interest at least. A high light in a beautiful program, as dramatic as it was beautiful and unexpected. The very best singing of the evening was in the last number—Elgar's "The Snow." Mr. Geen's piano-forte accompaniment is described as have been harp music for its delicacy and shadowy quality. And the singers were never at fault. It was pure singing.

Beauty . . . .

By Helen Jameson

When Facing Those Mellow Years

It's only those shocking decennial birthdays—forty, fifty, sixty—that bother a woman. The in-between's don't seem to matter much. At forty-nine a woman says, "Oh! well, I'm not fifty yet," but at that half century-post she does a heap of thinking.

Is it time now to chuck the boy's raiment and put on birthday mourning? To that question, if she's a wise-one, she will answer no! with the thumping of fists and the defiant eye. Fifty is nothing, even if a woman looks it. Age isn't a matter of birthdays, it is how much pep you've got left in that old pep engine.

There's nothing sadder than the sight of a fifty-year-old gal logging a lot of vivid make-up. There's nothing sweeter than that of the one who thins her cheeks lightly, tones the lipstick, and uses it graciously. If middle age finds one still a slender, carrying one's self beautifully, youthful attire is demanded. Put such a woman in dull colors and best-time fashions and she looks funny. Like daughter in grandma's clothes. There are such women. Don't tell me there aren't. I number several among my acquaintances.

The grand idea is to keep stepping with the modern parade, but don't step ahead too far. And to keep sweet.

There are middle-aged women who believe they must look their grown children. They're misguided and they aren't pretty. Let the youngsters work out their own and purty.

problems. There is no woman alive who has reached her sixteenth summer until that she is capable of directing the lives of others.

Age does not always bring wisdom. A silly woman is silly from sixteen to seventy. Age, apparently, hasn't much to do with brains. Experience usually always teach. And does not always. And sometimes it is a grave responsibility to tell sons and daughters where they should marry, how they should conduct themselves, what not to do. Sometimes they do not take their own affairs.

A woman of fifty is in normal health, blessed with a working intelligence, she'll have so many sons-in-law of her own to interest her, she won't want to be bothered directing the affairs of a younger generation.

Many of the beauty ills of middle age can be held at bay. So, if you are thirty-five or forty, get a running start. Then after your thirty-fifth, particularly; necks are weak-willed. Give the lower part of the face plenty of massage cream and a nightly spanking. Sags come first here. Pay your hair as if you loved it. Flaunt the latest coiffure, if you can get away with it.

Don't be a slick-in-the-house. That's fatal. Walk every day. Don't worry; every middle-aged woman should have sense enough not to worry; never get anything for her. If hip spread appalls, do setting floor rolling. Don't give up the beauty ship. At all ages, the sailing's fine and the sky all blue if tumble type he will be more at ease in a blazer or leather coat with corduroy breeches. The shy, unathletic boy will probably be much more at ease in conventional dark suit which gives him inconspicuous in crowds.

Furnishing His Room

As for the child's room, I should give him, even as a little fellow, a good deal of leeway in choosing his furnishings. Watch to discover what appeals to him and what annoys him.

I lived in a room once which had walls covered with field of tan paper and gayly colored roses. I'm sure that room drove me as near to an insane asylum as I shall ever be.

Grown people often make the mistake of thinking that a child must like everything that they like, or that they like. Frequently they disclosed the fact that the pastel shades or light tints are frequently used to suit which type of room, be acts easiest and most naturally.

Too many of us are trying to be like someone else and there is in the world a big need of individuality, people who can naturally and unaffectedly be themselves.

Right of Children To be Themselves

(By Constance Cameron)

Once, when I was away, my small daughter's grandmother, in getting her ready for a party, took curling irons and made tiny curls all over the youngster's head. "Now you look so sweet," she informed the young lady. And the young lady promptly staged a tantrum which instantly aroused and enraged her grandmother. "That's a fine way to act after I've fixed you so you look so pretty," said the grandmother. "But, grandma, I don't feel like myself!"

It isn't always so easily that a child wants "to be himself," and sometimes, that desire never comes. But it should. And search can often assist in nurturing it, by studying the child's type, and even his clothing or surroundings bring out the characteristics he hidden desires, the things which will most fully express himself.

Clothes to Suit the Type

If your little black haired girl is prim and snappy, don't make the mistake of trying to dress her as you would the shy type that looks best on under frills and ruffles. She will feel more comfortable with a trim, slick, hair cut, and tailored garments.

If your boy is the loud, rough and tumble type he will be more at ease

WILLIAM McARTHUR IS ORDAINED

Toronto, Oct. 21.—The central feature of last night's service of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Convention, in the Alliance Tabernacle on Christie Street, was the ordination by the Ordaining Council of the Alliance of the following five men, who were duly consecrated to the Christian ministry: G. S. Bidwell, Owen Sound; William McArthur, Belleville; Richard Simpson, Ottawa; Lloyd M. Stephens, Truro, N.S., A. E. Hilsch, Regentie.

The charge to the new pastors was delivered by Rev. George M. Blackett, of the Alliance Tabernacle, outlining the task, the method and the reward as laid down in the First Epistle of Peter 5: 2-3.

Addresses were also given by J. D. Millar, Conference chairman, and Rev. Tracy Millar, Newark, N.J., and prayers were offered that men are stirred to see young men these days turn their back upon the world and, with the Book of God in their hearts and hands go forward his life."

CLOTHESPIN MAKERS WANT BIG FAMILIES

Mussolini's Idea Good for United States, Say They

Chicago, Oct. 21 (CP) — The clothespin manufacturers are going to advocate a programme of more children per family for America.

"We're serious about it," said Charles F. Brooks, of New York, president of the Clothespin Institute.

If Mussolini thought more children was a good economic policy, why shouldn't we?"

He explained more children means more clothespins because of increased family washings.

How Y.M.C.A. is Appreciated

Robert Hall, Minister of John Street United Church, writes:

"The Y.M.C.A. will be knocking at your door next week. In these arresting days, it is the intention of the people of Belleville is again being given to the work and claims of the local Y. . . would like through your columns to join the large body of responsible opinion in testifying to the fine service the Association is to Mr. Short and his colleagues and in commending it to the citizens of Belleville.

"We, in this city have an institution exceptionally well equipped to minister to the needs of our growing youth both in the matter of accommodations and furnishings, and especially in the sterling quality of the personnel. It would be a real calamity if through our indifference and neglect this foundation were lost in the matter of character building not to mention the safe-guarding of our boys and girls against the seductive distractions of modern city life should be the result.

"May the appeal of the Y.M.C.A. receive the warm response it merits."

INCREASE IN EGG PRICES

Sell on Local Market at 35 Cents a Dozen

A market increase in the price of eggs was noted at the Saturday morning market, selling as high as 35c a dozen with the higher grade asked being two cents higher than last week. In addition to the increase in the price of butter was reported, 23c to 25c a pound being asked.

The large quantity of fowl was seen, with chickens selling from 20c to 50c each, and geese, 15c each, and weight. Ducks were offered at the same price. Turkeys were not plentiful, the first of the season. Home cooking was also on display.

Vegetables and apples sold at the usual autumn prices. Pears, mostly Bartlett, sold at 75c a bushel. Fallstown sweets and Northern Spy apples sold at $1.00 bushel. Wealthy apples, Duchess and Wolfe Rivers 75c, other apples brought 50c to 60c a bushel. Celery were 10c each.

The sale of vegetables reverted to the former method, being sold by carrots, turnips and parsnips at 30c per bunch, onions at 10c per quart; cabbage, 5c; celery, 5c and 10c bunch; tomatoes 10c per quart basket, green potatoes 20c peck. A few ears of green corn sold for 5c each. Cucumbers were offered at 5c, 10c, and 15c. Pie pumpkins, 5 and 10c each. The south side of the market was a record wood, cut into stove lengths that found a ready sale. Small porker pigs sold at $3.00 per pair.

The market was well attended during the morning hours.

TANKER DISCHARGES CARGO OF GASOLINE

After having been forced to drop anchor in Kingston harbor on account of the heavy roughness of Lake Ontario on Thursday before continuing on her way to the head of the oil tanker Ottawaville entered the harbor port early today and discharged her fluid cargo of gasoline for the Imperial Oil Company's tanks in the west end. She was declared by sailors to have been the roughest that it has been this year.

BODY OF BOY FOUND

Lindsay Oct. 21.—While 200 men were combing the bush for the missing 13-year-old Robert Jackson died from exposure only a mile and a half from his home, early this Friday afternoon.

The body of the little boy, who wandered away from the farm home of his father, Thomas Jackson, on Thursday morning, was discovered in the thick, swampy area stretching between his home and a small lake.

VOTERS' LIST 1933

Notice is hereby given that on the 14th day of October, 1933, I posted up in my house in the City Hall a duplicate Voters' List of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the City of Belleville to be entitled to be voters at Municipal Elections and said list will remain open for inspection for twenty-one days from date of this notice.

Persons who are aware of errors in the said lists or of changes which have been rendered necessary by reason of the death or removal of any person entitled thereto or by reason of any person having become entitled to be entered on the lists of a voter since the return of final revision of the Assessment Rolls, are hereby called upon to give notice of same.

All citizens who have purchased property or business since the last revised Assessment Roll or who have changed their place of residence in the city since the 1st of January, 1933, should examine the Voters' Lists to see that their names are placed therein.

The time for making complaints as to errors or omissions in the List shall be twenty-one days from the date of this notice.

Dated at Belleville the 14th day of October, 1933.

Summer has definitely vacated the picture and the rich shades of Autumn in the turning of the leaves presage the coming of Winter with all that is implied in the term—cold weather, snow, sleet and rain, illuminated by bright, frosty days when the blood goes tingling through the veins with glee and it feels good to be alive.

Just now is a good time to get ready for the Winter season—see that the home is made cozy and draft proof, that there is plenty of good fuel, the furnace gone over by a plumbing and heating expert, and no chance taken of having a dead furnace and a cold house during repairs. The family footwear should be repaired and made watertight against wet weather, and the family wardrobe replenished and repaired.

The family motor car should also be put in shape for the exacting demands of winter—and to make sure that you know WHERE TO GET WHAT YOU WANT WHEN YOU WANT IT, read the advs. on this page and get acquainted with the businessmen who herewith invite your patronage.

A CUP OF COFFEE IN A COPPER COFFEE CUP—

Try and say it quickly several times in succession and see how you make out, you will be very limber tongued if you say it without getting "all tangled up." Fortunately one does not have to use a tongue twister like this when asking to be served with coffee — it is quite amusing, however, to try and repeat it correctly and no doubt one would succeed better in doing so after having enjoyed a good stimulating cup of coffee and if you desire really delicious coffee you can obtain it at the Scopis Restaurant. It will not be served to you in a copper coffee cup but in a cup of good chinaware. This popular restaurant is noted for excellent coffee—nothing but the best grade is used and as part of the appetizing meals served it is indeed "worth while." When one partakes of luncheon or dinner the environment should be pleasant and restful for at the Scopis Restaurant the desired atmosphere may be found. Possibly you have eaten at this restaurant and enjoyed the meals served to you, but if you have not tried the meals served there do so and you will repeat the occurrence. The variety of food offered is large — it is well cooked and seasoned and the service is all that can be desired. Mr. Scopis carries a large and well assorted stock of chocolates of the best makes, also cigars and cigarettes in all the leading and popular brands. Visit the Scopis Restaurant at 208 Front St.—you will like it.

Work Called For and Delivered

STEERING TROUBLE LEADS TO DITCH

J. E. MADILL, SPECIALIST in motor car troubles, has moved to new quarters, No. 2 Dundas Street, more convenient for his patrons and handier for his business. Machinery has been installed and the new business place is ready for all demands of patrons. Mr. Madill specializes in Wheel Alignment and Spring Service, but handles as well all kinds of Car Repairs. He has had a long and varied experience and patrons of Belleville and district have found perfect satisfaction in dealings with Mr. Madill.

MANY YOUNG WOMEN AND MEN DRINK MILK WHILE AT WORK — it is not at houses and restaurants and hotels only that milk is delivered, many quart and pint bottles are left every morning at stores, offices and work shops, and during the day, refreshing drinks of milk are enjoyed and work resumed with renewed energy. Those persons know the beneficial value of milk and are keeping themselves 'fit.' An eminent authority has the following to say about milk: "The people who have achieved, who have become large, strong vigorous people, who have reduced infant mortality, who have the best trade in the world, who have appreciation of art, literature and music and who are progressive in science and in every activity of human intellect are the people who have used milk and its products liberally." This certainly speaks well for milk, but no doubt its great benefits are well known to you and several bottles of it are delivered daily at your home. It may be that you are supplied by the Walmuir Dairy which serves many customers in the city with milk which has been thoroughly pasteurized for safety and which is rich in quality. The delicious cream and buttermilk sold by this dairy are also pasteurized. If you do not take Walmuir milk and would like to try it, phone 1398 or 2304 and a driver will call. There is a wagon on your street every morning in time for breakfast.

POPULATION IS OUR NEED

C.P.R. President E. W. Beatty Says Time For Immigration

That increased population is one of the outstanding needs of Canada today and that carefully directed and intelligently effected policy looking towards the admittance of desirable settlers will prove an important factor in the re-establishment of economic prosperity in this country was the theme of a statement issued by President E. W. Beatty.

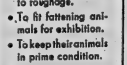
"Upon my return from Great Britain recently," said Mr. Beatty, "I stated that I was convinced that the time had arrived for Canada to embark on a definite moderate policy of immigration, particularly from Great Britain; that the sparseness of our population was still a drawback in view of our external and internal obligations, and that I did not think this country had anything to fear from a judiciously regulated policy of admission of those of our own race in particular. To this I added that plans for inter-empire migration were being carefully worked out in the United Kingdom and that there was hope of results in a year or two.

"Wide-spread editorial comment followed upon the publication of this statement, most of which seemed to reflect the opinion that I favored comparatively unrestricted immigration of a class of people who would tend to add to the ranks of the unemployed. No one can be much more aware of the imperative need for the elimination of unemployment as far as is possible than I am, and any proposal to add to the number of workless, now or at any other time, certainly would not justify the consideration of thoughtful people.

"There is room in Canada for a class of people whose migration into this country would in every way work a permanent advantage to Canada and those now living here. I know of no problem more difficult of suitable type of individual or family with their own capital, sufficiently financed from overseas for immediate land settlement, can not be welcomed. Such immigration can be safeguarded against the risks of failure. It would bring with it an inflow of new capital to be directored in the purchase of livestock, building material and farming equipment of all kinds. This type of settler, instead of being a competitor for employment odds to the employment of labor and, above all is a factor in the national revenues of government, public services, etc.

"The high per capita cost of government and of these services is one of the most serious of our difficulties today. No citizen entirely escapes the bill for taxes, federal, municipal and more than many may. Something has been done over the past few months in reducing expenses, but even after all there is but one way to permanently ease the load, and that is to spread it over a larger number of contributors. There are many thousands of vacant farms both in eastern and western Canada, and my suggestion is that people should be put on them to help lighten the load of annual expense representing such things as roads, schools, policing, railway services and the other necessities of life we all have to pay for.

"The criticism that an increased farming population can only add to over-production of farm products, particularly wheat, in my opinion, is not well-founded. The present so-called over-production is a fool stuffs may conceivably be merely a passing phase of a highly distorted world condition resulting in dislocation of trade and distribution. However, the class of settler to which I refer, would require from three to five years, depending on the type of farm, to develop his land to the point of adding materially to the exportable surpluses, and by that time it is reasonable to suppose most of our problems connected with distribution will be on the way to solution.



"The British government is most emphatic in its declaration that immigration matters are not being dealt with as a solution of unemployment problems—it is a case of finding a desirable locale for people whom there are most desirous of retaining within the Empire. British interests are pressing for financial assistance from overseas for immediate land settlement, and must be welcomed. Such immigration can be safeguarded against the risks of failure. It would bring with it an inflow of new capital to be directored in the purchase of livestock, building material and farming equipment of all kinds. This type of settler, instead of being a competitor for employment adds to the employment of labor and, above all is a factor in the national revenues of government, public services, etc.

CANADIAN ONIONS FOR CUBAN MARKET

A huge quantity of potential tears were embodied in 6,400 bushels of Canadian onions, well liked for their flavor and soundness, which were exported from Canada into Cuba during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1933, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. The Egyptian onion is a strong competitor of the Canadian products due to the fact that it will keep from four to five months without sprouting in the damp hot climate characteristic of Cuba.

ORIGINAL DEED TO "KRUM ELBOW"

There has come to light in Jersey, Queen's County, New Brunswick, the original deed to the family estate of President Franklin Roosevelt of the United States, "Krum Elbow", granted to Joshua Gedney by George II in the year 1730, states the Toronto Bureau of the Canadian National Railways. This Joshua Gedney owned much land in New York but, siding with the Loyalists during the American Revolution and himself raising a regiment, his property was confiscated and after the revolution he came to New Brunswick to live, locating at Jemseg. The deed is in the possession of a great-great-grandson, Fred C. Meyers of Jemseg.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By George McManus

For the LOVE of EVE

By Lucy Walling

"Good morning," an Spanish police greeted Eve as she entered. "Good morning." Eve scanned with a swift appraisal of the young creature before her. An extremely plain face but one which was rapidly being transformed by the expert use of cosmetics. The other girl drew a thin wool frock over her head in one quick motion. Then she stood before the long mirror and pulled the dress tightly over her hips, turning right and left.

"There! All ready for the big adventure!" she announced gayly.

Eve lifted her perplexed brows slightly. The girl lit a cigaret and confided, "I'm nervous as a cat. This is my first trip to New York. Married girl friend. Lives right across the river in New Jersey but she doesn't expect me. You see I've taken my job in my own hands. I want to find a husband before the heat's right on. There's a new crop of girls coming up every year and there certainly aren't enough eligibles to go around for four corners. My sister discovered it too, so I'm hitting for New York as before I'm past the age."

Eve fluffed her hair with a little brade and gold comb. The girl watched her.

"That's a pretty wedding ring," she said. "Well, you're one of the lucky ones—to have a husband in these days of competition."

The girl's hand was on the door knob when she turned back. "My name's Corrine Devore," she said, and paused. "Not that we're likely to meet again, of course," she hurried on when Eve remained silent, debating whether or not to return the confidence by telling her own cushioned chair. She was more than him? She was even a little frightened. Would this thing she had done always stand between her and Dick?

With fingers that shook Eve tore open the thin, yellow envelope.

He couldn't have his work to come between her and his work to come between her and his home? Oh, why had this whole miserable situation come about?

Late however as she rode to the style advisory bureau of Phoebe, Inc., Eve's trained mind reasserted itself, on the boundary of the day. Freda Carter was to meet her there at two. They had made the appointment in a hurried telephone conversation. Freda was seldom stopped at a whim when in New York, as she had a sister living in Brooklyn.

With Freda she had just come back from Paris, her head full of fashion notions and her trunks packed with French gowns. Eve made the rounds of New York's fashionable shops. They spent a leisurely noon period with some advertising woman over a broad, cool peasant style in a quaint French restaurant.

That evening they dressed for dinner in a new gown of pale gold lace. It represented the measure of her yielding to the temptation to purchase every lovely thing she beheld.

She found herself warming to Freda Carter. With her Eve felt none of the barrier of formality that often exists between women who are brought together by professional interests. They chatted pleasantly as Eve's hotel.

"About tonight," Freda said over the coffee cups, "I thought you'd like to see a musical comedy so I arranged it. I met an interesting man on the ship. Ernest Franks is his name. He's going to call for us at eight o'clock."

Eve said she would enjoy going to the theatre. She was surprised when two men instead of one met them as she and Freda left the elevator.

"I brought this lone wolf along" Franks explained after introducing Theron Reece, "because he needed company. I hope you'll like him."

"He looks likable," Freda said as she and her escort led the way to a taxicab. Eve followed with Reece whose charming smile overshadowed those of Franks.

Judging from the applause the musical show was a great success. Eve followed its theme only vaguely. She permitted herself to lapse into lethargy, rousing sometimes to smile hesitantly at her companions. She was conscious of pleasing music and color, but it seemed far away.

Theron Reece hummed one of the tunes under his genial breath through the lobby. As they joined the throng waiting for cabs outside he suggested a night club.

Reece was disappointed when the head waiter was unable to seat them at a table in the front circle. A smart chorus of young girls was dancing vivaciously, beautifully. The applause was hearty and long. Then the dancing space was cleared for dancers. Franks did not dance but Reece apparently wanted to be on the floor all the time. Again and again he managed so that he and Eve were on the floor and made center of attention before the other dancers left their tables. Eve was not quite sure she liked this. The lights turned to a rosy glow and the orchestra played a waltz that made Eve think of Dick. Reece held her closely but Eve drew away.

When they returned to their table Freda was displaying a new cigaret case she had purchased in Paris. She passed it around. Eve glancing at the other tables, then hesitantly took a cigaret. Franks closed his hands over it.

"Don't," he said. "It spoils the illusion." Then he added, "With apologies to Miss Carter!" Freda smiled. She did not mind.

"And don't drink either," Reece added, as he poured the contents of a silver flask into three glasses of ginger ale. "We want you to keep that little girl look. It's a rare thing in a place like this."

As they left the night club Ernest Franks suggested waiting a few blocks before he escorted Freda to her sister's home in Brooklyn. "Fifth Avenue at night attracts a corner," he said. "It's a glorious night and the windows after midnight are always worth looking at."

Freda agreed to walk with him. The sidewalks were dry and her long fur coat protected her against the cold. But Reece protested that Eve's wrap was inadequate, so they separated. Reece signaled a taxicab and he and Eve drove to her hotel.

"Are you so absurdly young as you look?" he asked. Then, without waiting for an answer he unlawfully took her hand. He held it tightly and Eve did not try to withdraw it. After all, it was but a few blocks to the hotel.

Suddenly the man took her in his arms and, before she could free herself, pressed his lips to hers.

They arrived at the hotel and Eve, wrapped very much in her night, hurried to the elevator.

CHAPTER 4

Eve sat at the desk in her hotel room until nearly dawn writing a letter to Dick.

After five hours of unpleasant experience with Theron Reece in the taxicab she longed for the safety and commonsense she always felt in Dick's presence. In the letter she did not mention any of her companions except Freda Carter.

Freda left the next evening after a day in which she and Eve were extremely busy. They dined together and Freda asked Eve to call at her apartment after she returned to Lake City.

The first of a week Eve devoted herself to work but in spite of preoccupation she was worried. No word had come from Dick. Pride would not allow her to call him by long distance though she hungered for the sound of his voice. Each night she wrote him a long letter, pouring out her love.

After Freda's departure Eve felt the need of companionship and phoned an Irene Prentiss whom she had been classmates in high school. Irene had gone to New York immediately following graduation and now, after five years of marriage, was still working in the office of a financial magazine where she had begun as stenographer. Today, however, she was assistant editor of that journal.

Irene appeared with several gaily packed boxes in her hands. Eve thought she looked tired and a bit worn. Irene seemed glad to see her explained that it was press day. Eve realized she should have telephoned to learn when it would be convenient for her to call. Evidently New York business offices were not so informal as those in Lake City.

They went to lunch together but it was Friday noon at a nearby restaurant. Irene wore a dark fur jacket that Eve admired.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"For every jewel, a drop of blood." Twice more came this dismal wailing as the Arabs hastened out of the temple ground, the voice well knew the superstitious nature of the desert people.

At sunset it became necessary to make camp. Food and fires relieved the overwrought nerves of Jhn Jad's men and soon there was laughter and singing in the menail of the thieving Sheik.

The Sheik himself sat in his muksad, surrounded by the five bags of treasure. About him were his favorites, sipping coffee, as Ibn Jad gloated and fondled the rich gold and jewels. Suddenly there came a weird moan, and something rolled into the midst of the startled men. Horror-struck, spellbound, they stared. It was a man's severed head. From the far dark forest, came again that hollow, shivery voice: "For every jewel, a drop of blood!"

The Arabs bunched together and seized their weapons, but all were too horror-shaken to venture into the dark. for they thought: "None but an evil spirit, and the voice, "I could have done this deed!" And then the voice said, "Tonight I will look for one more pearl, last night," Atja managed to gasp. "Where they went, I know not." As in silence it came, silently the presence left her. When a moment later Hirfa returned to the harem, she found her daughter lying in a swoon.

Atja was sure the voice belonged to a "Jin," or some such fearsome creature of the night. "Where is the woman your father brought from the valley? Answer!" said the voice. "I will look for her one more pearl, last night," Atja managed to gasp. "Where they went, I know not." As in silence it came, silently the presence left her. When a moment later Hirfa returned to the harem, she found her daughter lying in a swoon.

EXPORT TRADE UP 80 PERCENT

Ford Motor Car Company Enjoys Large Overseas Trade

East Windsor, Oct. 21—As a result of greatly improved economic conditions in the Dominions and more favorable exchange relations, particularly between the dollar and the British pound, exports of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, to its overseas territories will be 80 per cent greater in 1933 than in 1932, Wallace R. Campbell, president, reported today.

Ford overseas shipments to these territories, for the first nine months of this year, will exceed the entire 12 months of 1932. The upturn in exports began in April with the introduction of the new V-8 car overseas. The improvement in the overseas territories has been well sustained since that time. Shipments from the East Windsor plant to the Dominions will be heaviest during the last quarter.

Mr. Campbell said that the improvement in the company's export business has been most marked in Australia, India and South Africa where deliveries in the second half of the year will be almost at an average of 300 per cent over those in the first half. The increased volume in the Far East, he said and the Malaya company's territory while not large as yet, however, most promising.

The largest unit of the company's export volume is being absorbed by Australia where a market improvement in the company's business is resulting from the rehabilitation of the Dominion's treasury and a consequent betterment in economic conditions. The increase in the price of wool and of other basic commodities also has been an important factor in bolstering the country's purchasing power, as has been the favorable valuation of the Australian to the British pound.

In India the betterment in Ford business has been virtually as great as in Australia, and further increases are expected with the passing of the monsoon season.

General Motors Canada has been on the upgrade for some months due to increased buying prices, a more tangible spirit of confidence and the full height of the distribution is now being returning, largely for long-term investment, during the present degree of confidence on the part of investors.

Similar situations prevail in South Africa, where material improvement in Ford delivered is now in progress.

In addition to the betterment in sales overseas of Ford V-8 cars manufactured in East Windsor, the Ford company also will market this year in its overseas territories some 3,000 Anglian-made 4-berse power Fords as a consequence of its agreement last year with the Ford Motor Company, Limited, of Dagenham, England. Under this agreement, the Canadian company manufactured V-8 Fords for distribution by the English company in the United Kingdom and in return distributed the English-made 4-cylinder Fords in its overseas territories.

Indications that the steady demand for Canadian-made Ford V-8 cars is improving were seen in the recent shipment by the consignment of V-8's to England for exhibition at the Olympia exhibition in Albert Hall, which opened October 12th, in London, with the Annual English motor car show at the Olympia. In addition to this, the company has an order and is preparing to ship several hundred additional V-8 cars for distribution in the United Kingdom.

LAKE WATER LEVEL IS LOW

Veteran Skipper Says it is Foot Lower Than Ever Known

According to latest reports received from the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa, Captain William Strachan of this city, skipper of the Goodchaun sailing yacht Oriole IV now in her winter berth, the present water level in Lake Ontario is exactly one foot lower than it has been known in years. "Forty-seven years, I believe it is," stated the Captain.

In the local harbor further evidence of the recession of the water is noted. Large stones have begun to appear on the surface. Several new islands, that have never been seen in the bay before are now showing above water.

On a measured pole, Jack Roblin, old-time water-front resident, took the exact depth of the present level. According to his own measurements, the water just now is four feet eleven inches lower than the high water mark of summer eight or nine years ago. In front of his boat house the actual depth now is only three feet.

"I haven't seen it this low for fifteen years," stated the veteran boat man.

Drinks All He Can Stand on Gallows Walk

San Quentin, Calif., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Offered all the whiskey he could stand in his walk to the gallows, Dallas Egan, 40, climbed steadily and alone the 13 steps on the scaffold here today and was put to death for the murder of William J. Kirkpatrick of Battle Creek, Mich. in a Los Angeles hold-up last July.

Scottish Paintings to Be Exhibited in Many Canadian Cities

Returning the courtesy of the National Gallery of Canada in sending to the United Kingdom an exhibit of Canadian art, the Royal Scottish Society of Painters and Colour Pastels has sent to Canada a similar exhibit which will be opened in Ottawa shortly. The collection is comprised of 116 works, executed by some of the most distinguished artists in Scotland. Following a period in which the collection will be on exhibition in the capital it will be shown in Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg and other centres throughout the country. The Canadian exhibition, which opened under the auspices of the Royal Scottish Society in Edinburgh last spring, win wide praise from British critics. Two of the paintings from the collection are shown above. At left is "The Old Mill, Conway Valley, North Wales," by Alex W. Whitelaw. At right is "March Wind" by Frederic Whiting, R.S.W.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Moonlight and Pretzels," acclaimed by movie critics as one of the most tuneful and cleverly produced musicals ever to flash upon the screen, is the feature attraction at the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily.

Roger Pryor, Leo Carrillo, Mary Brian, Lillian Miles, Alexander Gray, Bernice Claire, Jack Denny and his orchestra, Herbert Rawlinson, Doris Carson, William Frawley and the famous Frank and Milt Britton band are said by a few of what is undoubtedly the greatest assemblage of stage, screen and radio stars ever to appear together in one picture.

"Moonlight and Pretzels," a delightful romantic gem, tells the story of George Dwight, small-time vaudeville booker with ambition to be a big time song-writer. He finds himself stranded in a small upstate town in New York and Sally Upton, proprietor of the local music store, helps him out with a job. Sally falls in love with him immediately but George is too busy trying to catch on as a song-writer to think about love. He goes to New York and scores a tremendous hit as a composer of musical comedy successes although Sally hasn't heard from him she feels sure that George still thinks by her and decides to come to New York to get a job in one of his shows.

The score for the Universal screen musical was written by four of America's ace song writers. Jay Gorney and E. Y. Harburg, who wrote "Brother Can You Spare a Dime" for Bing Crosby, and Harold Arlen and Al Siegel. "Moonlight and Pretzels" was directed by Karl Freund and Monte Brice, with Bobby Connolly handling the many dance ensembles.

"Slippery Pearls," a clever and very funny comedy with a cast of real funmakers, "Mother Goose-land," a melodious comedy cartoon, and "Throttle Pushers," a novel and different sportlight offering will be exhibited on the same program.

Roland Colman Next

Ronald Colman is the first famous dual roles of "The Masquerader," coming to the Belle Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

In its original play form, one of the most successful melodramas the world has ever seen was made out of the stranger human story of two men who so closely resembled each other than neither wife nor mistress could be sure.

Two Leading Women

Elissa Landi, who brought so much warmth and vitality to "The Sign of the Cross," and Juliette Compton have the feminine leads with Colman's dual role. David Torrence, Henry Stephenson, Claude Gillingwater and Halo Erden Kenny Eddy are in the cast.

Big Pictures Coming

The parade of new season screen hits continues at the Belle, Excellent attractions to be exhibited during the balance of October are "Broadway to Hollywood," introducing a new idea in musical pictures. William Henry, George Ball, Jackie Cooper and Fay Wray in "The Power," an intimate story of Tunney, Mauricio Chevalier and Ann Dvorak in his new musical offering, "The Way to Love."

Early November bookings at the Belle include the sensational prizefighting and include the sensational musical film, Miss Tonight," offering a feast of blazing beauty and magic music. Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy in Arthur Hopkins Roche's "Penthouse." the picture that has been acclaimed by all the critics, Helen Hayes, Lionel Barrymore, Robert Montgomery, Clark Gable, and John Barrymore in "Night Flight." Mae West and Cary Grant in "I'm No Angel" and Edwin O. Robinson, Kay Francis and Genevieve Tobin in "I Love a Woman." The complete list of feature screen attractions to be exhibited at the Belle in November will be announced shortly.

Manager Forhan announces that contracts have been signed for the presentation of the super road show screen offering, "Dinner at Eight," to be exhibited at the Belle soon.

AT THE CAPITOL

STAGE AND SCREEN TO-NIGHT

The stage and screen presentation which has set the town talking and which pleased the capacity crowds at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday and Friday tremendously, leaves tonight.

The feature film "P.P.I." most descriptive and last in the series awarded by "Liberty" because seldom has a more finished and absorbing picture been seen on the screen in Belleville.

The stage presentation enhanced by the Capitolians under the direction of Ab. Adams is excellent and is timed for 7:45 and 9:46 to-night.

Next Thursday, Friday and Saturday a complete change is made and "Tarzan" is the screen feature.

JACK HOLT

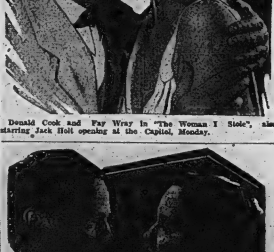
No more ingenious struggles between men and men and between groups and groups have been seen any industry than those which have been part of the getting out of the world's ivory by talking and photoplay "The Woman I Stole" which opens Sunday at the Capitol Theatre, this is the basic theme.

On the edge of the Moroccan desert, the Allanna and Pan Kanas Petroleum Corporations are struggling over oil, and Jack Holt—always a fighter in his pictures—is battling with Donald Cook over a woman— and the fair object of the struggle is Fay Wray.

Then there is also a perfectly grand bandit general to stir things up still further. He doesn't care which oil company he stands as long as he gets the loot. And he's a jovial giant, a picturesque character, played by Noah Beery.

And then there's a tempestuous flaming little Spanish dancer to add piquancy and still further beauty to the general situation. This is young Raquel Torres, well known through her last picture, "So this is Africa", with Wheeler and Woolsey.

"The Woman I Stole" was adapted from the novel by Donald Henderson Clarke. Screen play by Josephine Lovett.



Monday and Tuesday are Dinnerware Gift days for ladies as usual.

SERGT. HENDERSON DROWNS

Ottawa, Oct. 20 (CP)—News of the death by drowning of Sergeant Edward Henderson, Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, at Cornell River, near Cameron Bay, Great Bear Lake was received here today. The tragedy occurred three days ago.

Donald Cook and Fay Wray in "The Woman I Stole", also starring Jack Holt opening at the Capitol, Monday.

Roger Pryor, Mary Brian and the beauty chorus in the romantic musical comedy, "Moonlight and Pretzels," now at the Belle.

Kingsville Lions Club Honor Jack Miner

Kingsville, Ont., Oct. 21—It is written in the bible that "a prophet is without honor save in his own country", but such can't be said of Jack Miner the Canadian-Naturalist and his home town of Kingsville, Ontario because the newly formed Lions Club of that town which consists of the officials of the town, the executive of the Board of rade, local member of Parliament and other prominent citizens sprung a surprise this week on their well known citizen Jack Miner in the form of a testimonial banquet which was one of the most exclusive affairs that ever took place in this the most southern town in Canada.

The citizens well realize that during the last twenty five years that the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary has become well known all over the world and at the same time the Jack Miners home town of Kingsville has been put on the map because not only the citizens of the town is one hundred per cent behind Jack but Ontario and Canada all well realize the value of his bird sanctuary not only from the conservation standpoint but benefits both Ontario and Canada derives from Jack Miner shall emphasizes any one to produce a picture of more game cars lined up in these public parks than he can show driving up along the roads in front of his humble home. People from all parts of the world who have been attracted to his home town of Kingsville solely to visit the bird sanctuary during the spring and fall migration seasons of the year.

In interviewing Jack Miner regarding the banquet he said that "During the past twenty five years he had been the honored guest and the speaker at banquets in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, where Hon. Alfred E. Smith had introduced him. He had been the honored guest in the Stevens Hotel in Chicago and the President, The Honorable Herbert Hoover of the United States were the sole speakers at the Izaak Walton Banquets where luring hundred sports men sat down at once with each person paying ten dollars per plate. He has been honored by being given the Outdoor Life Gold Medal at Denver, Colorado, while his friends can friends in Washington had honored him with the medal for the President of the American Forestry Association and many other such honors have had made him feel more humble than for his own fellow citizens whom he has grown up with from a boy to spring such a surprise and he has their support and thanks was worth more to him than dollars and cents and all the honors he had every received. Yes, any not only to have the respect of the men of my own age, but of the young men of this generation inspires me want to live forever in my humble way trying to do something for others." He wish) Verse 1.

Verse 1.

Two Deductions

"Thus for engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, and telegraphers, there are two 10 per cent. deductions in effect, whereas with the groups covered by the present proceeding, and others only one deduction of 10 per cent. has so far been made.

In the first eight months of the present year the gross earnings on the Canadian lines of the Canadian National Railways amounted to $79,453,773,as compared with $90,941,514 for the corresponding period of 1932, a decrease of 12.63 per cent, and fifty-two per cent below the figures for the corresponding period of 1929. The net revenue on the Canadian lines of the Canadian National Railways in the first eight months of the present year has been insufficient to meet operating expenses, the deficit on this account being $2,254,814 before the payment of taxes.

"Under such extraordinary circumstances, the management of the railways for some relief from the burden of paying 90 per cent. of rates established under conditions so different from those existing to-

C.N. RAILWAYS ATTITUDE ON CUT IN WAGES

Presentation Made to Board of Conciliation Over Issue

TORONTO Oct. 21.—The Canadian National Railways, in the brief presented to the Board of Conciliation and Investigation meeting in connection with clerical and other employees, outlined the efforts made by the railways for some relief from the burden of paying 90 per cent. of rates established under conditions so different from those existing today.

The Railways here submitted statistics and graphs showing the trends in wages, cost of living and purchasing power from 1920 to date. The cost of living shows a decline of 22 per cent, compared with the peak of 1920, whereas wage rates have declined with, those employees only 19 per cent, from 1920. The trend in purchasing power of the wage rates has been generally upward and the Railway submitted that even after the reduction of 1 per cent. deduction now proposed the purchasing power of the wages of these employees would be greater than at any time prior to 1929.

The position of the railway, with due regard to the interests of the country as a whole, and bearing in mind all the conditions which have been mentioned, contends that the situation warrants a wage reduction, particularly as the employees who are working, through the increased purchasing power of their wage, will not be called upon to make an unreasonable sacrifice as compared with that made by employees of other industries throughout Canada.

"In view of the good treatment accorded the employees by the Canadian National in the past it is felt that the employees should recognize that it will not be the policy of the railway to continue the reduction beyond the period of unusual traffic depression and that an appeal for relief would be favourably acted upon as soon as improved conditions warranted an upward adjustment.

"It is being continually stressed, and it seems to be justly generally recognized that the railway situation in Canada at the present time is the problem of national importance."

SARMAN CONFESSES AUTOMOBILE THEFT

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—Gordon Hond, Sarnia, was sentenced to from 18 to 42 months in Central Reformatory, Guelph, when he pleaded guilty in police court to theft of an automobile. Two girl companions, Mary Domonic and Myrtle Riley were acquitted of a similar charge.

Cough and Cold Remedies By The Hundred, But Only One—

BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE

And Here's the Proof — These Testimonials Are Typical of Thousands.

SPONGHTTS OF 10 YEARS STANDING BANISHED.

"From the first dose I took, I could see that the age of 10, I was never free from bronchitis and spongitis. Then I took one bottle of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. And there is not a recurrence since. At a last count I used BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. Relief from the first dose. After the third bottle, my cough was gone. That was three years ago and the cough has never returned."
Mrs. Ernest Tuttle, Hamilton, Ont.

THREE DOSES RELIEVES 33-YEAR-OLD COUGH.

"For 33 years I have had a chronic cough. When I took cold I could feel something in my chest. I was told to try BUCKLEY'S, and after the first dose I knew that there was no relief for me. I took three bottles of it and my cough was gone. I have had no trouble since."
Mrs. A. Wagner, Wenzlee, Ont.

NO MORE COUGHING, SLEEPLESS NIGHTS FOR MR. ALLEN.

"For years I suffered with a terrible cough and chest cold. I have had many strangers' cures, and found no relief. Then I tried BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. After the first dose, I noted an improvement. Now I am entirely free from my cough and cold."
H. Allen, Sarnia, Ont.

GEORGETOWN LADY SAYS — ABSOLUTELY A GENUINE REMEDY FOR THEM.

"I need your BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE this winter. It is absolutely a peerless remedy for 'flu if taken in time. Acts like a flash in mine in every way."
Mrs. J. A. Evans, Georgetown, Ont.

Buckley's is no mere soothing syrup that temporarily deadens the symptoms but a scientific formula that goes right to the root of the trouble and removes the cause. BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE acts like a flash—a single sip proves it. Play safe—refuse substitutes, BUCKLEY'S is sold everywhere.

SHARE PRICES BOOSTED BY U. S. GOLD PLAN, PRICE OF GOLD TO BE CONTROLLED BY GOVERNMENT

Roosevelt Plan of Market for Gold Stirs Enthusiastic Comment Abroad; Controlled Inflation is Indicated

Gold at Fixed Value of Commodities May be Object

FOREIGN VIEW

Mixed Opinion on Wall St. in Interpretation of Gold Program

By The Associated Press

The announcement of President Roosevelt that the United States would go into the market for the purchase of gold was interpreted in London and foreign capitals as an indication that the United States had decided upon stabilization on a sound money basis.

Leage of Nations circles viewed it as a move toward a stabilized currency, some of them commenting that a rise in prices would make the payment of fixed charges easier.

Paris observers saw a virtual stabilization in the plan. One of them describing it as a rejection of inflation with "an inflationary bubble broken."

Comment was lacking in Berlin pending a more complete report of the President's remarks.

The Evening Standard in London was sympathetic, saying that "a currency kept stable in the terms of commodities by continuous government action will be something new in the history of money." The newspaper stressed the belief a stable dollar will create a big money market in America.

Fixing Price Level

Washington Oct. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's opportunity has determined that, so far as gold is concerned, the United States price level will be fixed at home.

In line with the theory of many economists, including Dr. G. F. Warren, Presidential Monetary Adviser, the President evidently intends to employ gold prices in extending an influence over commodity prices on the grounds that gold is the basic factor in fixing the range of other prices.

Up to now world gold prices have affected home prices automatically. Statistics show that average commodity prices in the United States have followed quite closely the price of gold as it fluctuated in world markets.

U. S. Dollar Drops Sharply on News of New Gold Policy

(By C.P.)

Prices were given a sharp inflationary boost in financial markets today by President Roosevelt's announcement of the government's plan to control the price of gold.

Shares in the New York Stock Exchange jumped $1 to $3 with a few "inflation" stocks registering wider gains, but slid back $1 to $2 or more from the best levels after an early wave of buying.

In the Chicago pit wheat and corn rose about 2 to 3 cents a bushel, and oats 1 to 2 cents. Cotton advanced $1.15 to $1.50 a bale in New York, rubber advanced about ¼ of a cent a pound and other staples responded similarly.

U.S. Dollar Drops

The United States dollar dropped sharply at London, Paris and Berlin following news of President's new dollar policy today.

In London the dollar closed eight cents lower at $4.89½. At Paris it depreciated 29 centimes to 17.86 francs, while at Berlin it was 3.92 marks (34.34 cents to the mark), in comparison with Saturday's figure of 2.80 marks (33.56 cents to the mark).

Bar silver futures at New York quickly rose about 2-3 of a cent an ounce.

The New York "Bond Market was somewhat irregular, with foreign bonds strong, while the United States government issues reduced moderately.

Gold Price

The price of gold in London, converted into dollars, was $35.17, Bendix $29.73 an ounce.

While some foreign centres were inclined to regard the gold control plan as a step in the direction of sound money, Wall Street observers interpreted the President's statement as clearly meaning that stabilization could not come until price levels had been restored.

The United States treasury fixed the price of domestic gold at $29.59 an ounce, up 58 cents from Saturday.

Gold Prices Rise

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Canadian gold stocks responded today to President Franklin Roosevelt's Washington announcement that a United States government market for gold would be established by purchasing widely at the opening of the Standard Mining Exchange. Gains in higher priced issues ranged as high as $4.00 a share.

The President's announcement last night was interpreted as meaning that the United States would maintain the price of the dollar in international exchange only through operations.

At the opening of the Standard market, all mining shares advanced, with the golds leading the way. McIntyre moved $4.75 to $92.25, and Dome $4.00 to $35.50. Lake Shore gained $2 at $47, Hollinger 35 cents at $10, Teck Hughes 30 cents at $5.50 and Wright Hargreaves 40 cents to $7.60.

Base metal and silver stocks followed the lead, Noranda jumping $2. to $32.50, and International Nickel $1.25 to $18.25. Rhondda silver soared a 30-cent gain at $3.15.

New York Rises

New York, Oct. 23 (AP) —Stocks rallied strongly in response to President Roosevelt's new policy for raising prices through control of the dollar's gold value. Leading shares jumped $1.00 to more than $3.00 or more, while Bendix, Inc., leading gold producer, soared $25. to $325 and U. S. Smelting rose $15 to $90.

At Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Oct. 23 (CP)— Wheat prices surged buoyantly upward on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, as speculators, responding to the Washington announcement of the establishment of a free United States government market for gold, poured buying orders into the pit. Southern interests were heavy purchasers and shortly after the opening futures prices were 2¾ to 3¾ cents higher.

ATTEMPT TO BURN HANGARS AT SALZBURG

Customs Guard Makes Timely Discovery of Blaze Before Dawn

SET-BY NAZI?

Venice Press Attacks Leader of Fascist Home Guard

Vienna, Oct. 23 (AP)—An attempt was made early today to burn down the hangars at Salzburg airport where preparations for opening the border are kept. Police said the fire undoubtedly was of incendiary origin and probably was started by Nazis.

Timely discovery of the blaze by a customs guard enabled the airmen to extinguish it before any serious damage was done.

Authorities pointed out that the fire occurred a day approximately the same hour paper swastikas (the Nazi emblem) were being scattered in all sections of Vienna.

Meanwhile, Vienna newspapers almost without exception figuratively were setting fire under Prince Von Starhemberg, leader of the Fascist Heimwehr (home guard).

Virtually by a pre-arranged signal—and certainly without interference either by Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' Government—newspapers appeared violently attacking the Prince as a "traitor," "tool of subordinate, a spendthrift, a fire brand and a generally dangerous man whom Dollfuss probably will be forced to squelch or remove in his own and the country's interests.

At the same time Prince Starhemberg's adherents were branded "an attempt through newspapers printed in the German language to construct, in advance the German war guilt for a possible future emergency so that in case of certain developments the real war guilt lies can be dragged in again."

'PHONE WIRES CUT IN MALICE

Report by Bell Company On Cutting of Wires to Meeting

Montreal, Oct. 23 (CP —Telephone wires carrying addresses of liberal speakers in the Dominion by-election campaign in the Quebec constituency of Yamaska for broadcast by a Montreal radio station were deliberately cut, according to a report by the Bell Telephone Company to the radio publicity bureau of Hon. Rene Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine, were addressing electors in the Yamaska area late last night when the broadcast was interrupted.

An investigation by the telephone company resulted in a statement the telephone wires were cut by persons unknown persons "with malicious intent," the report of the company said. Police have been asked to investigate. The wires were repaired today.

DISCOVER ATTEMPT TO ENTER VAULT

Robbers Quit Job When Half Completed

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—An attempt to gain access to the steel-sheathed vault of the Queen and Grant Street Branch of the Canada Bank of Commerce here was discovered today by the night watchman during the night. Police judged by the extent of the operations that the robbers had been working most of yesterday with acetylene torches.

Emerging from an empty apartment over the bank, the safe crackers first removed boards from the flooring and with the torches cut several large holes in the steel top of the vault. Piles of shavings and other debris were cast aside and it was evident the work was carried on feverishly.

Police said they probably would have taken the robbers at least 12 hours more to make an aperture large enough for a man to drop through into the vault. It was thought the noise of the torches had made them hear discovery and quit the job when it was half finished.

U. S. FARMERS THREATEN STRIKE O VER HIGH PRICES

Issuing a warning of unrest among the farmers three prominent Nebraska political leaders have joined in an attack against the new National Recovery Act in the United States. Following the action of U.S. Senator George W. Norris, right, in advising the administration in Washington that the farmer is losing confidence as prices go up and his income goes lower, Governor Charles Bryan, left, charged that the NRA made conditions worse instead of better for the farmers, who threaten to call a general strike involving millions. At the same time Keith Neville, centre, former governor, resigned his post as administrator of the NRA in Nebraska.

40 MOTHERS ARE ANXIOUS

Fear Lest Dead "Sonny" May Be Their Son

New York, Oct. 23 (AP) — More than a dozen mothers have made anxious inquiries about the man who called himself "sonny".

The man died from injuries resulting when he jumped under a subway train October 17. Though conscious, he refused to disclose his identity, merely repeated hoarsely with: "My mother called me sonny". Several persons have either visited or written the police station establishment of Joseph Macklin in Rockville Centre, Long Island, seeking more information.

Those persons requesting a full description also have been received by the Associated Press.

The man was between 27 and 29 years old, five feet nine inches tall, weighed 140 pounds and had dark, curly, almost kinky hair, dark brown eyes and a long thin face.

He was emaciated. There were no scars on his body. He wore about his neck a gold crucifix on a gold chain. The crucifix was encased in leather.

CLASSES TO CONTINUE

St. Joseph, N.B., Oct. 21 (CP)— While St. Joseph's University by its rules today as the result of a $1,000,000 fire over the week-end, plans were under way to continue at least some of the classes.

Once Lord Mayor of Bombay, Patel Renounced Caste and Dies Poor Man

Geneva, Oct. 23 (AP)—Vitalbhai Javerbai Patel, 60, close friend of M. K. Gandhi, gasped out a prayer for India's freedom in a hospital at Grand last night. Then he died of heart disease.

He had been ill for many months, seriously since April when he was forced under physicians' care at London. Later he was taken to Vienna, finally to Gland.

After requesting that he be buried in India, the former President of the Indian Legislative Assembly added:

"Before I die, I pray for the early independence of my country."

Born into a wealthy family, Patel renounced caste, denounced homespun linen and became a disciple of Gandhi's. Once he was Lord Mayor of Bombay.

His Widow Marked For Underworld Death?

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—Was Ossi Winkler's widow marked for an underworld death? This question was brought up today by Colonel Henry Barrett Chamberlain, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, as a result of the finding of a 37-year-old widow, strangled, unconscious in her apartment, last night with burners of a gas stove turned on. "It is not too fantastic to believe that her suicide attempt was the result of gangland intimidations," Col. Chamberlain said.

SLUMP CAUSE MAINLY MORAL

Letter Read in Anglican Churches Deals With World Distress

Halifax, Oct. 23 (CP) — Urging the application of the golden rule as a means of combatting the causes of the present distress is characterized as "predominantly moral," a pastoral letter under the signature of Archbishop Clare L. Worrell, Halifax, Primate of the Church of England in Canada, today was read from the pulpits of Anglican Communion.

The letter, which was drafted at a meeting of the Bishops of the Church recently, was read in all churches in the Province of Eastern Canada Sunday. The letter outlined the extent of the present unemployment and noted with "pride and thankfulness the brave and noble spirit manifested by the vast majority of unemployed."

"The causes of the present distress was manifold—economic, financial and political—but they are predominantly moral. Greed and selfishness are the root causes of corruption in personal life, an industry and commerce and in public life," the letter declared.

"If we would serve and save our country we must grapple with these moral conditions," the letter continued.

The letter was read by Rev. G. W. Wright in Christ Church, and Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, in St. Michael's Church, Belleville, on Sunday.

RELIABILITY STRAW VOTE

Reporter Says Henry Said Beer Won't Make Man Drunk

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 23 (CP)— Straw votes on the beer and wine question in Ontario will not prejudice attempts by the Ontario Government," a despatch in the Border Cities Star from a Toronto reporter quoted Premier George S. Henry as saying.

"There is no machinery in Province for a straw vote of the reliability of the straw votes . . . produced in United States by the Literary Digest," Mr. Henry said, according to the newspaper.

"It is obvious the people must have a chance to vote before the election," he said. Asked if "before election" meant before the next session of the legislature he said it might.

The star quoted Mr. Henry as saying: "Beer won't make a man drunk. It may make him dopey but it won't make him drunk. If he drinks too much it is as if he were drugged."

Discussing the probable policy of the government, the premier is quoted as saying "our beer and wine policy will be for our own people. If I don't think many tourists come here to get our beer anyway," he said.

WORKERS TURN DOWN 10 P. C. WAGE RAISE

Hold Out For 3 Cent Rate For Plucking Birds

NONE TO WORK

Workers Unity League Urges Strikers to "Stick it Out"

Stratford Ont., Oct. 23 (CP)— Turning down a 10 per cent. increase in pay and recognition of a plant assembly, workers at the Swift Canadian plant here, on strike a month, declined to go back to work today. They are holding out for a three-cent rate for plucking chickens, as opposed to the two-cent rate in effect when the strike was called.

The company announced Saturday the plant would be re-opened today, and offered the 10 per cent. increase along with a plant assembly to include representatives chosen by the employees.

Before the opening hour Provincial and city police took up stations and groups of striking employees loitered opposite the plant.

When other factories sounded their seven o'clock whistles no sound came from the Swift plant.

"We go only by the whistle on this job," one striker called to a policeman. He walked across to the building and shortly thereafter the whistle, faint because of low steam pressure was heard.

C. B. Hanley, manager of the plant, appeared and asked the employes to return to work, and have offered you a 10 per cent. increase and a plant assembly," he said. "The assembly will be recognized by a committee of the men's choosing to talk over and discuss wages, grievances and working conditions. All we want you to do is come in and get started, and you can have some more conversation right away."

"There is no work for us to do in there," one striker objected.

The manager explained he would like to get the employes back on the job. He felt it would not take long to get the plant operating again.

However, no one followed him when he walked back into the factory. One of the employees said: "We want three cents a head or 10 per cent. increase would mean only 1½ cents."

With the exception of two or three, those who left the plant soon after the parley between manager and strikers. Shortly afterward a meeting of Packing Plant Industrial Workers' Unity League, continued urging the strikers to stay out for three cents per head for the three-cent chicken-plucking rate.

EVAPORATING PLANT IN FULL SWING

Number of Men Will Have Employment for Two Months

Machinery was humming again in the evaporating plant of the A. H. Graham Company, Ltd., Picton Fruit Canning Factory, Monday morning as workers returned to the annual job of preparing huge supplies of vegetables for the drying and evaporating process for shipment. Altho' export orders for the dried vegetables which are being packed will account for a large amount of the shipments, the bulk of the vegetables will be supplied to the various factories in the country. Mr. Hudson of Bay Company, it is understood, will accept a considerable order from the local company. The vegetables are light and convenient and eminently desirable for trappers and mine workers in the north and west. It is believed that the present force of workers will be employed for at least two months.

GROCERY STORE AT FRANKFORD ENTERED

Gaining entrance by breaking the window of the front door and subsequently unlocking the door, burglars stole goods to the value of over $40.00 from T. N. Spencer's grocery store at Frankford some time during Sunday morning. The robbery was discovered later Sunday morning by Mr. Spencer, when he arrived at the business.

Constable Lockwood later informed the Provincial Police who upon investigation found, that cigarettes, chocolates, lighters and other small articles had been stolen by the burglars. The burglars broke the glass in the front door window, reached through the opening and unlocked the door from the inside. Mr. Spencer lives in the adjoining building heard nothing to warrant suspicion during the night, he stated.

Sergeant Thompson and Constable Campbell of the local district Provincial office conducted the investigation.

Trenton, Oct. 22 (Special)—Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Sarah Jane Spencer, widow of Rufus E. Spencer, passed away Saturday last at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Pearson in the 6th concession of Sidney. The deceased was born in Sidney 84 years ago, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sine and had resided in Sidney and Trenton throughout all her life; for the past 25 years she had lived on the farm where she her death occurred. She was a member of Scott's United Church and well and favorably known in Scott South Hastings. The daughter with whom she has been in the only immediate relative surviving.

With many in attendance, the funeral was held this (Monday) afternoon from the late residence to the Scott United Church. There at 1.30 o'clock the Rev. R. E. Johnston of the Sidney United Church conducted the funeral service. Mr. Johnston also officiating at the place of interment in the Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Morley Cecil, Gerald, Alton and Ray Sine and Ross Dafoe.

POLICE COURT

Activities proved rather serene in and about the local police station over the week end. One small motor vehicle infraction was reported, citizens paid fines for breaches of the Liq. L.C.A. A bench warrant was issued for a Frankford resident who had previously been summoned on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses.

DE LADIER'S LAST STAND

Thousands of Police on Guard Outside Chamber y

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier today began his last stand in a packed chamber of deputies with thousands of police behind barricades on guard outside the parliament buildings.

The Premier has shown no disposition to surrender in his fight to balance the budget and protect the franc. His friends predicted the overthrow of the government by numbers unless Socialists unexpectedly weaken their opposition.

Barricades of troops were set up outside the building and mounted squads backed by thousands of police went on guard to protect the Chamber from threatened demonstrations against various taxes.

Sixty Years of Congregational Life is Marked at Holloway St.

West Side Church Observes Anniversary With Special Services

Holloway Street United Church marked the diamond jubilee of its organization by a series of services with special services attended by large congregations on Sunday. Rev. Dr. J. H. Armup of the Foreign Mission Board of the United Church of Canada was the special preacher of the day. Despite unfavorable weather conditions by reason of rain during the morning, the congregation was large. The evening congregation filled the church to overflowing, Bridge Street and John Street congregations joining to mark the anniversary. It was particularly fitting that Bridge Street should take this part as it was from Bridge Street that the impulse came to organize a congregation in West Belleville over two generations ago.

Rev. Harold B. Neal, whose pastorate has been a short one, but one during the past three years, arranged an observance during which about the beginning of the congregation from its foundation. His immediate predecessor, the present congregation owes to the heroic men and women, many of whom are now gone, who took part in the early life of Holloway Street, or who have for the future life of service in Belleville. The anniversary observation also brought clearly before the worshippers the supreme duty of seeking to imbue the individual church to the great endeavor of the Christian church which is worldwide—to spread the Gospel and the knowledge of the Christian religion to the Gentiles.

Festal Music.

The music was of a special character. The choir under the direction of Mr. Clifford Templar, A.T.C.M., organist and leader sang special anthems and impressive music was rendered during the lecture by the organist. In the morning Mr. Grant Templar sang "The Holy City" solo and in the evening Messrs J. Bankier and Harold Howard rendered "Book of Life" duet during manuel. The anthem "Angels of Jesus" was sung by the choir being taken by Mr. Frank Rayfield and the soloists by Mrs. Lorne Allen and Leona Riggs' soprano solo "And God shall wipe away all tears" was of surpassing beauty in its performance.

In the afternoon, an open Sunday School service marked the occasion. Mr. James N. Bridges, the superintendent, was in charge. Miss Gwendolyn Neal gave six appropriate readings. Mrs. Harold Neal and Mr. Denton sang a solo. Dr. Armup addressed the school. The minister, the Rev. H. B. Neal, also spoke. The orchestra in full numbers attended.

Real Christian Church.

Dr. Armup spoke of the United Church in the Orient, fit to rank with the United Church in other parts of the world, was painted by Rev. Dr. Armup who spoke from personal experience, having spent 17 of the early Orient about four years ago. "If you ask me what kind of Christians and other Oriental Christians I will tell you," he said to the evening congregation "they are just like you. I have sat in the pulpit right from Canada and found members of the boards of these churches and I feel like two men at home. They run true to type. They are the Christian Church in China, Japan, India, Korea.

As a preliminary to his statement of the vitality of the Christian Church, Dr. Armup, being in the east in the midst of a civilization which might even claim advancing to the casual observer, Dr. Armup described this old civilization as "dry rot" and the surge of the spirit of Christ.

Armup stated, "to show the blessings of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The aggrieve which works in the fellowship of the church. The church succeeds the missionary.

Sounding Church

"Your missionary has got go out to bring about a political development, they do not go out to start an economic development, they do not go out for educational enterprises, primarily, though they do found schools—they go out to found the church of the living God out of the materials they find on the mission field."

At first sight the task seems impossible, to have a church, organized in a heathen land, the foundations of society must be changed, their manner of thinking must be eventually transformed. But the background of life must be taken as it is. "The great mass of the people to whom we are ministering are commissioned live in poverty—no one knows the like of it anywhere. The old beggar, the young beggar, the sick beggar, the dying or sick beggar, the diseased beggar all asking alms—no other means of subsistence. And twenty millions of them, twice as many as the population of Canada. Even diseased beggars greet you. I saw one lying in the street over which crowds were passing and paying no attention and another I saw where he had fallen dead in a wheat field.

The Near Beggars

"Above the beggars there is a class of people, the near people. Let the all-time unfavorable crop conditions exist there is no increase of bandits, or let there be epidemics and

PRESIDENT PLANS MARKET FOR GOLD

Former Canadian Admits Crime After Arrest in Chicago

Roosevelt Says Managed Currency; Sets up Market for Gold in Radio Talk

If Not Done One Way it Will be Another Says President

CAME AS SURPRISE

Commodity Prices Rre Not High Enough Yet

Washington, Oct. 23—(UP)—A managed currency was pledged by President Roosevelt to the nation Sunday night. He also revealed plans to establish a government market for gold for dollar stabilization.

Mr. Roosevelt's second, but third major address to the nation since March 4, reviewed all aspects of his recovery program. He is for maintenance of agricultural unrest, pointing out that every effort would be made to further the rise of commodity prices.

"If we cannot do this one way we will do it another," he said. "The end, it we will," he added significantly.

The gold move outlined by Mr. Roosevelt was interpreted by many as meaning that the government would establish the dollar at the level of its international exchange through gold operations, such as the Bank of England, through its stabilization fund, pegging it to reputable quotations of the pound sterling.

Four-point Plan

The President outlined an orderly procedure in the rehabilitation of his gigantic economic and financial program. He summed it up as follows:

1. Restoration of the price level, first of all.

2. Establishment and maintenance of a dollar of unchanging purchasing power—in short, a managed currency.

3. Control of the gold value of the domestic dollar.

4. Establishment of a government market for gold or stabilization and maintain continual control.

Mr. Roosevelt's utterances on the monetary question came as a distinct surprise to official Washington which had felt that he would confine the address to an accounting of his stewardship since March 4 with reference, of course, to the farm situation now complicated by strikes in the Middle West.

"No, one", the President said, "can possibly doubt the basic facts of our situation believes that commodity prices are unsatisfactory agricultural prices, are high enough yet.

Restore Price Level First

"Some people are putting the cart before the horse. They want a permanent revaluation of the dollar, first. It is the government's policy to restore the price level first. I would not know, and no one else could know, what that permanent valuation of the dollar will be—To frame a permanent dollar revaluation now would certainly require later changes and create new factors.

"When we have restored the price level, we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt-paying power during the succeeding generation," said Mr. Roosevelt in my message to the American delegation which sailed July 4. Now I say it once more.

"Because conditions in this country and because of events beyond our control in other parts of the world it becomes increasingly important to develop and apply the further measures which may be necessary from time to time to control the gold value of our own dollar at home.

Dollar Too Greatly Influenced

"Our dollar is now altogether too greatly influenced by fluctuations of international trade by the internal policies of other nations and by the political disturbances in other countries. Therefore the United States must take firmly in its hands the control of the gold value of our dollar. That is necessary in order to prevent dollar disturbances from swinging far away from our ultimate prices.

"As a further definite means to this end, I am going to establish a government market for gold in the United States. Therefore, under the clearly defined authority of existing law I am authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy gold newly mined in the United States at prices to be determined from time to time after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the President. Whenever necessary to the end in view we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market.

"My aim in taking this step," Mr. Roosevelt added, "is to establish and maintain continuous control."

Policy, Not An Expedient

"This," he said, "is a policy and not an expedient."

The President explained the course of action further by declaring government credit would be maintained and "a sound currency" will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level.

His reference to sound currency and the determination he have available in the form of a rapidly changing world conditions were looked upon by observers as sounding the death knell to plans of radical inflation that have been urged on the administration from time to time.

In his entire speech there ran a strong under-current of optimism.

The President cited that "in the short run" he is "perfectly confident that at least 4,000,000 have been given employment"—saying it another "way, 40 per cent, of the unemployed" have been put to work.

He based the percentage on the estimate that of 12,000,000 or 13,000,000 were persons desiring jobs. He pledged after time in danger of losing their homes, pointed to the splendid work of the home works administration and the agricultural adjustment administration and stressed the administration objective of extending credit to industry, commerce and finance.

Stakes At Gamblers.

Striking at gamblers in farm commodities, where he blamed for the recent slump in agricultural quotations, the President continued:

"Let me make it clear. Where speculative reaction from the speculative buying of the past few days will established that during the course of the year 1933 the general level of the United States will receive 25 per cent. more for its farm products than they received than they received in the year 1932.

"Put it another way, they will receive $300 for the year before. That, estimated by the average of the country, for I have reports that some sections are not any better off than they were a year ago. This applies among the major products, especially to cattle raising and the dairy industry. We are going after those problems as fast as we can.

Not Yet Satisfied.

"I do not hesitate to say in the simplest, clearest language of which I am capable, that although many farm families are better off than they were last year, I am not satisfied either with the amount or the extent of the rise and that it is definitely a part of our policy to increase the value and extent of those products which have as yet felt no benefit. If we cannot do this one way we will do it another. Do it, we will."

When agriculture Mr. Roosevelt turned to a discussion of the N.R.A. and what it is accomplishing in the way of hastening economic recovery.

"Its object," he said, "is to put industry and business workers into employment and to increase their purchasing power through shorter hours and wages.

"It has abolished child labor," he remarked. "It has eliminated the sweat shop. It has ended the once a week paid in some mills and so long as I am President it will be sure of growth of this pillar lies in the total figures of re-employment continuing and not dropping.

"The secret of N.R.A. is co-operation. That co-operation has been voluntarily given through the signing of the blanket codes and through the signing of specific codes which already include all of the greater industries of the nation."

The President referred to criticisms and complaints which have come to Washington regarding the failure of the N.R.A. to avoid carrying forward various phases of the broad program of recovery.

Attacks N.R.A. Violaters.

"Ninety per cent. of these complaints come from mis-conception," he said.

Then he went on to explain that the N.R.A. has nothing whatsoever to do with the price of farm products, nor with public works; also that it does not apply to the rural communities or towns under 2,500 population, except insofar as those towns contain factories or chain stores which come under a specific code.

Mr. Roosevelt, in thanking the nation for co-operation shown in the N.R.A. activities, took occasion to attack violators of the N.R.A. agreements.

"It is true," he said, "that among the chiselers to whom I have referred, there are not only the big chiselers but also the petty chiselers who seek to make undue profit on minute statements."

He cited the example of a salesman who was fired by paying the increase in the price of a cotton shirt from $1.50 to $2.50 or telling the customer it was due to the cotton processing tax.

"Actually in that shirt," Mr. Roosevelt said, "there was about one point of the increase in the processing tax amounted to four and a quarter cents on that particular shirt."

The President also mentioned that the Federal Government was prepared to spend a billion dollars to unfreeze bank credits, and that the administration was engaged in building up the banking structure in addition to making it safe. The assurance which goes into effect Jan. 1.

"Our troubles will not be over together," he said in concluding, "but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."

ARMAMENT RACE FEARED

Parley Will Likely Adjourn Till January When They Meet Thurs.

Geneva, Oct. 23—As long armament of the preliminary Disarmament conference probably until January, at the earliest, was predicted as delegates prepared for meeting this week and reconvening of the arms session.

Delegates felt further adjournment of the arms conference would stand another setback, as they heard a world armaments race if the parley should adjourn the day.

They also continued to nurse the hope that eventually Germany will return to the fold at the meeting of the League of Nations. Her withdrawal precipitated the conference crisis.

However, negotiations designed to bring Germany back into the conference appeared to be at a standstill after German elections on November 12, it was agreed.

Meanwhile the United States delegation indicated they favored a short adjournment pending the results of the German elections. Norman H. Davis, chief delegate, privately will return to Washington if the conference quits until January, but authorities here said that would not deny the possibility that he be sent back.

In any case, observers consider the arms parley will be thoroughly embalmed when the delegates get together again Thursday—but they do not expect any action till the powers are agreed on a joint statement on the arms of Germany country, for I have reports that some sections are not any better off than they were a year ago. This applies among the major products, especially to cattle raising and the dairy industry. We are going after those problems as fast as we can.

UNEXPECTEDLY UNORTHODOX IS COMMENT

President's Statement Stiff Rebuff to Conservative Group

SHOCK TO BANKERS

Favors Dollar, The Value of Which is Changed From Time to Time

New York, Oct. 23 (CP)—The new United States monetary plan President Roosevelt had set up today to be controlled through governmental sale or purchase of gold was pictured in the first flush of comment as unexpectedly unorthodox.

"Another stiff rebuff to the conservative group," was the comment said Ernest Lindley, Washington commentator for the New York Herald Tribune. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Governor Harrison of the Federal Reserve Board had armed himself with the means of achieving dollar devaluation such as might have been effected under the Thomas inflation legislation.

The Times said leading financial authorities viewed the plan as empowering the government completely at variance with tested monetary practices.

The view of "most Wall Street bankers" was reported by the Journal of Commerce as being that "the decision to use open market operations for achieving a new balance between farm prices and farm debts puts off indefinitely the hope of returning to a dollar with a fixed gold value." The Journal added:

"The statement of Roosevelt came as a shock to bankers generally. There were many evidences that the President was leaning toward gold stabilization."

As interpreted for the Times by economists, the plan involves several distinct elements of control. First, the President apparently has in mind an attempt to direct the course of the general price level through changes in the value of the dollar in terms of gold. This might be accomplished through the purchase of newly minted gold by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at prices to be determined from time to time by the government.

Secondly, the plan involves control of the dollar in foreign exchange through the purchase and sale of gold abroad.

Third, it envisages the gradual adoption of a managed currency.

Bankers Are Surprised

Bankers also saw in the President's statement a decision to establish not a "commodity dollar", that is, a dollar the value of which is changed from time to time in an effort to maintain a constant purchasing power in terms of the general price level.

The Times reported extreme skepticism among bankers as to the practicability of controlling the general price level through changes in the value of the currency. Pointing to the fact that neither in the Thomas amendment nor in the U. S. had the fall in the gold value of the currency resulted in commensurate rise in the general price level, bankers said there was no reason to believe that the process could be reversed by the method Roosevelt proposed.

"To the extent that the plan involves control of the dollar in foreign exchange, it was more favorably regarded by the bankers, most of whom considered this the ultimate stabilization.

"In discussing the possible effects of the new policy upon prices in the near future, bankers said that much would depend upon the price immediately fixed by the R.F.C. for its purchases of gold."

CASH NEEDED IS EVIDENCE

Finish Friends in Toronto Testify Against Laurila

Cobourg, Oct. 23—Crown witnesses who testified that Yrgo Laurila was desperate to make money, and had told a friend he robbed a Bowmanville farmer of a gold watch, testified on Saturday in the Finnish translator's trial on a charge of murdering Fred McLaren, a Cavan Township farmer, last February.

Seeking to prove that Laurila battered McLaren's skull and robbed him of $50 and a watch, the Crown has Saturday called friends of Laurila when he lived in Toronto last Winter.

"If I die or kill somebody, I must make money on this trip" Laurila told Onnis Haana, with whom he lived in Toronto, Haana testified. Laurila was leaving Toronto at the end of January when he made the statement, Haana said. McLaren was slain early in February.

A week later, Haana said, Laurila returned to Toronto and changed the blue suit he had been wearing for a brown suit [illegible] Haana, discarding the blue one.

Suanli Impoonen, a friend of Laurila's, said that in February Laurila showed him a gold watch which he said he intended pawning.

George Mollan, another intimate, testified Laurila told him he had killed the sleeper by striking a farmer on the head and taking it from him.

For the first time since his trial started Laurila followed the evidence closely Saturday. He wept while his Finnish acquaintances gave their evidence.

CONFESSES TO WIFE SLAYING AFTER ARREST

Edward J. McCann Taken in Chicago After Being Identified

SCIENCE HELPS

Admits He Killed Wife Because She Drank Too Much

Chicago, Oct. 23 (CP)— Science and a woman—motherhood, police said today, to bring a denouement to Edward J. McCann's "perfect crime"—the slaying of and dismemberment of his wife, the former Laurie Desjardins of Ottawa, in Detroit Mich.

McCann, described by authorities as a former operator of a Detroit liquor flat and by his friends there as a "good fellow" and an amateur geologist, was arrested yesterday and confessed, Police Sergeant James Fitzgerald said.

Science entered the investigation by establishing the identity of Mrs. McCann through finger prints, described the fact her body was cut to pieces.

The woman who helped the police was Mrs. Loretta Hickman McCann's sister-in-law. She recognized McCann at the police front of a relief station, last Friday. She had last seen him before they arrived. Yesterday Mrs. Hickman saw him again, and he confessed.

"Well," McCann was quoted as saying, "I didn't think they'd ever catch me. I didn't count on those finger prints because I didn't know about them.

The finger prints were taken in 1923 when Mrs. McCann encountered difficulty with the immigration bureau in entering the United States from Canada.

McCann said that he slew his French-Canadian wife early on the morning of last September 1, after quarreling with her over her foolishness for liquor. When he struck her she attempted to fight back, he said, so he choked her and smothered her with a pillow. Several hours later, Hickman and his wife arrived at the McCann home for a visit.

"Laurie" McCann was quoted as saying, "was dead when I got there. She just went to Chicago to the World's Fair."

The Hickmans returned to Chicago, and McCann then went ahead with his plan to prevent identification of the body, he said, but cutting off the fingertips.

Parts of the body were found in various sections of Detroit.

FACES GRAVE CHARGE

Kingston, Oct. 23—Benjamin St. Pierre, a middle-aged man living near Mississippi, was committed for trial on a serious charge involving a girl under 14 years of age, by Magistrate D. J. Rankin at the preliminary hearing in Sharbot Lake. It is alleged that the girl recently had a child by St. Pierre. The accused was committed to jail and no application has been made for bail. T. J. Rigney conducted the case for the Crown.

MONTREAL DAIRY MARKET PRICES

Receipts of eggs on the Montreal market last week dropped to the lowest volume of the autumn season, reflecting the sharp drop in production, throughout the country. Butter and cheese receipts also were materially under last week's totals. Arrivals, with comparisons, were posted at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs Cases	Butter Cheese Cases	Boxes
Last week	6,372	13,273	22,310
Week ago	4,145	8,727	22,682

As a result of the lighter offerings, fresh egg prices advanced 1c per dozen during the week. Graded extras sold on Saturday in L.C.L. lots became 33-34c for extras, 31-32c for firsts, and 27c for seconds.

The butter-market was 1-4c to 1c lower last week, ending Saturday mostly at 28½c per lb. for carlots or L.C.L. lots of No. 1.

The cheese market ended the week 1c to 1½c under the previous Saturday, being 15½c to 16c for Ontario, and 8¼c to 8¾c for Quebecs. Exports of cheese last week from Montreal totalled 18,421 boxes; butter exports were 5,722 packages, and exports of eggs were 3,826 cases.

Production of creamery butter in Canada, in September, as estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 23,648,000 lbs., compared with 22,887,103 lbs., in September, 1932, an increase of 3½ per cent. Production for the nine months ending September totalled 171,416,000 lbs., against 170,900,788 lbs., a year ago, a gain of 515,212 lbs.

MARMORA MINE IS PURCHASED

Peterboro Interests Assume Control of Abandoned Mine

After tying dormant and neglected for the past 63 years, what is believed to be valuable gold-bearing property in Marmora township has been acquired by Peterboro interests.

The property located five miles east of Marmora, just north of Highway No. 7, and known as the Blairfield property, was worked for a brief period in 1870, when gold was discovered, to the tune of $20 per cent. Mining Company recovered $12 per ton, and a small amount of gold is stated, which provided at that time certain encouragement, probably to a greater extent than the assays secured from the samples.

Queried regarding the property, Mr. J. Waller Evans of this city, well known mining engineer stated that he knew nothing of the deal beyond the fact that the Moira Gold Syndicate Company of Peterboro were the new owners.

MAN CRUSHED

Well Known Sportsman of North Loses Life by Drowning

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Two men and two women were killed in accidents in Ontario over the week-end and a fifth death resulted from a drowning. The two men were killed in Toronto, one from a fall, the other suffering fatal injuries in a lifting elevator. The two women died in a level crossing smash-up at Brampton, just outside Toronto, and the drowning occurred in Reed Lake, near Bracebridge.

Killed by Train

Mrs. H. J. Cable and her daughter, Elsie, of Toronto, were killed almost instantly late last night when a Canadian National Railway passenger train struck their automobile at a level crossing at Brampton. Three other occupants in the vehicle, Ernest Montgomery, the driver, Kenneth Cable and Miss Merle Hodgson, escaped with minor injuries.

The car was buried 150 yards, where it rolled down a 10-foot embankment, a mass of tangled wreckage.

William Pratt, 57, Toronto, died of a fractured neck believed to have been caused by a fall down a flight of stairs last night whilst visiting at the home of friends. Coroner is investigating.

Accidental death in Toronto occurred at the docks of a coal company where Louis Lalonde, 44 year old Montreal resident, died in a lifting elevator while helping to unload a boat.

One life was lost and another endangered when the canoe in which Jake Ede and Joe Chiroski were duck hunting capsized in Reed Lake, 4½ miles from Bracebridge in the Iroquois Falls district, leaned forward to fire his gun and the craft upset. Chiroski was barely able to make the shore, while Ede died in the attempt.

"Peace and Goodwill" Ringing Crys of German Naziism Now

By W. E. Rockman

Berlin, Oct. 23 (AP)—"Peace and goodwill" has become overnight the ringing cry of German Nazism.

The slogan was sounded by Chancellor Hitler himself in a patriotic blast at Kelheim which marked his personal plunge into the national election campaign.

Addressing a great storm trooper rally, he declared Germany's new foreign policy is aimed at genuine peace.

Meanwhile, the cry was taken up all over Germany by Nazi orators who hurled foreign affairs into the foreground in resounding echoes of the same sentiment.

Commissioner of Justice Hans Frank, speaking before Bavarian law officials at Neustadt, assailed suspicions he said existed abroad that Germany desires war.

"Everyone must vote," he shouted, "to show the world that Hitler has the backing of the entire nation."

"He who doesn't vote November 12," asserted Bernhard Rust, Commissioner for Science, Education, and Honover, "is guilty not only of high treason but of the meanest kind of treachery to the people and the nation."

He did not mean whether this was to be taken literally.

The old Nazi battle cry against Jews was revived in another bumgathering at Weimar. There, speaking to a throng comprised largely of peasants, Foods Administrator Waller Darre declared:

"The German peasants know Hitler is the only guarantee that the German peasantry will be freed from the yoke of Jewish trade and horse profiteers."

DIAMOND JUBILEE AT HOLLOWAY ST.

Holloway Street United congregation has passed its sixtieth milestone. Like men, churches grow in years and in service. Holloway Street Church looks as if it will grow to a great age in the service of the people to whom it ministers and will minister in the years to come.

This week's festal occasion, the celebration of the anniversary of two generations of worship, is one that will be long remembered. Never did the activity of the church shine more brightly than at the present time and it is evident that this church has not yet reached the zenith of its importance in the religious life of the city. Life and activity pulsate in the veins of this congregation, its membership is large and its many avenues of service are used to the fullest extent.

Rev. Dr. Arnup's brilliant addresses on Sunday and the fact that Bridge Street and John Street congregations dwelled with Sunday evening congregation at Holloway Street were outstanding features of the anniversary.

Under the pastorate of the Rev. Harold B. Neal, Holloway Street congregation has been making rapid strides, despite conditions which are a reflection of the world-wide depression.

The fondest hopes of the congregation for a bright future in the spiritual welfare of the people of the city will be realized.

ILLEGAL HUNTING PRACTICES

Regulations controlling hunting set up by the Department of Game and Fisheries are calculated to serve the hunter and hunting. Hunters are accordingly well advised to observe the laws and especially as they regard those practices which are not permitted. It is forbidden:

1. To carry a loaded gun in a motor car or other vehicle.

2. To employ an unlicensed guide.

3. To use dogs for the hunting of fox without a permit.

5. To use the hands or any contrivance whatever other than a firearm when ferrets are used in the taking of rabbits.

6. To take more than one deer or moose per license, or a cow moose or moose calf.

7. To buy or sell pelts of fur-bearing animals, either commercially or for personal use, before securing a license.

8. To hunt between sunset and sunrise (standard time) or between sunset on Saturday and sunrise on the following Monday (standard time).

9. To permit the flesh of any animal, bird or fish taken, suitable for food, to be destroyed or spoilt, or the pelts of fur-bearing animals destroyed or spoilt.

10. To use a farmer's deer license unless you are a farmer actually living upon and tilling your own land or using it for the possession of which you are entitled.

11. To carry or use firearms for hunting any bird or animal, except under the authority of a license.

12. To buy or sell deer, moose, caribou, elk, wild geese, wild ducks or other waterfowl, pinnated grouse, pheasants, ruffed grouse (partridge), prairie chicken, pinnated grouse and Hungarian partridge.

13. To conceal or attempt to conceal during transportation the carcass or any part of the carcass of deer, moose or caribou.

14. To use dogs for the hunting of deer, moose, caribou, mink, beaver and otter or to permit dogs to run deer, moose and caribou at any time of the year in Ontario.

SANER BANQUET

The Brockville Recorder and Times is advocating safer and saner banquets and the Peterborough Examiner has lined up with the movement in the interests of the public. "A surfeit of furnished by a whole corps of speakers, the majority of them often of mediocre calibre," is the charge laid at the door of those who arrange banquets. The Examiner voices the detestation of the average newspaperman in having thrust upon him the task of covering a program of a dozen or more speeches and suggests a cure by bringing one or two capable speakers to the exclusion of the others, most of whom have no pretentions to oratory and would gladly be left off the program.

It would seem that banquets have gone a long way from the ancient form when public speaking did not use up so much of the time. Banquets were once real social events, with the play of wit and flash of brain, but no talk-fest following on a banquet can by any imagining stretch be placed in that class, where the great majority of the audience have to listen to a series of rather uninteresting addresses.

A modification of the banquet programs has been seen in this city of late years, with the gradual elimination of many unnecessary speeches and the concentration upon a chief speaker.

The new style of banquet is something like the chairmanless entertainment which usually runs along nicely and most expeditiously.

IN AN OLD CHURCH

Peace walls me here, I never fail to find
Peace can spend a meditative hour
The quiet grateful and the shadows kind
In this great pile beneath its lofty tower.
Perhaps the weary hearts that have come
To seek relief from all their old despairs,
To win forgetfulness from strife and sin
Have left behind this incense of their prayers.
They came when they were done with loom and sod
And sheep and barter for a little time;
They sat with lifted thoughts intent on God,
Till life's dull prose resolved itself in rhyme.
The aura of that blest tranquility
Still lingering, lends its harmony to me.

HITLERITE PAMPHLETS were distributed in Toronto last week, extolling the German dictator and reviling Sir John Simon and other British statesmen. Propaganda shock troops which flourished before and during the war seem to be re-organized, and to as little purpose. Just what good the publication and distribution of Hitler effusions and those of Dr. Goebbels could possibly have is impossible to visualize.

NED TOWNSEND, veteran prospector, is dead at Sudbury, aged 87. Townsend was an out-of-door man and was hale and hearty until his last prospecting trip, when he was taken sick while in camp away back of sundown. His companions paddled him out to the steel at Wahnapitae and he was taken to Sudbury hospital, where Townsend prospected all over the Northern Ontario country with varying success, his biggest success being his last prospect which he called the Golden Rose Mine for which he was offered $600,000. He refused, holding out for a million, and the offer was withdrawn. Ned Townsend had no "past" beyond his life as a prospector. Nobody knew where he came from or who his relatives were, if any, and he never talked about himself or his life before the lure of the fabled fortune at the foot of the rainbow drew him into the solitudes of the great northland—he was an expert shooter and had many friends among the miners and prospectors of Northern Ontario.

THIS IS THE SEASON of the year for big pumpkins, big beets, mammoth cabbages, freak potatoes and all that sort of thing—when the agricultural editor's desk groans, or creaks, with giants of the vegetable kingdom—taking the place of honor from the doubly-yoked egg, etc. Once again we repeat the true saying that "variety is the spice of life"—the more variety the more spice—hence a spicy life may be said to be filled with variety.

OLD WORLD DIPLOMACY, sharpened by a thought for conflict and the conflict quest, is again busy following the German-ic eruption in the League of Nations. A NINETY-NINE YEAR OLD HIKER from Nashville, Tennessee, turned up at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago this week. Just naturally got curious and Grandpa had to come to the Fair, for fear he might miss the next World's Fair. The same day a youth of twelve years from Jacksonville, Florida, also arrived at the Chicago Fair, having thumbed his way the entire distance. Thus age and youth exemplified the spirit of adventure and courage the same day, the young lad of ninety-nine and the old laddie of twelve—may their hearts ever remain young.

PICTON HAS THE BASEBALL FEVER and small wonder, having an intermediate team which mowed the best of them down and went into the provincial finals. Picton folks just naturally shut up shop when the boys played and called it a holiday, and when the team was called to play in Guelph, nothing would do but a special train to take the Pictonite team and supporters to the game. Folks who suspected that Picton was asleep should see the old town now. Strange how a winning team of any kind bucks up a burg. Platitudes about being a good loser sound fine, but it's easier by a lot to be a good winner, feels a whole lot better, anyway.

MEN SHOULD KEEP WEIGHT NEAR NORMAL

Scores of Women Forever Troubled About Reducing

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Men are undoubtedly less interested in maintaining normal body weight than women. Indeed, scores of women, are forever worrying about reducing, and often this concern amounts to a veritable obsession.

Men, however, seldom weigh themselves. A man wants to satisfy his hunger, primarily, and the rest has little or no interest for him. Often, therefore, he eats too much or he eats too little. Frequently his whole mentality if he selects them at a restaurant himself—are not well balanced, and the result sooner or later is either overweight or underweight, with digestive disturbances to boot.

First of all, a man should weigh himself regularly and compare his weight with some standard chart giving the average and normal weights for men at different heights and ages. If underweight a more liberal amount of meat, butter and fats in general should be included in his diet, and meat should be taken in moderation only. Olive oil or cod liver oil after meals is valuable.

Here is a fattening dietary for underweight men, as suggested by Doctor Mary S. Rose. Include a number of calories in 3450. It gives a good idea of the kind of food that should be taken.

BREAKFAST:
Grape juice, 1 cup.
Farina with 4 dates 2-4 cup
Scrambled egg, 1-2 cup.
Toast, 1 slice
Butter, 1-2 tbsp.
Cream, thin, 7-8 cup
Sugar, 2 tsps. (scant).
Coffee, 1 cup.

LUNCHEON:
Creamed chicken, 1-2 cup on
Toast, 1 slice
Soda crackers, 3 crackers
Vanilla ice cream, 1-2 cup
Chocolate, 3-8 cup.

DINNER:
Cream of corn soup, 1 cup
Meat loaf, 2 1-2 slices
Baked potato, 1 medium
Buttered Lima beans, 3-4 cup
Whole wheat bread, 2 slices
Butter, 2 tbsp.
Baked custard, 1 large
Cream, thin, 1-3 cup
Sugar, 1 tbsp. (scant).

Now then, when a man is overweight by 10 pounds or more one may regard him as fat, and his problem, naturally, is one of reducing.

The amount of food taken should be reduced, but gradually. The best plan of all, however, is choosing non-fattening foods that the body-germ may be appeased without harm.

The diet which follows, also by Doctor Rose, calls 1400 calories or energy.

BREAKFAST:
Orange, 1 large
Egg, 1
Graham bread, 2 thin slices
Coffee (clear), 1 cup

LUNCHEON:
Cauliflower, 1 cup
Soda cracker, 1 cracker.
Halibut steak, broiled.
with lemon juice
Asparagus, plain, 10 stalks
Potato, boiled, 1 medium
Butter, 1-2 tbsp.
Apple, raw, 1 medium

DINNER:
Raw oysters, 12 oysters
Baked beans, plain, 1 cup
Cabbage, raw, 1 cup large serving
Spring beans, plain boiled, 1-2 cup
Potato, boiled, 1 medium
Tomatoes, sliced, with vinegar, salt and pepper, 1 medium
Pear, pineapple, raw, 1 serving
Water cracker, 2 cracker
Coffee (clear), 1 cup

Rambling About New York Town

New York, Oct. 21 (CP)—The blaring voice of the loud-speaker rises over the buzzing of the crowd gathered after dinner tier in Madison Square Garden: "The Canada Kid of California on Midnight; when the buzzer sounds the ten seconds will have elapsed." The crowd sits, then rises, stands on seats and railings as out of the white-washed corridor steps man on bronco, the Kid erect and jaunty, Midnight with his head held in pin-point, now crouched, now high in the air. In twenty leaps under the giant arc-lights he has circled the end of the arena as "oh, oh", changes all the sense of drunken yell a couple of drug-store cow-boys who have partaken of "hooch."

Low toward the tan-bark, two little canines, their taut flanks glistening, strain after Midnight. Their riders push the convulsive bronc toward the boards, "the buzzer sounds" and the Canada Kid is eased off. The video was a success, but nothing like the Calgary stampede, or Rockne, or the thousands of effete easterners.

One of the better features was the way the cow-boys took off their hats. Despite the fact they have been shown people for years, they never attain to the stage presence with which baseball stars acknowledge cheers. The rodeo people all remove their sombreros as who should say, "Aw . . . there's nothing to it."

Ontario Boy Makes Good.

Coming along Broadway and getting closer to the Great Gate I am to be observed this week, Gene Lockhart of London, Ont., who began to be an actor on his native heath. He is a personal hit in the comedy ten-strike of the season, Eugene O'Neill's "Ah Wilderness!" with George M. Cohan. Lockhart has a role of a drunken brother-in-law and Mark Barron, dramatical critic of the Associated Press, says his characterization is "superb". Lockhart is a bit like Cohan in that he writes, directs and acts. This season he postponed production on his play, "How's Your Father?" in order to go into the Theatre Guild's play, Lockhart wrote: "Ah Love, But a Day" and "Waiting for the Sunrise".

Comedy is blooming as never since the stock-market crash with twenty-three attractions. A positive shortage of theatres-looms and James McGeachy of Winnipeg reports the impossibility of obtaining tickets for such grand slams as "Ah Wilderness!" and "Mary of Scotland" and others of the success superior.

Still a Doubt.

Further down-town toward the city hall there is still a lot of trouble about who is going to be the next Mayor—P. O'Brien, the incumbent; Fiorello Laguardia, Fusionist, or Joseph V. McKee, "Compromise". McKee seemed to make great progress just after his late entry into the race but in the last few days doubts have arisen. The independent endorsement of Tammany's keeps jibing at the Mayor. The writer has never recall that with reference to the heroes of the fire department in 1911, where a building fell down right down from going to Arlington National Cemetery and mingling among the dead.

Pigeons Still Fad.

Still further down-town the pigeons, very fat, walk around among the promenaders in Battery Park. People take the ferry to the Staten Island, ride to the accordion players working away at "O Sole Mio", and observe the Statue of Liberty whose expression remains unchanged despite the imminent abolition of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Or people keep on going to Brooklyn where a scout reports a hardpress restaurant proprietor, without President Roosevelt's blue eagle insignia, has posted a notice in the popular magazine "Blue Eagle Number" in his window and pointing to it with pride.

Go on with you! I couldn't even induce you to get on a ferris wheel in the hold adventurous days of our honeymoon, pop said, and ma said, Well science has made great strides since then, and today there are fewer accidents up in aireoplanes than there are down in railroad trains, I am told, and the statistics say the other day, The idee of suggesting I'm behind the time I'd step into a aireoplane without the quiver of a conpunction, I assure you, she said.

Nothing could be more appropriate, pop said, than such a remarkable coincidents. I met my old frend the president of the Sturgeon Transport Company down town this morning and he told me that any time I wanted to give my family a ride in one of his airships just to bring them along and he'd be happy to oblige, So how about Satirday afternoon? he said.

Carry pop, sure ma, G. Satilday, I said, You said you would, ma, I said, and ma said, I said nothing of the kind. I mean I said I would in case of necessity, the same as I'd take a train, but sensible people don't take a train if they dont intend going anywhere, so why should they take a aireplane under the same circumstances she said.

Ha ha ha pop said laffing, and ma said, Willyum Potts you dont even know the president of any such a company.

Johnny Wing of Tricolor Punts Team to Victory Over Varsity in Upset of Season

Score 8-2 And Every Winning Point Was Kicked by Wing

OTTAWA WINS

Argos Take Hamilton to Stay in Running in Big Four

(By Elmore Dubuque, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Scuttling backfield ball-carriers and a few American-bred forward passers may be in command of the situation in the Interprovincial and Ontario Football Unions, but the kicking toe holds the balance of power in the gridiron warfare of the undergraduates.

Just when it seemed most certain University of Toronto's blue brigade would sweep through the Intercollegiate Union schedule without defeat, Queen's Johnny Wing blew here Saturday, pitted him against long Jack Rinclair and rolled along behind good-sized but amorphous punting to an 8-3 victory over Varsity.

This performance was as surprising as anything that occurred in the first Saturday, for sheer power there was nothing to compare with Argonaut's 31-2 conquest of the mighty Tigers at Hamilton, or the frequent show of championship calibre nothing touched Ottawa's decisive 9-1 victory over Sarnia.

There was drama in the 10-8 defeat of Western by lightly-regarded McGill, who came from behind late in the fourth quarter for victory. Sarnia Imperials, also trailing in the O.R.F.U. race by defeating Hamilton Cubs 6-0 and Toronto Balmy Beach 3-0, scored a single in the last minute of play to gain a 5-5 tie with St. Michael's College.

Wing Stands Out

On the day's work, Johnny Wing, a noted paddler along the Ganaraska, Ont., waterfront, ranked with the best of them—Jack Taylor and Andy Mahlon of Argos, and Tommy and Lorne Johnson of Ottawa, Norman Perry and Roy Brown of Sarnia.

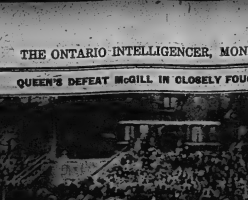
Wing, on the firing line for the first time in a senior game, did this only because Jim Davis was kept on the sidelines with a sprained ankle. He got into stride in the second half after Varsity had assumed a 2-0 lead with a safety touch. He kicked a single in the first quarter, a field goal from midfield in the third and four singles in the final period as the accurate toe of the lad set up the blue to their own goal-line.

Jack Sinclair, the ranking kicker of the Intercollegiate these several years past, was powerless to stem the Wing's fine kicking and, after holding a single margin for two periods, the Varsity wingline suddenly found itself incapable of holding such plungers as Joe Gratton and Ken Hamlin.

Walter Stockwell, an inside wing, ran 20 yards late in the fourth quarter to score the winning touchdown for McGill over a Western team that had led almost throughout. Boyce Bennett's kick was blocked and Stockwell scooped up the loose ball to break away.

Tommy and Johnson gave a brilliant display of ball-carrying as Ottawa scored their third straight victory and went to first place in the Big Four standing, but they were no more effective than big Abe Elder, who, running a fine game in the line with Buck Welch until the Montreal back was injured, put the win kicked two field goals.

The Roughriders, fortunate in scoring one touchdown and Argos, didn't need luck on their side against the Wheelers. They outplayed Montreal with a sturdy line and a fleet-footed backfield that is developing more power as it rolls along.



Argos in Running

Argos' triumph at Hamilton kept them in the running. Many observers believe the Scullers are the strongest outfit in the East, certainly as strong as any when Ab. Box is doing the kicking. It wasn't there Saturday but Argos plastered a Tiger lineup that had Jack Taylor pulled off runs of from 20 to 75 yards, served on Mullan's forward passing.

In the second quarter Taylor broke through for a 20-yard run, a 30 yard gain and set down the ball on the Hamilton 10 on the next play by the look Mullan's pass for a touchdown. He raced 75 yards thru a broken field in third quarter after Frank Turville, the safety man, pulled the ball out of the air on the second touchdown in the last period after Argos had marched down 50 yards to Hamilton's five-yard line.

Roy Brown, Perry and Gordie Patterson were outstanding figures in Sarnia's victory over the Cubs. Perry making the longest touchdown excursion of the day—an 80-yard effort in the third quarter. Patterson passed and ran sensationally, while Brown handled most of the heavy passing duties.

Bobby Parker kicked a single in the last minute of the game to check Balmy Beach's hopes of their first win. The collegians led through-

Teddy Reeve's tricolor of Queen's are shown a scrimmage in the camp of Shaughnessy's McGill students, by defeating the Red and White in Kingston, last Saturday by a 3-2 score in a closely fought game that McGill lost only by a fraction of an inch. That small fraction came into the game in the dying moments when McGill attempted a field-goal which would have, had it been successful, won the game for them. However, Frank Shaughnessy's young son booted the ball into the uprights and it bounced back into play. Above shows some action from the game.

CURRENT SPORT

When the Kingston City Hockey League opens its doors to the public this evening, it will be the earliest, organized hockey league ever to operate in Canada.

Believe it or not we went shaking Saturday night... About noon on Saturday the local Cities Service dealer were notified that they could hold a special practice at the Jack Harty Arena from 8 until 9 p.m. Saturday. The officers at once took full advantage of the opportunity and eleven players turned out with the Grays and white. Both Rigby and Earl McDonald were the only absentees.

Besides all at last year's regulars two new faces turned out with the regulars, Jerry Bradd, recently of the Oshawa seniors and Halifax Albacrits and Mike McMahon of Brockville. For next year Manager-coach-Archie Kincaid drove the "citizens" and drilled them out for new hockey rules that will be adopted this year, namely, the man-defence rule in the defensive area. Will H'Seerver, of Allan Cup fame, accompanied the local contingent and deemed the blades he used in next year possible the coaching of the team.

Those present were: Goal, Tice; defence, McMahen, Bradd, Sherry; forwards, Wickel, Earl McDonald, Covert, Carl, Harry and Pete McDonald and Jimmie McGregor. Manager Elwood Dudley looked on with Archie Kincaid and President Walter Patterson and others. The West End Club, who the locals meet in the first league game tonight, practised from 7 to 8 and were observed watching every move of the locals.

Lorne Chabot, late of the Toronto Maple Leafs, and a former member of the famous Les Canadiens, dropped around to the arena to spend a few minutes reminiscing with his old team mate, Will H'Seerver. Lorne is optimistic that the Canadiens had 24 players trying out with them, and that they will play two exhibition games, one versus the Ice Fleet Wanderers on October 30 and one with Ottawa at a later date. Both games will be played at the Jack Harty arena.

Getting back to the Cities Service players, all of the locals seemed to weather the work-out in good shape although they were unable to call it a day when the hour of practice terminated. Manager Dudley announced that he has not as yet been released by President Art Gravelle, and will be ready for publication some time in the

The R.C.I. senior football squad suffered a severe reverse at Lindsay on Saturday. For the first time this season the local team through the Shiels-coached crew were beaten by a score that was almost discouragingly as the game was played on the Lindsay ball before rather than seniors long before halftime. From what could be learned the locals were first handed the local line crumpled like the well stock of cards.

Time after time the old Lindsay squad ripped and tore through the local line for consistent gains. While and Campbell tred roughshod over the locals and the Shiels-coached crew had the ball in their possession for but a few minutes at a time. White and Campbell were the shining lights for the Lindsay squad, both of the latter being squad's points. Repeatedly White and Campbell tore through the local line for short gains while he made two sensational 50 yard runs that resulted in touchdowns being scored. White's broken field running was one of the features of the positions, White and Campbell tried to outdo each other in their overseas account of their efforts attempting the rather poor demonstration given by the entire line at

"Wally" Hilton Only Player to Show True Value

Playing a superior brand of football throughout, the Lindsay Collegiate squad romped home victors to a 23 to 3 victory over the Belleville Collegiate squad at Lindsay on Saturday. But for the first ten minutes of play when the locals swept everything before them and scored two of their three points the homesters trod rough-shod over the Shiels-coached outfit, who seemingly were helpless before the terrific onslaught set up by the Brescacressed gridiron squad along the shores of the Scugog.

Lack of proper team-play in the local line of scrimmage wrought havoc among their ranks, when the Lindsay backfield made their many gains time after time. The fumbles resulted in but two of the locals proved no obstacle to the Lindsay attack, which tore through the local line for substantial gains of yards repeatedly. The reverse suffered by the locals drops them into the cellar position in the Eastern Ontario group, a position they held during the league leading Oshawa squad, however.

U.S. FOOTBALL

New York, Oct. 23 (CP)— The shock of seeing Pitt and Notre Dame, Army and Southern California tied on the same day left United States football experts babbling incoherently today when they weren't talking about Michigan's thirteenth victory in succession and the rise of Princeton in the East and Alabama in the south.

The mighty triumvirate of the Panther, Rambler and Trojan, year in and year out, have been found close to or at the top of the gridiron heap but for Pitt and Notre Dame not at least national championship visions were just that and nothing more.

Nothing the Panthers accomplished in the 1933 season will wipe out the 7-3 beating they took from Minnesota's powerful Golden Gophers at Minneapolis nor will an already demoralized Harper's Marquette Tech Tartans at Pittsburgh.

Michigan, meanwhile, gave further indication of crushing power by shellacking Ohio State 19-0. Princeton's Sophomores came through their first major test with flying colors, trouncing Columbia's experienced army 20-0 and just about effectively eliminating the Lions that the Tiger is back to worry Dicks eastern contenders for the first time in years.

Alabama looked like the class of the Southern conference as it invaded Knoxville and gave Tennessee its first home defeat since 1927 —12-6.

Primo Carnera Punches Out Decisive Win Over Uzcudum

Unable However To Knock Smaller Opponent Out

Rome, Oct. 23 (AP)— Primo Carnera's title was heavyweight title in defence, successful though it was, had added little to the mammoth Italian's fame as a native hard worker today.

A crowd of, 70,000 strongly predisposed in Carnera's favor watching the huge Italian parade and put on a decisive 15-round victory over Paulino Uzcudun yesterday, cheered him for a while and then booed him just as heartily in the last few rounds for his failure to stop the 20-year-old Spanish veteran of more than 10 years' wrestling against the world's best heavyweights.

There was no question whatever as to the ultimate winner after the first couple of rounds had been fought. Carnera pushed the Basque give Uzcudun whipped all over the ring with a stopping left and ponderous right, cut him badly about the face, staggered him in half a dozen rounds, yet never could find the rival whose indomitable courage and stamina carried him through the full 15-round limit.

Of the attributes, that once made him feared throughout the heavyweight division, Paulino took with him into the fight only a rock-ribbed chin and the constitution of an ox. He was never knocked off his from the start, his rushes were smothered in the Italian's mighty arms, he was bleeding from the fifth round on, yet the Basque never quit fighting, never stopped coming in to his bulky opponent, never ran from trouble.

Still Carried on

At the Hollis hockey and bruised Paulino still was carrying on as aggressively as ever, taking the jabs Carnera could offer without flinching.

The crowd which included Premier Mussolini, other Fascist officials and Italian nobility, saw the son of the American President, which understand how a man could take such a beating and still maintain erect, fighting stance, explained the chorus of boos, that greeted Carnera as he calmly sought to bring his opponent to earth.

Angered by the demonstration against him, Carnera tried everything he knew in the last few rounds but his own wildness, plus Paulino's stamina, stood him off, bring a knockout nor end the crowd's booing.

Paulino looked like a flyweight by comparison with the champion when they entered the ring. Carnera's weight officially was announced at 259.6 pounds. Paulino's 211.2 pounds, but newspapermen who watched the weighing-in ceremonies said the champion actually scaled 265.1 pounds and the challenger 207.3. Neither the champ nor the challenger had to concede about seven pounds in height and was not at a proportionate disadvantage in reach.

W.H. PATTERSON AGAIN PRESIDENT

Belleville Cities Service Hockey Team Organizes For Season

Walter R. Patterson, of this city, was re-elected president of the champion Belleville Cities Service Hockey Club, winners of the 1933 Kingston City League, while Elwood Dudley was returned to the helm of the team as manager. A new coach was appointed to assist the club while on the ice in the person of Archie Kincaid of Kingston.

Kincaid is a well known player, having played with the Oshawa intermediates a few years ago. Other officers were also elected.

The meeting was held in Kingston with players, officials, Service representatives being present from Kingston and Belleville. A new Line Tice was again unanimously chosen Captain of the team, the position he so well executed last season. The club was again entered into the Kingston City League, where they will defend the trophy they won last season. The opening game will be the game of the Kingston City League with Belleville Collegiate on October 30th. Some eight teams have been entered. Brockville, Gananoque, Sunnyvale, Kingston and Belleville are the out-of-town clubs which entered. Three Kingston clubs will also start the season.

BALL MAGNATE DIES AT 69

Phil Ball, Owner of St. Louis Browns Succombs

St. Louis, Oct. 22 (AP) — Death today claimed Phil Ball, veteran baseball 18-year dream of producing an American League pennant winner. The end came at 10:45 a.m. (central time) at St. John's hospital here of Septicemia, at the age of 69.

Since 1916, when he became owner of the St. Louis Browns, Ball had cherished the thought of winning a pennant with his club. Only once did he realize it, when his pinnacle was in 1922 when the Browns finished in second place behind the New York Yankees by one game.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon, when the body will be taken here with burial in Bellefon-

ARMS PARLEY MAY ADJOURN

More Time Needed to Calm Spirit And to Face Issues

Geneva, Oct. 23—(AP)— Immediate adjournment of the world conference when the World Disarmament Conference is reconvened Oct. 26 after a 10-day lapse.

This was indicated strongly today in the attitude of various powers where many believe a longer period is needed to calm the fighting spirits. Also, it is said, statement need to concentrate on grave questions confronting the conference that before returning to the Council tables. Some observers believe, however, in earlier views, the opinion seemed to be growing that the best thing to do to encourage a Franco-German economic accord is to postpone the meeting for a eventual agreement on disarmament it is agreed.

While activity generally slackened up in Europe during the recess calling for Germany's withdrawal from the parley many here now view with far greater concern the situation in the Far East.

They see Russia attempting to build up a bandwall with other nations in an attempt to forestall war with Japan, while Japanese Premier Saito arose relations delicate.

Expect Vote to be Heavy With Results in Doubt

Electors are trooping to the polls in Dominion constituencies today in many provinces. In Yamaska, on Quebec's south shore of the St. Lawrence; in Restigouche-Madawaska in the northern neck of New Brunswick; and in Mackenzie, Saskatchewan, the heart of the prairies, Dominion by-elections are taking place.

The vote, agriculturists predominating, promises to be fairly heavy. Out in Mackenzie, though, a weekend snowstorm is making travel a little difficult.

With 115 polls opened in Restigouche-Madawaska, for a total population of 54,386, balloting will close at 5 p.m. E.S.T.

Smallest of the three ridings, 41 polls were thrown open in Yamaska, for a population of 16,620. The polls will close in this constituency at 6 o'clock E.S.T.

In Mackenzie, Sask., 119 polls are operating the vote in the riding of where the constituency has a population of 44,068. Polls will close at seven o'clock E.S.T.

A straight party fight is waged in Yamaska between Aime Boucher, Liberal, and Paul E. Comtois, Conservative. Boucher, a dairy farmer, has been a member of the Commons since 1930 by a majority of 546 for D. Cormier, Conservative, who died last January.

Mackenzie electors have four aspirants from which to make a choice in George Black, Liberal-Progressive Commonwealth Federation; J. B. McMillan, Liberal; H. H. Stuart, Conservative, and J. P. McNaught, Social Credit. The present member, Milton Campbell, Progressive, whose appointment to the Railway Board created the vacancy, in 1930 polled roughly the total vote of his two Liberal opponents.

GIRL'S DEATH UNDER PROBE

Had Been Sick Week and Attended by Chiropractor

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—The death at nine years old Gladys Atkinson will be the subject of a conference to be held between Coroner J. P. T. Williams and Crown Attorney J. W. McFadden, K.C., in the presence of provincial police following a statement by chiropractor Dr. G. B. Stanbury, that his child "would still be alive."

The father of the girl said he had been attended by chiropractors for years, and "satisfactorily life to them."

Dr. F. Beckett Brown, medical practitioner who was called in on Saturday when the child's condition grew worse, declined to discuss the case except to say the child was dead when he arrived at the home.

DECLARES HIMSELF SLAYER OF WOMAN

No Credence Placed in Story on Account of Drink

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 23 (CP) — Police here today are checking the story of John P. Wilson, 42, of Detroit, who yesterday walked into a newspaper office and declared he was the slayer of Mrs. Peter Senko of Windsor.

The woman was found dead in the cellar or her home some weeks ago with her head was submerged in a large pickle barrel full of water. There were no marks of violence on the body, although her husband claimed a sum of money had been stolen from the house.

Police declared he smothered the woman with a pillow and placed her head in the barrel. Police however, placing little credence in his story, declaring he had been drinking when he made his statement.

CHILD STEPS INTO HOT APPLE BUTTER VAT

Terribly Scalded As It Splashes Over Her

Stratford, Oct., Oct. 23 (CP) — Terribly scalded when she stepped into a vat of apple butter, Betty Jane, seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Catze, Alma Street, Kitchener, is dead in Stratford General Hospital.

The little girl, with her parents, visited an aunt, Mrs. Leslie Ratz in Mitchell on Friday. The apple butter had been left on the back porch to cool until it was ready to be taken to the Catze car. Betty stepped out the back door directly into the vat. She fainted, but lost her balance and fell down the steps to the ground, the hot fluid splashing all over her body.

She was rushed to the hospital, but efforts to save her life were unavailing. She died last night.

Besides her parents she leaves a younger brother, Robert.

Score 8-2 And Every Winning Point Was Kicked by Wing

OTTAWA WINS

Argos Take Hamilton to Stay in Running in Big Four

(By Elmore Dubuque, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP)—Scuttling backfield ball-carriers and a few American-bred forward passers may be in command of the situation in the Interprovincial and Ontario Football Unions, but the kicking toe holds the balance of power in the gridiron warfare of the undergraduates.

Just when it seemed most certain University of Toronto's blue brigade would sweep through the Intercollegiate Union schedule without defeat, Queen's Johnny Wing blew here Saturday, pitted him against long Jack Rinclair and rolled along behind good-sized but amorphous punting to an 8-3 victory over Varsity.

This performance was as surprising as anything that occurred in the first Saturday, for sheer power there was nothing to compare with Argonaut's 31-2 conquest of the mighty Tigers at Hamilton, or the frequent show of championship calibre nothing touched Ottawa's decisive 9-1 victory over Sarnia.

There was drama in the 10-8 defeat of Western by lightly-regarded McGill, who came from behind late in the fourth quarter for victory. Sarnia Imperials, also trailing in the O.R.F.U. race by defeating Hamilton Cubs 6-0 and Toronto Balmy Beach 3-0, scored a single in the last minute of play to gain a 5-5 tie with St. Michael's College.

Wing Stands Out

On the day's work, Johnny Wing, a noted paddler along the Ganaraska, Ont., waterfront, ranked with the best of them—Jack Taylor and Andy Mahlon of Argos, and Tommy and Lorne Johnson of Ottawa, Norman Perry and Roy Brown of Sarnia.

Wing, on the firing line for the first time in a senior game, did this only because Jim Davis was kept on the sidelines with a sprained ankle. He got into stride in the second half after Varsity had assumed a 2-0 lead with a safety touch. He kicked a single in the first quarter, a field goal from midfield in the third and four singles in the final period as the accurate toe of the lad set up the blue to their own goal-line.

Jack Sinclair, the ranking kicker of the Intercollegiate these several years past, was powerless to stem the Wing's fine kicking and, after holding a single margin for two periods, the Varsity wingline suddenly found itself incapable of holding such plungers as Joe Gratton and Ken Hamlin.

Walter Stockwell, an inside wing, ran 20 yards late in the fourth quarter to score the winning touchdown for McGill over a Western team that had led almost throughout. Boyce Bennett's kick was blocked and Stockwell scooped up the loose ball to break away.

Tommy and Johnson gave a brilliant display of ball-carrying as Ottawa scored their third straight victory and went to first place in the Big Four standing, but they were no more effective than big Abe Elder, who, running a fine game in the line with Buck Welch until the Montreal back was injured, put the win kicked two field goals.

The Roughriders, fortunate in scoring one touchdown and Argos, didn't need luck on their side against the Wheelers. They outplayed Montreal with a sturdy line and a fleet-footed backfield that is developing more power as it rolls along.

Argos in Running

Argos' triumph at Hamilton kept them in the running. Many observers believe the Scullers are the strongest outfit in the East, certainly as strong as any when Ab. Box is doing the kicking. It wasn't there Saturday but Argos plastered a Tiger lineup that had Jack Taylor pulled off runs of from 20 to 75 yards, served on Mullan's forward passing.

In the second quarter Taylor broke through for a 20-yard run, a 30 yard gain and set down the ball on the Hamilton 10 on the next play by the look Mullan's pass for a touchdown. He raced 75 yards thru a broken field in third quarter after Frank Turville, the safety man, pulled the ball out of the air on the second touchdown in the last period after Argos had marched down 50 yards to Hamilton's five-yard line.

Roy Brown, Perry and Gordie Patterson were outstanding figures in Sarnia's victory over the Cubs. Perry making the longest touchdown excursion of the day—an 80-yard effort in the third quarter. Patterson passed and ran sensationally, while Brown handled most of the heavy passing duties.

Bobby Parker kicked a single in the last minute of the game to check Balmy Beach's hopes of their first win. The collegians led through-

Experiment With Your Rouge

"Blushes" Come in a Variety of Forms; Find Suitable One

(By Helen Follett)

What more tiresome than that old "beautiful but dumb" expression? A girl may be pretty and stupid, but she can't be happy without intelligence to light the countenance, give it radiance and personality.

When nature parcels out brains it isn't likely that she is going to abort change that because the girl child is already blessed with the components of pulchritude. If a woman has brains and looks she has beauty she knows where she can get it, and goes after it—to the modiste, the dressmaker, the coiffure artist.

Good looks are a passport. They are worth more than the family jewels, are a social lubricant, entitle it to the credit of modern woman that she has made herself a treat to the eye.

The vinegar rinse makes the hair sort and silky because it chases the soap scum. It should not be left in the hair, but rinsed out with clear water.

Add two tablespoons of ordinary cider vinegar to a bowl of tepid water. Pour this slowly through the cup. If lemons are used instead, the juice of two will suffice for the same amount of water.

Daughter And Her Own Room

(By Constance Cameron)

Sometimes we can preach and cajole and encourage all to no purpose. Yet one day out of a thousand the right moment comes, and at first it looks like a queer, distorted trick at that. Then it is a good trick done backward.

Mother would suddenly realize that a small girl who refused to care for her room should be made to do the job. A very large order, and the trip backward. "Eileen", said she, "you are supposed to keep your room clean, but it is a disgrace. Therefore, I'm taking it away from you and the rest of the house. You may take your dollars to recurtain your two windows, and you may buy 'd' use so far fresh dresser covers. But it's right that you don't take any pride in it so why should I?

That suited Eileen. Until she finished the job in a hasty and rush to have her girl friends use her room for depositing wraps and primping after the manner of females.

Eileen asked if the maid could be permitted to clean the bedroom, surely not. The maid had enough to do as it was. Then like parent's mind', another cheerfully reminded her. "They have given your room and that you're responsible for it now, was a new angle. One bright afternoon Eileen called mother to see what a fine job she had made of it. Mother had actually brought down the fur jacket and invested it in crisp new curtains. Eileen had also put such attractive shape that all the girls commented on it and expressed envy. Mother said, "Eileen, I'm sorry I have rooms that were wholly theirs to clean and I'm glad to see that was suggested by their private quarters.

A Puppy of His Own

Another method with the problem of her young sons saddistic tendencies toward the animals of the family by buying him a cheap puppy for his very own. In learning to love and care for his pet his attitude toward all living things changed into "one can't be cruel to one's own thing."

One big girl's attitude toward elder brother's garden changed from one of mischievous destruction to that of cooperation and deep personal interest in his sprouting plants when mother suggested she divide a small garden right next to his. She weeded her own plot and in spare moments weeded part of brother's plot.

It seems backward, reverse principle of child guidance and should be used discreetly, but there are many instances making a child responsible for a new situation in which he has caused the most trouble will entirely eradicate the problem.

Romantic London Register Offices Close Their Doors

Two of London's famous register offices—Henrietta street and Princes-row—have seen the scene of the most romantic marriages in recent years closed their doors a week or so ago.

Royalty, the cream of society, American millionaires and members of foreign nobility made a special point of going to one of these register offices to be married. And, conversely, few Covent Garden portraits would be married elsewhere than at Henrietta street.

Strange Ceremonies

Probably the last fashionable society wedding to take place there was the marriage in the autumn of Lord Claud Hamilton, Equerry to the King, to Mrs. Violet Newall.

Now there is only one register office for the City of Westminster, and that will be at Caxton Hall. This is caused by provisions under the Local Government Act of 1929.

Henrietta street has had probably more successful and romantic weddings than any other register office in the world.

Some of them and the strange incidents that accompanied many of them were recalled by one of the staff.

"I have married people in evening dress, in full military kit complete with medals, and order, in ordinary working clothes, and in fancy dress," the Registrar said.

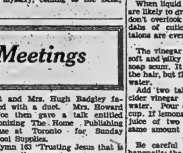
Millionaires Thrift

"I have married actors and actresses still wearing their stage clothes and make-up, who have whipped out from the theatre between acts to be wedded.

"The Society marriages have been far too numerous to recall, among the outstanding ones I remember the very popular wedding of Prince Henry of Pless when throngs of people lined the streets outside and cheered him.

"American millionaires I have had in plenty. Many of them write from their homes to ask if they can come over and be married in Henrietta street. They come over and apparently get a great thrill out of it.

"We also get a considerable number of people from the Continent, chiefly France. Henrietta street seems to be well known in that country.



"The curious thing about French bridegrooms is that they insist on being married in everthing dress, even if the ceremony takes place during the morning.

"There have been pathos and human drama as well as the 'high spots' of romance. I have seen too many instances of the bride sitting patiently for the bridegroom who never arrived.

"Now we are leaving this office. The grass will soon nearly and let so much for a bigger building. But there can never be another 'Henrietta street.'"

Princes-row register office has had many notable weddings, too. Last year Prince Leonard, Marquess of Tullibardine of Sweden was married there to Miss Ruth Bennett, daughter of a prominent Swedish business man.

Beauty . . . By Helen Jameson

Hypnotic Charm of Pretty Eyes

Eyes remain in the memory. Visualize absent friends of acquaintances and the color of their soul orbs you may not be conscious, but the expression has made a definite impression. Eyes that sparkle from pure joy and gaiety are a real beauty fortune. Animation and human warmth keeps them in form. No cosmetic or time spent at all. The woman who goes in for facials, and elegant coiffures spoils the combination if she lets the vamps take on a cold, steely or embittered look. There are certain types that are nervous, feverish ones that lack directness, tender, or the twinkling ones that touch the springs of emotion, as there are first class flirt eyes, too. It would seem that eyes are pretty much what we make them.

More than good nature is responsible for the sparkling eyes we meet. Malnutrition dulls the shiners. Lack of sleep and worry does them, but takes tone and vitality from surrounding tissues. No woman can look her best under the ill effects of optic strain, yet any number of people need an occasional rest as the organ of vision must constantly relax. Blinds, or sew in a light that shines directly in the eyes or that is not sufficiently bright and clear for comfort.

Vanity keeps some women from wearing glasses when they need them. They could be taken in hand be subject to strict orders by the fitting specialist. Most of beauty ills—headaches, squint lines, sometimes a chronic dispositions—are gone in a variety of patterns; the rimless, ones are not unsightly.

When eyes smart and burn, apply hot towels. Soak a soft cloth in boiled covered with pads of gauze that have been wrung out of a cold boric acid solution. You can make this easily enough. Dissolve one teaspoonful of powdered boric acid in a cup full of boiling water, and cool. With a medicine dropper, flood the eyes. Or use an eyecup. Then lie down, relaxed, and kicking up a row they'll pack up and leave. When in a hurry, or inflammation noticeable to a marked degree, waste no time, fly to the doctor.

Shadows, lank, specific, demountable eyelashes are no good at all for tired eyes; they only make more shadow. The early 19th century had the right idea, but it is not one that is sufficient to say—or should you add, "I am glad to meet you"?

Delay

Yes. There is no "grader" connected with such a pleasant comment. But it simply isn't the right point of view that one individual makes this friendly statement to another individual.

2.Yes. The "thank you" is a good beginning but should be as you appreciate the comment. But we must not forget that the "glad to meet you" is as if the pleasure of the meeting were all on one side. Why not add, "I am very glad to have met you too," or "it was a pleasure to meet you too," or "I am very happy to have met you too, Mr. Robinson."

3. Offering to shake hands is a very personal thing and depends usually upon personal relationships. Some people are so cordial and enthusiastic that they almost invariably offer to shake hands when they are acknowledging an introduction. Others are not particularly interested in this gesture. Also this custom varies in various parts of the country, some communities being more handshaking comparied than others.

Some suggestions about handshaking:

Usually, for the casual introduction, one does not shake hands. Too, a man waits for the woman to make the first move. Sometimes he waits until she offers to shake hands. A young girl, being introduced to an older women, would also wait until the older woman offered to shake hands. A hostess and a host shake hands with their guests, when the guests arrive and when they leave.

4. Yes, if you wish to register special pleasure in the introduction But usually street introductions are of a casual nature, and one simply bows and says, "How do you do."

5. If a man is being introduced to a woman, and the woman is seated, she does not rise. If a girl is being introduced to an older woman, she should rise. If two women are being introduced to each other, or two girls to each other, they may rise or remain seated.

6. The very best form to use when we acknowledge an introduction is: "How do you do."

7. This is the acknowledgment. After this, we may continue If we wish, "it is a great pleasure to meet you, Mrs. Graham, for I had heard such delightful things about you from our mutual friend Grace Allen." This begins the conversation—but it is not part of the acknowledgment. That is, we don't say, in acknowledgment of an introduction, "I am glad to meet you." Say the "How do you do" first. This is very important.

WOMEN WELCOME THE NEW SHORTER COIFFURE

Coiffures for bobbed hair are shorter this fall. Generally speaking, bobbed hair should be about three or four inches in front, two inches on the sides, and even shorter in back.

Bangs are particularly chic, but they are different from the old-fashioned kind which covered-the forehead almost completely. The new bangs are light, airy, and show the forehead spacings. Sometimes they are on either side of a centre part, sometimes the space is uncovered. Again, they are very becoming to young girls and, if you are the type for them, by all means wear them. Short hair does quite far toward the front over the temples. Does it afford a better expression? Of course it's a good idea to take careful stock of your face before you decide to dress uncovered. No use showing them if they aren't pretty, and no use in covering them up if they are pretty.

Keep your neckline smooth and high. There is no place for straggling locks in this fall's bobbed hair coiffures.

Don't decide on a particular style of hair cut until you are sure that it will be becoming to you. The best way, of course, is to put yourself in the hands of an expert and let him plan your coiffure for you.

Wash dishes, pots and pans this new easy way

YOU can save yourself a lot of work—three times a day—if you use A Rinso in your dishpan. Grease doesn't stand a chance against lively Rinso suds. It melts right away and china, silver, glassware, pots and pans come clean in no time.

You'll like these richer suds on washday, too.

Rinso soaks clothes whiter and brighter—saves scrubbing. Wonderful for all cleaning. 10c, 25c, 50c. Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps—even in hardest water. Get the BIG thrifty package.

Correct Manners

(By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)
(Copyright 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl you has been used to signing her name, using her middle initial as Mary H. Brown, marries, should she continue to use the same middle initial as Mary H. Jones or should it be Mary Brown or Jones?

Curious

The form of signature that a girl chooses to use is entirely a matter for her preference, and she may, if she wishes, retain the initial. But initials, especially in this case, aren't as good form as names spelled out. The two principal forms used by married women are: first, and more generally, the use of the first and the last names of her maiden name before the last name of her married name. Example: Mrs. Jones or should it be Mary Brown Jones; or, the use of her first name and the surname of her married name, Mary Jones. This is, of course, for the informal name.

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for a girl to tell a boy she is glad to have met him?

2. When a boy tells me he is glad he met me, should I say anything more than "Thank you"?

3. On what occasion should I offer my hand when introduced to either young people or older people to my elders?

4. Is it good form to shake hands when introduced to anyone on the stre.t?

5. If introduced to someone while in a room seated with others, should one rise or remain seated?

6. When someone enters a room and is introduced to someone, what is the proper form of introduction; and acknowledgement? Must one say, "I am pleased to say," or should you add, "I am glad to meet you"?

Although May Issues Bound Up With Rise in Wheat, Market Had Little of "Boom Time" Fever —Speech of Roosevelt Raises Prices of Commodity Stock

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Stocks and stables bounded upward today, apparently drawing renewed hope from the President's announcement of a controlled gold market and enhanced prices for many domestic prices.

While leading shares spurted 1 to 4 points or more points, and grains jumped 2 to more than 4 cents a bushel, they generally had little of the "boom-time" fervor. The ticker-tape was pressed only at brief intervals and, after a couple of fast flurries, the market turned rather dull.

Shares of Homestake Mining got up some 20 points, U.S. Smelting gained about 11, and issues advancing 4 to more than 8 included Delaware Porcupine, Dome Mines, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelters, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, National Distillers, Beech-Nut and Union Pacific.

Aside from the spirited advance of Homestake Mining, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel gained around 3 points more each, while on the curb Hiram Walker and Gooderham "A" rose 2 to 3 points, and 2 3-8 points, respectively.

Dominion Government 4 1/2s and 5 1/2s were unchanged and the 5s improved 3-8 of a point.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP) — Mining shares snapped out of their lethargy at the inauguration of the Stadium Exchange today and gains reaching up to 84½ cents were put up in the first burst of buying enthusiasm. The upward trend was the result of buying from New York where President Roosevelt's announcement of a de-facto fixed gold market for gold and the administration's purpose to get commodity prices up by one means or another, was regarded as highly bullish. Some of the gains were dropped before noon as buying eased down but, leaders retained about 75 per cent of their gains.

Midnight led the up-rush, advancing 84½ cents to $1.40 and up by $4.50 at $39 at noon. Dome advanced 34 cents and $5.45 at $22. Lake Shore had a net gain of 83. York 40 cents and Hollinger 34. Hargreaves 35 cents.

Nickel responded well to the outlook for commodity prices, moving up a net of more than a dollar to $18.00. Noranda held a gain of more than $2 at noon, selling at $32.10.

The buying drive came mainly in the New York market, provoked by an early guaranteed price around present high levels for the yellow metal, but the trend as a definitely bullish development for Canadian gold shares. McIntyre rallied from $1.40 to $41.50 on the New York market and Lake Shore to $6 on the Standard in the first three hours of today's session. Dome advanced $4.50 in New York and $4.45 to $36 on the Standard. Lake Shore gained $3.75 and Wright Hargreaves, Teck, Pioneer and Bralorne were all up 50 cents to $2.

International Nickel and Noranda were up $1.75 to $2.10 in the early trading.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP) — Toronto Stock Exchange listings rallied smartly today, recording prices and points from the depressed quotations of last week. Optimistic indications were given to President Roosevelt's Sunday speech, indicating a new deal for higher prices for basic commodities and buying was considerable in the mining group also with commodities.

Trading was heavy today also in the distillery shares. Walkers common rose to $15 and the issue had stepped back to 33 where it held a gain of 3¼. Distillers Seagrams and Canadian Industrial Alcohol each had better than a point gain and Distillers Seagrams added 2 to its list.

Interlaked metal shares were leaders in the mining group. Buying was by bought and was up $1.50 to $18.50 with noon quotations 75 cents under the points. Brazilian, C.P.R. and Ford of Canada had gains of half a point or more.

The chief bullish note behind the rush to acquire stocks was the Sunday speech by the U. S. President in which he announced a home market for newly mined gold and a declaration to lift commodity prices. Metal shares climbed sharply along with copper shares on the New York Curb Exchange. Smelters jumped more than 6 points and Nickel was up $1.75 to $18.50 at the noon hour.

Outside of the big metal issue, the distillery stocks were the leading commodity shares during the day, rising 2 to 3 points. Trading was heavy in Walker's Common. Canada Malting was up 3 points. Demand was fairly active in Brewers but was up 2½ from Saturday's close.

their exit. The men and two older children managed to get into their clothes, but the women were compelled to flee in their night attire.

Speaking with Mr. Kenny this morning, the genial host informed that he lost practically everything, being insured for a small amount.

Friends harboured the stricken families and catered to their needs throughout the day. The Kenny children's ages are from Sherrin, 19 to Betty, a tot week old baby. The Sweet children are all under nine.

The firemen made a quick run to the fire but no water was available from the hydrants because the water was pumped from the river. The house is owned by Dr. W. J. Ashton, of Trenton.

Trenton Week Most Successful

The second annual Trenton Week came to a close on Saturday night and has been placed as the most successful business booster in Trenton's history.

Over one hundred lucky tickets were drawn by Mayor Graham. Mrs. T. V. Wilkins being the winner of the Chesterfield Suite.

The winner of the main prize was won by J. E. Rathbun a kitchen cabinet, valued at $75, donated by M.P.P.

Thursday's drawings by W. A. Fraser M.P., won a Findlay Oval Stove for Mr. W. J. Ashton.

Over two hundred prizes were given by lucky purchase tickets during the week.

Over one hundred and sixty merchants and business men contributed to the various merchants by the Chamber.

Mr. Mark Tripp of the Chamber of Commerce told the press that during the week approximately $50,000 was spent in Trenton during the week, the largest business ever done over last year. The prizes had a value of over $1,000 and an increase of over $300.00 over last year's "Trenton Week".

The Chamber of Commerce should be congratulated on their efforts for "Trenton Week" and the co-operation of the merchants and business men of the district. 1933 "Trenton Week" the best yet.

Two Robberies Reported

Two robberies were reported to the local police on Saturday night.

Mr. G. N. Spence's store on Frankford, was entered early Saturday morning and a quantity of tobacco, two pull coats and some chocolate bars were stolen.

Mr. Percy Knox's residence at 36 Dundas was entered between 8:30 and 11 p.m. on Saturday while the owners were away. A quantity of canned fruit, butter, eggs and tea were missing.

The police have been unable to find but no arrests have been made.

Nose Injured in Collision

Blinded momentarily by an approaching car, Mrs. Ethel Hall was driven by Dr. Grant Fraser of Picton with Dorothy Hall, also of Madoc, as passenger, crashed into the rear of a Metropolitan transport, driven by Mr. Stanley of Toronto. The truck was parked on the highway near Belleville.

The driver of the car swerved to avoid a head-on collision with a considerable damage to the rear end of the car.

Another automobile following Dr. Fraser's car took the ditch to avoid a like accident but no damage was done.

Highway Traffic-Officer Spencer of Colborne, investigated.

Late Frank Glossiffe

The funeral of the late Frank Glossiffe, Division Street, who was struck by a car near Brockville, was held on Friday afternoon from his residence to St. Peter-in-Chains Church, where solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated.

Interment took place in the Catholic Section of Belleville Cemetery, Rev. Scholastic Jr., Dominic Angelo, Earl Ralph, Louis Pepe and Angelo Pepe, as bearers.

C.G.I.T. Elect Officers

A meeting of the C.G.I.T. of King Street United Church was held last week and the election of officers took place.

Four groups were formed with leaders and sub-leaders in charge. C.G.I.T. meets every Wednesday evening at seven o'clock.

Local Council of Women Meet

The local Council of Women held their first meeting of the current season, in the Town Hall and made preparations for a vigorous fall and winter campaign to attain the objects in which the Council interests are so much interested.

Reports of the various activities undertaken during the past year were presented and dealt with.

One of the outstanding interest concerned the service rendered to the community by the Vi. O. Nurse, Miss Haslam, whose administrations to the welfare of our people have been extended by the establishment of the Well Baby Clinic. The Baby clinics are held every Thursday afternoon, and that they fill a much needed requirement is evidenced by the fact that on an average at least 40 babies are brought to it each week.

As such services as these are maintained by the benefit of the non citizens, by operations of the L.C.W., the Council have to provide the necessary funds to maintain which this good work could not go on.

It was decided to undertake the production of a musical comedy, with a childrens chorus, on the evenings of November 22nd and 23rd., at the Capitol Theatre, Miss Laing, managing has kindly agreed to take charge of this production, and an unusual opportunity will be afforded to the people of an exceptional evenings entertainment. At the same time will permit them to contribute more than a little cause of giving those in need of them the benefits of the Local Council of Women's efforts.

The officers and members are particularly the hearty and solicitual support accorded them by the citizens Council, and with their active confidence to the cordial co-operation and assistance of citizens in making the musical comedy production a huge success, and so put funds in a position to continue the work which concerns the health and well-being of the women and children.

Schools Present Fire Drill for Chief

The pupils in Trenton Schools were put through their paces at fire drill by Fire Chief A. Jackson. The Chief was accompanied on his tour of inspection by Capt. H. Colborn and Engineer O. Vanluven of Brigade and Public Trustee—E. E. Ketcheson.

At St. Peter's School, Rev. Father Griffin, chairman of the Separate School Board, was present and stated that the building was cleared of its 225 pupils in the remarkable time of 20 seconds. At Dufferin Avenue School 250 pupils were out of the school in 43 seconds. At College Street, 175 pupils emerged from the sound of the alarm to the street in 30 seconds.

The High School was completed in 90 pupils in 2 minutes and at North Trenton upwards of 35 children got out in 20 seconds.

ROOSEVELT PLAN OF GOLD MARKET

market have offered a parallel example.

The world gold prices have been affected by numerous "accidents of international trade" as the President described it, but the prices of commodities in the United States also have fluctuated with the ebb and flow of internal conditions. The President's new program, he said, will seek to curtail the influence of these "accidents," in order that he may have a more effective means for managing money.

Gold Value Unchanged

Since the President stated that prices in the United States are going to go higher it would seem likely he intends to fix price of gold accordingly. He has not pledged himself to any particular means of fixing gold's price, but presumably generally believe it should be regulated by reference to the average commodity price level.

The theory of variable gold price as explained by Dr. Warren in his book "Prices," is that the price of gold should be fixed as its value.

Gold heretofore had a fixed price but a variable value. At one time 23.22 grains of gold, the legal amount purchasable for a dollar, may buy one bushel of wheat and at another time two bushels and the price of wheat goes down. Gold's fixed price remains but its value in dollars was the same.

Warren, and other economists of similar mind, hold that the gold price should be changed in ratio with prices, so that a bushel of wheat, for instance, would always buy approximately the same number of dollars.

Thus, if the price of gold were raised to where two dollars would be necessary to buy 23.22 grains of gold, that is the price would be advanced to two dollars a bushel, and the dollar would then buy the same amount of gold or dollars for his wheat and the latter would always get the same amount of wheat.

There was considerable controversy, however, as to whether the price of gold actually is so all-important in fixing other prices, but generally it is possible or desirable to control the price of gold.

Geneva, Oct. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's gold announcements generally were viewed in League of Nations circles today as a gradual step toward a stabilized currency.

League experts hesitated to interpret Mr. Roosevelt's speech on the basis of the abstracts received here, but they thought the United States was swinging to the gold policy hitherto observed by Great Britain.

Three experts thought the President's move means that if there is a speculative or a bear raid against the dollar, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will step in to break it. If, however, the dollar shows a tendency to depreciate because of a lack of confidence, these quarters believe that tendency would not be resisted.

France Welcomes Stand

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's gold procedure was welcomed here today as virtual stabilization of the dollar, though Premier Daladier's cautious attitude in making the musical comedy production a huge success, and so put funds in a position to continue the work which concerns the health and well-being of the women and children.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23—(AP)—The Federal Government's move to raise the nation's money means that if there is a speculative or a bear raid against the dollar, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will step in to break it. If, however, the dollar shows a tendency to depreciate because of a lack of confidence, these quarters believe that tendency would not be resisted.

France Welcomes Stand

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's gold procedure was welcomed here today as virtual stabilization of the dollar, though Premier Daladier's cautious attitude in making the musical comedy production a huge success, and so put funds in a position to continue the work which concerns the health and well-being of the women and children.

Schools Present Fire Drill for Chief

The pupils in Trenton Schools were put through their paces at fire drill by Fire Chief A. Jackson. The Chief was accompanied on his tour of inspection by Capt. H. Colborn and Engineer O. Vanluven of Brigade and Public Trustee—E. E. Ketcheson.

At St. Peter's School, Rev. Father Griffin, chairman of the Separate School Board, was present and stated that the building was cleared of its 225 pupils in the remarkable time of 20 seconds. At Dufferin Avenue School 250 pupils were out of the school in 43 seconds. At College Street, 175 pupils emerged from the sound of the alarm to the street in 30 seconds.

The High School was completed in 90 pupils in 2 minutes and at North Trenton upwards of 35 children got out in 20 seconds.

ROOSEVELT PLAN OF GOLD MARKET

market have offered a parallel example.

The world gold prices have been affected by numerous "accidents of international trade" as the President described it, but the prices of commodities in the United States also have fluctuated with the ebb and flow of internal conditions. The President's new program, he said, will seek to curtail the influence of these "accidents," in order that he may have a more effective means for managing money.

Gold Value Unchanged

Since the President stated that prices in the United States are going to go higher it would seem likely he intends to fix price of gold accordingly. He has not pledged himself to any particular means of fixing gold's price, but presumably generally believe it should be regulated by reference to the average commodity price level.

The theory of variable gold price as explained by Dr. Warren in his book "Prices," is that the price of gold should be fixed as its value.

Gold heretofore had a fixed price but a variable value. At one time 23.22 grains of gold, the legal amount purchasable for a dollar, may buy one bushel of wheat and at another time two bushels and the price of wheat goes down. Gold's fixed price remains but its value in dollars was the same.

Warren, and other economists of similar mind, hold that the gold price should be changed in ratio with prices, so that a bushel of wheat, for instance, would always buy approximately the same number of dollars.

Thus, if the price of gold were raised to where two dollars would be necessary to buy 23.22 grains of gold, that is the price would be advanced to two dollars a bushel, and the dollar would then buy the same amount of gold or dollars for his wheat and the latter would always get the same amount of wheat.

There was considerable controversy, however, as to whether the price of gold actually is so all-important in fixing other prices, but generally it is possible or desirable to control the price of gold.

Geneva, Oct. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's gold announcements generally were viewed in League of Nations circles today as a gradual step toward a stabilized currency.

League experts hesitated to interpret Mr. Roosevelt's speech on the basis of the abstracts received here, but they thought the United States was swinging to the gold policy hitherto observed by Great Britain.

CARDS OF THANKS

1500 BOXES OF CHEESE LOADED

Cheese loading at the local government dock today on the steamer Kenogami, which will take the cheese over shipments of previous weeks. Instead of the usual number, 1 or two thousand or more, just 1500 boxes were loaded on the boat today. The bulk of the cargo being sent from here to Montreal today consisted of apples. A total of over one hundred barrels were shipped from Ostrom's wharf at Rossmore during the month.

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE

(Continued from page 1)—(CP)—apparently favorably impressed with President Roosevelt's announcement the United States would go on the open market for purchase of gold, wheat prices moved upward with a bang on the grain exchange today, and during the early trading closely interlocked to the advance. At noon values were 2¾ to 2½ cents higher.

October option stood at 65¾, November and December at 65¼, with the May future at 68 cents. Trade was quite active. Exporters reported everything offered and by noon week-end was accepted by foreign buyers, but were back for more a figure on the movement.

W. C. T. U. ARE AGAINST SALE

Report of Convention Given at Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held last Friday in the Y.M.C.A. assembly room with Mrs. E. Parnsworth presiding. Mr. J. Boyd's group was in charge of the program, while the devotional half-hour was led by Mrs. C. Stewart, Mrs. N. Farley gave a splendid report of the recent provincial convention held in Peterboro, which she attended as the local delegate. She told of the greetings brought by the Dominion President, Mrs. F. C. Ward, of Toronto, who stated that the strength of the work lay in the efficiency of local unions and spoke hopefully of the increased interest between W.C.T.U. and church organizations in temperance work. Mrs. E. Kerr, of Ottawa, Provincial President, in her address said the only point for the Christian and patriot to consider is the right or the wrong; the good or the ill in all issues that are both national and moral.

Mrs. Duff, field secretary, stated that a new trap for children was discovered this year when the little ones told her that candy had no cigarettes in a box for five cents. She affirmed that it was interesting to watch the girls and boys in several schools make notes when camomile flowers were mentioned as a help to boys in their fight against the habit of cigarettes. A teacher later caught a boy chewing the herb and was much interested to find that he had a package of these dried flowers and was really trying to break himself of the tobacco habit.

Will Rout Traffic

Dr. Coburn, secretary of social service and literature for the United Church of Canada delivered a dynamic address to nearly 500 people and stated, "I know that beyond a doubt sometime this traffic will be rooted up. We are not fighting a losing battle, but a battle to win. For the destruction of this traffic we may have to wait and be patient, but we can try to keep the enemy from extending his forces. One method of doing this is by education, and we must acquaint ourselves with the latest ideas in scientific research which has proved alcohol is a tremendous enhancer. The public opinion is expressed in appropriate legislation."

"In these days of depression the staggering sum of $1,000,000 was spent in Canada last year for this narcotic poison. Modern scientific industry and public safety and all working against liquor," he declared in closing.

The treasurer reported a balance of $21.00 on hand to begin the fall work. Mrs. A. E. Hogle and Mrs. J. Rudgins reported for the Mother's Meeting at Dundas Mission and asked for donations of clothing or bedding.

Plans were discussed for the creation contest of Hastings County to be held some time in November when the cup won by William Crowe of Frankford Y.P.S. last year will again be up for competition. A motion was passed to send a resolution to Premier Henry against the sale of beer and wine in restaurants, hotels and clubs. Plans were also generally made for the provincial union in a postcard picket campaign.

Marmora—Mr. Clayton Neal, of Oshawa spent a few days at his home here.

Mr. M. Moss of Kingston was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. C. W. Norris of Buffalo, N.Y. was in town a couple of days last week looking over some mineral properties near the village. A great deal of attention is being paid to Hasting County just now by mining men and prospectors, and it is hoped some important developments will be the result.

Miss Evelyn Scully spent the week end in Toronto.

Miss Dorothy Marsh of Queen's was home over the week end.

Miss Mary Crawford of Stirling visited relatives in town over the week end.

St. Paul's Men's Club

Arrangements for the annual meeting of St. Paul's Men's Club was the main item of business at the meeting held in the White Hall on Wednesday evening with W. J. Reynolds presiding. A committee comprising the President and Messrs S. B. Cheeseman, R. E. Bonter, and W. Gray, were appointed to make the necessary arrangements. Upon the invitation of the Rector, the club decided to attend evensong at St. Paul's in a body on Sunday, Oct. 29th.

A mirth provoking debate "Resolved that men's style of dress is more sensible than women's," resulted in the honors being evenly divided. The affirmative was taken by Messers A. V. Yates, W. R. Reynolds and Dr. R. E. Lunden and the negative was sustained by Messrs W. J. Gould, C. H. Bunkard and Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

The debate was preceded and succeeded by musical selections by an instrumental trio, composed of Herbert Brunsan, (leader) Bert Kouri and William Hart. Cards and other games were played until the refreshment hour.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS RE-UNITE

Pupils in Vern Weir's Class Met After Absence of Nine Years

A unique but signal honor was the outcome of the re-union of a local Sunday School class, in existence flourished in this city, yesterday in the Sunday School rooms at St. Andrew's Church when a group of young men, who once formed the Sunday School class taught by Vernon Weir, met after an absence of some nine years. Eighteen pupils, some from outside of the city, gathered in the old Sunday School room once again and reminisced the days when they attended each Sunday in 1924-25 for Sunday School.

Those pupils who were original members came from out-lying points to be present at this unique gathering or reunion. Lloyd Wilson of Campbellford and Allan and Jack Kerr, sons of Norman Kerr, Kerr were present from Montreal. The entire class was present on the occasion one to be long remembered. Following the meeting in the school rooms the party went to a local cafe for dinner.

Mr. Weir who for many years taught these now young successful men, was highly honored by his ex-pupils, who assured him that it was their wish to make the occasion an annual event for whom they had a class, and a class and renew old acquaintances.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

The story of how "The Masquerader" came to be a picture, with Ronald Colman in its dual roles at the Belle, starting tomorrow (Tuesday), is almost as strange and intriguing as the story itself, which reminds of a former mistress can tell a husband and lover from his double.

"The Masquerader," of course, started life as a novel, a best seller of 1905, by Catherine Cecil Thurston. It concerned a British politician dissipated and depraved by drugs. In England's great crisis, a young cousin from Canada steps per in to take his place at the helm of state and there is the fun of perpetuating the story's masquerade.

Became a Play

The opportunity for quick changes and unlimited virtuosity in acting had already put E. H. Sothern on playing "The Prisoner of Zenda" all over two continents, and, in a slightly altered manner, made the fame of Richard Mansfield. Dr. Henry Jekyll and Edward Hyde appearable in Fredric Marnis and Athos.

It was Guy Bates Post and Richard Walton Tully, the pair who made theatrical history with "Omar the Tent-maker" and "Omar, the Tentmaker," who finally held hands on "The Masquerader" and brought it forth to theatrical fame.

John Hunter Booth held the dramatization. In September, 1917, Post and Tully, Post as the villain-hero and Tully as the producer, brought it from a roaring success on the road to the Lyric, London and New York. From the moment the curtain rose on a heavy London fog in which materialized Mr. Post in a silk hat and immaculate evening attire and his double, a triumph of make-up, in a slouched fedora "The Masquerader" was taken to the heart of the world.

"Omar, the Tentmaker," had given Post and Tully slightly less than a Corew. Her husband doesn't want her either. So she vanishes from the picture, followed by no end Arne and Brader and Corew, bitter enemies on her account and bosom friends of long standing, drinking heartily together and starting off to conquer another bit of nature and turn one more oil for the world.

Holt, as always, is splend'd. He goes easily through all the different lies he has to meet, always the thorough gentleman. Corew-cut fightin man. Fay Wray is the vacillating Vida Corew, and gives a fine performance in a role far different from that in which theatre-goers are used to seeing her. Donald Cook is her husband, who is transformed and lovehened and made a better man through the influence of his wife and friends.

Two other players are outstanding in unusual characterizations—Alan Hale as the bandit-chief, General Rayon. You can't help but like him and be amused by him in spite of his villainy. His mannerisms are used to the limit. The other is little dark-eyed Reginald Denny, who is the comic relief in love with the hero. She proves to be not only vivacious and cute-ishly as well as beautiful, but also reveals herself as an emotional actress.

"The settings are striking, and Director Irving Cummings has kept his story moving along without a dreary moment.

"The Woman I Stole" deserves short mention as a picture—short in time that will give genuine entertainment to the whole family.

"The Big Broadcast" and Dinner Gift Days as usual.

AT THE CAPITOL

Another of those colorful, fast-moving tales by the famous novelist, Joseph Hergesheimer, reached the local motion picture screen this afternoon when his popular "Tampico," produced by Columbia and starring Jack Holt and Fay Wray, began a three day engagement at the Capitol Theatre. The feature title is "The Woman I Stole."

You're always sure of good entertainment in a Hergesheimer story. Remember the famous "Javelin Daviddi" That was his, as was "The Bright Shawl" "Java Head," "Cytheres" and many another. He always has a dramatic local for the yarns (this one is an oil field on the edge of a desert), and his characters are always interesting people.

"The Woman I Stole" reveals Jack Holt as a swaggering, cocksure soldier of fortune who has always had everything he wanted. What he desires he takes. He can't be bought, bullied and frightened. His is absolutely sure of himself—and has a right to be.

Nine calls as the oil-magnate, Jim Brader, happens to want Vida Codee, wife of the superintendent. He finds her in charge of the fields. He doesn't hesitate to tell her that he wants her and is going to take her. And she knows Wray—is willing to go away with him.

But in men like Jim Brader, their work comes before women or any other interests. There is a crooked general manager, Lenis, who is delivering the Atlanus Oil Company over slowly to its rival Mr. must be disposed of—and is. There is a bandit chieftain, a General Rayon who loots the Atlanus payrolls and fires the wells. Brader nests an end to his evil activities. The Atlanus oil fields must be apprehended out, and Brader straightens them.

By the time all this is accomplished, he doesn't want Vida Corew. Her husband doesn't want her either. So she vanishes from the picture, followed by no end Arne and Brader and Corew, bitter enemies on her account and bosom friends of long standing, drinking heartily together and starting off to conquer another bit of nature and turn one more oil for the world.

Holt, as always, is splend'd. He goes easily through all the different lies he has to meet, always the thorough gentleman. Corew-cut fightin man. Fay Wray is the vacillating Vida Corew, and gives a fine performance in a role far different from that in which theatre-goers are used to seeing her. Donald Cook is her husband, who is transformed and lovehened and made a better man through the influence of his wife and friends.

Two other players are outstanding in unusual characterizations—Alan Hale as the bandit-chief, General Rayon. You can't help but like him and be amused by him in spite of his villainy. His mannerisms are used to the limit. The other is little dark-eyed Reginald Denny, who is the comic relief in love with the hero. She proves to be not only vivacious and cute-ishly as well as beautiful, but also reveals herself as an emotional actress.

"The settings are striking, and Director Irving Cummings has kept his story moving along without a dreary moment.

"The Woman I Stole" deserves short mention as a picture—short in time that will give genuine entertainment to the whole family.

Appendicitis

Millions of dollars have been spent on costly operations for appendicitis when health might easily have been restored through chiropractic adjustments. For every disease there is a cause and a chiropractor can determine and remove the cause of appendicitis as readily as he can remove the cause of the nerves conditions. Whether the case be acute or chronic chiropractic is most effective.

CRASHES THRU HIGH WINDOW

Former Fort William Mayor Dies After Fall

New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—Eugene Murphy, former mayor of Fort William, Ont., fell to his death Friday from a 10th floor window of a Park Avenue Hotel.

Murphy's mother, Mrs. James Murphy, and his brother, James Philip Murphy, were in an adjoining room. The body landed on a wire screen over a skylight set in the roof of a fifth floor extension of the hotel.

The Murphy Brothers, operators of a coal business formerly conducted by their father who died five years ago, registered at the hotel with their mother Tuesday. They were to have started back today night for their home at Port William (433 Selkirk Avenue). James Murphy told police he believed his brother suffered a heart attack at the moment he opened a window in his room to let fresh air in. He recalled that his brother had got out of a taxi cab. After an investigation, police pronounced the death an accident.

Besides the brother's story, they learned from other guests with windows on the same court that Murphy collapsed as he raised the window, fell against the draft pane, breaking it and then fell to his death.

PLAYER BREAKS ELBOW

Toronto, Oct. 23 (CP) — Eddie Burke, in training with the New York Americans of the National Hockey League, was suffering today from a broken elbow, received when he lost his balance and fell while practicing backhand shots. Burke, a "rookie" boy, had just signed a contract before going on the ice.

For the LOVE of EVE

by Lucy Walling

"It's really dyed bunny," the other admitted. "The difference between this and the stuff I coveted wasn't quite enough. I'm playing the market darling, and it's the most exciting thing I ever did. I'm in need myself to start; I pyramid. You must let me give you some tips."

Later she recited. Eve in ride home with her for dinner and at five o'clock they met. Eve was immediately thrown into the seething mass of humanity homeward bound via the subway.

Ellsworth Prentiss, Freda's husband was an instructor in a private school and each afternoon arrived home an hour or so before his wife returned from the office. They usually started preparations for their dinner.

The Prentiss apartment consisted of a hurriedly furnished living room and a spacious sleeping room with all its furnishings in pairs—twin beds two chests of drawers, a slipper chair and sturdy arm chair two night stands and reading lamps. There was a cozy rollaway and blue kitchenet and here Freidas had set the table for three, Irene explained that for "regular dinner" they used the gateleg table in the living room. Eve however, was accepted as a boon friend and she enjoyed the simple meal of boiled potatoes, broiled chops, creamed carrots, hot rolls and an icebox dessert.

The two girls cleared the table and stacked the dishes. Then they left Irene's husband before the fire, boring over a magazine, and went out to a concert.

"I'll never be famous," Irene said as they walked down the quiet street. "Probably I'll never be free from worry, either, but there's one thing I'm thankful for—good old Ell. Get yourself a good man, Eve, if there's one to be found these days!"

Eve resisted the temptation to tell Irene Irene that she had let her job last week to find time to write in the daytime. Evenings I spent looking at apartments and dining.

"Well, the lad,I saw of you you seemed to have pretty lively consolation!" Eve said pointedly.

"What do you mean?"

"I thought perhaps your time was taken up with your friends. By the way had not-passed to refer to the young man and girls Dick had met at the station the night of their marriage. She waited now, expecting an apology or at least an explanation but none came.

"Who was he?" Eve's voice was pitched a note too high but she managed to keep it steady. Dick did not answer her question. He was simply being exasperating; making her be explicit. Very well.

"Who was the man you met at the station?" she repeated.

"Joe Carter."

"I've never heard you mention him. Is he a friend of yours?"

"He's the timekeeper on the job."

"And the girls—who were they?"

"They answered to the names of Peggy and Babe."

"I didn't know you liked that sort of girls."

"What sort?"

"Oh, the kind who picks up a strange man and has him call her by her first name right from the start."

"So that's it! Well, you're wrong. Those girls are harmless enough. Campers appeal to Peggy if that reassures you."

"Where did you go after you put me on the train?"

"To the merry-go-round." Dick answered frankly. "The Merry-Go-Round was Lake City's best known night club.

Eve considered this. "And I suppose the girls went too?" she asked.

"Yes—of course," Dick was obviously irritated.

"A perfect frame-up! " Eve scorned.

"Now, see here, Eve!" Dick exploded. "It was entirely an accidental that Joe happened to see me there. I didn't know I was going to the station at that time and you know it!"

"Was it the fact remains that on your wedding night you went out to have a good time with somebody else!"

"Well, what did you expect me to do—go home and cry?"

"But you had all those evenings!"

"I suppose you were too busy with Joe Carper's friends—"

"And that will be that!" Dick said with emphasis.

Silence. Then with head high Eve went to the bathroom to hide her eyes with which hasn and repair her complexion.

When she reappeared she smiled at Dick wistfully. He held out his arms and she slipped into them. Eve whispered coaxingly "Just how did my darling spend his evening?"

With a snort of impatience Dick withdrew his arms. turned and walked to the window. Then he said with control. "Looking for an apartment, of course."

"This one is perfect," Eve assured him. "I'm sorry we were late of it."

Dick was silent. Obviously something was wrong. Eve made another attempt.

"It was a terrible thing for me to do, I know," she conceded. "I don't believe any girl ever had such a situation to face on her wedding day. I'm sure no one ever up to you."

Eve felt unconvinceable. She was not quite sure what attitude she wished him to take in this matter.

"You didn't write," she accused him.

"I didn't run away from you," he reminded her. "And—it was silly, I suppose, but I didn't bring myself to address a letter to my married wife as Miss Eve Bayless. Besides,didnjust between.them that did not I was having too much grief on thedisappear.

CHAPTER 5

Dick had stopped at the Y. W. C. A. for Eve's mail on his way to the station to meet her. There was a large envelope from her mother containing a check for sixty for Dick. Eve's parents had been asked not to announce the marriage.

"Why, bless her heart!" said Dick. "It must have taken her a whole evening to write this! It's a great many years since anyone called me Richard."

And indeed it had taken Mrs. Bayless a whole evening to compose that first painstaking letter to her new son-in-law. Into Bayless, plump, patient and domestic, was suffering the tortures of rheumatic fingers incurred from years of hard toil in the interest of her family.

Henry Bayless—or "Gent" as he generally was known—was secretly proud of his wife and daughters and prated of their achievements to outsiders. But it was, his firm belief that encouragement would cause them to overdo and therefore they seldom heard direct words of praise.

Soon after his marriage to Kate, Hank had established a small battery and egg route. His earnings had to be stretched to enable Kate to care to cover the cost of publishing his two daughters, keep up the home and put by something for old age. It had been a hard life but Kate had to have a business of his own. However, a large stock company gradually absorbed the latter and sage routes of the neighborhood. Hank's with the rest. After that he secured work with a company manufacturing passenger elevators. His work was to assist in assembling the parts and check for quality.

Thrift was the watchword of the Bayless home. Hank had taught his family always to have the cash on hand before any purchase was made. For years he had set aside regularly a small sum to invest in the stock of the local manufacturing concern which had been built up from a small beginning by two of his friends in whom he had the greatest confidence. In the course of years the dividends from this investment became irregular and uncertain and it was whispered about that the company was not as stable as it had been. Hank stopped investing in the stock and mentioned his weekly deposits at the bank.

Despite all this careful saving and economizing, Kate Bayless had managed to lay by over the years a small but steadily growing accumulation of dollars. Unknown to Hank, she had deposited this money in a building and loan association.

Kate saved for this fund by untiring industry. Blessed with abundant health, she poured her energy into her home-making. From her European-born mother she had learned the knack of preparing delicious and sustaining food at comparatively little cost. No task was too arduous to be overcome by her willing hands. Her children had succumbed to plans born of her hopes.

Kate was overjoyed when teachers reported that her daughters had definite artistic tendencies. Esther slim, dark and rosy-cheeked, had a real gift for music. After several years of study at local conservatory she became a successful music teacher.

Then she pleased her mother by marrying a young bank clerk and settling in a baby called Katherine Ann for Mrs. Bayless.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In utter darkness and silence, Blake did not know how long he remained in the dark dungeon beneath King Richard's castle. Then, faint to him before approaching footsteps disturbed the dreadful mystery of that buried vault. Now, the flickering light of a pine torch was half blinding his eyes. But soon he saw standing before him two knights. "Yes, 'tis he," said one. "Dost thou not know us, Sir Black Knight?" asked the other, after a pause.

Blake scanned them closely. He saw a great bandage wrapped about the youngerr man's neck—and then he recognized him. "I guess this is where I get paid!" he said with a wry smile. "You fellows certainly haven't come to pin any medals on me." They spoken in riddles," replied the older knight. They were Sir Wilfred and Sir Guy, whom Blake had defeated and so chivalrously refuse to kill during the combats of the great tourney.

"We have avenged all that," replied Wilfred. "Sir said Sir Wilfred, "we have come to free ye. Sir Guy and my self will be at the outer barbican this night. He can pass thee through, but beyond the city gates, we cannot get thee. There then must trust to Our luck."

They smuggled Jimmy through secret passages, gave him food, drink and provided a horse. At midnight with the escorting knights, Blake rode to the castle gates. Here he bids his generous enemies farewell.

"King Bohun vows he would burn thee at the stake," ye Sir Guy will be at the outer barbican this night. He can pass thee through, but beyond the city gates, we cannot get thee. There then must trust to Our luck."

DEFENSIVE CHARGE

"No Hands" Defensive Line Play Described

By HERB McCRACKEN

Head Football Coach at Lafayette

The low "no hands" defensive charge.

Some coaches teach their line, on defence, to gain their objective by using the power of the shoulders and body instead of finessing with the hands.

Now, the objective of every defensive lineman is to have himself under control so as to be able to make the tackle or upset the interference should the play come his way.

The coaches who have their defensive lines playing low right next to the ground", on all fours before the ball is snapped, believe that the best way to penetrate the offensive wall is to bump it aside and plow through it, using a strong pushing leg impulse for the initial dig, and a shoulder and side-body crash to dissipate the force of the offensive lineman's charge.

These photographs from a movie picture film, show just how this is accomplished.

The defensive player, on the right his alley.

is doing his work beautifully. This is real inside football. When you see a defensive line down on all fours (with perhaps the exception of the ends) you want to look for some fine handless charging like this.

It requires wonderful body control, usually much more than high school players are able to obtain with their limited experience.

Occasionally, one finds a high school team able to use this defensive charge effectively. But it is rare enough even when a senior team is able to use it with success.

However, when a coach believes in this charge to the extent that he will base his defensive line play on it, that coach usually has a line well worth watching in action.

Notice that after the charge has been made, and the offensive player knocked aside off balance, that the defensive player has his feet under him (picture No. 5) and is in a position to move either right or left to nab the ball-carrier should the play be coming down

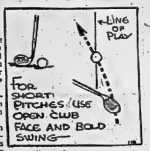
GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX J. MORRISON

Canada Pro Champion

ALEXANDER MORRISON SAYS:

In my last article I suggested using an open stance with the face of the club laid back for short pitch shots.



There's just one mistake you're liable to make in lining up this shot.

With other shots I've cited the importance of having the shaft of the club leaning forward.

That is, so that the hands are slightly ahead of the ball. This is most necessary when you come to play any kind of a cue shot with a mashie or mashie niblick.

When you lean the shaft backwards so that your hands are behind the ball as you start you're bound to hit the ground back of the ball.

Lean the shaft forward and keep your chin back.

ALEX MORRISON says:

A short pitch shot, particularly if it has to be played over a hazard, seems to be altogether too difficult for the average player.

Occasionally, he'll hit the ball just right and loft is nicely so that it can land alongside of the hole. More often, however, his club feet under him (picture No. 5) and is in a position to move either right or left to nab the ball-carrier should the play be coming down the right result.

★ HOW TO THROW THAT FORWARD PASS ★

FINGER MUST BE ON LACE—HOW TO MAKE SPIRAL

By HERB McCRACKEN

Head Football Coach of Lafayette, Former All-American Player

The casual observer might be led to believe that all forward passers toss the ball the same way. But that isn't so.

As baseball players vary their grips on the ball so do passers in gripping footballs.

However, all observe certain principles, for throwing hard, accurate spirals. They all place one finger or more on the lace—usually more than one finger.

Harry Stuhldreher, one-time Notre Dame Horseman and now head coach at Villanova, is among those who recommend and use the placing of only the little finger on the lace. Thus the rest of the hand comes back of the ball more.

If the little finger is the only digit placed on the lace the thumb and index finger come closer to the rear point of the ball.

However, every player ought to experiment for himself to see which grip suits him best.

Picture No. 1 shows the most commonly used grip for throwing the forward pass.

For younger boys and those players whose hands are rather small, the flat pass grip, shown in picture No. 2, is recommended as a starter.

This grip is also used by experts on rainy, muddy days when it is almost impossible to get any sort of a grip on the ball.

In this flat pass grip the ball lies in the hand and is given the spiral motion by an inward pulling of the fingers as the ball is about to be thrown.

Picture No. 3 shows the grip on the ball before the ball is drawn up and cocked for the act of passing. When the passer receives the ball from centre he instantly adjusts it, as is shown in picture No. 3 without looking at the ball, of course. Remember that!

The passer must keep his eyes open to avoid tacklers and to look for eligible receivers.

This discussion is only in regard to grips and does not show the proper arm-draw and cocking of the ball.

The forward pass used to be thrown with a sweeping arm motion. Some passers still use this motion but the majority of players have long since adopted a style of tossing regarded more conductive to accuracy.

Cliff Montgomery, outstanding American star, who posed for the above pictures, uses the over-arm delivery which is a toss much the same as a catcher's peg to second base.

Notice how the ball is cocked behind the ear.

After the initial snap of the arm the co-ordinated movement of the arm and body is unlike that of a baseball catcher's. By the time the follow-through stage is reached the arm is swinging sidewars.

The baseball catcher finishes his follow-through with his hand pointing to the ground—if he is using the customary whiplash peg.

If the forward passer carried the catcher's movements all the way through, the football would not spiral in the desired position. This turning of the hand toward the left (in right-handed passers) as the ball is about to be delivered.

This forward pass — as you can see by the above photos, is taken from a position which is a virtual standstill, with only slight body work. Under game conditions the passer is moving either backward or to the side. As he moves he has the ball gripped properly, holding it in readiness for instantaneous throwing.

Study these pictures, Nos. 1 to 5, and try to emulate Montgomery as much as possible.

Canada's Football Hero Returns to The Wars

Lionel Conacher probably Canada's greatest athlete, has returned to the game at which he made his name ring from coast to coast. When professional football made its debut in Toronto, some 10,000 fans turned out to see Lionel in action. They were not disappointed. With an ill-trained and make-shift team behind him, he played almost a lone hand in nearly defeating a team from Rochester, well-versed in the American game. They just couldn't stop him. The return game in Rochester was a repetition and sports writers of that city proclaimed they had never seen a football player who could hook a ball as far and wide as Lionel, who is also a star hockey defence man. Lionel's brother Charlie, also of hockey fame, is not so well-known as his brother at the fall pastime, but he plays a great game on the half-line. Above is seen Charlie (left) and Lionel the great, at right.

COMMODITY RISE TO FOLLOW GOLD BUYING?

SNOW FALLS THROUGHOUT ONTARIO IN FIRST STORM OF SEASON

Lifting of Prices Will Succeed Purchase of Gold is View in U. S.

First Purchase of Newly Mined Gold on Wednesday

PRICE FIXING

Decline of Dollar is Foreseen in Result of Gold Market

Washington, Oct. 24—(AP)—The first purchase of newly mined gold under President Roosevelt's move toward a managed currency will be made tomorrow.

Jesse Jones, a chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, and Acheson, as acting secretary of the Treasury, and probably Henry Morgenthau, Jr., representing the President will meet at the Treasury at 9.30 a.m. or soon thereafter.

Through the Treasury's regular facilities, foreign gold purchased at that time will be received and the price and amount of the first federal purchase decided upon.

President Roosevelt today conferred with the three officials will participate in tomorrow's conference.

It was asserted later that the price of the purchase would be announced by 10 a.m. E.S.T.

It was said in high government quarters today that the price to be paid would be slightly above the world price level, but officials refrained from giving any more definite indications of the amount to be paid.

Lifting Prices

Washington, Oct. 24—(AP)—The United States government set out today to put into practical effect President Roosevelt's new monetary plan for lifting commodity prices.

New York, Oct. 24—(AP)—President Roosevelt's plan of having the RFC buy newly-mined gold at such prices as seemed desirable was described by foreign exchange men as a short-cut to control of the dollar.

While the amount of gold newly-mined in the States is almost negligible in its effect upon international movements of funds, the RFC's taking a price at which it will buy this metal, foreign exchange experts said, provides a clear indication of what Washington thought the dollar was worth in terms of gold.

It was felt, therefore that a rise in the price to which the RFC is buying gold would quickly be reflected in a decline in the value of the dollar in terms of other currencies. The treasury is now basing its price for newly mined gold on the London open market price, about London is now virtually the only free market for the yellow metal.

MAE MURRAY IS DIVORCED

All Claims to Alimony Waived By Screen Star

Los Angeles, Oct. 24' (AP) Waiving all claims of alimony Mae Murray, blonde screen actress, was granted in Superior Court today divorced from Prince David Mdivani.

Paving the way for the hearing of their divorce case today, attorneys for Mae Murray, motion picture actress, and her husband, Prince David Mdivani, announced property interests between the two had been settled.

The settlement calls for the payment of no alimony, no separate maintenance for Miss Murray, relinquishes all interest in any community property of the couple.

Miss Murray tyled her suit for divorce last June, charging mental cruelty. She and the Prince were married in 1926 in Beverly Hills, the Prince being her fourth husband.

FARMER KILLED ON HONEYMOON TRIP

Rigaud, Que., Oct. 24 (CP) — Hugh Clement, 45, Grenville farmer, while on his way to a new job on a cheese farm, was instantly killed by an automobile driven by H. H. Burns, Todmorden, Ont., when with his bride was returning home from a honeymoon. A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury.

London Fails to Comprehend

(By Thos T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 24 (C.P. Cable) — Canadian financial experts in Britain, after careful study of the latest message of President Franklin D. Roosevelt announcing the government would buy and sell gold with the object of controlling the currency, confess they are unable to understand it.

The Times, in an editorial today expressed the opinion the United States' chief executive had moved very far, if at all, from his position at the beginning of the World Economic Conference. It says a "managed" currency cannot be reconciled with restoration of the gold standard, with sound currency, or with a revalued dollar.

Stabilization, comments the Morning Post, is still a long way off. The newspaper holds that technical "dollar-for-dollar," and declares even an apparently table price level is the guarantee of a healthy underlying condition. "If American Liberty Roosevelt's course this generation is unlikely to see restoration of a uniform international standard," The Post adds.

"Most countries desire to return to the gold standard, and there will be little real stabilization a gold and a dollar standard—which would prove a serious sense of distance to international trade."

The Financial Post declares control of the gold value of the dollar by the administration depends on something more than "phrase-spinning." To say the United States is moving toward a managed currency, that unit is revalued after restoration of the gold standard "would be cynicism at all," says the Financial newspaper. "The managed interests in Britain will believe in the stabilization and revaluation of the dollar only when they see a clear declaration carrying official warrant that they are not playing fast, with a means of safeguarding success, of any relative plains, have been decided."

FOUR-INCH HEELS ARE LITTLE TO STAND ON

Heavy-Suited Woman Fails Trying to Descend Real Slain

Brooklyn, N.Y., Oct. 24 (CP) — Four-inch heels do not give a woman much support on the bridge of Moscowitz's court. Mrs. Agnes Hudson, seeking $75,000 for a fall downstairs on the fishing boat Sachem, lost her suit yesterday. Said the judge:

"This woman wore heels three to four inches high. She weighs 190 pounds and is 54 years of age. Certainly it is negligence for a person to set woman unaccustomed to boats to descend a stairway on a fishing boat wearing heels of such height. It was her own fault."

ATTEMPT TO BURN CHURCH

Hull, Que., Oct. 24.—(CP)—Police opened an investigation today into what they believe was an attempt to burn St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church here last night. A can of gasoline was found near a side door after two men had been frightened away.

"Chiseller" No Longer Slang Since Roosevelt Uses it in His Speech

New York, Oct. 24 (CP)—Because President Roosevelt used it in an address Sunday night, the word "chiseller" applied to those who cheats, is no longer slang, Frank H. Vizetelly, lexicographer, declared today.

Several times in the course of two paragraphs, the President spoke of "chisellers," meaning those who shirked in the government's recovery drive.

"President Roosevelt's use of the word automatically elevates it from the status of slang to colloquialism, said Vizetelly. When a man of such standing as the President of the United States employs a slang phrase he clothes it with dignity."

LIBERALS ARE VICTORS IN 3 BY-ELECTIONS

Liberal Leader Comments on Results as Affecting Country

WIN ALL CONTESTS

C.C.F. Defeated in First Test of Strength in Dominion

Ottawa, Oct. 24—(CP)—With representatives of his party triumphant in the by-elections yesterday, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, sees in this a justification for the people demanding a "general election". In widely scattered parts of the country—northern New Brunswick, southern Quebec, and Saskatchewan—voters went to the polls yesterday and in each case returned the Liberal standard bearer.

In Restigouche-Madawaska, J. E. Michaud returned the Liberal and Conservative line-up by a majority of 6,233 votes over Paul L. Dube. In Yamaska, Aime Boucher, who was unseated by a Supreme Court judgment after gaining the riding in the 1930 election, was returned by a small majority which, early today, unofficially stood at the halfway mark. J. A. MacMillan was the constituency of Mackenzie which had been represented by a Progressive since 1921 by a majority approximately 2,000 votes.

Chalet Interest

Chalet interest in the three by-elections lay in Mackenzie, for it was there, that the fiery co-leader L. S. Stubbs tested the strength of the new Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, the first federal appeal of the party.

CHARGE MAY BE AMENDED

His Lordship so Instructs Jury in Delivering Charge

His Lordship, Hon. Justice Wright instructed the jury who are hearing the case of Bruce Cooney, Sidney, charged with a serious offence, that they should decide what they could reduce the charge if they so desired, when he addressed them at the conclusion of the case. The jury retired shortly before the noon recess and it is expected a verdict will be given before late afternoon.

The rifle, that was alleged to have been used by the accused in threatening this girl was produced and one witness testified, that he had seen the rifle in the school rabbits and another witness stated that he was present when the gun was loaned. A statement given by the accused to Provincial Constable Ross was allowed in as evidence. A Belleville police officer said the accused pleaded guilty to the assault upon the complainant and at the time was committed for trial. The writer was accused also gave testimony, in cross examination she denied stating "she had Cooney where she wanted him." Dr. W. G. Morgan, gaol surgeon told of the physical condition of Cooney on his admission to gaol and said the accused in giving testimony stated that a drinking party during the absence of relative to get the girl and that they had gone out in the back of the truck but that he stayed in the truck. Dr. Morgan identified the rifle to go hunting but denied threatening the girl with the gun. His Lordship in reviewing the evidence stated that drunkenness was not an excuse for crime and that the charge could be amended to a lesser count.

"Above and Beyond" Is Theme of Remembrance Day Service

Steady Fall of Snow is First Real Visit of Snow-King

SNOW UP NORTH

Residents of the city picked their way through a thick coating of slush on city streets today as the first advance guard of winter's white-coated battalions invaded the city and district in soft fall during the morning stretching through to 4 p.m. as it fell. It was the first actual snowfall of the season, but it was not the first visit of snow and rain.

Although the first fall was received over the city during the early hours of the morning, roads which coated fields and lawns did not stay. Comparatively high temperatures which were maintained throughout the day melted it as it fell. In the northern townships of the county, however, a real fall was reported received.

At Frankford during the early morning the fall was said by Mr. Arthur Jones, to have reached a depth of two and one half inches; in Bancroft, Marmora and throughout that district, reports from the office of the Canadian National Railways in the city, indicated that the fall was even heavier. Cars and transport trucks which passed through the city from the north during the morning all carried their heavy burden of snow caked on top of the vehicles. Travel was difficult during the day owing to the poor visibility ahead. During the highways around the city all vehicles travelled at a cautious speed after 4 o'clock in the morning when the soft, fine downfall reached its heaviest proportions.

Hotels in the city reported a swift business in the week-end booked lodgings from early in the morning until late evening and visibility sufficiently to permit them to travel on the highways.

By noon with a few points drop in temperature, the snow was taken its first grip on the city and the strange sight of "building" cars and lawns coated with the winter to residents of Ontario that year is the re-sitting, snow fell in widely separated parts of the Province today. The North Country and certain sections of Western Ontario experienced a fall of two inches while in the Central part of the Province only a few flakes fell.

At Hearst and Prairie two inches covered the ground. The temperatures in Dunsmuir, who is cast in the picture to support Lucille Brown, the feminine lead; Kenneth Blaber, producer, and Robert Hill, director.

Impressions of Recent Trials of Convicts at Kingston Told Rotary by Judge Deroche

Human Side of Life Revealed—All Convicts During Trial Courteous—Many Prisoners Still Wish to Establish Selves in Society

One of the most unusual and interesting events in the history of Canada was the recent trial of convicts charged with rioting in the Kingston penitentiary. The trial scene was laid in the court house at Kingston and there were many unusual features about it. His Honour Judge G. E. Deroche of Belleville was one of the four judges to sit on the various cases and he spent six weeks listening to evidence of the many witnesses called to attempt to fix the exact facts of what happened and who was to blame.

Before Belleville Rotary Club Monday Judge Deroche gave some of his impressions of the trial of the convicts, of the human side of it, and his address was one of interest human interest, holding the closest attention of the large gathering of Rotarians present. The Judge made it plain at the start that his talk would have nothing to do with the administration of the penitentiary, the question of reform or of investigation, it would be just some side lights of the trial which appealed to him as out of the ordinary and holding unusual human interest.

Describing the scene of the trial, the fine old Court House with its many historical memories, the arrival each morning under heavy guard of twelve to eighteen convicts from the massive prison garb. The curious crowd of spectators gathered in front of the Court House and how they could reduce the charge if they so desired, when he addressed the court the convicts rose in a body. The jury retired shortly before the noon recess and it is expected a verdict will be given before late afternoon.

The rifle, that was alleged to have been used by the accused in threatening this girl was produced and one witness testified, that he had seen the rifle in the school rabbits and another witness stated that he was present when the gun was loaned. A statement given by the accused to Provincial Constable Ross was allowed in as evidence. Winter Throws White Mantle Gently Upon the Landscape

HISTORIAN OF BRITISH ARMY DIES AGED 73

Sir John William Fortescue Came of Noted Military Family

30 YEARS AT WORK

Monumental History in 13 Volumes Just Completed

Grasse, France, Oct. 24.—(CP) Cable)—Sir John William Fortescue, British military historian and scion of famous military family, Sir John William Fortescue was dead today at his French home near here, Demaine de Fortescue. He was 73 years of age.

Sir John only recently completed the greatest work of his career, a monumental history of the British Army in 13 volumes, on which he worked for 30 years. It is to be published shortly. Outstanding among his other writings were "The Empire and the Army", "Marlborough", "Wellington", and "Young Lieutenancies and the Army". He also edited the correspondence of George the Third.

Born December 28, 1859, Sir John was the fifth son of the Third Earl Fortescue of Devon. The peerage was created in 1721 but Fortescue family traces its descent at least six centuries. One of Sir John's ancestors was one of the great soldiers in the martial reign of Henry V and the family lineage is studded with the military exploits of the Fortescues.

Sir John William himself was one of a family of seven brothers—six soldiers and a soldier—and seven sisters. One of the soldiers was killed in the South African war, the sailor was lost at sea. Of his four nephews, three were soldiers; one was killed in action in 1915.

Sir John, formerly a major of the Royal North Devon yeomanry cavalry, became librarian at Windsor Castle in 1905 and occupied that distinguished position until 1926. He was the recipient of many honors, including the Chesney Gold Medal. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Literature from Edinburgh and Oxford Universities, and an honorary fellowship of Trinity College, Cambridge.

He was created Knight Commander of the Victorian Order in 1924. In 1914 he married Winifred, the daughter of Rev. Howard Beech of Sussex. There were no children.

Sir John was Ford Lecturer at Oxford in 1911, Creighton Lecturer at London University in 1919, and Rede Memorial Lecturer at Cambridge in 1913 and 1919.

Young Mantell, Discouraged Over Career as Actor, Shoots Himself

Hollywood, Oct. 24 (AP)—Police reported Robert Mantell, Jr., 21-year old son of the late Robert B. Mantell, Shakespearian actor, shot and killed himself early today in the apartment occupied by himself and his mother, known on the stage by Genevieve Hamper.

The suicide for which friends told police the movie apparently was discouragement over his career as an actor, took place on the eve of his mother's return to the stage. Miss Hamper was to appear in the role of Portia tomorrow night at a Los Angeles theatre.

The youth had accompanied his mother to a theatre Sunday night and returned to their apartment late last night. Several hours later, Miss Hamper was awakened by a revolver shot and found her son dead,

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Erie, Pa., Oct. 24 (CP)—Baby Hubert Bird made his world entry in a dramatic setting. The child was born in an operating room lighted by the candles after hospital attendants had carried the mother up two flights of stairs. A power failure had put the electrical commission and doomed the lights.

Seattle, Oct. 24 (CP)—Edward Floyd, almost 13, confident that it cost him $13 to build a real automobile. The gas tank holds a pint of gas. "She can do eight miles an hour," he said. He has only one cylinder but she's a swell car."

The car was made out of a washing machine gasoline motor with a chain drive, a fifth power car for a seat cushion, a real spark plug and a pedal to start the motor.

New York, Oct. 24 (CP) —A laugh was freedom for Henry Schiller, 35, when Magistrate Bell was arraigned for peddling without a license and the magistrate said: Stop that, you in there."

"Two days!" exclaimed Schiller with a comic expression. "All distances in the cart will be spelled——"

The magistrate laughed.

"Sentence suspended" he said.

Wilmington, O., Oct. 24 (CP) —William and Fannie Blanchester were married in 1884 but if William has his way they won't celebrate their golden anniversary next year. He filed suit for divorce, alleging Mrs. Long removed his bed and made him sleep on a chair.

VOTE RESULTS INTERPRETED

Premier Taschereau And Hon. H. H. Stevens Express Views

Quebec, Oct. 24 — Commenting on a Liberal victories in the three Dominion by-elections yesterday, Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec, said:

"I am glad the most sincere friends of the government cannot be ignorant of the extent of their triple defeat which came on the morrow of the Nova Scotia disaster and the eve of that in British Columbia.

"Every sophistry escape such setbacks. Is it not the falling due of the promissory notes of 1930?"

Montreal, Oct. 24—Results of yesterday's by-elections in the Dominion were interpreted as a Resignation by Madawaska, Yamaska and MacKenzie, following closely upon the victory of his party in Nova Scotia, by the general elections in Nova Scotia, "would seem to indicate that the feeling Canada-wide is turning to Liberal party," said Premier Auguste L. Macdonald today.

Fortune of War.

Edmonton, Oct. 24—"The fortunes of war," remarked Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when queried today on the result of the three Federal by-elections.

"It's a sign of the times," remarked Premier John Brownlee, Alberta member of parliament for West Edmonton riding and former Minister of the Interior. The results are clear indications that the people want a return to the prosperity they enjoyed under the Liberals. I expected that the Liberal representatives would win, but not by such large majorities."

Saskatoon, Oct. 24—As returns continued to pour into the returning officer's quarters late this morning, the lead piled up by J. A. MacMillan, Liberal candidate in yesterday's by-election for the Federal seat of Mackenzie constituency. With 75 polls still to hear from MacMillan's majority stood at 1,138 over Angus MacInnis, C.C.F. candidate. At St. O. Stubbs. Unreported polls are in the northern part of the large riding.

SEVEN BOYS BORN IN ONE DELIVERY

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 24—(CP)—Seven children — all boys—delivered in one birth in one delivery is believed an extraordinary occurrence in medical history. While several cases have been recorded of triplets, this is believed to be the first where all are boys.

The mother and children were reported all doing well and the father, Lesly Powell, is jubilant.

City and District News

SOME NEEDS CANNOT BE INCLUDED

City relief officials find themselves hampered at the start of the cold weather in their work of caring for the needy of the city by the fact that many articles of home furnishings and clothing which they can not be included in the regular relief donations, the need for mattresses, beds and other like furnishings was stated to be particularly keen, and a plea was made to the public for the city for donations of that character. Articles will be called for on receipt of a phone call.

SKATE OF 50 YEARS AGO IS FOUND

An interesting relic of the days when figure skating was the king of sports in this district was uncovered this week by Mr. Daniel Boland, Dundas Street East. Searching through an accumulation of odds and ends at the home on which Mr. Boland uncovered one of a pair of old-time skates of the type in general use during the 1880's and 90's. The skate is a solid blade and with wooden ankle support. Its discovery is being made for its mate, it hangs in No. 1 firehall.

SOUTH FRONT ST. SEWER COMPLETED

With South Front Street storm sewer finished, except for the construction of manholes and catch basins, the large gang of workers who have been employed on that street during the past year or so under the relief work program were shifted today to Church and Turnbull streets where work was commenced this morning. In spite of the occasional rain the city has the full force of one hundred and fifty men, or more, were employed throughout the day on the various work in the city.

DOCK OPEN UNTIL DECEMBER 15TH

In spite of the falling off in the amount of shipping at the local piers during the past week or so, it is the intention to keep the docks open until about the first of December, it was stated by Harbormaster Robt. County today. Owing to the freezing of the harbors rates for all craft engaged in lake shipping after October 15, caused by the increasing frequency of storms and fall gales, a further decline in shipping is expected from now on.

ANOTHER APPEAL MADE FOR BOOKS

Although a few donations have been received at the city hall during the past week or so in response to the recent plea of officers and workers at the Airport on the Trent Road for books, magazines and other reading matter, has not been as generous as expected, it is reported only a small pile of books at the relief office today for distribution at the camp. Residents of the city who have supplies of reading matter for the men are requested to phone the office—8W —when a call will be made by truck for it.

JUNIOR W. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Junior Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Church was held in the Parish House yesterday. Reports of the past year were given, showed a very successful year and members were enthusiastic in their plans for the new term. Officers elected were:—

President—Joyce Perritt.
Vice President — Mary-Yoke Thomson.
Secretary—Jeanne Orr.
Treasurer and Dorcas Secretary —Lois Gorman.
Superintendent—Mrs. Purdy.

FRED NEWMAN IS NAMED OFFICER

Fred Newman, Picton, who has been actively engaged in the supervision of the Great Lakes Harbor Association for the Detroit, Windsor, he represented marine interests of this district and of Prince Edward County was elected vice-president of the Association at the election of officers of that body. The election of officers completed the business of the annual conference at which plans were made or a campaign to secure ratification of the treaty with Canada and construction of the Great Lakes—St. Lawrence seaway.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. ERNEST MOORE

The remains of the late Mrs. Hilda Isobel (Page) Moore arrived in the city by motor from Toronto, Monday afternoon, and interment took place in the Belleville cemetery. A number of local friends and relatives of the departed who had bereaved husband were present to accord their last tribute of respect to the memory of one they held very dear in life. The Rev. T. G. Corliss of Toronto, pastor of the deceased, accompanied the funeral from that place and officiated at the committal service.

LATE MRS. W. W. COLLINS

Word has been received in the city of the death, Saturday last, of Mrs. Julia Collins, beloved wife of W. W. Collins at her late residence in Darlington, Man. Mrs. Collins had been ill for a number of months, and intelligence of her death was not unexpected by relatives and friends here. Prior to Mrs. Collins was born at Ivanhoe 64 years ago, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fox, and resided in the city for many years. She went to live in the White Lake district 25 years ago she went to Darlington, where she had since made her home.

The deceased was a member of the United Church and previous to her illness was an active member in the Christian activities of that church in Darlington, participating particularly in the work of the Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Collins had numerous friends in Belleville and Hastings County who sincerely regret her demise and their sympathy goes to those bereaved in her passing.

Immediately surviving besides the husband are three sons, John, of Ilfina, Sask., Jack, of Darlington and Keith at home; one daughter Mrs. Wilfrid Hall, of Darlington, Man.; a sister, Mrs. Arthur Jones, Ft. St. John, B.C., and a brother, Jos. W. Fox of this city. Twelve grandchildren also survive.

The funeral took place Monday last at Darlington and interment took place in the Darlington cemetery.

MRS. CLARKE LAPP

The sad intelligence was received in the city this morning, Tuesday, of the death of Mrs. Lillian Lapp, beloved wife of Clarke Lapp, Ottawa, editor of "The Veteran", Mrs. Lapp passed away last evening in the Civic Hospital, Ottawa. She was the daughter of the late Rev. Orlando and Mrs. Wilson, and for several years resided in this city, where she was well known to many of the "Daily Ontario" News, or her death has come as a shock to her friends here. Mrs. Lapp is well and favorably known, and their sympathy goes to the bereaved in her untimely passing.

All to mourn her loss besides the husband are three small sons from seven to thirteen years of age; three brothers, Dr. Wilson and Jack and one in Buffalo; and a brother in Toronto. Another brother lost his life in the Great War.

MIDWEEK MARKET HITS SEASON'S LOW

Following the adverse weather conditions that prevailed on Tuesday morning Belleville's mid-week market proved rather unsuccessful and unprofitable for the few attending. But six or seven vendors offering farm produce were present but soon were forced to abandon their stalls due to the weather conditions and lack of expected trade. No variations in prices were noted.

MILITARY NEWS

Lt. Col. F. A. Geen is successfully endeavoring to make the present training season of the Argyll Light Infantry, not only instructive, but interesting, and in his efforts is receiving the heartiest support of his officers and N.C.O's. Following battalion parade, Monday evening, a most interesting lecture was given on the Lewis gun by Sgt. Maj. Instructor Johnson of the R.C.R., at present attached to the local unit for instructional duties.

He brought with him from Kingston, yesterday, a most complete moving picture machine, and last night in the lecture room, all other ranks assembled and saw depicted on the screen the use of the gun in attack and defence. In slow motion pictures later the action of the various parts of the gun was shown, and as the instructor procured the instructor pointed out that what, transpired and how and why the movements took place. Although there were 4 reels to exhibit time did not permit the complete showing. This will be continued at a later date with further instructional lectures.

Invitations have been received for a social event, a dance, Friday evening next, of interest to many in this and adjoining counties. With the permission of Sir Eric C.B., M.D. No. 3 and the approval of Lt. Col. Yates, M.C., officer commanding the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, the officers of that unit are holding a military dance in the armouries of Madoc on that night. Capt. R. J. Bell, M.C., M.M. and his officers have spared no efforts in making the arrangements for the evening such, that it will be memorable in the social activities of the northern section of the county.

Veterans' Organizations of City Will Combine to Make Poppy Day Real Success

Three From Each Society With Neutral Chairman to Act

OBTAIN COST

Reports Received On Frank St. And Fire Halls

A serious situation respecting the sale of poppies during Poppy Day, which had arisen between the two Service organizations in the city, the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada and the Canadian Legion was amicably settled at the regular meeting of the council on Monday night, when the representatives of each association met with an arbiter and agreed to hold the sale under the Poppy Day Campaign Committee with a chairman chosen, who is neutral and not a member of either organization. The council rescinded all standing motions respecting which organization was to control the sale and gave the right to the newly named committee, and the chairman will be appointed by the Mayor today.

Captain Fairweather of the Provincial Command for Veterans' Poppies was in attendance at the meeting and explained how the sale of poppies was organized, stating that the money derived was to help the needy ex-service man and that the Canadian Legion should have the right to hold the sale providing there was a Legion in existence in the town, where the sale was to be made and that in some organization that was appointed. Members of the council asked Captain Fairweather many questions, one being "if it was necessary to sell Veterat Poppies," and this was answered that Veterat Poppies were made by ex-service men. Another question was asked, "if any other organization other than a Legion branch could buy the poppies and this was answered by Capt. Fairweather "that the Legion had the first right if a branch existed in the town or city.

Debate Active

Representatives of the two organizations were present to discuss their case before the council and sometimes the debate was quite bitter with accusations being thrown from one to the other but Mayor Tice asked the parties if some amicable settlement could not be made as it was not fair to ask the council to make the decision. Captain Fairweather then suggested the arbitrary method, which was finally agreed upon the committee named soon arrived at a solution to the matter. Poppies will be sold in the city on Remembrance Day and the proceeds will be used to help the needy ex-service men.

Maurice Callaghan appeared before the council for the South Ward Athletic Club asking that taxes be remitted on the property where that club is now building a new club house. The property has been sold to the club for the nominal sum of one dollar a year. The council are going to give the request consideration and ask the matter referred back to the committee investigation and report.

Another discussion arose when a letter from the secretary of the Board of Education respecting signing to be placed near the schools and the request for a sidewalk on the west side of North Front Street from the overhead bridge to King George School was received. Ald. Bennett moved that the communication be filed but before the discussion closed a recommendation was passed that the matter of placing signs near the schools be left to the City Engineer and Chairman of Public Works with power to act, while the matter of the sidewalk was referred to the committee, and in the meantime the City Engineer will supply the council with the approximate cost of this work.

Ald. Bennett: I have every sympathy with the residents who are residing in this improved area and the petition for the children that live on the west side of North Front St. and whose children attend King George School, but this question has been before the council on several occasions and there is another side to the matter. The property owner, who owns the lots between the railway bridge and the King George school has to be considered as the costs against him would be heavy and he has informed me that if the sidewalk is built he will allow his property to revert to the city. There are other sections in the city where the conditions are nearly as bad but I am willing to have a report from the engineer made and I believe the City Engineer has a full present time a report of the cost. We will have to secure permission from the Railway Board to cross the bridge.

Teachers Helpful

Alderman Bennett—I' efer only a few days ago I saw several times a day and it is not as dangerous as Dundas Street or at the foot of Bridge Street West hill. The teachers at the King George School are very considerate and watch the children. As for the signs they should be placed at the places requested by the Board."

Ald. Brickman: The route the children have to take across the bridge is dangerous as it is impossible to see a car until it is practically over the top of the bridge. The sidewalk is a real one and runs through this section and something should be done to relieve the situation.

Alderman McCreary spoke in favor of building the sidewalk and the safety of the children should be paramount to any interest. He was of the opinion that a report should be given from the engineer and that the sign should be erected at once. Ask for Tenders

Tenders will be asked for repairs to Numbers 1 and 2 fire halls as per specifications after same are drawn by the City Engineer, was read to the council and herewith given:

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 23rd, 1933

Alderman Harry Hill,
Chairman of the City Council.
Re Fire Hall Reqr Repairs, etc.
Dear Sir:—

I beg to report that I have made an inspection of the roofs of the two fire halls as well as looking over the buildings around the windows and doors. I have also obtained some prices on the various works and submit same to you.

No. 1 Hall—

The roof of this building is leaking at the rear, around the base of the chimney and the parapet, walls along the gable. The roofing material is practically worn off down to the metal in several places and will require a new roofing as the whole roof a good resurfacing. Two of the windows in the front will require replacing and all the windows and doors should be taken out during the framework which would certainly make a considerable difference in the condition of the air in heating the building. The rear room downstairs should be sealed up with a building paper and matched lumber in order to properly heat the lower floor. All the work would cost approximately as follows.

Resurfacing entire roof with liquid material ..... $ 30.00
Fill in around 2 windows in front and window frames 15.00
Repair window sills and frames 13.00
Sheating of rear room downstairs 96.00
$155.00

No. 2 Hall—

The roof of this building is in worse condition than that of No. 1 Hall. There are more leaks and the metal roofing is worn practically all over. A bad leak at the front of the building should be remedied by the removal of the old belfry and the roof carried over level. The windows and doors should be filled in around the frame work to stop down draughts and heating conditions. Several lights of glass will require replacing and also the windows at the rear. All this work would cost approximately as follows:

Resurfacing entire roof with liquid material ..... $ 60.00
Removal of old belfry and roof 25.00
Fill in around 4 door and window frames 30.00
$115.00

By the total expenditure of approximately $270.00 the two buildings would be put in good condition for the present and the difference in fuel consumption and repairs for the succeeding years is considerably noticeable. This is only an approximate estimate and if the work is to be done I would recommend call for tenders on the same.

I remain, yours truly,
(Sgd.) A. MOTT,
City Engineer.

After investigation the committee respecting fire protection for residents of Frank Street, a report was given by the City Engineer and the council ordered same to be received. The report read:

Oct. 23rd, 1933.

His Worship Mayor Tice and Aldermen of the City Council.

Re North Frank Street Fire Protection.

Gentlemen,—

I beg to report that I have reviewed the matter of fire protection for residents of Frank Street, north of the Canadian National Railways with Mayor Tice, Alderman Bennett, Chief Fraser and Mr. Lynch, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Lockhart of the Public Works Engineering staff.

The matter of placing a 5-foot diameter pipe underneath the tracks to provide a passage for fireman and hose to the area in question would cost approximately $3,200.00 and would have to be supervised by the C.N.R. officials. The fire hose would then have to be run from the corner of Fraser and Frank St., a distance of 200 feet to the tracks, under the railway bridge and on to the farthest house to the north end of Frank Street. This arrangement handicap the firemen by having to drag the hose for a considerable distance before the water could be turned on.
